Family Allowance Benefits Increased In Changes Announced By Minister

Repeal Provision Which Reduces Payments To 5th, Subsequent Children; Immigrant Residence Rule Cut To One Year

OTTAWA, March 30 — (CP). — Plans for two important changes in family allowance legislation were announced today by Health Minister Martin. The first would change from three years to one the residence period required as one of the conditions of eligibility of an immigrant child. The second would repeal the provision which reduces the amount of allowances to the fifth and subsequent children in a family of more than four.

Announcement of the proposed changes was contained in a notice inscribed on the votes and proceedings of the Commons by Mr. Martin. The notice gave the text of a resolution to a bill that will make the necessary amendments to the Family Allowances Act.

Under the existing legislation an immigrant child must be a resident of Canada for three years before becoming entitled to the allowances, which range from five dollars to eight dollars a month for a child, depending on his age.

Many Requests

There have been requests from numerous quarters that the government change this provision because it worked hardship on immigrant families from Britain and Europe. Under the new legislation the children of such families would qualify after being in Canada one year.

The Government has also been asked in the past to make the allowance payments equal for all children regardless of the size of the family. At present the allowances are decreased by one dollar a month for the fifth child, two dollars for the sixth and so on.

Some members from Quebec have charged that this discriminated against large families.

No More Cheques

CLAREMONT, March 30—(CP).—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Binstead won't be collecting government "baby bonus" cheques any more, because their "baby" is married. Fifteen-year-old Violet Binstead has become the bride of 19-year-old Ronald Douglas Clarke, who works on his father's farm near here. This means that the $8 monthly allowance cheque won't be issued to the parents, but leaves the girl's support to her husband's responsibility.

May Soon Pay Customers To Handle Cargo

LONDON, March 30 —(CP)— The way they're "doing business" now, ocean freighters plying between Europe and India soon will be paying customers for the privilege of handling their cargoes.

The latest phase in the rate war involving a large group of British ship-owners on one hand and a Dutch group on the other shows that cargo is being handled at a 92-per-cent discount.

The war applies to cargo shipped from the European ports of Hamburg, Rotterdam and Antwerp and the ports of India, Pakistan and Ceylon.

The initiative throughout has been with the Dutch owners, who have carried the war into Britain itself and have offered to take freight by rail and ferry from Britain to the Netherlands and there to tranship it to their own vessels. Previously the freight had been accepted only in the European ports.

The war has been smouldering for months but flared into outright hostilities a fortnight ago with the Dutch owners offering a 60-per-cent discount from the prevailing rates.

The cause of the disagreement mainly has been a scramble for the potentially-rich trade of the German port of Hamburg.

Seven Families Threaten Strike

TORONTO, March 30.—(CP)— Seven families, occupying emergency housing quarters in suburban Malton, today threatened to stage a sit-down strike April 1 if anyone attempts to evict them.

The families, all former residents of suburban municipalities, were placed in the city-operated premises when other accommodation was unavailable. All recently received notices to vacate.

One of the tenants, Mrs. William Burkhardt, said in an interview the seven families would be broken up if eviction is carried out. She said accommodation "just can't be found for large families."

She said she received her eviction notice from a civic official last month and when she asked the reason, the official answered: "Because you are from Scarboro."

Charges Preferred Against Gen. Bissell

FRANKFURT, March 30.—(AP)—Charges of an unspecified nature have been preferred against Maj.-Gen. Clayton L. Bissell, headquarters of the United States Air Force in Europe announced today.

The announcement said the charges are being investigated to determine whether they warrant a trial by court martial.

It added the charges concern "acts allegedly committed while Bissell was military and air attache at the United States Embassy in London from May, 1946, to July, 1948." Air Force officials declined to say what the charges were.

The Air Force announced in Washington last Aug. 14 that anonymous letters charging Bissell with "unauthorized transactions" had led to an investigation, but that accusations made in the unsigned letters were not proved.

Gets Two Years On Fraud Counts

SARNIA, March 30 (CP)— Pleading guilty to 18 charges of conspiracy to defraud, forgery, uttering and false pretences, William Bruce Hanford, 67, Toronto, former broker, today was sentenced to two years less a day here. Five other charges of a similar nature were withdrawn by the Crown upon pleas or not guilty.

A plea for leniency was made to the court through defence counsel, H. H. Gordon of Toronto, who pointed out that his client was suffering from a double hernia and chronic bronchitis. He told Magistrate C. S. Woodrow a penitentiary term might prove fatal to his client.

Mr. Gordon said Hanford had been used as a tool by other interests in Toronto. He had returned a little less than $7,000 to shareholders in the Sarnia area of the $37,000 he allegedly collected on security sales.

Orders Keays To Define Issues In Trial

BELLEVILLE, March 30 (CP) —Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay today tried to clarify the issues before his Royal Commission in a move to speed up the dragging inquiry into the administration of justice in this eastern Ontario centre.

"We'll have to define the issues," he told Constable J. E. Keays, whose allegations the commission is investigating. "This going off and talking about this and talking about that will lead us nowhere."

The commission is hearing evidence on the constable's allegation that Bryson C. Donnan, Hastings county crown attorney, suppressed evidence at the trial of Leroy Woods in December 1947.

The commissioner, in one of the few procedural rulings he has made during 18 days of public hearing, said the only relevant issue now is to discover if evidence was suppressed that might have resulted in a conviction for drunk driving.

Cons. Keays apologized for referring again to three rail posts at the scene of the Woods accident.

"I know you must be getting fed up with those guard rails," he said.

Will Be Short

"Keays will be very short," Cons. Keays said as he began questioning the crown attorney about the prosecution of Leroy Woods in November, 1947.

Mr. Donnan, who suffered a wartime accident in a Bren gun carrier, was permitted to testify from the floor of the courtroom. He leaned against the railing around the counsel and clerk's enclosure.

Cons. Keays alleges Mr. Donnan suppressed evidence at Woods trial on drunk and dangerous driving charges. Woods was acquitted of drunk driving and convicted of dangerous driving.

Commission counsel C. P. Hope Tuesday questioned Mr. Donnan, Hastings county crown attorney for 26 years.

Offers No Evidence

Mr Donnan said on some prosecutions he offered no evidence to the magistrate after reviewing the cases.

"In other words, you act as judge and jury," Cons. Keays said.

"I exercise my responsibility as Crown Attorney," Mr. Donnan said.

Native Army Planned By Dutch In Indonesia

BATAVIA, Java, March 30 — (AP)—The Netherlands officially announced plans today for the speedy replacement of Dutch forces in Indonesia by a native army.

The announcement said the new army will at first "need the help of Dutch army officers and non-coms who will gradually be replaced by Indonesians." It said training of the new army of 16,000 men will be started shortly.

The announcement said the reason for the new measure was the necessity of replacing the present use of Netherlands troops under Dutch plans for an early transfer of political authority to the Indonesians.

Asks For Help

BANGKOK, Siam, March 30 — (AP).—The Indonesian republic today urged the help of "any and every" United Nations agency against the Netherlands. The appeal was supported by the Soviet Union.

The Indonesian request was put before the committee of the whole of the UN Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East by Dr. R. Utoyo, the republic's delegate.

Baptist Churches To Establish Seminary

TORONTO, March 30 (CP)—A convention representing 60 Quebec and Ontario Baptist churches voted unanimously Tuesday night to establish permanently the Canadian Baptist Seminary, inaugurated last December for 53 of the 70 students who rebelled against Dr. T. T. Shields of the Toronto Baptist Church Seminary.

The convention of 150 delegates was called by the provisional committee of the Canadian Baptist Seminary and elected a directorate of 12 ministers and laymen. The directorate represents both the Fellowship of Independent Baptist Churches of Canada and the Union of Regular Baptist Churches.

The Toronto Seminary students had accused Dr. Shields of "dictatorship" in seminary administration.

Newfoundland 'Quickies' Much Cheaper, Stronger

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., March 30— (CP).—Whether you call it a "small smash," a "quickie," a "short, sharp one" or "one for the road," you can get it cheaper and stronger in Newfoundland than in Canada.

But it looks as though the golden era for drinkers is coming to an end. It is widely predicted that liquor prices will jump considerably following Confederation because of heavier customs requirements.

Longshoremen report, however, extensive stocking up by citizens and say there probably is enough liquor stored now to take the island over the next year. This might postpone price hoists for a time.

J. G. Howell, chairman of the Board of Liquor Control, said the present customs tariff here is $8.45 a gallon of imported 'proof' rum while Canada collects $13 per gallon. The most popular drink is a Demerara rum, dubbed "screech" by Canadian servicemen during the war, and it sells for $2.50 a quart. Most prices are within the $4 bracket.

Newfoundanders are traditionally rum drinkers. Liquor Board figures show they consumed 250,000 gallons of the stuff last year, to say nothing of whisky, gin, brandy, beer and wine. In all, they drank more than 1,000,000 gallons, about three gallons for each man, woman and child on the island.

A wartime rationing system — allowing two quart bottles a person per week—still is in effect. Only St. John's and Corner Brook, on the west coast, have liquor control stores. Other points are served by mail.

Mr. Howell said that although Newfoundland and Canadian beers are about the same strength, spirits are stronger here. In Newfoundland rum is "proof"—57 per cent alcohol and the rest water. In Canada the drink is a 30-underproof brew, established by a Federal Act during the war.

Rob Couple Of $550 At Dashwood

Both Men Over 80 Slugged By Youths Visiting House Twice

DASHWOOD, Ont., March 30 (CP)—Police tightened a net of radio patrols around western Ontario today in a hunt for three armed men who beat up two aged brothers in their farm home near Dashwood last night, and robbed them of $550.

In hospital here is 80-year-old Jonah Kessell, who is suffering from two broken ribs, head and facial cuts and shock. His condition is fair.

Cut and bruised, but injured less seriously is William Kessell, 85. He was taken to the home of a neighbor, Joseph Wild. Both men put up a stiff fight before they were subdued.

Scene of the attack was an isolated part of Huron County, eight miles west of the town of Exeter and about 35 miles northwest of London.

The robbers were armed with a rifle and a shotgun and did not wear masks. They are believed between 30 and 35 years old.

Police were told that the two men were slugged by three youths who entered the farmhouse at 10 p.m. They beat them up and then tied Jonah to a chair and the chair to the kitchen stove. William was tied to another chair a short distance from his brother.

Trio Returns

After a quick check of the kitchen the three young thugs left without taking anything. Later they returned and ransacked the house. They found $550 in a purse hidden behind crockery in a kitchen cupboard.

William managed to free himself three hours after the bandits left. He in turn released his brother and the two walked the half mile to Joe Wild's farmhouse. Wild called Provincial Constable Jack Ferguson of Exeter.

Pact Prevents Attack–Bevin

NEW YORK, March 30—(CP).—Ernest Bevin said today the western world is in danger, but that he expects no "early attack" if the nations signing the Atlantic pact work under it to implement their regional security. The British Foreign Secretary told reporters that long-term peace ultimately will come through the United Nations. He said, however, that the world must first organize regionally for peace, then bring the parts together.

He declined to say where he thinks the next regional grouping of western countries will be formed.

Bevin met newspaper men aboard the Queen Mary which brought him and other western European Foreign Ministers to the United States for pact-signing ceremonies at Washington April 4.

As his press conference was being held, pickets with anti-Bevin placards paraded on a street near the midtown pier.

"Anti-semitic Bevin—6,000,000 Jewish dead are enough," said one sign; "Bevin—hands off Israel," said another.

Eggs and tomatoes were hurled from a crowd of 500 pickets at a car bearing Bevin from the pier to Pennsylvania station where he boarded a train for Washington. Three pickets were arrested.

Promote Solidarity

"I am very glad to be back in the United States, especially on this mission in which we are engaged, to bring about unity among peace-loving countries and promote solidarity to prevent war for many generations to come," Bevin said.

The western world has torn itself apart in two wars, said the Foreign Secretary. Now the "moment has come" when a "greater and common understanding is being produced in the economic and cultural field, and in the field of defence."

"I had been hoping that we could build collective security through the United Nations. That will come, but we had to begin somewhere.

"The Atlantic Pact is the first step in this great endeavor."

Youthful Toronto Gang Threaten Police Officials

TORONTO, March 30—(CP).—Suburban New Toronto police routed a gang of 25 youths Tuesday night when they staged a demonstration in front of the police station because one of their friends had been arrested. Police Chief Robert Weatherup said the gang refused to pay for a meal in a restaurant and the owner called police. Frank Kennedy, 19, of Toronto, was arrested while arguing with the owner and blocking the cafe door.

The gang appeared at the police station and allegedly threatened officers unless Kennedy were released. The youths fled when Constable Irving Pease, former amateur boxer, came out of the station, took off his tunic and rolled up his sleeves.

Chief Weatherup said seven other officers assisted Pease in making sure the youths left the municipality. Some left by street car, others hitchhiked. All were from Toronto city, the chief said.

Plan No Change In Labor Code

TORONTO, March 30 (CP) — Labor Minister Charles Daly told a deputation from the Ontario Federation of Labor today there will be no change in the Province's labor code.

The deputation, which waited on Mr. Daley and Provincial Treasurer Frost—the only two Cabinet Ministers to show up after Tuesday night's marathon session in the House—protested against the code which is patterned after that of the Dominion's. While the conference was closed to the press, Cleve Kidd, Secretary-Treasurer of the Federation, said after the meeting that Mr. Daley had declined to make any changes.

The Federation's objections were contained in a brief which also urged the government to withdraw its charitable gifts act, limiting to 10 per cent the amount of shares trustees of a charitable foundation can hold in any one business. Critics of the legislation claim it is aimed at the Atkinson Charitable Foundation which controls the Toronto Daily Star and Star Weekly.

The brief also asked for legislation guaranteeing two weeks' vacation with pay, establishment of a 40-hour week with no reduction in take-home wages and abolition of the poll tax which certain municipalities collect from single employed persons.

Fire In Bank

TORONTO, March 30.—(CP)— Rush hour traffic in East Central Toronto was tied up for 35 minutes today when a $500 fire broke out in the basement of a Bank of Nova Scotia branch. District Fire Chief Sam Wilkinson said the fire was one of the "dirtiest" to fight because of the smoke.

Banker Sought After Big Theft

NEW YORK, March 30 (CP) — Police today are seeking an easy-mannered but nervous assistant branch bank manager in connection with the theft of $690,000 from the National City Bank.

They said the bank is missing $500,000 in bonds and $190,000 in cash. Part of the bonds are said to be negotiable. The bonds and cash disappeared from a small vault in a downtown branch.

The man, Richard H. Crowe, 41, is wanted on a grand larceny charge. He was reported missing from his Staten Island home by his wife, Honore, who said he had not been home since Sunday.

Bank officials said Crowe returned to work a week ago following treatment for a nervous breakdown.

No Butter Imports

OTTAWA, March 30 (CP)—As far as the Canadian government is concerned, any suggestion of importing butter from Australia at this time would be like carrying coals to Newcastle. A trade department official, commenting on a Canberra dispatch quoting Commerce Minister Reginald as saying 1,000 tons of Australian butter are being sent to Canada because of adverse season in the Dominion, declared that the government is certainly not buying the butter.

Syrian Army Seizes Gov't In Bloodless Revolution

DAMASCUS, March 30—(CP) —The Syrian army seized power in Syria's capital today, arresting government leaders in a bloodless revolt at dawn.

Brig. Husni Zayim, commander of the Syrian army, said the military coup was ordered because of "attacks against the army, inside as well as outside the house of representatives."

Curfew was clamped on the city at 6 a.m. local time and all was reported quiet several hours after Zayim announced the seizure of power.

Zayim said the revolutionary movement was "purely local and has no foreign implication."

This was taken to mean that the new government would probably proceed with scheduled armistice negotiation with Israel. Two united nations officials left Rhodes Tuesday for Damascus to lay the groundwork for the Israeli-Syrian talks.

Zayim announced that army rule over Syria would be "temporary."

"We have been compelled to undertake this change in the regime because of attacks against the army inside as well as outside the house of representatives, which gave way to misrepresentation of the Syrian army and ill treatment of its officers," Zayim said.

"Another reason for it is the people's discontent with the present rule and the abuse from personalities handling it.

"Our movement is purely local and has no foreign implication whatsoever, and we are not rule seekers or supporters of dictatorial rule. As soon as a new cabinet is formed, which we are seeking at present with the advice of the speaker of the house, Faris Bey El Khouri, we shall transfer the power to them."

The commander cabled the United Nations that the Syrian army took its action to put an end to internal anarchy. It confirmed Syria's adherence to her former agreements and respect for democracy.

Twisters Hit Oklahoma Four Times

2 Killed, 18 Injured As Houses Damaged; Small Airport Wrecked

CANTON, Okla., March 30 — (AP) — Tornadoes struck four times in northwest Oklahoma today, killing two, injuring 18 and causing heavy property damage.

Canton, Longdale and Blackwell were hit. A tornado also dipped down five miles north of Enid, and wrecked a small airport.

The greatest damage was to the first two—Canton, a town of 1,200, and nearby Longdale, 400. The dead were in Canton and Longdale.

In Canton the entire town was damaged. Streets were littered with trees, boards, bricks and wrecked autos.

At Longdale two business buildings were demolished and many houses damaged—but none were flattened.

The tornado in Blackwell struck the south and southwest residential areas of that city of 12,000. Six persons were taken to hospitals.

One large home in Blackwell was unroofed, a half dozen smaller houses were damaged and a one-storey frame school house was flattened.

With the coming of dawn rescue workers found the damage in Canton and Longdale not as great as first reports had indicated.

2 Warsaw Men Held For Theft

Two Warsaw men, Sydney Henry and Clifford Henry, were placed under arrest at noon today by the Provincial Police on a charge of stealing a quantity of spruce and balsam logs, property of Allan Payne, also of Warsaw.

The arrests were made by Provincial Constables Feeley and Henderson, and the men were being held at police headquarters in Peterborough at press time awaiting arraignment before a magistrate. The alleged thefts are believed to have occurred early his week.

Hospital Inquiry To Be Started

WINDSOR, March 30.—(CP).— City council Tuesday night requested the Ontario Government to make full inquiry into the administration, control and finances of city-owned Metropolitan General Hospital and asked amendment of a bill of inquiry introduced in Legislature earlier in the day.

Five motions or amendments were voted on before the original motion, with two changes, was passed. It called for a probe wider in scope than would be covered by the bill introduced in the Legislature Tuesday by Attorney-General Blackwell.

Health Minister Kelley was asked to conduct an investigation. The Cabinet Minister said the city had to make the first move. As Council prepared to take the initiative, word was received Tuesday that the city can not conduct a probe under the Municipal Act because of legal entanglements and that the Government would act on request of Council.

Order Trucks, Trailers To Install Mudguards

TORONTO, March 30 (CP) — Legislation compelling owners to install mudguards on their trucks and trailers was introduced in the Ontario Legislature Tuesday by Highways Minister Doucett. Ontario is believed the first province to introduce the move.

Mr. Doucet said the average motorist had experienced poor visibility by the wheel spray from large motor trucks and trailers.

Movable spotlights will be permitted on motor vehicles for the first time, it was announced. Penalties have been provided for misuse of spotlights, however.

Peace Rally Bloody Rout As Montreal Police Club Crowd In Attendance

Quebec LPP Leader, 11 Others Arrested For Creating Disturbance; Meeting Protests Signing Of Atlantic Pact

MONTREAL, March 30—(CP).—A "peace" rally sponsored by the Labor-Progressive Party was turned into a bloody rout here Tuesday night when more than 100 city, provincial and Royal Canadian Mounted Police broke up a street meeting on Central St. Lawrence Blvd. Twelve persons were arrested and four went to hospital with minor injuries as nightstick-swinging police squads dispersed a crowd of men and women estimated at from 500 to 1,000.

Among those arrested and charged with "creating a disturbance" was Gui Caron, youthful leader of the Quebec Labor-Progressive Party. He was released on $100 bail.

The incident started when groups of persons gathered around a hall owned by the Carpenters' and Joiners' Union (AFL). The hall had been rented by the Montreal Council for World Peace to stage a meeting calling for "world peace" and protesting Canadian participation in the Atlantic pact.

However, the union said it withdrew its permission when it learned that speakers would be Caron and Harry Binder, L.P.P. nominee in Jacques Cartier riding in the next Federal election.

Hold Street Meeting

L.P.P. leaders showed up in front of the locked hall anyway and proceeded to hold a street meeting, complete with banners blazoned with the slogan, "We want peace."

Large squads of police had been detailed to the area in anticipation of such a move. Constables told the crowd to move on.

Eyewitnesses reported that the swelling crowd was quiet and orderly but were slow in moving. Uniformed police charged into them, swinging their clubs liberally.

Caron and other speakers, according to the eyewitnesses, then told the crowd to disperse quietly and it started to do so.

The police drove in, however, tearing down the banners of the demonstrators. Sgt. John Boyzcum of the city anti-subversive squad suffered a badly-cut mouth.

Two reporters said that at least two of the police broke their nightsticks. Several of those arrested, police said, were well known in Labor - Progressive circles.

One of these—Norman Nerenberg—is secretary of the National Federation of Labor Youth.

De Gaulle Asks U.S. To Arm France At Once

PARIS, March 30 (AP)—Gen. Charles De Gaulle wants the United States to arm France at once as the principal defender of Western Europe under the North Atlantic Pact.

Allied strategy designates the Rhine as the first line of defence against attacks from the east, he told a press conference Tuesday, but that line will be manned principally by Frenchmen, at least at the beginning if there is a fight.

It would be "a grave mistake" to designate Britain as West Europe's chief defender, De Gaulle asserted.

For one thing, he said, another conquest of France—and bombardment and reinvasion to liberate her—would destroy the country both morally and physically.

He demanded that the United States promptly make definite strategic commitments in the event of attack on West Europe, and stick to a schedule of arms shipments to the French.

Rather cryptically, and without further explanation, De Gaulle hailed the North Atlantic treaty as a stride toward a federation of Europe which might seek co-operation with Russia in unification of the continent, even if that might mean a change in the Russian regime. He did not explain how he thought such a change might come about.

MORE ABOUT—
Order Keays

"Oh, there's nothing wrong with that," interjected the Royal Commissioner.

Mr. Donnan said he was at first convinced of the soundness of Cons. Keays' theory that the Woods car smashed three posts on Highway No. 14, four miles north of Belleville Mr. Donnan said this theory later was proved incorrect.

The Commissioner, reading the transcript of evidence on the Woods trial, said he could not get the impression from the transcript that the constable had testified the car smashed he posts.

"If that transcript is correct, then Keays is a maniac," Cons Keays said.

Sees Association

Mr. Donnan said: "It was clear to me that Cons. Keays was associating the displacement of these posts with the Woods case."

Mr. Hope said he took no responsibility for the transcript. It had been copied by an incompetent reporter and had not been signed by the magistrate.

Cons. Keays said one of his reports contained statements from witnesses saying it was the second accident at the same spot within a week. Mr. Donnan said he had never received the report.

Mr. Justice Mackay said it appeared there had been "ample evidence" to convict Woods of dangerous driving. The only thing concerning the Commission was to see if evidence was suppressed that might have meant a conviction, rather than an acquittal, on drunk driving charges.

"If there was some evidence that might have supported the allegation of drunkenness, and that evidence was not produced, that may require an explanation," the Commissioner said.

Evidence Disagrees

Mr. Donnan said the "origin of the whole mess" was that Col. Ervine gave evidence with which Cons. Keays disagreed.

Cpl. Ervine testified the posts were smashed and marks made in a ditch on September 28. Cons. Keays said the marks in a ditch were made by the Woods car on November 4.

Mr. Donnon said it was the constable's duty to report to him if he believed Cpl. Ervine had committed perjury but "no evidence was placed before me and no evidence has yet been placed before me."

Cons. Keays said he reported to Mr. Donnan December 27, nine days after the trial began.

"It wasn't a question of perjury at all," Mr. Donnan said. "You wanted Cpl. Ervine to admit he had made a mistake and I had reason to believe he had not made a mistake."

Recommended Keays

Mr. Donnan said he had "more than once" recommended Cons Keays for promotion to the Provincial Police Criminal Investigation Branch.

Cons. Keays asked if Judge W. S. Lane of Prince Edward County had ever complained about the constable's evidence Mr. Donnan said no.

He asked if the Crown Attorney had issued instructions not to charge E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF Leader, with speeding during the Ontario election campaign.

"One of the officers stopped Mr. Jolliffe for speeding and warned him," Mr. Donnan said.

"I said to forget about it. He was a man in public life in the middle of an election campaign. I'd have done the same for anyone else and I take full responsibility."

Pleads For Petain

PARIS, March 30 (AP)— Gen-Charles De Gaulle Tuesday asked clemency for a wartime opponent, Marshal Philippe Petain. Petain, 92, whose Vichy regime condemned De Gaulle to death in absentia for leading the Free French, is serving a life sentence on the Ile D'Yeu off the southwestern coast of France.

Legislature Session Lasts 14 Hours; Members Fall Asleep

TORONTO, March 30 — (CP)— The Ontario Legislature, with some members falling asleep as the discussion on departmental estimates droned on, sat until 4:50 a.m. today in one of the longest sittings in its history.

Only about half the 90 members were in their seats when Provincial Treasurer Frost adjourned the debate, which lasted altogether 13 hours and 50 minutes, including the dinner hour adjournment. The length of sitting was not a record, the legislature one year having sat until noon.

Opposition members, angered by a speech by Education Minister Porter to a Suburban Young Progressive Conservative Association Monday night in which he criticized the opposition as "the weakest we ever had," gave notice as the debate went into the early hours they would not be "stampeded" in passing the education department's estimates.

J. B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog. Toronto St. Andrew) said they had been introduced at a time when members were "not alert and wide awake."

Failing Asleep

Shortly after 3 a.m. William Temple (CCF — Toronto High Park) appeared with cups of coffee for T. C. Patrick (PC—Middlesex North), chairman of the whole House, and R. G. Lewis, assistant clerk of the Legislature.

Weary members propped their feet on chairs and munched apples. Page boys were sent home at 12:45 a.m.

The Legislature meets again today at 2 p.m., one nour earlier than usual.

In committee stage on the margarine bill in the afternoon sitting Tuesday, the House saw government deletion of requirements that manufacturers should label their product as a "butter substitute." The government however declined to accept opposition suggestions that margarine be permitted more than 1.6 degrees of yellow coloring. Welfare Minister Goodfellow, sponsoring the bill, said average butter contained between 3 and 3.5 degrees of yellow coloring.

Mr. Goodfellow told the Legislature that the Ontario government would favor a conference of all provinces to draft uniform regulations on sale and manufacture of margarine. In setting the coloring limit at 1.6 degrees the government had considered that British Columbia had already set such a limit.

Don't Want Open Sunday

On the Attorney-General's department estimates, introduced at the night sitting, Attorney-General Blackwell told C. C. Calder (Lib.—London) that "by and large the people of Ontario have no desire for an open, American Sunday." Mr. Caldwell had asked explanations regarding enforcement of the Lord's Day Act. Mr. Blackwell explained this was a federal act.

In the margarine debate, Mr. Goodfellow moved an amendment providing that restaurants serving margarine need only display a sign reading "oleomargarine is served here." The amendment deleted the words "as a butter substitute." Another amendment deleted the section providing that margarine packages be marked "a substitute for butter."

J. G. Brown (Lib.—Waterloo North) asked the government to allow "a little coloring" of margarine. He thought 1.6 degrees of color was "almost white." He could not say what difference an additional 1/10th or 1/5th degrees of color would make but he thought margarine should be nearer the color of butter.

Coasting Along

Another Liberal member, R. A. McEwing (Wellington North) supported the bill's color provision. He said that if margarine and butter were any more similar in color than the bill provided, manufacturers would be able to "chisel." Margarine could coast along on butter's reputation."

The Legislature defeated an amendment by A. A. MacLeod (Lab.-Prog.-Toronto Bellwoods) to permit margarine to bear three degrees of color.

In the night debate Mr Blackwell said the Lord's Day Act provided that prosecutions may be brought on consent of the Attorney-General's Department. In the past, police forces had never known whether this consent was forthcoming. The Attorney-General last summer informed Crown Attorneys which types of prosecutions would be approved.

He had always conferred with the executive of the Lord's Day Alliance before consenting to prosecutions. The Alliance had been "reasonable" and did not ask prosecution of all alleged violations of the Act.

Hog Producers Ask Bonus Be Restored

TORONTO, March 30.—(CP).—Plea for restoration of the quality bonus on hogs previously paid by Provincial and Federal governments was made Tuesday by C. W. McGinnis of Iroquois, president of the Ontario Hog Producers' Association. Mr. McGinnis told the Association's annual convention that dwindling hog production was caused by removal of the bonus.

During his address the president of the swine association pointed out that the temporary peace could be gained by the winning of wars, but added that the peoples of the world must be fed if peace were to be permanent. It boiled down, he said, to a question of "Are we going to feed them now or fight them later?"

Removal of the quality bonus has been the cause of alarm to many hog producers recently and, although there was no mention of figures at Tuesday's meeting, it has been estimated that the step will cost Ontario producers between $500,000 and $1,000,000.

There was no reason, Mr. McGinnis felt, why production couldn't be boosted. He thought producers should have more control of their products, and said this would result in farmers sticking by the program planned, even under adverse conditions, until they could cope with the situation.

More Control

In support of his contention that farmers should have more control over their produce, he noted that lack of confidence in the industry had resulted from a policy of aid "when the whole country is in danger," then letting the industry "down cold" later.

W. E. Hummon, secretary of the association, spoke of action taken in referring to the Farm Products Marketing Board a request for some steps to be taken with regard to flat live weight buying of hogs. Such buying, he said, was contrary to Dominion hog grading regulations, since premiums are required to go to the producer.

"It was learned," he said, "that the Dominion hog grading regulations were not legal in the province, only to the extent they were made legal by the rules of our marketing scheme. The new solicitor of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, after careful study, felt we were not on a very sound basis," he said.

He traced the history of the Grades and Sales Act, and noted that a bill to amend the act was now before the legislature. When this act is finally passed it would be possible, he said, to bring Dominion hog grading regulations under it, making regulations legal in Ontario for domestic, interprovincial and export trade.

Satisfactory Year

In his secretary's report Mr. Tummon said 1948 had been a satisfactory year for producers because export prices had remained stationary throughout the year and feed grain prices had remained fairly even.

Some method, he felt, must be found whereby nations of the western world could trade without dollar-sterling restrictions. He suggested that the time had arrived when all available markets should be explored.

The future, despite uncertainty about future United Kingdom contracts, should be faced cautiously but with optimism.

"Our board strongly feels that without delay steps should be taken by the Dominion Government to set up an export board or commitee composed of equal representation from the government, producers and processors . . and that the board should apply itself to the exploring of markets, to the regulating, inspecting, advising, controlling and all matters concerned with the disposal of surplus pork products," he said.

"Hog producers will not be able to meet demands of the United Kingdom this year. The output for the balance of this season will not be sufficient to meet domestic requirements and enable us to fill the UK contract of 150,000,000 pounds of wiltshire sides," said Walter W. McInnis, association president.

Stock Prices Go Up But Back Down Later

TORONTO, March 30 (CP) — Prices turned upwards in moderately active trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today but tended to back down from their best gains chalked up in the first hour. Golds and industrials were ahead on narrow gains and several base metals brightened. Volume for the first three hours was 495,000 shares, about 87,000 shares more than yesterday's similar period.

Steels showed the strongest advances in the industrial grouping with Steel of Canada leading the upturn.

Hudson Bay Smelting moved down 1¼ to 45¼ in an otherwise better base metal list. Smelters, Falconbridge, Labrador, Sherritt and International Nickel were among the gainers.

Okalta featured Western Oils, adding three cents to yesterday's 17-cent advance. The stock sold at a new high at $1.94 but then dipped to $1.90 in active dealings.

Hero Of Stalingrad German Commander

MOSCOW, March 30.—(AP).—Army General Vassily I. Chuikov, wartime hero of Stalingrad and Lublin, became military governor of the Soviet zone of Germany today, succeeding Marshall Vassily D. Sokolovsky.

Sokolovsky was promoted to principal assistant to the new minister of Soviet armed forces, Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky. Chuikov's appointment also was a promotion.

Announcement of the changes, like others in the continuing shake-up of top-level Soviet officials, gave no explanation of the reasons. The people were told the shifts in a brief broadcast to Moscow radio and a 59-word item published in the morning newspapers.

Both men are widely known to the Soviet people. Chuikov commanded the 62nd army division in the defence of Stalingrad from September, 1942, to February, 1943, receiving the high honor of Order of Suvorov, first class.

Judge Dismisses Damage Action Against Chief

COBOURG, March 30—(ENS)—Mr. Justice Urquhart took the Waite vs. Carey damage action today from the jury and dismissed it with costs if demanded. His Lordship found that Chief W. J. Carey had acted with proper care and without malice in arresting Mrs. Edith Waite under the Mental Hospitals Act.

Conducting her own case, Mrs. Waite launched her $8,000 damage action against Chief Constable W. J. Carey at the opening of the spring assizes Tuesday before Mr. Justice Urquhart. She alleges that she was unlawfully committed to a mental institution by Chief Carey. The defendant was represented by Ralph Standish. The plaintiff's case was ended in the late afternoon and adjournment until this morning was made after three defence witnesses had been heard. Many times during the hearing, His Lordship appealed to Mrs. Waite to ask questions instead of trying to give evidence from her position as her own counsel.

Mr. Standish at the opening of the case, told the court that he had been called as a witness by the plaintiff. Members of the petit jury are W. Quigley, Cobourg; J. Calberry of Hastings; H. Harvey of Hamilton township; D. McMaster of Murray Township; H. Maybee of Murray Township; B. Sisson of Cavan Township; J. Glaspell of Darlington Township; J. Jones of Hastings; R. Harriett of Hamilton Township; A. Falls of Bowmanville and E. Stanbury of Campbellford.

One case was on the criminal docket, the grand jury returning a true bill for manslaughter against Garnet Cox of Peterborough, the case arising out of a motor accident near Fraserville last November.

Chief Carey was the first witness called by Mrs. Waite. During the course of the production of documents by her, and her remarks concerning same, His Lordship commented that he was not going to listen to a long rambling talk. "This case must retain some order," he said.

Chief Carey denied refusing to allow Mrs. Waite to phone after she was arrested on a charge laid under the Mental Hospitals Act.

'Did you sneer twice and say 'What a pity, what a pity' after you and Mr. Trimble took me to the jail on November 12, 1946?" she asked. Chief Carey said he did not. The chief explained that he saw the crown attorney (Mr. Deyman) before the charge was laid.

"Did you hound me after I was released from the institution?" Mrs. Waite asked, Chief Carey replied that he did not hound her, that he had every sympathy for her.

"Why was I put in jail?" she demanded.

Chief Carey replied that Provincial Constable Lyle Erskine had complained that Mrs. Waite had been calling his wife on the phone. Mrs. Waite persisted in giving evidence from the counsel table until His Lordship told Chief Carey to step down and let Mrs. Waite get up and tell her story.

Told Tell Her Story

"We can't sit here all day while you sort out your papers. You get in the box and tell your story. We'll get along more quickly," said His Lordship. However she had a few more questions and was permitted to get them on the record.

"Was there not a complaint about bullet holes in my windows? What did you do about it?" she asked.

"Yes, you said there were bullet holes in your windows and you also complained about bullet holes in your head. Your neighbours said you were a nuisance," Carey replied.

"You charge him with arresting you unlawfully but all we have so far is that he arrested you on a warrant and you were committed to the mental institution on the magistrate's order," observed His Lordship.

"We'll stop this right now. Chief Carey will step down and you go in the witness box and tell your story," directed His Lordship.

Hears Landlord's Appeal To Raise Rent Of Houses

CAMPBELLFORD, March 30—(ENS)—E. C. McKeel's appeal for the right to raise rents was heard before Wilfred S. Lane, county judge of Prince Edward county, on Tuesday.

In presenting his case, Mr. McKeel said that his family had been landlords for 50 years and that the McKeels had always shown consideration in dealing with their tenants.

Instead of investing money in property, he remarked, it would be wiser to purchase bonds. This would ease one's mind of rental and vacancy worries.

A year ago, Mr. McKeel continued, with increased taxes and services, he went to Peterborough to discuss matters with Mr. Thompson of the Rental Board. He had made an appointment with him but Mr. Thompson was too busy to see him. Mr. Thompson had never appraised the houses, Mr. McKeel stated.

He said that the low rents he received did not bring in enough revenue to make the necessary repairs. Mr. McKeel thought that a fair profit should be received on a fairly large investment. He placed the sum of $20 a year on outside maintenance which, at the present time, was only equivalent to two days' work for a decorator or 12 hours for a plumber.

No Consideration

In presenting his case further, Mr. McKeel declared that no consideration was shown for the landlord and that he looked after his property while some one else had control of it.

The judge asked Mr. McKeel to point out comparative houses that were renting for more money than his.

He described a house in a bad state of repair on Ranney St. renting for $15 a month. Another on Reay St. without conveniences rented for $18 and an apartment on Queen St. brought in $22 a month.

The judge asked Mr. McKeel to put a value on his houses. He set the value at $4,000 each or $3,500 each if sold collectively. Mr. T. L. Diamond, a large owner of property, verified these values

Mr McKeel's tenants were present and testified, regarding the condition of the houses

Mrs Dickie said that her house was in bad shape The woodshed was falling away from the house and the ceiling and floors were in a very dilapidated state.

"We have spent more than $200 of our own money," remarked Mrs. Buchanan, "in placing weather stripping around the windows, repairing the roof and making other necessary alterations The floors are full of knots and the back steps are a wreck. It is so cold we have already spent over $150 for fuel."

Mrs. Haynes stated that she hadn't many complaints as she was moving shortly to her own house.

"None of the doors fit in my house and it is very cold," declared Mrs. Davidson.

Harold Dooher said that he considered $15 a month a fair rent for one of Mr. McKeel's houses. "We have no furnace, no basement and all the doors sag," he reported.

Judge Lane reserved judgment until he had made a careful inspection of each house.

"Uncrowned King" Dies

CAPETOWN, March 29 (CP)—John Martin, who rose from a humble Scottish immigrant to become "uncrowned king" of South Africa, died here Tuesday at the age of 65. Martin ruled from behind the scenes in his position as newspaper and gold-mining executive. The "uncrowned king" for more than three decades was considered to possess more influence in South Africa than any Prime Minister.

Plan To Raise $50,000 For Hospital

CAMPBELLFORD, March 30 (ENS)—The information that an extensive drive is to be sponsored by the Rotary Club during April to obtain approximately $50,000 for the completion of the Memorial Hospital, was placed before the Board of Directors at the annual meeting in the Parish Hall this week.

The officers for 1949 were elected as follows: honorary president, J. E. Ayrhart; president, H. M. Donald; directors, W. F. Scott, A. B. Billen, A. D. Bennett, J. A. Murray, F. W. Burgess, R. J. Locke; treasurer, J. D. Mills, secretary, F. S. Linton; auditors, C. J. Maier and R. J. Bale.

A comprehensive financial report was given by A. J. Meyers, chairman of the building committee. He expressed confidence in the completion of the building this fall, although the tender for the construction of the superstructure had not been advertised. All preliminary work in this connection, he said, was now completed and it was merely a matter of waiting for the architect to call for tenders.

The following is the financial statement as of March 28, 1949:

Receipts, subscriptions, $31,282.56; town grant, $25,000. Expenditures, printing and advertising, $512.88; miscellaneous, $102.27; property, $1,506.31; contract one, $12,490.42; contract two, $2,000.; construction and extra fill, $195.; architect's fees, $8,000; electrical construction $3,825; plumbing outlets $374.88; reinforcing steel, $342.

Liabilities—Contract two $7,500; electrical construction $650; available balance for completing building in rough $62,983.80.

Estimated cost of completed hospital $225,000; cash subscriptions $31,282.56; town grant $40,000; Seymour township grant $20,000; government grants $86,000; estimated balance needed to complete hospital $47,717.44.

Wants To Use Arena As Community Centre

CAMPBELLFORD, March 30—(ENS)—Rotarian F. M. Rutherford addressed the Kinsmen Club at the weekly meeting in the Woodlawn on the immediate need of a community centre. While other places, he said, were raising large sums to construct recreational centres, in Campbellford they were in a very fortunate position.

He advocated the town taking over Davidson's arena which would be a profitable investment and would provide recreation for the children winter and summer. He suggested a collective effort in conjunction with the municipal council in operating a people's rink. "The Township of Seymour," he declared, "would co-operate in such an enterprise for the benefit of youth."

The sum of $10 was voted in aid of the Red Cross campaign. Plans for holding a dance at Edgewater Park were discussed and the date for a street fair was tentatively fixed for Thursday, July 21. President F. B. Brintnell of Warkworth was in the chair.

The Margarine Bill

Excepting the two L.P.P. members, the whole Ontario Legislature voted for the Margarine Bill for an excellent political reason; any party which offends the farm voters in Ontario has cooked its goose for a generation. Although they are a minority among the voters, the farmers still control enough constituencies to make or break a government. The Conservatives who are in the saddle, the Liberals who hope to regain past glories, and the C.C.F. who aspire to power, cannot afford to offend a minority which has so many seats to give. And so, in a three-way bid for the farm vote the Legislature ran contrary to a lively protest from the town-dwellers of Ontario. If seats in the Legislature were to be re-allotted on a basis of population the power of the farm voters would be broken; it will be at least twenty-five years, however, before anything of that sort happens. But as Ontario is now predominantly a manufacturing province, it will happen eventually.

* * *

The Ontario margarine bill compares unfavourably with the bill which is now before the Legislature of Alberta, another province in which the farm vote is of great importance. That bill makes no effort to interfere with or penalize the manufacture and sale of margarine; it requires only that margarine be labelled properly, and that it conform to fixed standards of quality. The Edmonton Journal says:

> The law as now drawn serves the double purpose of protecting the consumer against an inferior product and the dairy industry against fraudulent competition. Beyond this no government should go.

* * *

The Ontario government, with its insistence that the margarine be white in colour, and that it be labelled as a "substitute" (which it is not, any more than commercial cheeses are a substitute for the kind made in cheese factories) goes much farther than Alberta. And the goat-like agility with which the M.P.Ps leaped to seek political advantage gives us their measure as champions of the rights of the majority of voters.

Music Comes To Peterborough

The Kiwanis Music Festival concluded in the city last week was numerically a success. From the point of view of standards aimed at and performance promising well for the future, it was also a success. There were individual entrants who achieved a really high standard, who showed talents and accomplishment artistically praiseworthy. This was the third such festival in Peterborough. We hope that its success will encourage the Kiwanians to continue. There is no doubt that the festivals do much to stimulate interest in music, add to the appreciation of it and improve the performance. The criticism of skilled outside adjudicators is of inestimable value to contestants and music teachers alike.

Although the festivals are held in Peterborough, they are conducted in the musical interests of a wide area—from northern counties adjacent to Peterborough County and east and west of it along the Lake shore. The number of entrants from outside the immediate area of the city was gratifyingly, remarkably large. Out of approximately 500 individual entries, more than half—290 by rough count—were from outside the city and immediate rural area. This is an indication of a commendable musical interest and activity outside the city area. That many of the top awards were taken by Lindsay, Port Hope, other towns and villages, and rural school pupils is a tribute to the instruction available to these contestants and their own merit.

Compared with the out of town entries, Peterborough itself did not show up as well—at least numerically—as might be expected from the most populous place included in the Festival territory. Particularly in the vocal contests was the Peterborough participation meagre. Next year we hope that with the example given it by other places, Peterborough city will have more contestants and thus ensure that the city's right to be the Festival centre is maintained.

Trial By Newspaper

Newspapermen all over the British Commonwealth, we imagine, nodded with approval when the London Daily Mirror was fined $40,000 and its editor sent to jail for three months, after having been convicted of contempt of court. The circumstances are quickly explained: a man was on trial for the murder of a woman whose body had been dissolved in acid; during the progress of the trial the Mirror said that this man had committed "murder after murder" and gave supposed details of his crimes. Such conduct is indefensible. Newspapers are not supposed to comment on murder trials in any way which might conceivably prejudice the court for or against the accused person, and they are permitted to report only what is brought out in court proceedings. Comment can be made afterward. All reputable newspapers adhere to these rules because they are the only fair rules by which the news of a trial can be treated. There are heavy penalties for newspapers which do not abide by the rules, and the Mirror has felt their weight.

Sometimes it is suggested that the U.S.A. has the yellowest English-speaking press in the world; we have long thought that London has a better claim to that unpleasant distinction. As well as some of the finest papers in the world, London has some of the most sensational, and of these the Mirror is an example. By pandering to the worst instincts of a low order of readers, it has achieved a daily circulation of 4,000,000. Chief Justice Goddard, at the trial, said that the Mirror disregarded the decencies of journalism as a matter of policy, knowing that it could attract readers by printing what no other newspaper would print. That policy has now taken the editor to jail for three months; we may feel a little sympathy with the editor, who was undoubtedly doing what his publishers told him to do; nevertheless, he must have known that editing the Mirror is a job which carries unusual and disagreeable duties with it.

Newspapers are understandably determined that the freedom of the press should not be abridged. Freedom, however, carries obligations which the Mirror has inexcusably set aside.

Canada United On Foreign Policy

The most significant development in Canada's foreign policy in perhaps its entire history—apart from the declaring of wars—is Canada's sponsorship of and adherence to the North Atlantic Treaty. On Monday the House of Commons approved the draft of the Treaty by almost unanimous vote. There were only two dissenting votes cast, these by the two sitting members of the Bloc Populaire, a party which is now without importance in Canadian affairs.

In presenting the Treaty for legislative approval the Prime Minister reviewed the whole course of international events since the end of the war, and showed the necessity and great value of this North Atlantic Treaty to Canada and the western world. The Leader of the Opposition endorsed it warmly, and other parties gave it their approval. Thus Canada shows the world that its political leaders and parties are united in their foreign policy, and standing squarely together against alien philosophies of government in the interests of peace not dictated by Russian prices.

Next week in Washington the treaty will come up for ratification by the various governments which have made it possible. It will be an important day in western modern history.

Canadian Bulls By Air

Monday twelve extraordinary and preferred-class passengers left Malton airport to fly to Italy. The twelve are highly-prized Holsteins, seven of them bulls, five of them heifers. They are being sent to Italy to assist that country to restock and improve her depleted herds with well-bred animals. They are not the first Canadian animals to go to Italy. Four bulls were sent last year. In May 195 other Holsteins are to travel to Italy, by surface means.

Today's shipment is the cream of the crop, the kind of animals which will ensure good and large milk production per cow. The shipment is being sponsored by the World Commerce Corporation. The animals come from herds in southern Ontario. They have been bought as part of the Italian Government's "herd rehabilitation program". Canadian breeders are acquiring a good name as well as profitable dollars from their sales to foreign countries. We are proud to know that their animals are so highly regarded that, like princes or busy men of affairs, they travel by air. We are sure that only the best bulls take to the air.

The only pen we know of which really lasts a lifetime is the one at Kingston.

Soviet Words And Deeds

(NEW YORK TIMES)

WHILE Soviet spokesmen at a left-wing rally in New York proclaimed their devotion to liberty, democracy and peace and accused the West of "fascism, warmongering and planned aggression," the Soviet Government by its deeds provided a commentary on their meeting that spoke far louder than their words. For the words of their "peace offensive" were more than counterbalanced by the thunder of the "cold war" which the Soviets are waging against the West, and which they have stepped up to new intensity against their smaller neighbours. From the Atlantic to the Pacific, as Premier Spaak of Belgium said so movingly some months ago, the nations stand in fear of Soviet policies and ambitions and see themselves compelled to seek safety in a common organization for their self-defence. The fears that have been aroused by Soviet conquests in Europe and in Asia are only further aggravated by the latest Soviet campaign against Norway, Finland and especially Iran, where it has reached the shooting stage.

* * *

THIS campaign, like the whole "cold war," is part of a strategy of terror which the Soviets have copied from Hitler, and which is designed to scare all nations either into surrender or into a hands-off policy by raising before their eyes the spectre of new war. Also, like Hitler, the Soviets likewise seek the fruits of war, if possible, without fighting a major war, or fighting at most a "little war," as in Poland and in Finland; or, better still, a "civil war" through their Fifth Columns, as in Greece and China. For that reason, while willing to stop in the face of insurmountable resistance, as in Berlin and Korea, they nevertheless continue to probe for weak spots in the armour of their opposition and seek to gain their ends along the path of least resistance. Judging from their latest actions, they seem to see such a path again in both Finland and Iran.

* * *

THE clash in Iran, which led to the killing of one Iranian soldier and the Russian capture of two more, is thus far only a tiny border place against the background of a steadily intensifying Soviet propaganda drive against the Iranian Government which has assumed ominous overtones. It began with the supression of the Communist party in Iran following discovery of what the Government claims was a plot to assassinate the Shah and start a revolution. It is being accompanied by Soviet charges that Iran is permitting itself to be converted into an American military base.

* * *

THE latter charge has already been denied by Secretary of State Acheson as "false and demonstrably untrue." But the Iranians fear not without reason that the charge has been raised in order to pave the way for the Soviets to invoke the Soviet-Iranian treaty of February 26, 1921, which provides that in case there is danger of Iran becoming "a base for military action" against the Soviets the latter shall have the right to send troops into Iranian territory in the interest of their self-defence. That treaty first brought Russian troops to Iran in 1941 on the ground that there was danger of German aggression in that country, and the charges of aggressive Western intentions could become the build-up for new intervention which the United Nations might find even greater difficulty in ending than the last time. In like manner, the Soviet charges against Norway, raised in connection with the Atlantic Pact and coupled with charges that Finland has already violated treaties with the Soviets, arouse fear of similar dangers for that country.

* * *

THESE fears are all the greater because both Iran and Finland are outside of the Atlantic Pact, and the Soviets might, therefore, conclude that the West will not defend them. But against that stands the warning issued by Mr. Acheson, and repeated in his statement on Iran, that the security of areas outside of the North Atlantic community is of direct concern to us. It must be hoped that the discords of the New York rally will not drown out the implications of this warning, and that Mr. Acheson's plain words, like the plain words of the North Atlantic Treaty, will make peace more secure.

Letter To The Editor

SELF-APPOINTED JUDGE

Sir: I am one of the judges in the "Letters to the Editor" flogging contest; and the referee, if he picks up and scans my "slip", will note that I have awarded nine rounds to Mr. Albert J. J. Strange; one round to Mr. Thomas Miller.

Good head-work by Strange carried him safely to the last round, then he became a bit groggy on the subject of revenge. By my permission neither deities, demigods nor any of their dependents may resort to revenge.

Miller's subtle foot-work and fantastic mental action earned him one-round, on points: by demonstrating that vengeance is good Christian practice. The majority of the fans will, no doubt, give their applause to Miller, because: the common, silly, idea is that punishment in some degree must be inflicted, to make bad folks better or to frighten potential sinners; but a scared animal, or person, is potentially more dangerous than an un-scared one; however those with only common-sense don't see it that way. That is probably a reason why Albert Einstein has defined 'common sense" as nothing more than a deposit of prejudice laid down in the mind before we are eighteen.

Any mental activity, such as passions, impulses etc. may be called thinking, but if thinking is to be on a reasoning level it must, according to the rules of logic, be a mental process, not merely a mental activity which may lead to all sorts of conjecture. Conclusions on mechanical and other scientific problems are arrived at by a mental process and the brain is the only organ that can do this operation. So I think that Mr. Strange has used his "head" to decide that flogging is wicked. Respectfully,

W. H. ROSEBUSH.

AMONG HIS MEMORIES

Edmonton's Problems

(WINNIPEG FREE PRESS)

IT is normal for a city to be proud of its repute as a rapidly expanding community in which there are great opportunities for business and industry. It is normal, too, for it to find satisfaction in the speed of its growth, to see itself outdistancing its rivals. But such repute carries with it the penalties which commonly attach to fame and creates problems and dangers which must be met.

For some years Edmonton, current "boomtown" of Canada, has been suffering these growing pains. An annual population increase of 10,000 has strained its resources. Supplying additional transportation, telephones, water, light and other services, in a time of material shortages, has been a problem. Even with the building of 3,000 dwellings a year there are still 1,500 families on the waiting list for emergency shelter and a 5,000 shortage of permanent houses.

This year a far greater expansion is expected. A survey among employers and employing agencies shows that in addition to the usual 10,000 there will be an additional 20,000 or 25,000 persons arrive. Of these 10,000 will be workers and the remainder their families. Already the movement is starting and it will gain in volume as winter ends and families can load their possessions into the family jalopy and take to the road.

The reason, of course, is oil. First there is the work in the oilfields themselves. Then there is a group of industries growing up around and ancillary to oil. The schedule as known to date includes a $50,000,000 pipe line, $12,000,000 in hotel construction, $10,000,000 for a new refinery with extra for extensions and improvements to others, $80,000,000 in general office building and $30,000,000 for general construction.

Up to the end of last year the 3,000 workers and their families, making the 10,000 annual increase in population, have been mostly brought in by oil companies and industries or have been specialists in work pertaining to an oil economy.

This year the flood will be different. The 10,000 additional workers expected, many with their families, will not be skilled craftmen of the kind needed but will come from all kind of occupations, as is usual in every rush for a new El Dorado. Thousands will be in the class called unskilled labor. They will arrive mostly by car. There will be no shelter for them. The schools will be insufficient to accommodate their children. City services will be inadequate. They will camp, live in trailers or sleep in their cars probably in a ring around Edmonton suburbs or on the river flats.

Edmonton is sending out warnings about the hazards of this rush to "boomtown." Industry, it is said, will be able to use no more than half the number that have announced they will seek jobs there and most of the skilled jobs will be filled by men brought specifically for the purpose.

Possibly Edmonton is over-estimating the potentialities of the position. There have been 'boomtowns" before. Edmonton itself had an early boom period. But assuredly such conditions bring great difficulties and dangers and often leave a bad hangover. They should be discouraged as Edmonton is seeking to discourage this one. Warnings may lessen the flood but will not stop it, human nature being what it is. But preparations may be made.

Comment On A Law

Under the bill "to protect the dairy industry"... the government of Quebec would have full powers to oppose, by any means it could think of, the manufacture, sale and possession of margarine. The principle of full power is wrong. The idea is equally condemnable that the government should say to the people "You can buy and eat this, you cannot buy and eat that." That is socialism. As a matter of fact the big fault with which collectivist systems are reproached is that they undertake to regiment the production and consumption of natural or manufactured products. The law "to protect the dairy industry" is also bad because it sets one class of the people, the city-dwellers, against another, the farmers. There is no ignoring the fact that socialism's and communism's main lever is precisely this class conflict.... Other questions suggest themselves.... Is it wise to forbid people to eat a food which dieticians say is healthy? Is it proper, by such a law, to invite people to spy on and denounce each other?—Le Soleil, Quebec.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Moses said unto God, Behold, when I come unto the children of Israel, and shall say unto them, The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you; and they shall say to me, What is his name? what shall I say unto them? And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM: and he said, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, I AM hath sent me unto you. (Ex. 3: 13, 14.)

* * *

And Moses answered and said, But, behold, they will not believe me, nor hearken unto my voice: for they will say, The Lord hath not appeared unto thee. And the Lord said unto him, What is that in thine hand? And he said, A rod. And he said, Cast it on the ground. And he cast it on the ground, and it became a serpent; and Moses fled from before it. And the Lord said unto Moses, Put forth thine hand, and take it by the tail. And he put forth his hand, and caught it, and it became a rod in his hand....

And the Lord said furthermore unto him, Put now thine hand into thy bosom. And he put his hand into his bosom: and when he took it out, behold, his hand was leprous as snow. And he said, Put thine hand into thy bosom again. And he put his hand into his bosom again; and plucked it out of his bosom, and, behold, it was turned again as his other flesh.

And it shall come to pass, if they will not believe thee, neither hearken to the voice of the first sign, that they will believe the voice of the latter sign. (Ex. 4: 1-4, 6-8.)

Who's Fat?

Now that pressure is being brought to bear on legislative bodies respecting margarine, its sale and its colour, governments and elected representatives might get some startling facts if they do a little investigating. The effort is being made to make it appear that it is the "city slickers" who are slathering the substitute spread on their bread, potatoes and what have you.

The story is that so much margarine is being substituted for butter by the people who live in the cities that the price of butter has slumped. It is all blamed on the city dwellers.

It would be an interesting angle to the controversy if data were compiled as to what has occurred in respect to butter sales in smaller urban centres of the country. Are the farmers who are milking cows and shipping cans of cream to the creameries buying butter or margarine?

Our information is that the country store sales of butter have dropped and there has been a corresponding increase of sales of margarine. The story is that in some districts surrounding this city, where the farmers are shipping cream, the storekeepers in the villages and towns are having a hard time to keep margarine in stock. The cream cheques are being used to buy margarine.

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Chairman Eddie Murphy of the committee arranging for the OBA annual convention here April 8-9 tells us things are shaping up well. City council is putting on a dinner for all delegates, and the attorney general will be speaker here. Mayor Max Swanston is right behind it as are Hugh Campbell, Vern Dawson, Bill Kay and other prominent local men, while members of the committee itself are all doing their jobs. List of invitations for special guests is being drawn up now. Voting delegates have been or will be named from the COBL, the Lakeshore League, the local City League, and possibly from the Lindsay area, to represent this part of the province.

In passing, we noted this item on how it pays to be observant in baseball. It says, in part: "Such a man in one specific instance was Larry Gardner, a third baseman with Boston. The great Ty Cobb never had been able to beat out a bunt on Gardner. It irked and puzzled the Georgia Peach so much that he confronted Gardner with the fact as he neared the end of his remarkable career. 'How do you do it?' he asked. 'I don't suppose there's any harm in telling you now,' answered Gardner: 'but every time you're about to bunt, you unconsciously bite your lower lip.' No one else had noticed that in 23 years." We'll bet the fiery Cobb was furious with himself.

Plans At Civic Arena

Civic Arena has closed its doors and Dick Oulmet, who was temporary manager for the past season, has finished his job. With the council okaying money for artificial ice there, the next thing is to get going on laying the pipes—when the natural ice is all out—and installing the plant. Then a floor will be put in as 'tis planned to have roller-skating, maybe bingo and whatnot there through the summer. With a year-around manager in charge, one to be named in the near future. It is expected that the arena will be ready for hockey in late October or early November, and then players and fans can laugh at mild weather next winter. We hear the arena made a fairly sizeable sum during the past rather unsatisfactory (regarding weather) season.

* * * * * *

That's one of them out of the way for Legionnaires. They beat Grimsby Peach Kings 6-4 in Lindsay last eve to open their best-of-three OHA senior "B" semi-final series. Next one is tomorrow in Grimsby and third, if necessary, Saturday in Oshawa—the Motor City moguls promising to keep the ice in till this week-end. It could go three games, at that, though Legionnaires hope to make it two straight. If they're at their best, they can do it, but with not too much to spare. The Peach Kings have been around, too, and they're liable to play it rugged in their own backyard. It was fairly clean last night and dazzling fast throughout—a nice one to watch.

* * * * * *

Little Edge On Play

Legion broke fast to take a two-goal lead early and they had a little edge on play most of the distance, but it was too close for comfort. They're all tough when you get into provincial semi-finals or finals. Many of the goodly gallery of fans remarked after that this was the best senior "B" scrap they've seen this season, and we agree. No coasting around for any of the puckists; it was just slap, dash and whirl to come back, with both goalies on the hope. Brantford's protest of Grimsby was tossed out but, oddly enough, the Brantford protest fee was returned. So, it's the Grimsby-Legion winner against the Sarnia-Orillia survivor in finals next week.

* * * * * *

Johnny Godfrey played an outstanding game on defence for Legion last gloaming. He and Ned Vitarelli work out a smart system when short-handed, a sort of "T" formation that's hard to beat. The other local defenders worked well, too, and all the forwards were flying. Not much to choose at times between the Rochetta and Parnell lines, but again the first line was prominent in scoring. Rochetta was in on three as Toodie Greenlaw and Bob Greenlaw helped themselves to a pair of points each. Blanchard, Warner and Duffield—the latter a pretty chippy puckist—proved the main threats for the Peachmen, and they looked like no soft touches at all, once they found their legs after the long bus haul. Yeah, it started off like a sweet series and the winner will really earn the duke, we don't doubt.

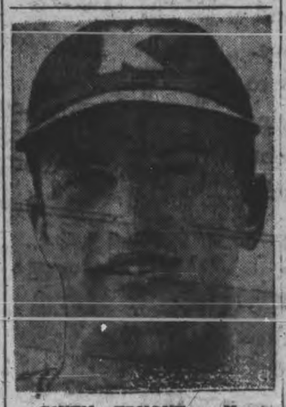
Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

Although Rangers completed their National Hockey League campaign more than a week ago, the work of Manager Frank Boucher and Coach Lynn Patrick is far from over.

Along with other aides in the New York organization, they are running an eastern amateur hockey school at Guelph from which they hope to sift out future big league material. Next week, Boucher and Company move on to Winnipeg where a similar school will be held for western players.



While most clubs hold schools in the fall, Boucher believes now is the time to see a player at his best.

"There isn't time at training camp to straighten all the candidates out. Another thing, right now the kids have just completed their hockey seasons and are in good shape. I can get a better look at them faster. At training camp, it takes a couple of weeks before they get their ice legs."

More than 75 players are attending the Guelph school.

Thousands of fans in hockey-mad Fort Frances, Ont., augmented by bands and school children released from classes, hailed Fort Frances Canadians, Thunder Bay senior hockey champions, on their arrival Tuesday from Port Arthur. Canadians, who defeated Port Arthur Bearcats 7-1 to win their best-of-seven series and the right to enter the Western Canada Allan Cup semi-finals against Winnipeg Nationals, came home to streets jam-packed with cheering townspeople.

Al Hardy, former newspaper man and prominent west coast racing official, Tuesday quit as managing director of the British Columbia Turf Club which owns Vancouver's only mile-track, Lansdowne. His resignation followed announcement two weeks ago that the club would not operate Lansdowne this year because of what it called "exorbitant" pari-mutuel taxation imposed by the Provincial Government.

GIVEN TRYOUT — Harry Psutka, Kitchener baseball player who recently finished the hockey season with Pittsburg Hornets, now is in Florida for a tryout with Detroit Tigers. Psutka turned down an offer from Detroit last year. He is recognized as one of the leading catchers in the Ontario Inter-County Senior League.

Legionnaires Beat Grimsby To Start OHA Semi-Finals

Pulling out a 6-4 win in Lindsay last night over Grimsby Peach Kings, the local Legionnaires went one up to open the best-of-three OHA Senior "B" semi-final series before a good crowd. It was a sparkling game of hockey, fast, clean and tight all through. They play again in Grimsby tomorrow night and the third tilt, if necessary, will be in Oshawa on Saturday evening.

Throwing two quick ones into the twine before the tired Peaches found their legs in the initial inning, Legion had a bit of an edge all the way. But it was close and they were only in front 3-2 in the first frame, with both sides tallying twice in the second. However, Legion finished a bit stronger and got the lone marker of the third. The losers drew seven of the 13 penalties.

Led Scorers

Joe Rochetta led the victors at bat with three points, while Bob Greenlaw and Toodie Greenlaw each clicked for two points. Singles were registered by Crowley, Burns, Mortimer, Parnell and Fryia. Johnny Godfrey turned in a whale of a chore on defence, with Coach Ned Vitarelli also effective. The Parnell line was almost as strong as the first stringers, and Ross Nicholls kicked out some hot thrusts at his tepee. The whole team worked hard against a speedy and experienced squad—including a lot of Hamilton players. Blanchard, Duffield and Warner stood out for the Kings, with Leeson tough to beat in the cage.

Legion blossomed out in bright new sweaters and sox—with pants, of course, too—and pressed right at the start. Crowley scored early in close with a slap shot, Rochetta and Godfrey building up the play. Clancy tested Ross and, with Blanchard gated for high-sticking, Legion made it 2-0 when Burns banged one from defence to fool the goalie as the homesters roared in. With Blanchard back, a thrust by Rochetta and R. Greenlaw came close, and then Ross had to hop to beat Reid and Gluck. The latter was chased for hooking but returned in time to see Blanchard bat Duffield's pass-out into the hemp at close range. Bob Greenlaw got it back seconds later from Rochetta and Mortimer in close on nice combination but Soutar scored again for Grimsby from Barlow on a corner passout as play raced back and forth. Rochetta went off for hooking and returned when Ned Vitarelli got it for elbowing. Then Mortimer and Barlow got the nod for roughing near the finish.

A Hot Stanza

It was hot all through the second. Crowley was waved over early for interference and Dodds followed for using a broken stick. They were back and both goalies were busy as the crowd roared at the fast, even action. Rochetta came close and, with Glass away for holding, Godfrey nearly clicked. A Parnell-Fryia stab almost paid off as Legion had an edge for a space, but Grimsby fought right back. After Coombs came close, Warner scored from Duffield, going in fast on a passing play with but one defenceman back and rifling the disc into a corner. Blanchard put them ahead then from Duffield and Warner on a fine passing play right in there, but Bob Greenlaw tied it right away on a nifty pass at close quarters from Rochetta. Toodie Greenlaw battled from back of the net to wham the bootheel home and put them ahead as the Parnell line pressed. Dodds went over for hooking then.

Early in the third, Vitarelli got it for high-sticking but was back in time to nearly tally on a breakaway. Parnell, T. Greenlaw and Fryia threatened and play was fast and even. Toodie Greenlaw got another nice one to clinch matters in a scramble, after missing a chance just before, with Parnell and Fryia drawing assists. Legion kept fighting in there with Bob Greenlaw and then Parnell making good tries. Parnell was waved away for holding and Chum came close on a breakaway. Gluck got the air for hooking near the finish and Legion had a margin on play the last several minutes.

The teams:

Grimsby—Goal, Leeson; defence, Reid and Clancy; centre, Dodds; wings, Hutchison and Glass; alternates, Duffield, Warner, Blanchard, Barlow, Dunham, Soutar, Gluck, and Glass.

Legion—Goal, Nicholls; defence, Vitarelli and Godfrey; centre, Rochetta; wings, R. Greenlaw and Crowley; alternates, Parnell, T. Greenlaw, Fryia, Hill, Stewart, Coombs, Burns, and Mortimer.

In Critical Condition

SAN JOSE, Calif., March 30 — (AP).— Billy Cornwall, 25-year-old lightweight boxer from Los Angeles and Des Moines, knocked out Tuesday night, was unconscious and in critical condition to-day. Cornwall, who weighs 138 pounds, was tagged with a straight right to the chin by Tote Martinez, also 138, of Stockton, Calif, in the ninth round of their scheduled 10-round bout.

Dropped by the blow, Cornwall struck his head on the mat with a thud which was heard throughout the auditorium. He was rushed to hospital here when he failed to revive and was pronounced in critical condition from brain concussion.

Bears Surprise AHL Fans, Edge Barons 3-2

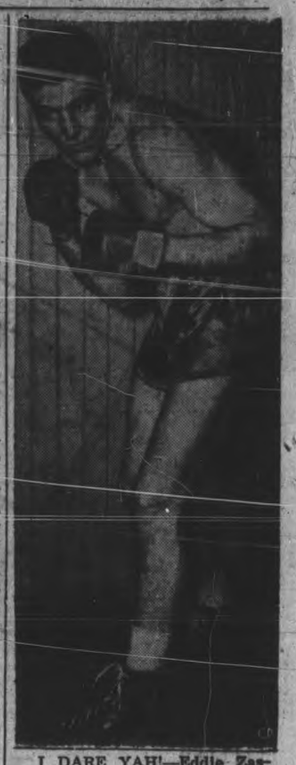
By the Associated Press.

Hershey Bears really are the surprise team in the American Hockey League's Calder Cup playoffs.

Hershey is on the threshold of entering the final round of the playoffs. The Bears, who wound up 33 points behind the Eastern Division's pennant-winning Providence Reds, have chalked up three straight victories over the stronger Western Division foes.

The Bears breezed by Indianapolis, Western runners-up, in two straight games in the quarter-finals. Tuesday night they downed Cleveland Barons 3-2, in two overtime sessions, in the opener of their best-of-three semi-final series.

While the Bears took the defending champion Barons over the hurdles, St. Louis Flyers, the Western flag winners, nipped the Reds 5-3 to square their best-of-seven series at two games each.



Arnie Kullman scored Hershey's winning goal at 9:24 of the second overtime period. Hershey took a 1-0 lead when Silvio Bettio scored in the opening frame. Bobby Carse tied it up for the Barons in the second. Johnny Holota netted to put the Barons ahead early in the final heat, but Gordie Bruce followed with a marker to send the game into overtime.

Providence hopped off to a 2-0 lead against the Flyers in St. Louis with Jack Stoddard and Harvey Fraser scoring. Hec Pozzo got one back for the Flyers in the dying minutes of the initial period.

St. Louis pumped home three goals in the middle stanza with Lloyd Doran, Hank Backor and Paul Gladu connecting to sew it up. Roger Bedard netted Providence's final goal and Barry Sullivan shoved home St. Louis' last marker in the third period.

CHAMPS TO MEET

Two Montrealers, Stan Cutts and Doug Grant, will play in Ottawa Friday night for the world's professional badminton championship, the Ottawa Badminton Club announced Tuesday.

I DARE YAH!—Eddie Zastre of Winnipeg, Canada's top light heavyweight, assumes a fighting stance. The 24-year-old scrapper, nicknamed "Di-Zastre" by Winnipeg sports writers, has virtually run out of opponents in his weight division. Recently he campaigned among the heavyweights and knocked out Canadian heavyweight champion Adam Faul of Regina and scored a TKO over Buck Raven of Gary, Ind., one of the top amateur heavies in the US.

Injury-Riddled Bruins Knocked Off 3-1 By Leafs

By FRASER MacDOUGALL

TORONTO, March 30—(CP)—An eager recruit from the American Hockey League tipped the Stanley Cup scales to Toronto Maple Leafs over the battered Boston Bruins Tuesday night.

Sid Smith, called up from Pittsburgh Hornets, took over Vic Lynn's regular leftwing post. He came up with a two-goal scoring performance as the Leafs knocked off the injury-riddled Bruins 3-1 and took a three-to-one lead in games in the best-of-seven series.

The Bruins, with three key players now on the injured list, have only a ghost of a chance in the series which resumes tonight in Boston. The Leafs stand knee-deep in reserves with half a dozen players ready to fill any injury breach.

Right wing Jimmy Peters and centre Milt Schmidt were lost to Boston Tuesday night, joining defenceman Johnny Crawford on the idle list. Crawford suffered a bruised chest muscle in the third game of the series. Peters stayed in hospital in Toronto when his mates left for Boston. He suffered a shoulder injury when checked into the boards by Toronto's Bill Juzda. Schmidt, the never-give-up centre, had a stomach muscle bruised in a body check from Garth Boesch.

Does His Stuff

Smith, only Toronto native on the Leafs' roster, gave the 13,586 fans an idea of how he won the AHL scoring championship this season with 55 goals and 57 assists for 112 points. He helped Fleming Mackell, another Pittsburgh player, score the first goal of the game before getting his own pair through Johnny-on-the-spot play.

Despite the loss of Peters in the first period and Schmidt in the second, the Bruins never gave up. They carried the play at every opportunity and Goalie Turk Broda had to be right on several times to keep them at bay.

The Boston muscles line matched Mackell's goal in the first period. Right wing Johnny Peirson was the marksman and he had help from linemates Kenny Smith and Paul Ronty. His tally came while defenceman Jimmy Thomson of the Leaf sat out a tripping penalty. Smith, who played on a line with Mackell and Leaf captain Ted Kennedy, got one goal in the second period and another in the third—the final one while Kenny Smith of Boston was off for slashing.

The 23-year-old Sid Smith is no stranger to NHL play. He jumped to pro ranks in 1946-47 from Quebec Aces, playing 23 games that season with Pittsburgh and 14 games with Toronto. Last season he was with Pittsburgh for 30 games and with Toronto for 31 in the NHL schedule and in two Stanley Cup semi-final games against the Boston Bruins before a knee injury sent him to the sidelines.

Detroit Wings Roar Back Trounce Canadiens 3-1

MONTREAL, March 30 (CP) — Detroit Red Wings today regained their position as favorites to advance into the Stanley Cup hockey finals following their return to form Tuesday night when they scored a 3-1 victory over Montreal Canadiens to tie their semi-final series at two games each.

The series moves on to Detroit for the fifth game tomorrow night.

Paced by big Gordie Howe who rapped home two goals, the Wings held a slight margin in the pay, outshooting the Montrealers 26-25.

It was a disappointing result for the capacity crowd of 11,225, some having waited outside the building for more than eight hours to view the game.

Red Kelly scored the other Detroit marker in the first period after Canadiens had taken the lead on Leo Gravelle's goal.

Harry Lumley played brilliantly in the Detroit cage as he swept aside numerous Canadiens' rushes in the closing minutes of the fixture.

Gravelle at Best

The speedy Gravelle was at his best when he snared the opening goal of the game. He wheeled in on a play with Murdo McKay and sent the disc into the right hand corner on a low angle drive that completely outfoxed the cagey Lumley.

But the ever-pressing Wings came roaring back with Kelly leading the attack. He scooped up a loose puck just outside the Montreal goal and fired a blazing shot that nicked goalie Bill Durnan's glove before burying itself deep in the knotted twine.

The winning tally which came in the middle session saw Detroit taking over command of the game. Howe blazed down the rink on a three-man attack with Ted Lindsay and Captain Sid Abel. Lindsay passed a few feet in front of the Montreal net and Howe tipped the slow-moving disc past Durnan.

Unleash Assault

The Canucks pressed from here on and unleashed assault after assault. Three times Maurice Richard, the fleet-footed Canuck, broke loose on long passes but failed to capitalize whe he shot wild.

Howe's second goal which clinched the contest for the Wings came after thirteen minutes of play in the third period. The play was spectacular. A loose puck slid half way down the ice to the Canadien end where Howe pounced on it as Durnan raced out of his net. Both players swiped at it but Howe's stick connected first and the puck spun over Durnan's head into the empty cage.

83 Quebec Divorce Bills Get 2nd Reading In House of Commons

By GEORGE KITCHEN

OTTAWA, March 30—(CP)—The Commons Tuesday expressed its traditional dislike for passing Quebec divorce bills and emphasized it by putting one of the measures to a vote. It slithered through by a six-vote margin. The division was forced by a French-speaking members as 83 divorce bills from Quebec, which has no provincial divorce court, came up for second reading in the hour set aside for consideration of private legislation.

The bill won approval by a count of 82 to 76 in a vote which criss-crossed party lines and saw George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, Works Minister Fournier and Rev. Dan McIvor (L—Fort William) join the Quebec members and substantial blocks of Liberals, Progressive Conservatives and CCF members in balloting against it.

Their opposition was not sufficient, however, and the bill passed second reading on the votes of members of the three major parties, plus the almost solid balloting strength of Social Crediters, who gave it their approval.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, who in the past has recorded his opposition to parliamentary practice of adopting divorce bills, was not in the chamber for the division.

The bill, entitled "an Act for the relief of Francis Thomas Joseph Cleevey," had no particular significance. It was put to the vote simply because it happened to be the first of the 83 bills on the order paper. The remaining 82 will be brought forward for second reading later in the session.

Worried About Children

In a brief debate which preceded the contest, Garfield Case (PC-Grey North) and T. L. Church (PC-Toronto Broadview) expressed their concern for the children of the severed parents and urged the government to adopt some other procedure for dealing with divorces from the French-speaking province.

Mr. Case asked what had been done about a plan suggested by Prime Minister St. Laurent in 1946, when he was Justice Minister.

At that time, Mr. St. Laurent had suggested that Parliament, instead of hearing divorce evidence as it now does, should pass divorce bills only on a judgment from a Quebec court granting separation.

Mr. Case said he had "no quarrel" with Quebec's dislike for divorce courts but he did not like the present procedure.

The divorce debate is a sessional occurrence. It develops from the dislike of commoners for the responsibility placed on them to decide that a divorce should be granted. All other provinces handle their divorce cases in provincial courts.

Second Division

The division was the second of the day and took the spotlight away from a free-wheeling debate, touching on varied subjects, which developed as the government moved to go into committee of supply. The motion later was adopted and $234,000,000 of interim supply—an advance on the 1949-50 estimates—voted.

The first recorded vote arose when Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) sought to have the chamber ask the government to consider higher old-age pensions, a lower age limit and abolition of the means test. Speaker Gaspard Fauteux ruled his motion out of order and was sustained by a count of 107 to 99.

Revenue Minister McCann said the government does not feel it necessary this year to extend the April deadline for the filing of income tax returns.

Transport Minister Chevrier announced that Trans-Canada Air Lines will fly passengers from Newfoundland to Britain and vice versa after the island becomes part of Canada.

Close Five Mines Unless Output Shows Increase

By STUART UNDERHILL

GRIMETHORPE, Yorkshire, March 30—(CP)—The National Coal Board has taken its toughest disciplinary action yet against miners by threatening to close five Yorkshire pits unless their production improves.

They are the New Monckton collieries near here, employing 3,400 men. Since all the mines were nationalized Jan. 1, 1947, they have shown a loss of more than £750,000 ($3,000,000).

A coal board statement blamed the heavy loss on "lack of cooperation on the part of the workmen" and said a shutdown could be prevented only by "an workmen cmfw cmf cm cmf-cm the workmen" and said a shutdown could be prevented only by improvement in attitude."

"If by July output and attendance can be improved and if at the same time the bad practices operating at these pits are removed the future of the collieries will be brighter," it added.

Spokesmen for the miners said in reply they could double production if they were given up-to-date tools and allowed to tackle a number of seams which have not yet been worked.

They claimed that the high rate of absenteeism—up to 20 per cent in some cases—was due partly to the number of aging men who were physically incapable of working a full week, and partly to a number of minor accidents which made them take time off.

J. A. Hall, President of the Yorkshire section of the National union of mineworkers, said he will make a "gallant effort" to persuade the men to raise output and keep the mines open.

Urge Canal At Border

OTTAWA, March 30 — (CP) — A controversial topic for a century, the Chignecto Canal loomed up in Commons debate Tuesday night with two Nova Scotia members urging the Federal government to built the great ditch across a 16-mile stretch of Nova Scotia-New Brunswick borderland. Its construction would cut several hundred miles off a sea trip from the St. Lawrence down the Atlantic seaboard.

Not To Protest Ban

WINNIPEG, March 30—(CP)—No official protest will be made by Manitoba Drama League officials against exclusion of a Manitoba play in the Dominion Drama Festival next month at Toronto, P. J. Pope of Winnipeg, regional committee chairman of the Canadian Drama Festival, announced Tuesday.

IMMACULATE CONCEPTION

Regular meeting of Immaculate Conception Home and School Association was held Monday evening. Mrs. Norman McConkey, health convener, gave a talk on Cancer.

"Cancer is not a germ," she stated. "It is a single cell which grows rapidly. It is definitely not hereditary. The nature of cancer is not fully understood, but there is a wide knowledge of the prevention, care, and cure. Cancer has no pain in the beginning with the exception of bone cancer. Deep-rooted cancer gives no early signs; when diagnosed the disease is usually well advanced. Everyone should be familiar with the symptoms of cancer. Thirty per cent. of all cancer is curable."

The speaker was thanked by Mr. Wm. O'Toole.

A quartette composed of Messrs. M. Leonard, A. De Noble, J. De Noble and J. Nolan delighted the audience with two numbers. Mrs. D. Campanaro sang two lovely solos. Piano selections by Mrs. W. Spring Fashions In Foundations

High-fashion designs this Spring are being reflected more and more in foundation garments. That smart, trim, molded look is a must—and eye-appealing controlling girdles are styled to give your new outfit just that silhouette. Neat, two-way stretch garments—light as a feather—nip in the waist and give the hipline the right amount of control. Inserts of cordtex prevent the top from rolling or cutting in. The garments are beautifully made, bound in satin ribbon and finished with a dainty ruffle around the bottom and they come in delicate shades of blue, maize, tearose, nude and white.

DOROTHY DIX

No Woman Can Be Expected To Possess All the Virtues

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a man in my thirties, seriously thinking about getting married, but the woman I marry must have the following characteristics: No sulky, sourpuss nor gold-digger need apply. She must be amiable, domestic, a real housekeeper and a good cook. Fairly good-looking. Intelligent, posses pep and enjoy going about. Drive a car. No bookworm.

Dorothy Dix

She must not smoke, drink liquor, nor use snuff. She must furnish bonafide references. Be unencumbered and financially able to buy her own clothes. In a word, she must be good. Do you not think that such a woman would make a satisfacory wife?

ANSWER: Such a wife would certainly be a lonely bachelor's answer to a prayer, but where would a chap go to find a woman who was a concatenation of all the charms and virtues. Many women could qualify on one line of attractions. Pretty girls are plentiful. There is a fair supply of good cooks. Many women drive their own cars and are able to pay their own dress-making bills.

Any man with matrimonial intentions can easily find a mate if he is satisfied wih a one-talent wife. Howeyer, if he demands that his spouse shall be a perfectionist who excels in everything, he is doomed to bitter disappointment, for there just isn't any such animal.

Great Strain

And if there were, no man could stand her. Imagine the strain of living with a woman who was beautiful and brilliant and intelligent and domestic and the glass of fashion and the mold of form. It would drive even a prohibitionist to drink and make any husband think longingly of the divorce court.

We talk a lot about the ideal husband or wife. Yet, in reality, no one wants one. No man wants a wife who knows more than he does, who never does anything foolish and who always yes-yeses him. Nor does any wife want a husband who is a paragon of all the virtues. The people we love are just poor sinners like the balance of us.

So, Mr. Man, I am afraid that you will have "Old Bachelor" carved on your tomb if you wait to find the perfect wife.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am in a very confused state of mind. My trouble is that the young man with whom I have been going for a year is about four inches shorter than I am. On this account I have lately broken up with him and have gone out with other boys, but I still like the short one the best. He is a very fine chap and has been exceptionally good to me, but I don't know whether to marry him or not.

What would you adivse?

CONFUSED

ANSWER: You are a very silly little girl if you let a man's height be the measuring stick by which you judge him. It is not how many feet tall a man is that counts. It is what sort of brains he has in his head, what kind of principles motivate him, how big and tender his heart is, and what loyalty and consideration he shows you that matter. If these are all okay, don't worry about his being short.

And don't forget that when Old Mother Nature doesn't give a man long legs, she is mighty apt to give him a long head. If you will get out your history book, you will see that many of the men who have done the big things in the world were undersized.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: People criticize me very much because I spoil my children. I think that spoiling makes for self-confidence in them. I know a woman who sold her home and everything she had to give her son money with which to go into business, and he has made a fortune.

I am not so fortunate as to have a son, but I have girls. And I deny myself everything to give to them, for I think that perhaps they will be career women and will take care of me in my old age, or maybe they will marry money. Yes, I spoil my girls and I shall spoil them to the day I die.

A SPOILER OF CHILDREN

ANSWER: Undoubtedly there is an occasional child who is not ruined by being spoiled by a foolish mother, but it is the exception and not the rule when such children develop into fine men and women.

To my mind the greatest crime that a woman can commit is to let her children grow up without any discipline, without any sense of duty, without having bred in them any idea of responsibility or any of the qualities that fit a man and woman for meeting the hardships of life. Spoiled children are the curse of he world.

Social Situations

SITUATION: You are taking another woman to lunch and you want her to order a really good meal.

WRONG WAY: Let her look at the menu and make her choice with no suggestions from you.

RIGHT WAY: Before she has a chance to settle on one of the least expensive menus, suggest several dishes that you feel sure are specialties of the restaurant.

Dafoe Family Celebrate Three Anniversaries

HAVELOCK, March 30—(ENS).—Three generations in the family of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Dafoe of Belmont Township, whose wedding anniversaries came within a few days of each other, joined on Sunday to celebrate the three anniversaries of 55 years, 26 years and 6 years. Mr. and Mrs. Dafoe were married in Norwood by Rev. William Buchanan, a Methodist minister, on March 28, 1894. They have resided all of their married life three miles east of Havelock and about 50 years on their present farm.

Mr. Dafoe, who will be 83 on May 1, was born in Addington County, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Dafoe. Mrs. Dafoe, 79, is a native of Belmont Township. Before her marriage she was Eliza Melville, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William John Melville. Both have taken a keen interest in their younger days in the work of Victoria United Church (formerly Methodist), and are two of the few remaining members of its original congregation.

Six children (three daughters and three sons) of their family of seven are living and were present. They are: Mrs. Hector Bannon (Pearl), Mrs. Murray Fraser (Effie), Mrs. Arthur King (Bessie), Melville, Grant and Arnold, all residents of this district.

A daughter Tressia died about 20 years ago at the age of 12. They have 20 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Old Havelock

Mr. Dafoe recalled that when he came to Havelock there was only one store operated by the late A. V. Fuller. It was located at the south-west end of the village now known as "Old Havelock." There was no Cordova Road in those days, all the travelling to Old Havelock being done on what is known as the old Norwood Road, now No. 7 Highway.

The Canadian Pacific Railway was constructed only as far as Crowe River. Mr. Dafoe saw the first engine that ran over that route. There were only two small houses in what is now the main part of Havelock. He and his father drew stone to fill in the lot where the Old Jeff Block used to be which was destroyed by fire some years ago.

Simultaneous Celebrations

The second couple to mark their wedding anniversary were Mr. and Mrs. Murray Fraser, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dafoe. They observed their 26th anniversary. They were married by Rev. T. W. Wesley at the Presbyterian Manse, Norwood, on March 26, 1923. Mr. Fraser is a son of Mrs. Bella Chambers of Belmont Township and the late Hugh Fraser.

The third couple to celebrate were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gordon (Murrell Fraser) son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fraser. They were married in Havelock on March 31, 1943, by Rev. S. A. Kemp.

To Fourth Generation

In addition to the three couples celebrating wedding anniversaries, there was another remarkable feature of the gathering. Five sets of four generations were present. One set was the Fraser family and the other four were of the Dafoe family.

The spreading W. H. Dafoe family tree has these three branches to the fourth generation: (1) son, Grant Dafoe; grandson, Donald Dafoe; great-grandson, William Dafoe. (2) son, Arnold Dafoe; granddaughter, Mrs. Clarence King; twin great-granddaughters, Eveline and Darlene King. (3) daughter, Mrs. Murray Fraser; grandaughter, Mrs. Harry Gordon; great granddaughter, Dorothy Gordon. (4) daughter, Mrs. Hector Bannon; grandson, Alton Bannon; great granddaughter, Sharon Anne, aged three weeks.

The set of four generations in the Fraser family comprise Mrs. Bella Chambers; her son Murray Fraser; granddaughter, Mrs. Harry Gordon; great-granddaughter, Dorothy Gordon.

Turkey Dinner

The celebration took the form of a turkey dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fraser. The table was centred with a large three-tiered wedding cake. Serving were four grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dafoe: Miss Lois Fraser, Mrs. Clarence King, Miss Eva Dafoe and Miss Norma Fraser.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Allan Gardner, and daughters Ruth and Anne Norwood; Mr. and Mrs. Grant Dafoe, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Dafoe, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Dafoe, Mrs Hector Bannon, and daughter Lynda; Mrs. Arthur King, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence King and daughters Eveline and Darlene; Glenn Dafoe, Miss Joan Dafoe, Miss Janet Dafoe, Miss Thelma Dafoe, Mr. Roy Dafoe, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Dafoe and son William, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Patterson, and daughter Joan; Mr. and Mrs. Alton Bannon, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Green, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gordon and children, Miss Lois Fraser, Miss Eva Dafoe, Miss Norma Fraser, Mrs. B Chambers.

Arthur King, a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dafoe is a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough from a spine injury received when cranking a shovel at the Building Products Limited. When it backfired he was thrown on his back on the running board of a truck. Their son Grant Dafoe has served the Township of Belmont as assessor and later clerk for the past 30 years.

Judge Dismisses

Mrs. Waite testified that on November 12, Trimble and Carey came to her house and arrested her. She said that Carey flashed a paper but didn't let her see what it was. They took her to the police car, transported her to the jail and "sneered at her twice and said what a pity" after she was locked up. The next day Dr. Kells (Ontario Hospital superintendent, Cobourg) came to see her. On Nov. 14 she was taken to the police court and charged with vagrancy, over her protests that she was not a vagrant and had means of her own.

"When I came out of the hospital, Magistrate Baxter told me that Carey had told him to put me away. I was sent to Whitby for 14 to 60 days for observation. I had no treatment there. When I was released I came home to find bullet holes in my windows and my peach trees cut down," she testified.

"You don't accuse the Chief of that?" asked His Lordship.

"No. After I got out I was watched wherever I went," she said.

Got No Action From Carey

Mrs. Waite said that she looked for Provincial Constable Lyle Erskine to get him to subdue her neighbors as she could not get any action from Chief Carey.

At another stage of her evidence she said that Carey said when he arrested her, "Nice little dog you got, dear."

"He didn't call the dog 'dear'?" asked defence counsel.

"Are you annoyed because you thought he called you 'dear'?" asked His Lordship.

"No. I was annoyed because he took me to jail," she replied.

"He spoke kindly to you and spoke nice to your dog, did he not?" asked defence counsel.

Crown Attorney Harry Deyman told her that if she did not keep quiet about bullet holes in her windows he would see Dr. Fletcher about putting her back in the mental hospital, she said. She recalled that Constable Joe Taylor came to her home in response to her complaint that somebody had painted her dog's back. One of her neighbors threw stones at her and threw a pan of water upon her, she testified.

Mrs. Elizabeth Phillips, resident near Mrs. Waite, testified that some of Mrs. Waite's neighbors bothered her.

Called by the plaintiff, Constable Joe Taylor said that he was called to see about her complaint regarding the dog's back being painted, but found no evidence of it. There were some dishes broken in the house while she was absent, but it was his opinion that her dog had been responsible.

"The Chief told me to see that she was not molested, and the rest of the police force was also instructed to the same effect," Taylor said.

Recalled, Chief Carey said that he looked into the complaints about the neighbors and Mrs. Drinkwater told him that she would tell her boys to walk on the other side of the street when they saw Mrs. Waite so that there would be no trouble. She had complained about bullet holes in her windows and in her head and about people shooting some kind of powder at her. She was arrested on a mentally ill warrant upon the advice of Crown Attorney Deyman. This was not proceeded with by the magistrate, a charge of vagrancy being laid by Constable Taylor upon the advice of the Crown Attorney and sworn before Chief Carey in his capacity as a justice of the peace. Taylor withdrew the charge after she went to the mental hospital.

Should Not Have Been Laid

"I had money in the bank. I was not a vagrant," interjected Mrs. Waite. His Lordship agreed that the vagrancy charge should not have been laid.

"I had reason to believe that she was mentally ill. On November 12, Provincial Constable Lyle Erskine complained that Mrs. Waite had bothered his wife on the phone and that she was hysterical and something had to be done. Mrs. Waite told Mrs. Erskine that she was on her way to Mrs. Erskine's home. We get hardened to that sort of thing. I guess every town has two or three who are bothering the police and we get used to it, but when they bother other people, we have to do something about it. I saw the Crown Attorney and he told me to lay a charge against Mrs. Waite under the Mental Hospitals Act. I felt sorry for her and was kind to her," Carey said.

Dr. H. Moorehouse of the Ontario Hospital, Whitby, was the first defence witness. He said that he examined her and found her to be mentally ill. After 60 days she was allowed out on probation, having improved in her condition. Her condition might have been coming on for five years, he said.

His Lordship pointed out that she had not issued her writ until April of 1948 and he asked if her condition would have been improved since getting out to account for her deciding to issue the writ at that late date. Dr. Moorehouse replied that he didn't think there was any difference during that period of when she was released and when she issued the writ.

Dr. W. A. Cardwell, superintendent at Penetang, and formerly at Whitby, said that he examined Mrs. Waite and found her mentally ill. She had hallucinations and would interpret sincere efforts at helping her as being the opposite. She was given treatment and improved enough to be put out on probation. However she was not to return to Cobourg. He heard complaints about her after she was released and she should have been brought back to the hospital. Inspector Thomas Trimble, who accompanied Carey when Mrs. Waite was picked up, said that Carey read the warrant to her and that he showed her every consideration.

"He was kind to her and all the time treated her with great consideration," testified Inspector Trimble.

IS BACKACHE JUST A SIGN OF AGE?

Many people suffer an aching back needlessly—believing you must expect a few aches and pains when you're "getting on" in years!

But backache is often caused by the faulty action of kidneys and liver. See how much better you feel after taking Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and your kidneys and liver both filter out impurities from your bloodstream. That's because this time-proven Dr. Chase remedy treats two conditions at once—contains special remedial ingredients for both the kidney and liver disorders which often cause backache.

If you're feeling worn out, tired, headachy—with painful joints and aching back—look to your kidneys and liver. Try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills tonight. At all drug counters. 16

Ask for it either way . . . both trade-marks mean the same thing.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

They thumbed the record books, but nobody came up with anything in modern Stanley Cup play to equal that 11-0 thumping Montreal Canadiens pinned on the Maple Leafs five-years ago tonight. After eliminating Toronto from the semi-final series four games to one, Canadiens went on to win the Stanley Cup for the first time since 1931, defeating Chicago four straight games.

Need For Additional Schools Outlined To City Council By Committee Of Board

Increased accommodation at two of the public schools, Park Hill Road and Prince of Wales, and further requirements involving purchase of property were prospects for the year as reported to the Council by G. Wilson Craw and K. S. Wightman, representing the Board of Education. "We have reached our limit in the west end," Mr. Craw said, "and the Board realizes that something must be done. So, we have come to let you know what our position is, because when we need the money we have to ask you to raise it for us, and we would like you to know the facts."

It is in the west end, where the board did the most building of late, that accommodation problem is acute, Mr. Wightman, superintendent of schools, said.

"We have reached our limit at Queen Mary and Prince of Wales, and we have no place to put the children who we have to provide for."

The Park Hill Road School is a two-room building that was not intended for permanent use. Children of kindergarten and grade 1 fully occupy the school, and the primary children have to go down to Queen Mary, "and there's not room for them there."

Must Meet Situation

The Park Hill Road building "is not a type to be perpetuated, but we can meet the situation that faces us by a two-room addition to that school. It is not an expensive undertaking. The board feels it can be done for $20,000. The present school cost the city about $1,200, or one-eighth its original cost. It was built by Wartime Housing for the Park Hill Road community. With the addition we would have a four-room school at a very modest cost, in comparison with the present rate of cost at $18,000 to $22,000 a room.

The Board of Education hopes to proceed with this relief soon, and will be coming to you for the necessary debentures."

The enlargement would take care of the primary children in the northwest end who at present have to go too far to school at Queen Mary.

Buy Adjoining Land

At Prince of Wales School, Monaghan Road and Sherbrooke St., it was thought best to buy adjoining land to the south, Mr. Wightman said. The property was bought from the city by Canadian General Electric Co., who have indicated that they are willing to sell a strip immediately south of the present school yard.

"It would give us about 240 ft. on Monaghan Road, excepting the Walter Rye frontage, and 300 to 600 ft. in depth, about 2½ acres. CGE suggested that we have the place valued."

Mr. Wightman said the Board of Education considered the Park Hill Road enlargement "absolutely necessary," and would approach the Council in regard to its financing some time before the end of the year.

In Ashburnham

Mr. Craw said there was also a developing question in Ashburnham. That part of the city is growing. More houses have been built and occupied during the last year.

The member of the Board felt that no addition should be made to King George School when expansion was required in that area. A site would have to be bought somewhere to the north of the Hunter St.-Armour Road section.

Mr. Craw told the council, in board of works with Ald. H. Dodds presiding, that certain other purchases of property would have to be made for school requirements that were "plainly seen to be approaching."

Hog Producers Aid Food Gifts

Compulsory restrictions, no matter what form they take, are always irksome. When they take the form of reductions in things that involve the health, and living standards, they should become the concern of everybody, and specially of those who are blest with an abundance, with which to share with others.

Over in Britain, the weekly meat ration has been reduced to 8d, the equivalent of 13 cents, and every person who has anything to do with providing the meals in any household, know just how little meat can be procured for that small sum, the price of two chocolate bars, or one loaf of bread.

The United Emergency Fund for Britain, a nation-wide organization operating from coast to coast, can be your medium through which assistance may be given them. Its facilities afford the most economical savings in the sending of food parcels, and a local branch now is in operation for that purpose.

Recently the Peterborough County Hog Producers' Association joined hands with others who have already contributed to this humanitarian effort by the people of this city and district, by sending in a donation of $25, and other recent contributors include Rev. Canon F. J. Fife of Young's Point and Dr. A. F. Codlin at Lindsay.

You too can help. Leave your contribution at any bank in the city, or send it to the chairman of the Peterborough and District Branch, UEFB, at 199 London Street, City.

Buck And Doe Frisk In Field

Two deer, a buck and a doe, have been seen frisking in a wheat field on the farm of F. M. Condon, 12 miles east of Peterborough, on the Warsaw Road. Mr. Condon reports it to be the first time in 25 years that he has seen deer in that vicinity. The deer are not hurting the wheat.

Mr. Condon saw the deer for the first time in December in the swamp at the side of the field. Since then he has seen them nearly every day. Neighbors say they have seen the deer from the Warsaw Road. But as soon as they come within 100 yards of the deer, they scamper back into the swamp.

"I'm afraid someone will shoot them," said Mr. Condon. "They come within 100 yards of the house and are rapidly becoming more friendly. They're not hurting the fall wheat so why hurt them? I mean to protect them, if possible."

Poster Contest Won By J. Hamer

Jack Hamer, 109 James St., was awarded first-class prize of $20 for his poster design submitted to the Victorian Order of Nurses' poster contest on Tuesday evening. He was also winner in 1948, and his work won second place in their national poster campaign. In the school section Phillip Monaghan, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Monaghan, 251 King George St., a student at St. Peter's School, was chosen winner of his group.

Other prize-winners were as follows in the adult group: Ossie Phillips, 494 Charlotte St., second prize, and E. J. Bills, 576 Wolfe St., third. Second prize-winner in the school group was Douglas Jennings, Prince of Wales School, and third, Fred Jay of the same school. Judges were Mrs. G. R. Langley, William Graff and Jack Armitage.

J. E. Girven, president of the Peterborough branch of the VON, distributed the prizes and congratulations were extended to all winners by Miss Ross and J. D. Anderson, chairman of the publicity committee.

Weavers' Guild

Re-organization of the Peterborough Weavers' Guild took place at a meeting held in the Dixon House Tuesday night. A committee of four women, Mrs. L. B. Cunningham, Mrs. C. B. Waite, Mrs. E. G. Clarke and Mrs. H. M. Niven, was set up to arrange the hours for work on the looms and to get suitable instructors.

Arrangements are being made so the Guild will have a room in the Dixon House for their looms. There they can iron out their problems with fellow workers and have regular working periods. They wish a room more central for all their clubroom.

Legion Requests Warehouse Liquor Store In Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, March 30—(ENS)—An open meeting of the village Chamber of Commerce was thrown into pandemonium Tuesday when Cy Hopkins made a request on behalf of Lakefield branch of the Canadian Legion for a beer warehouse and liquor store in the village.

Mr. Hopkins' petition also requested that the Legion be granted permission to serve beer to members in their club-house and proposed the Chamber of Commerce assist in obtaining a village-wide vote on the issue.

President C. J. Davis stated that he felt this was not a matter for the Chamber of Commerce to support unless the members wished to do so. It was his personal feeling that "no man should deprive another of his wine, nor a wild ass of his water." He did not want "any wild ass" depriving him of his wine. All the liquors he drank in a year could be put in his eye, the president said, but he would not deprive his neighbor of the right of being able to purchase it if he so desired.

Says Business Suffers

Harold Hamblin thought the village businesses suffered during the tourist season by not having a warehouse.

Jack Ryan, storekeeper, also said it would be a good thing for the village.

Albert Buchanan, councillor, said that regardless of his own personal feelings, he thought it would help village business to have a warehouse and liquor store, but he thought the Chamber of Commerce, as a body, should not act.

Mr. Hopkins asked the president if he agreed with Mr. Buchanan's opinion that the Chamber of Commerce should not take action.

Mr. Davis replied "that was right. It is a very controversial subject and would unquestionably stir up a tremendous amount of criticism."

Anticipate Opposition

Mr. Hopkins admitted the project might be difficult as opposition was well organized. He said that in a recent contemplation of a move towards a license at Young's Point, four miles away, a petition against it was drawn up before any definite move had been made towards securing a license.

George Tanner said he was definitely opposed to the proposal, as it would make it too easy for young boys to get liquor.

Theodore Downs asked how many months of the year the village benefited from the tourist trade. Jack Ryan, storekeeper, said four months. Mr. Downs disputed this and said the rest of the year parents would be spending money that should be used for groceries for their families on liquor.

Legion May Move

Mr. Hopkins said the Legion would move to Douro if a permit was not granted.

Albert Buchanan and T. W. Chaplin moved an adjournment of the meeting, but discussion continued.

Asked for his opinion, Walter Killoran, hotel keeper, would not commit himself.

Frank Payne told Mr. Hopkins that his sales talk to the organization was entirely wrong. Anyone could read between the lines. Mr Payne said Mr. Hopkins inferred that all the members of the Legion were basically interested in getting a license for their room.

Describes Boundary

Guest Speaker J. W. Pierce discussed the survey of the Manitoba-Ontario boundary, which his father had started and he had helped finish last winter.

The speaker said he was a member of the party of men that stood on the icy shores of Hudson Bay on April 6, 1948, after bringing to a successful conclusion a 50-year-old project.

Use Dog Teams

For transportation they relied on a Fairchild plane and five dog teams.

The country was predominantly flat. They saw rock only twice among snow-covered frozen sand. The timber growth was stunted, trees estimated 250 years old were only six inches in diameter.

The men did not suffer from the cold. The average temperature was from 15 to 20 degrees below and 42 degrees was the coldest.

Mr. Pierce showed pictures of the project.

Reeve Grant and J. McKerchar moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

$500,000 Items In Building Permits

March building permits issued from the office of City Engineer Chalmers include two items amounting to more than $500,000.

The addition to the plant of the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co. is estimated to cost $137,000, and the wing of St. Joseph's Hospital $400,000. These two jobs represent a combined property investment of $537,000.

Dwellings, garages and other construction will substantially increase the total of the month's permits when they are summed up.

Price Of Milk Requires No Adjustments

Housewives should be prepared to make another adjustment to their food budget as the price of bread in Peterborough is almost certain to go up at least a cent in the near future.

But the local lady of the house is still more fortunate than her opposite number in Toronto who is now going to have to cope with an increase in the price of milk. The cent-a-quart increase is effective in the Toronto area only, due to wage boosts to milk drivers and higher prices to farmers.

Except in some of the smaller stores there has been no increased charge for bread in Peterborough. The larger retailers are expecting one but do not know how much it will be or when it will become effective.

"We expect it will go up before very long," James Dutton Jr. of Wonder Bakeries told the Examiner. "We've already received an invoice listing flour at $1.40 more for a 200-pound barrel."

190 From Barel of Flour

Mr. Dutton explained that this worked out to more than a cent a loaf, and that about 190 loaves were made from the barrel.

"It will be up one cent anyway," he said, but added that the cost work is figured out in Toronto, and it would be from that source that prices would be set.

"No comment," was the reply of Archibald Henderson, manager of Trent Valley Bakery, when asked about price movements. However, he relented enough to tell the Examiner that the price would go up as soon as existing stocks are used up.

"But when and how much we don't know," he said.

Canada Bread said they had not yet received any orders for an increase but they were expecting to be so informed.

John Hooper of Hooper's Bakers and Confectioners said they were "sitting tight" for the moment.

Mr. Hooper pointed out that while flour might increase in price slightly now that the 46½-cent-a-bushel subsidy has been lifted, certain other commodities were coming down.

Shortening was one of these, he said.

He estimated that these decreases might balance the flour increase; but the key to the whole thing was how much the latter ...

Sunrise Bakery is now charging eight cents instead of seven for their small loaf, and 12 cents instead of 10 cents for the large. Increase became effective on Saturday.

Man 78 Falls Through Pidgeon Lake Ice

Albert Ryan, 78, of 291 Rubidge St. had a narrow escape from drowning recently when he plunged through the ice while trying to cross Pidgeon Lake to visit friends.

The water was not too deep where he went through the ice as it was close to the shoreline, at the head of the lake. He was in the water for about 10 minutes, and had to break ice for several yards before he could crawl out onto thicker ice capable of bearing his weight.

A walking stick that he was carrying to aid him on his hike proved useful in breaking the ice and extricating him from the water.

After reaching solid ice he set out for the nearby farmhouse of Arnott McQuade, was given a hot bath and put to bed for a couple of days.

Mr. Ryan is now convalescing at his home from the effects of a bad cold and shock.

Train Versus Car

When a car and a moving train collided on Rink St. shortly before 8 a.m. today, Robert Oliver, driver of the car escaped without injury and damage to the car amounted to only $35. Constable V. J. O'Donoghue, who investigated the incident, says an office building east of the track obstructs the view for motorists driving west on Rink St.

Burnham Street Residents Submit Protest Against Swimming Pool

Neighborhood objection to the Lions Club swimming pool on Burnham St. was submitted to the board of works in a letter from the law firm of Carley and Standish. Text of the letter was: "We have been instructed on behalf of owners and residents in the vicinity of Riverside Park to protest the construction of a swimming pool on the southeast side of the Park.

"Our clients feel that the construction of a swimming pool near their properties would result in the assembling of a great crowd of young people, and the consequent noise and other objectionable features resulting therefrom would interfere with their use of their property.

"They say they believe the pool could be located in another part of the Park where it would not be objectionable on these grounds.

"We would ask that this matter be brought before the council so that our clients' objections may be duly considered before any permission is given for the construction of such a swimming pool."

Made Arrangements

Ald. Grant Miller said he understood that the Lions Club had already arranged for materials to be used in the building of the pool.

Discussion of this protest was deferred by a motion by Aldermen Gillespie and Grant Miller authorizing City Engineer A. E. Chalmers to have a survey made of Riverside Park, including the possibility of enlarging the southern section of the Park by the method of filling and generally reclaiming an area in that direction.

Mayor Swanston had previously asked whether the council would consider granting the Bowl site to the Memorial Centre committee. If that were done, the council could lay out baseball diamonds in the southern section of the park.

Mayor Swanston's query was plainly put forth as a feeler of opinion regarding conversion of the Bowl into the long sought location of the Memorial Community Centre. He said the Centre committee had pressed the council recently for a site, which is to be supplied by the city. If the bowl were used for that purpose, it could be replaced by new diamonds toward the south end of the Park.

His Worship expressed belief that Burnham St. residents would not object to the Centre being built at the Hunter St. corner, although they were opposed to the swimming pool situation near the street line.

Build 20 Homes In Subdivision

The Brookdale development of Sands and Bateman at the northwest end of the city is almost complete. Of the 52 houses erected by the contractors, Hill, Clark and Francis, more than 40 have been sold and occupied.

"There are only some little details of work left here and there," Ald. Adam Sands informed The Examiner today. "Odds and ends of finishing up remain, and there is grading and landscaping.

"The layout of the streets and the drainage system done by City Engineer Chalmers has been a fine job. We have enquiries for the remaining ten houses. I'm not sure what the exact number is."

From his bed at Civic Hospital, Ald. Sands told The Examiner that the firm was planning to get under way at once with 20 houses in their Parkdale division. It is located east of the houses at the corner of Armour Road and Park Hill Road; and is in the Nicholls Oval area.

"We expect the contract to be signed today or Thursday. It is definitely our intention to go ahead with at least 20 houses in the Ashburnham area."

MAIN ST. TOPICS

Milady Wears Her Hat At New Angle

Fashion predicits a new face as framed by the inspirational millinery trends for Spring. The biggest single change in millinery for the approaching season emphasizes small to medium brimmed hats worn at a new slant.

In hats as well as in ready-to-wear, the Empire mood is carried through. Small to large hats develop a decided tilt and maintain a cloche-like, bonnet type look. Even huge brimmed, picture hats are to be worn at a fetching angle.

Light, Airy Straws

Millinery designers choose light, airy straws selected for their suppleness . . milan, ballbunti and bakou, rank with the top favorites Sheer hats of maline, chiffon, hair braids as well as of nylons, lend themselves to a feminine yet not fussy look. Manipulated sheer wools and felts are again popular.

Peaked bonnets in a new version of the head-hugging hat. . . turban techniques in supple straws . . . brimmed hats with irregular or contoured shapes are predicted to be the most newsworthy of the Spring 1949 millinery silhouettes.

Sailors Also in Fashion

Again, sailors are very much a part of the fashion picture. This year sailors will sport deep crowns and will be worn at a rakish slant.

Colors are radiant and designers compliment them with exciting names borrowed from artists' canvases. Such smart neutrals as canary yellow, midnight blue, nile green, cream or wheat, and mauve-pink take the fashion spotlight. Navy, black, black with natural, black with white or any of the new neutrals is used over and over again. White again will prove an early season favorite.

Exciting Trimmings

Crisp silhouettes are softened by exciting trimming details! Velvet binding and bows, wheat sprays, feather butterflies, and gay bright flowers bedeck the new hats. Grosgrain, pique, crim, and taffeta ribbons keep their popularity. Maline, dotted, fine mesh veiling, nylon veiling also highlight the Spring millinery lines.

Millinery modes this Spring approach the practical angle for a "light-headed feel". . . easy-to-pack suppleness and a go-with-everything styling. From crisply tailored suits to frankly feminine frocks in the Empire manner, all fashions are definitely enhanced by the new hat styles. Every skin, every color ensemble will be flattered by the new, pale neutrals or the pale excitement of the new shades. Black, navy, and white become even more lovely, more versatile by their smart trimmings in Spring millinery hues.

Adapting themselves to wear all hour of the day, the Spring millinery trend avoids the dressy elegance of past seasons. Animating the short hair-do's so accepted now, these new hats provide soft flattery for all women. . .whatever their moods, their ages, their needs.

A SPRING-IMPORTANT, dot-patterned print with bow-tied neckline, softly rounded shoulders, and a skirt that falls in graceful folds below a natural waistline. A perfect example of every woman's dress, for every occasion.

Jewelry Trends

Pastels tell the story with blue very much in the title role. Ropes of pearls and beads, bibs, drapes and cascades are designed to fill in the more open necklines decreed by fashion. Scatter pins, so versatile in style and price, remain important. Drop earrings and larger, more elaborate bracelets are in strong favor.

Men To Be More Dressed-Up But Trend Is Also Casual

NEW YORK,—(NEA)—Spring is going to put a more dressed-up look on the male this year.

That's what the men's clothing experts predict, and they say it's because of a new style consciousness that's been growing among the nation's males since the end of the war.

The pace is being set by the younger men. For the past six months or so, father has quit buying clothes, but the business among the younger generation is thriving, the industry reports.

The dressed-up look will not be a formal one. The trend is toward windowpane plaids, chalk stripes, shepherd's checks, soft flannels, bright blues and chocolate browns.

It marks a sharp contrast to conditions six months ago, according to the Wool Bureau, which represents world wool interests. Then the accent was on honest, quiet patterns and colors and prim lines.

Because women influence the purchase of 80 per cent of the clothes bought by men under 40, the experts feel the distaff side is responsible for the new clothes consciousness. Another factor may be the younger generation's military experience, and the belief that the kind of clothes men wear has an influence on their success.

Middle-Agers Steal Spotlight

LONDON, — The neglected Cinderella of the fashion parades—the middle aged housewife—was the centre of interest at a fashion show held here recently.

It proved that however matronly she may be, the 55-year-old woman can look as smart and well-dressed as her 18 and 25-year-old daughters.

Clothes for these ages were the only one modelled in the show at the International Wool Secretariat. From a point of elegance, the three types were much the same, but in self-possession, the younger ones lagged far behind.

Wool fabrics, say designers whose clothes were shown are ideal for outsize older women. Careful co-ordination of modern wool fabrics and colors with present-day figure trends turned the trick.

Wool has draping qualities which soften harsh lines and blot out "unwanted curves", designers maintain. Discreet use of vertical rather than horizontal lines both in cut and design disguised the less lovely lines of the heavier figure.

In consequence designers felt free to use pastel shades, waistcoat styles, dolman sleeves and full skirts in five out of 10 dresses. Fulness was employed chiefly as back interest.

One of the most interesting models was a pale grey dress in fine wool with full hip panel and sash in navy and white dotted wool. The whole effect was one of slimness.

Younger mannequins did draw the spotlight with two models, a gay little suit with tartan pleated skirt and short black jacket, and a leaf-printed blue wool dress in two shades whose draping gave the effect of silk.

FEMININE INFLUENCE on the 1949 male wardrobe calls for the dressed-up look with a casual air. It includes the nation's top seller among topcoats—a lightweight gabardine (centre) in medium tan, with modified square shoulders, peaked lapels and fly front. On the campus, slacks have a crease these days and are worn with a conservative jacket (left), but the small tweed cap is a new touch. For summer, tropical worsted (right) suits are conservative, but still informal.

Shoes, Bags Related

In the shops this season, you'll notice better color cordination of accessories, not only of bags, but to belts, flowers and cases. . .the result of months of present just such merchandise to you. The shoe and bag industry, for example, have never been as closely allied. Individual manufacturers meet, confer, use the same basic resources, then show retail buyers the co-ordinated results when they do their initial buying. This will simplify your own shopping.

Fabrics Tell Spring Fashion Story

The fabric is the fashion for Spring . . . the real news . . . the big difference that makes the season's styles exciting, inspiring! Fabric is the "something to talk about," the answer to an advertising copywriter's prayer, the reason why femininity will succumb to perennial Spring longings for beautiful, new clothes.

It is a season of no major silhouette changes . . . and the fabric is everything. In coats, suits, dresses, and sportswear, it is the high point of fashion interest. Whether milady buys her clothes in the ready-to-wear, or the yardage department . . . this year's fabrics get top-billing, for they dominate the entire fashion scene.

Spring's important fabric story can be summer up in four words: textured, patterned, airy, and crisp.

Tweeds Popular

In the textured class are obviously, the tweeds . . . the ever-popular Donegals, worsteds in tweed patterns . . . tweedy weaves and prints in cottons, rayons. Textured, too, are new jacquard and dobby weave cottons and shantungs, definite cords such as ottoman, ribbed failles, reps, corded woollens, matelasse of cloquy tafettas . . . and the very new dimentional prints that reflect a depth of pattern and color.

The new patterned fabrics include the patterned men's wear worsteds, the print rayon and silk crepes, geometric printed failles, tie-silk serges, and the women checked and dotted surahs. Cottons come in for their share of glory in new cross weave irridescents, fine checks, muted plaids. Striking indeed are new damask-like and tone-on-tone prints. Simply out of this world, in pure silk!

Right for Cocktail

Airy and floating fabrics . . . the laces, chiffons . . . are right for cocktail and formal wear. Airy voile, batiste, and organdy will bear watching as Spring slips into Summer. Lace-printed pure silks and washed landscape silk prints bring an airy beauty all their own into the Spring fashion picture.

"Crisp" is a word that applies to almost everything in fashion for Spring. Crisp dresses, suits, ensembles in taffeta, real faille, bengaline. Crisp accents on tissue failles and crepes! Wonderful and new are chiffon-weight taffetas, taffeta-finished cottons and shantungs. Linen is the smart crisp for Summer. The men's wear worsteds and tropical worsteds, especially sharkskin, carry out the crisp idea in suits. Crispness give a quality look to all fabric . . . a silken look to dressy fashions, a hand-loomed look to casuals.

Softer Colors

In tune for the new feeling for beauty and quality in fabrics are the new subtler, softer colors. There is a definite departure from anything that is flagrant, noisy, gaudy. Striking contrasts are out, as colors merge and blend to form a mellow canvas that borrows the soft mauve blues, yellow greens, and terra cottas from a Degas or Renoir painting.

Tone-on-tone is the latest color story . . . a paler tone to diminish the brilliance of another color in the same family; a deep tone lightened with a paler tone of crosswoven with another to lend it opalescense.

Footwear Looks Fragile, Feminine

Pumps are the predominating footwear silhouette of the new season, reflecting the mood of the mode by their lacy, open-work vamps, pipings and dainty detailing. Heels and toes are closed. Modified Louis heels are definitely "in". Narrow strippings and strappings around. As to sandals . . . Spring revives them for devotees of open toes and heels.

SOPHISTICATED GLAMOUR! A side-drape adds drama to the skirt. A high necklace trim accents the low, heart-shaped neck.

Golden Chance Cologne

New Harriet Hubbard Ayer fragrance. Dazzlingly different! Exquisitely bottled, excitingly wrapped in white with golden raindrops.

Dollar Market Directs Design in Paris Fashions

By BARBARA STEVENSON

PARIS,— (REUTERS) —Disappointment is the keynote of the final analysis by both British and United States buyers of the Paris spring fashion shows.

A buyer from one of the most Paris-conscious New York wholesale houses summed up the general opinion when he said: "Simple romantic and absolutely lovely—but where is the clever twist which make a model of value to the trade?

"The trade depends on ideas for copying purposes and we used to find idea for our dresses in one toile (the canvas pattern of the model dress or coat which is sold to buyers for copying."

Several other buyers, both British and American, said that they are convinced that the Paris of the old days is gone for ever unless the fashion designers stop trying to make models to please the dollar market.

Another complaint voiced by buyers is that the various lesser fashion houses today depend upon a few top establishments for inspiration and follow the trends of these instead of designing along independent and original lines.

These complaints apart, materials this season are more lovely than ever, and many dress manufacturers are spending far more time in the famous textile houses than in the salons.

Double Skirts

Dior, top news man of the world's fashion pages, adopted a double skirt as the outstanding feature of this new season's models. It is a very full top skirt, over a narrow under skirt.

The attractiveness of a Dior model lies in the fact that it was made by Dior. His overskirt of box pleats, with each pleat slashed from hem to waist, over a narrow skirt of the same material, for example, would, resemble rather a retailer's nightmare than an optical illusion—Dior's name for it—in an "off the peg" garment.

In other words, such models as these cannot be copied. If they are altered in any way, they lose the Dior touch"—and their value to the buyer who wants the model to copy.

Jacques Fath is showing a two-sided collection this season—one to wear and the other to look at and talk about. Sea shells and sack cloth were features of the latter.

Molyneux, who started the double skirt movement two seasons ago, although with such restrain that it passed almost unnoticed, again comes out with fullness over slimness.

His collection has a strong Louis XV flavor, with cut-away tunics and shirt waists, again creating the full over narrow effect. The asymetrical line is also present, generally draped in tiers.

Hurricane is the name given to the line created by Schiaperelli, with fulness flowing toward the back. Her tops coats are a joy to traveller—full in the back and caught into the figure in front.

FIVE-YEAR MILK PLAN

The Indian government is considering a five-year plan to increase the milk production of urban areas by more than 1,000,000 tons.

WORD EVOLUTION

The term "handicap" comes from the expression "hand in cap," referring to drawing lots, another method of equalizing chances.

PERFUMES SOURCES

Perfume ingredients are not all floral—they include ambergris from the whale, castor from the beaver, musk from the deer and civet from the civet cat.

THIS GINGHAM PLAID is styled into a deeply ruffled, full-skirted springtime formal. The tiny plaid ruffle at the top of the boned, strapless bodice matches the ruffle trim on the stole.

Toes Tapered Softly This Season

Newest news in shoes this year is in footwear for your tailored daytime costumes.

A toe has been developed that is softly tapered but square at the tip—delicate but wonderfully comfortable. This same "square line is frequently matched in the cut of the vamp and again in the heel. The new heels for suit shoes are medium height (about two inches), have a slender look, and at the back, are squared, to match the toe.

Buttons are the chief trim on these and other shoes. Small, sedate buttons, usually pearl. Pumps are good, but sandals will be seen more frequently. Not the extremely high ankle straps of last season, but a more dignified sandal, carrying a lender instep strap or two.

Fresh Look

A fresh look has also been given the conventional spectator. Patches of black or brown on white are cut in dramatic angular or swirly lines. The fashionable buttoned instep strap and square toe are seen on many of these spectators.

Casuals will be as good or better than ever. Women refused to give up this favorite type of footwear and leading designers have accordingly given it a grace that harmonizes fully with the new spring fashions. Instep straps again are the password, with wedge heels a little higher to give a graceful lift to the foot.

On dress shoes, the low cut "shell" type of shoe leads the fashion parade. Deep-dipping vamps are sometimes left open for a full decollete effect, sometime filled in with slender strips or lattice work.

High Finish

Fine suedes and calfskins take the lead in materials for all types of shoes. For the new suit shoes, you'll want polished calf, rubbed to a high finish.

The color forecast shows navy blue rivaling black, with a leading position given to browns, beiges, earth tones, sun copper, and a revival of that elegant neutral, taupe. Again you'll see the wearing of the green, and an interesting new Chinese lacquer of pimiento red.

FABERGE—An exclusive at Elliott's Drug Store. This is one of the leading manufacturers in the U.S.A. and is fast coming to top place in Canada. This is being displayed by Elizabeth O'Leary.

Carries Body Through Bush

MATTAWA, March 30—(CP)—Conrad Duhaime, 19, Tuesday told how he carried the body of his 25-year-old brother Harry through the Quebec bush to safety here after Harry Duhaime was stricken with illness.

The two set out from here two weeks ago to stake hunting locations in preparation for the beaver trapping season. The elder brother, who had had an appendicitis operation previoulsy, was taken ill and died despite Conrad's administrations.

Conrad pushed his way through a blizzard and snowdrifts, fighting hunger and bitter cold, to reach a cabin where a small food supply was stored. From there he started out again, chewing birch shoots to alleviate his hunger, and finally reached the Ottawa River about eight miles west of Deux Rivieres. From there he used a raft of logs until the raft and his sled-dogs sank in broken ice. Conrad managed to cross the river and reach a farm-house where a car was sent for him from Mattawa.

Norway Backs Pact

OSLO, March 30—(Reuters)—The Norwegian parliament Tuesday night voted by 130 to 13 in favor of Norway's signing the North Atlantic alliance. Two Labor members and the 11 Communists in parliament voted against the proposal.

This Season's Sportswear Theme Dare to Bare . . .

"She shall have sunbacks wherever she goes . . ." keynotes the theme for active sports and play clothes for warm, sunny days ahead.

Pick a pretty pinafore . . . bra halter and short-shorts, put top your bare shoulders with clever cover up of stole, capelet or flare-back jacket.

Every active sport has keen, clever togs especially designed for action-plus and smart comfort. For golf: handsome dresses with "you can hardly tell" divided skirts. Tennis dresses are much pleated, very brief and divided in the skirt. Shorts are very brief and smooth fitting Slacks, though less popular for general use, are created with smooth simplicity, "derriere-flattering" and action motivated.

There's a great hue and cry about the smartness of denims . . . yes, this year denims go dramatic in irridescent hues, pastel shades and novelty stripings. Denims will be found in gally styled shorts, bike pants, halters, bras, great jackets and every other popular play tog item.

Giving Variety To Spring Costume

A bright array of novelty separates — boleros, capelets, fischus, halter, and midriffs—are making a gay appearance on store counters everywhere. They suggest dozens of fascinating ways to give spice and variety to Spring castumes.

Stoles, capelets, and boleros make perfect cover-ups for sunback play frock, beachwear, and evening dresses. The stole, so popular last Fall and Winter, comes out in delightful new Spring versions, in prints, polka dots, and plaids or plain colors with patterned linings.

Fly-away capelets and boleros —especially in crisp fabrics—give a nice animation to Spring silhouettes, while portrait-necklined fischus lead a smart double life in crisp pique for day time, or sheer net for evening wear.

Halters and midriffs definitely belong in the sportswwear picture, as clever tops for play skirts and culottes. They're in many fabrics, patterns, and colors, & can easily be made by most any woman who can thread a needle!

Stoles Popular

Under the builtup cavalier collars of Spring coats, the long stoles make their appearance to add to the gaiety of the picture. Cross stripes, geometrics, fanciful patterns and color, color everywhere!

Evening stoles glitter beguilingly with beads and sequins on filmy fabrics. Utterly feminine and fabulous they combine net, tulles, soft, pure silk or softest satin with metallic ribbons. bows, sparkling, jeweled butterflies and floral designs.

Coats, Suits Feature Belts Recall Popular Trench Coat

The Spring coat and suit picture is chock full of fashions! Combination suits in contrasting fabrics or two tones of the same fabric! Cape suits and coats with capelet collars. Convertible coats and suits jackets that are worn either belted of full!

Silhouette and fabric share honors in spring suits. The slender classic, handsomely tailored, looks strikingly new in subtle-mixture tweeds, in novelty patterned men's-wear worsted, or with checked and striped jackets combined with monotone skirts. Boxy suits continue to vie with their slim sisters for favor. They're especially popular in gabardine with jackets that make smart separate toppers.

Plenty of Buttons

Buttons are everywhere on suits, parading up and down, front or back of skirt, repeated for accent on the jacket. Braid trimmings appear on dressier types, and pockets are plentiful to emphasize hips without padding.

"Belted" is a big word in coats and suits. Many of the season's belted coats recall the popular trench coat in their casual treatment. But they look invitingly new with soft collars and button accent, in citified as well as casual fabrics. Although the backflare coat is still the favorite, many women prefer to belt in the fullness with a self-fabric, or dog-leash belt. Convertible suits receive attention, too, with jackets that may be belted front or back, belted all-around, or worn loose and boxy.

Fitted coats are also stepping into the limelight. They are great pets of the Junior set, and make and ideal Springtime choice for the woman who already has a box coat. The majority are designed as dress coats in silky gabardines or soft coverts with navy blue of first importance, and black following close behind. The crisp coat in faille, real silk twill, or taffeta, is the season's dress-coat-deluxe.

A CRUSHED STRAW BRETON with wind-blown carnations that look as if they had been picked from your garden! Then, a swathe of tulle, draped to flatter.... the result: Pure enchantment.

SEA SHELLS in beige and brown are used to trim a spring tricorne of fine imported Shantung straw.

FIRE ON WATER

Greek fire, an incendiary mixture of pitch, saltpetre and sulphur that burned on water, was used to rout the Saracen fleet at Constantinople in 718 AD.

TREASURED ROPE

Royal Shoes Now On View

WINNIPEG (CP)—A Winnipeg woman, Mrs. Maurice Still, has presented to the Manitoba Museum here a pair of prince albert boots worn by the Prince Albert who later became King Edward VIII of England.

Mrs. Still inherited the boots, and another small pair of red leather slippers once worn by King Edward, after the death of her aunt, Mrs. Gerald Bullivant, in London in 1947.

Both pairs of shoes, worn and scuffed-looking, tell tales on the small boy who later became king. Both pairs are six inches long and two inches wide, and an inscription on the soles reveals that the prince was nine years old when he stopped wearing them.

The shoes have squared toes, scuffed at the outside, and though the material is ripped in several places in the boots, the shiny red leather slippers look almost like new with their gold satin lining, hand-stitched in wtih careful needlework.

In Family 99 Years

The shoes have been in Mrs. Still's family for 99 years. They were presented to Miss Alby Gillet in 1850 when H.R.H. Princess Louise of Prussia, who became the Duchess of Connaught when she married Queen Victoria's son, Prince Arthur, Duke of Connaught.

Miss Gillet, a member of Princess Louise's household, was governess to the royal children.

Miss Gillet gave the shoes to her cousin, Emily Gillet, when she married Mrs. Still's grandfather, John Whelan. Later they were left to Effie Whelan, Mrs. Still's aunt, who married composer Gerald Bullivant, master of the King's Choristers at Westminster Abbey and organist at London's famous Bow Church.

When Mrs. Bullivant died, the shoes were sent to Mrs. Still with a legacy, as part of her share of her aunt's estate.

Although a Chicago fancier who collects famous shoes and canes offered to buy the heirloom shoes from her, Mrs. Still felt the royal slippers should be kept in Canada, and presented them to the Manitoba Museum for its collection.

Feminine Silhouette Still Holds The Spotlight For Spring

The feminine silhouette with its natural shoulders and hips, defined waistline, and longer skirt has now met with full acceptance.

While the shape of fashion remains unchanged, there is plenty that is fresh and exciting in new Spring versions of the current mode. The imaginative and creative genius of the designers was never more apparent than in the sparkling Spring variations they have played on favorite themes.

The differences that distinguish this season's costumes are in the deft handling of detail, in new neckline and sleeve treatments.

The season's selections give the widest possible latitude to individual tests. What rules there are may be conveniently forgotten by the woman who dresses to suit herself, in the style that does the most for her face, her figure, her personality.

If she is still wondering whether her skirt should be slim or full, she may simply follow her own inclinations. As a general rule, suit skirts are slim, coats are full, and dresses are everything.... flared, flounced, pleated, draped, or hobble-slim....

Length is not an arbitrary matter either. The right length is one that is graceful, ladylike, becoming....that looks and feels right to the wearer.

Holiday Clothes In Wool More Feminine

TORONTO, March 21—Holiday in Wool, an all-wool sportswear fashion revue was presented during the week of the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show. Costumes for fishing, hunting, swimming, hiking, archery and bicycling were shown.

"Slacks for the coming season will be worn with a matching shawl rather than a jacket," the commentator said as a sports ensemble of grey checked wool slacks and yellow sweater appeared on the runway. The blanket-size shawl, complete with fringe, was of the same check as the dine pedal pushers were worn with a red gabardine weskit and white cotton blouse.

The fact that sportswear is becoming more feminine without losing its practical quality was exemplified in a three-piece golfing outfit. The grey mix wool jersey blouse had roomy three-quarter sleeves with turn-back cuffs. The deeper grey skirt was wrap-around style and buttoned along the waist-band. Worn under the skirt were matching grey tailored shorts.

A spectator sportssuit was of red, black, grey on white stripes. The one-button box jacket was three-quarter length. The skirt was straight cut and had a self-belt. To complete the ensemble slacks.

little boy's in navy and light blue

For a hiking trip navy gabar- was a matching scarf.

The most glamorous outfits shown were those for beach wear A green wool jersey strapless bathin gsuit, boned at the waist, was stitched with elasticized thread was of pink jersey with an wool button-up skirt with a waist-hugging band and huge patch pockets. Its white wool shawl was trimmed with a green stripe and white fringe.

Another of the same elasticized thread was of pink persey with an almost-knee length cape.

Fashions for tiny tots were also shown. For playing cowboy were matching outfits of two-tone gabardine with colored bead work on the yolk and cuffs. The had long trousers. The girl's outfit was chocolate brown trimmed with beige.

Their beachwear ensembles included a little girl's red all-wool jersey bathrobe trimmed with flowers at the pockets and worn over a frilled two-piece matching bathing suit. The boy's robe of the same style in a lobster shade was worn over short-type bathing trunks.

PANAMANIAN INDUSTRY

Industry in Panama is limited largely to brewing, distilling and the production of evaporated milk, furniture, clothing, soap, and candles.

Shorter Sleeves Longer Gloves

Spring gloves take their trend from the new fashions they complement. The new silhouette with its deep necklines, built-up, elaborate collars, lead glove designers inevitably to the French mousquetaire with its ample cuffs. Forty-nine adaptations emphasize the close fitting wrist and dainty, dressmaker touches. Gloves with inseam construction make the hand seem slimmer, more feminine in appearance This newer technique of manufacture is apparent in short, six-button, and longer gloves. Black details are feminine and pretty and do their charming best to meet the sleeves shortage.

In color, the highest note is navy glace in either short, medium long or really long gloves. But Spring displays a whole range of blue shades. Muted neutrals of other shades make a strong bid for favor. No vivid contrast gloves this season! Pale hands . . slim hands. . dainty hands complete the Empire picture!

Know Facts on Nylon Hose To Buy Wardrobe Wisely

This season, more that ever before, it is important to know the why and wherefore of hosiery weights and gauges. A complete wardrobe of weights — dress sheers, medium sheers and service weights, is now available as well as smart new colors, some with black seams and heels, and before long this city may be showing them with clocks and embroidery at the ankle.

So, it is high time the shopper understands in greater detail the facts about the stocking she wears or desires to wear. By possessing the essential information about such factors as denier and gauge she is better equipped to buy an assortment for day, evening party wear that will give her good service.

Here's what they signify, Denier refers to the weight of the thread, gauge refers to the closeness of the stitch. The higher the denier number, the heavier the weight of the thread; and the higher the gauge number, the closer the stitch. Thus, a 15 denier is only half the weight of a 30 denier, and so is much finer. Similarly, a 45 gauge is not as fine a stitch as a 51 gauge. The higher the gauge, the smoother, finer and closer the stitch. The very finest, sheerest stocking, combine low denier with high gauge.

For sheer light-as-mist party hose Canadian women would ask for 15 or 20 denier stocking. If they desire stocking that aren't as transparent and have longer wearing properties they would purchase higher denier full-fashioned hose. Neither denier nor gauge affect the fit of nylons; this is achieved by the fashioning and slenderizing back seam.

Lower cut shoes mean that a rim of sturdy stocking reinforcement will show above the shoe outline. Consequently a lower reinforcement to toe, sole and heel is imperative. Some manufacturers have already adjusted their machines to turn out shell or lower cut reinforced stockings.

New spring shades according to a New York color chart are: Glace Mocha, a radiant sun - warmed brown to wear with shoes in brown almond; Pastel Nude, a glowing sunny skintone for shoes in Palomino, Rancho tan, summer cream or white; Morning Mist, a spring taupe for shoes in grey, red, blue or black, Brown Shadow, a misty brown blended with frosted coffee for shoes in gypsy brown, green, red, grey or black; Town Smoke, a light gunmetal for shoes in navy, gunmetal or black; Bronzlite, for shoes in brown, green, or black; Bludusk, a greyed blue for Admiral or metallic blue; Navy Lustre a spirited navy for red shos.

CASCADING CAPELETS lend a romantic air to this young covert coat. It features add-a-year hem for extra seasons of wear.

A ONE-PIECE wired bra swim suit. The draped front flatters all figures. The shirred elastic back assures snug fit.

Casuals Capture Gay Spirit

Capturing the gay spirit of Spring into Summer days, '49 casual fashions play a most important part in the new season.

Cottons come first in the casual dress collection. . .but cottons have a new importance with their sleek, silky finishes. Seersucker, chambray, ginghams and cords all have the expensive polish of lustrous silk.

Empire adaptions give the classic shirtwaist frocks a new face! Casual clothes have a spectator sports character that makes them so-good for town and travel, street wear or semi-dressy occasions.

Sunback dresses with clever tricks of cover-ups are important and interesting as their shoulder coverings adapt them for everything from office wear to picnic wear.

Ensembles make news with the sweater-jacket or long redingote over dresses. Co-ordinates, too, give greater variance to the Spring wardrobe.

Lovely, muted pastels and brilliant hues are the color notes in the new casual frocks. Shirtings and cottons take on new airs of elegance. Geometric prints, Oriental variations, irridescent colors and exciting themes, make the 1949 casuals for town and country, the most spectacular in years.

Pure silk in shantung, cantons, surah and tie prints have settled down to a steady Spring performance with exciting styling and lavish colors.

Academy Award System May Be Scrapped

HOLLYWOOD, March 30 (AP) —Big talk in the film capital today is: Will there be any more Academy awards?

Actor Jean Hersholt asserts that the New York offices of picture companies oppose the awards idea and that the Association of Motion Picture Proucers will withdraw its support after this year.

At the same time, Hersholt announced his retirement as president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, sponsor of the annual "Oscar" presentations. He added he won't remain on the Academy Board of Governors.

"I don't think the Academy will go out of existence," said Hersholt, who has served as its president four years. "But unless the studios take a more active interest . . . . and agree to make financial contributions, the 1948 awards will be the last."

He declared that without the support of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, which Eric Johnston heads, "it will be difficult if not impossible for this program to proceed."

Answers Criticism

Hersholt said he was speaking in answer to an undercurrent of criticism heard in the industry after the awards ceremony last Thursday. And he declared:

"Voices in the industry say they don't want Academy standards foisted upon us. They say 'We want to make commercial pictures unhampered by considerations of artistic excellence.'"

The veteran actor said certain producers feel that "too much time and money are wasted trying to make pictures of Academy-award calibre. They think Academy standards are too high.

Hersholt emphasized that the Academy, in reality the cultural and educational branch of the industry, will not lower its standards. The coveted gold statuettes, presented for 21 years, are awarded for the highest achievements in the art of motion pictures.

Chief Factors Of Success

Self-control and the ability to adjust oneself to changing conditions are two chief factors in making a success of life, the Rev. Ivan C. Morgan on Monday told the Lions Club.

"The business of life in this world of ours is not a task to be tackled lightly, but one that demands our best and finest thought and planning," he said.

The title of his address to the Lions was "Little Man What Now," and he concentrated on the difficulty of "making a go of life" in this present world with its attendant stresses and complexities.

On the subject of adjusting oneself to changing conditions he had three main counsels: when a new situation presents itself, accept it exactly as it is; try to see one's limitations as they really are, free from illusion; and develop oneself regardless of limitations.

"There are some things in this life that we cannot do anything about, and therefore we must simply put up with them."

One must maintain self control both in relation to others and in one's attitude toward criticism, Mr. Morgan said.

"When we are tempted to lose our self-control and become as angry as the 'terrible tempered Mr. Bangs' let us try ignoring the thing which has caused our distress."

Mr. Morgan was introduced by Lew Horning and thanked by Jack Arnott. President Simpson Gledhill was in the chair.

Breaks Into Convent

SEATTLE, Wash., March 30 (AP)—A man who crawled through a basement window of the Sacred Heart Convent and clambered into bed with the institution's 59-year-old housekeeper drew a two-year deferment of sentence Tuesday. Royal G. Berry, 23, married and father of one child, heard court Judge Malcolm Douglas describe the case as "weird," almost like a droll tale from Balzac". A Nun shooed him out of the convent and police picked him up 20 minutes later.

Young Feminine Stars Finally Getting Break In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, March 30 (AP)—Mid-week medley: highlights and sidelights on the Hollywood news.

Youth is finally being served on the screen, at least on the distaff side.

For some time I've been noting that Hollywood's stars are getting older, with few youngsters being developed to replace them. Young people, who represent the majority of the movie audience, have had to watch 30-, 40- and 50-year-old film heroes and heroines.

It's not that those ages are less interesting. Few become good actors until they pass the 30 mark. But youth deserves a break, too.

Progress is being made in this department. Not so much in the male division. One of the few bright young actor prospects is 28-year-old Montgomery Clift.

The female list is more impressive. Among the virtual cinches for stardom are Elizabeth Taylor, 17; Wanda Hendrix, 20; Shelley Winters, 26; Marta Toren, 23; Ava Gardner, 25; Ann Blyth, 20; Rhonda Fleming, 25; and Coleen Gray, 22.

Interesting to note the last three are Bing Crosby's latest leading ladies. Hi, Bing!

A Complaint!

So far none has done so, but if any movie bigwig asked me what was wrong with theatre business I'd say: Admission prices.

The most movie complaints I get from readers are about theatre tickets costs. They claim that theatres have priced themselves into the luxury class. The two-bit and 40-cent film houses are getting as scarce as nickel beer in most parts.

Take a look at Texas, where admissions have been kept at a low scale. That has helped make Texas the most avid movie state, as evidenced by "The Green Promise" premiere in Houston.

Get the prices down, boys, and you'll get the folks back in.

Bombay is the centre of India's cotton industry.

Doesn't Take Bribe

HALIFAX, March 30—(CP)—Deputy Mayor John E. Lloyd said Tuesday at the county court probe into purchase by the city last year of three snowblowers that he had not considered the offer of a bribe in connection with the deal an insult because "the committee system in city [illegible] encourages visits by salesmen to aldermen." He testified people had come to his office on several occasions to offer "certain considerations" in return for support of purchases by the city.

Feminine Silhouette Holds Spotlight for Spring

This Spring finds women in the midst of the current fashion cycle which had its beginnings two years ago and will, according to the experts, take four years more to run its course. What this means to the average woman is that there will be no drastic style changes for several seasons yet to come.

The feminine silhouette with its natural shoulders and hips defined waistline, and longer skirt has now met with full acceptance. Mrs. Consumer can rest assured that the clothes she buys this Spring are, in truth, established fashions representing a continuing trend. She need no longer await "developments" before investing in a good suit or coat.

Shape Unchanged

While the shape of fashion remains unchanged, there is plenty that is fresh and exciting in new Spring versions of the current mode. The imaginative and creative genius of the designers was never more apparent than in the sparkling Spring variations they have played on favorite themes.

The differences that distinguish this season's costumes are in the deft handling of detail, in new neckline and sleeves treatments, and especially in the new weaves, patterns, and textures that make fabric the big fashion news for Spring!

Can Forget Rules

The season's selections give the widest possible latitude to individual tests. What rules there are may be conveniently forgotten by the woman who dresses to suit herself, in the style that does the most for her face, her figure, her personality.

If she is still wondering whether her skirt should be slim or full, she may simply follow her own inclinations. As a general rule, suit skirts are slim, coats are full, and dresses are everything. . . flared, flounced, pleated, draped, or hobble-slim. . . while sportswear takes a middle-road course somewhere between sheath and swirl.

Length is not an arbitrary matter either. The right length is one that is graceful, ladylike, becoming. . .that looks and feels right to the wearer. If in doubt 12 inches from the floor is a safe bet for street and daytime wear although some skirts may climb a little higher for Spring, and for Summer.

Important dress types being shown are feminized shirtwaist models with wide open or plunging necklines; Empire styles with a high bustline and molded bodice treatment, especially for junior misses; coat dresses in a wide variety of basic, redingote, and princess styles; and dresses that are slim and molded with tiered skirts and side drapery Look for daytime as well as late afternoon wear. . .taffeta, failles, pure silk shantungs, in small dot patterns and surah prints with a new crispness and texture

As for suits. . .the slim, trim classic is still the undisputed fashion leader, now stepping smartly into Spring in finely patterned, lightweight worsteds, soft tweeds, and in combinations of plain and patterned fabrics The three-piece ensemble, consisting of suit and topper, is the season's foremost practical buy. . .appear in tweeds, checks, solid colors, and combinations

Loose-Fitting Coat

The full-length, loose-fitting coat continues to hold its own and comes in both casual and dressy fabrics with new looking Empire backs, raglan sleeves, detachable capes, and upstanding collars and cuffs. The full-length fitted coat is in evidence too, and promises to become a favorite dress coat for Easter in black or navy. Among fitted casual models, there's a definite revival of the tweed reefer.

Details that make fashion news this Spring are necklines that rise high in back, plunge "'way down to there" in front.

Capelet back, winged cuffs and collars, floating back panels, and fly-away boleros are the new silhouette animations that give Spring fashions a lilt and a lift.

MRS. G. JOYCE of the Robt. Fair & Co. staff models a Marcel La Casse Inc. suit, especially and scientifically designed for women who are 5 ft. 5 in. and under. The fabric is a pure wool barathea and is a high styled, hand tailored suit that can be worn without alterations. Dream Of T. P. Lancaster Comes True Did He Ever Expect Cars To Kill Deer?

R. H. Trotter of Apsley, district game overseer, told the Examiner today that he often came upon 20 to 30 deer in woods north of Mt. Julian during the last few months.

"That was their winter yard On several occasions I took interested people in to see them, and it was a usual experience to see 20 or 30 of them together."

Mr. Trotter said five or six deer, victims of traffic on the Apsley Road, were brought to him by motorists this winter.

"They were accidentally killed by drivers suddenly coming on them at a bend in the road; or they may have darted across in front of vehicles."

These facts should be of special interest to T. Percy Lancaster of Havelock, who as member of the Legislature conceived the idea of establishing the Crown Reserve as a sanctuary for wild life in the eastern section of Peterborough county. A merited designation would be Lancaster Reserve or Forest.

Mr. Lancaster used to imagine the day when tourists driving the Apsley Road would see deer from the roadway, and thrill at the vision. But, it is not in collection that he ever visualized their increase in number to the extent that they would be bumped off on the highway.

Co-ordinated Men's Wear Coming Much to Fore in Fashion's Best Styling for Spring

By NORMAN JOHNSON

Emphasis cannot be placed too strongly on the importance of co-ordinated men's apparel, in the opinion of O. E. Schoeffler, Fashion Editor of Esquire, said, "We are constantly trying to point out that men should wear ensembles, that their shirts and ties and hats and suits and shoes and coats must all go together in color, design and type."

If men learn that lesson, Mr. Schoffler and other men's fashion authorities feel, they can always be sure they are well-dressed, no matter what prices they pay for their clothes.

Bold Look Grows

Inspection of men's wear shops show that the Bold Look is still going strong. If anything the trend is bigger and stronger now the styles are considered more becoming to the dominant male Looks as though we'll never be on the subdued side again.

For spring, 1949, men's styles draw heavily on the panorama. Patterns in neckwear, socks and braces, for instance, reflect the geometric pattern, the clean hard lines of our bridges and skyscrapers, while sports-wear has the broad sweep of the great out doors.

Palladium Tones New

Biggest news in the new trend, Mr. Schoffler tells us, are the new Palladium-tones, an interpretation in men's apparel of the rich cool gleam of palladium, one of the world's rarest metals. The pales, frosted gray palladium tones are featured in men's jewelry, ties, shirts, socks and braces.

Palladium-tone ties have bold but neatly and regularly spaced figures incontrasting shades of blue, green or maroon. The new shirts are commander collar styles in palladium green, gray and blue. These are low-chroma, gray tones. Socks are ribbed knits with geometric clocks in the new color and braces are made to match the ties.

When shopping for a suit if you would be right out in front among the 1949 well dressed men, take a look at the three new colors, Gannet gray, Grabrown and Ash Blue.

What is Gannet gray? We didn't know either, until Mr Schoffler helped us out with the explanation that it is a clear bright shade. Also that Grabrown is a medium brown with gray overtones and Ash blue is a gray medium blue shade.

Homburg Variation

And while you're about it, slip into the men's hat section and see these colors since they are made in co-ordinated shades. The Grabrown Coloring, for example carries a blue band and goes well with any of the three colors. What is a Colony? There you go again. But WE did, too! But now we're smart, thanks to Mr Schoeffler. A Colony is a free interpretation of the homburg. It has an easy-casual roll to the brim instead of the tight pencil curl. Imagine being caught dead with a pencil curl when you can have an easy casual roll.

Geometric Tie Pattern

Particularly good looking are ties in the new geometrics, a series of check patterns in strong—but not loud—colors which co-ordinate with the suits and shirts.

Chesty Look

If you're worrying about your masculine chest not looking deep enough or your masculine shoulders not broad enough, your troubles will be over when you discover what sweater manufacturers have done for the first time. Pullovers have a keystone neck opening and a wide band of contrasting color across the chest.

Ask Assistance For Park Work

OTTAWA, March 30—(CP). — Government assistance for park and recreational work across the Dominion was asked yesterday in a brief presented to Health Minister Martin by executives of the Parks and Recreation Association of Canada which wound up a two-day meeting here.

Request for aid was backed up by reports of more than $10,000,000 being spent annually by municipal departments in operation of facilities.

It was estimated that facilities of parks, playgrounds and community centres in Canada were worth considerably more than $200,000,000 and that during the next 20 years a similar amount would be spent to expand these facilities.

The brief noted that other national organizations received Federal assistance and suggested an annual grant be provided to enable the association to establish a national office.

The association announced that parks and recreation week in Canada will be held May 21-28 this year and in future would be an international effort in co-operation with the United States.

EXQUISITELY STYLED for the Easter Parade and Tailored to a "T", the slim lines of fashion prevail in this perfect fitting classic of tone-on-tone worsted wool suit shown modelled for Barries.

Regency Air Seen In British Lines

The men's suits being produced for the Easter season in this men's style centre strike what the swank tailors call the Edwardian note, according to Associated Press.

It is a fashion, the designers explained, which flourished in the period 1900 to 1905. It is not period duplicated precisely this spring, but there is a slight flourish in line and seam which suggests the easier, light-hearted days of the beginning of the century.

There's a touch of something else called the regency influence. The regency period goes back about a century and it accounts for slight suggestions of color in men's attire this spring. It accounts particularly for the odd waistcoat, sometimes a checked material, which the fashion dictators say will be quite the thing this year.

The waistcoat is often tan, with a dark blue suit. It's light with dark-colored material, and dark if the suit is light. There is even a touch of embroidery on some of the waistcoats, borrowed from the regency period.

A Few Frills

The Edwardian trend permits a few frills. The jacket has a couple of small auxiliary pockets, one above the right side coat pocket, which is handy for such a trifle as a cigarette holder Jackets are longer. Width of shoulders is not as well thought of as it was a few years ago, but British fashion moves deliberately and padding has not been eliminated entirely. Shoulders remain wider than hips. Lapels are long and narrow, the overall impression being one of greater length. There is a suggestion of a pinch at the waist.

The effect of length is enhanced by the trousers, which are narrower from top to bottom. The trousers have cuffs, narrower than of yore, and the coat sleeves may have a cuff or a seam suggestion one. Pockets have flaps.

Trousers have "hacking vents," which are little pleats under the belt line at the rear. They provide some give when a gentleman swings onto a horse

Worsteds, always popular, have gained favor as supplies increase. Tweeds are no mistake, but there may not be quite a many of them. Most colors are a trifle brighter, but brightness, it was warned, must not be overdone.

Topcoats are cut on the Edwardian line, and are shorter.

Faces Sedition Trial

SYDNEY, Australia, March 30 (AP)—Lawrence Sharkey, general secretary of the Australian Communist party, today was committed for trial on a charge of uttering seditious words. The case is based on a statement by Sharkey at a time when Communist chieftains in many parts of the world were pledging support to the Soviet Union in the event of a war.

HERE IS PRESENTED a two-button, single-breasted model with four patch pockets, featuring the concave shoulder, blade roll, and tapered hips. Hand-tailored in canyon blue.

BOLD patterns in new spring ties contrast with solid-color sport shirts for 1949.

BOLD look in '49 ties runs from birds to waterfall pattern but conservative stripes and plaids are still on the market.

Timid Ties Outshone

NEW YORK —(NEA)—Timid ties are out this Spring. The fashion stage is set for brighter, bolder, gayer neckwear. Now that the male has decided he wants the conservative look in suits and coats, he has only one chance to brighten himself up—and he is taking it. The more subdued the suit, the gayer the tie, says Fashion, and indications are that the young American man likes the idea and likes it in sleek wool neckwear. Bright ties are being snatched off display racks in record time while their quiet retoned stripes and solids are giving way to such ties artistry as spilling waterfalls, panel-length feathers, palm trees, hunting dogs, flying geese, wavy lines mingled with diagonal stripes—all vigorously etched with strong rich colors, and all marked for top fashion interest. Executed with high good taste, many designs sometimes use as many as a dozen different colors in one tie panel.

A TOWNE TOGS by Blacks feature modelled by Marion Honour, an exclusive creation by Nat Laurie in a print silk floral pattern which features the new plunging neckline with wide cap sleeves and cleverly designed peplum front forming a side drape. She carried matching wine suede bag and gloves.

Mrs. William Howell Returning To Scotland

Crossing the Atlantic no longer presents a problem to people with relatives on both sides of the ocean. Two weeks ago Mrs. Agnes McGarvie and her daughter arrived from Scotland to see her brother and sister for the first time in 47 years. Now the reverse is happening this week.

Mrs. William Howell, 288 Park St., is flying to Scotland Wednesday to visit her brother and two sisters in Scotland, who have not seen one another in 39 years. Ronald, Mrs. Howell's son, a dental technician in Peterborough, is flying with her.

Her brother, David Hutchison, plans to meet her at the airport at Prestwick, Scotland. They have not seen each other since Mrs. Howell, as a young bride, stepped on the gangplank of a ship headed for Canada in 1910.

She plans to spend three months with her brother and sisters, Mrs. Susan Rattray and Mrs. Jean Cleat. Most of her visit will be in Perth and Edinburgh.

Mrs. Howell and Ronald left Tuesday morning by car for Montreal.

STYLED FOR SPRING: The dressy one button long roll suit modelled by Clayton Selkirk of Selkirk's Men's and Boys' Wear is just the thing to step out it this Spring. Since this Spring, a hat is essential for that well-groomed look, Clayton has chosen a lightweight grey felt by Biltmore.

Allow Expenditure

OTTAWA, March 30—(CP) — The Commons voted interim supply to the government Tuesday night, giving it permission to spend $234,000,000 of the estimated $2,217,000,000 it is going to need in the 1949-50 fiscal year starting Friday. Finance Minister Abbott gave the usual assurances that the vote would not curb discussion on any item in the estimates.

Senator Says British People Hard-Traders

OTTAWA, March 30 —(CP)—Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, Tuesday described the British people as "hard traders."

He made the remark during a Senate debate on the government's agricultural control bill. This is a bill extending for one year the government boards established during the war to requisition the food needed to fill contracts with the United Kingdom.

Thumping his desk at times to put across a point, Senator Haig said he admired the British people "as the leaders of democracy in the world." Nevertheless, he didn't see why Canadian farmers should have to "subsidize those people to make a policy succeed we don't believe in...."

"We in Western Canada have got to have that European market for the products of our country," said Senator Haig, deploring United Kingdom trade with countries "behind the Iron Curtain" in goods—such as machinery—which Canada could use.

Senator R. B. Horner (PC—Saskatchewan) charged Agriculture Minister Gardiner with using the bill for political purposes.

Wants To Know Volume

Insofar as contents of the bill were concerned, Senator Norman Lambert (L—Ontario) wanted to know the volume of production in relation to cheese, hogs, bacon and eggs as against the demand for them.

He noted that bilateral agreements were not a part of the picture the world is trying to encourage today. However "it is to be hoped by another year the scene will have cleared . . . so as to broaden out the field for the sale of such of our primary products as cheese bacon and eggs."

He felt the regulations accompanying these food contracts might be relaxed so that "our producers would get permits for the sale of their surplus supplies in the United States or elsewhere at better prices than we are getting from Britain."

Car Theft Ring Declared Broken

TORONTO, March 30 (CP) — Toronto police officials disclosed Tuesday they have uncovered and broken up a "thoroughly organized" car-theft ring, operating between Toronto, Hamilton and Montreal.

The disclosure was made following the arrest in Hamilton Monday night of John Dawson (alias Richards), 36, who police charged, stole an auto March 24 and attempted to resell it the next day for $1,800.

Describing the activities of the gang, a senior police official said the thieves would spot a car, take down its license number, serial number and all necessary detail for obtaining an ownership card. They would then obtain an ownership card and resell the car.

The officials said "the racket was operated on a large scale a few months ago, but we have been fortunate in breaking up the ring and arresting some of the suspected leaders."

Police credited an Ingersoll businessman with uncovering the used-car racket.

Norman E. Horton became suspicious after replying to an advertisement offering a used car for sale.

Jimmy Stewart Claims Record

NEW YORK, March 30—(AP)—Joe de Bona claimed a transcontinental air record Tuesday of four hours and 57 minutes.

The former United States Army major flew from Burbank, Calif., to New York City, in actor Jimmy Stewart's F-51 fighter plane.

The cross-country dash began, De Bona said at 9:23 a.m. (EST). An earlier report timed the take-off at 9:28. The stripped-down fighter zoomed over the control tower at New York City's La Guardia Field at 2:20 p.m.

The present record for the distance is six hours. seven minutes and five seconds. It was set by Paul Mantz, Hollywood stunt pilot in February, 1947.

De Bona said he averaged 530 miles an hour, pushed along by a 55-mile-an-hour tail wind.

In Los Angeles, Stewart, a wartime bomber pilot, quickly claimed a record and gave De Bona full credit for the flight.

Stewart said the plane, which he bought 16 months ago, was not "souped up" but was painted, polished and sanded to get a slick finish.

Knew 2 Trains On Single Track

PORT ARTHUR, March 30 (CP)—Train dispatcher Ivan B. Morrow testified Tuesday in Supreme Court trial here that he knew two freight trains were moving toward each other on the same single track but was powerless to do anything about it.

Morrow a dispatcher at Schreiber, gave this testimony as the court considered whether Lawrence I. Downey, 34-year-old engineer, would be held responsible for the death of his fireman, William John McMullen. Downey is being tried on a charge of manslaughter in the death of McMullen last Dec. 2 from a collision north of Schreiber between two freight trains.

Dispatcher Morrow said that Downey, operating an "assisting" engine, had been sent to Selim, west of Schreiber, to help a freight up a grade into Schreiber. Morrow said that after Downey's engine had pulled out, he had signalled through another engine with a string of about 34 cars to follow.

He said that Downey had reached Selim, apparently coupled onto the waiting freight and then started toward Schreiber against an absolute stop signal.

Watch Breeding Stock

TORONTO, March 30—(CP)—Canadian sheep farmers would be well advised to make sure that good type lambs end up as breeding stock instead of going to the packing house, said W. H. J. Tisdale Tuesday. Mr. Tisdale, representing the Canadian Co-Operative Wool Growers Ltd., told a meeting of the Canadian Livestock Record Board that sheep flocks have been dwindling at an alarming rate. He urged establishment of boys' and girls' sheep clubs and better use of marginal grazing lands as additional steps.

Honor Omemee Chemist On Retirement

OMEMEE, March 30 (ENS). — When S. J. Mackey answered his doorbell on Friday evening, he suddenly became aware that Mrs. Mackey and he were the centre of an impromptu reception. The ordeal, however, was soon over, for the friends had timed it to all arrive together. In they passed, a continuous stream, until the house was practically filled.

The occasion was a farewell to the Mackeys, preceding their departure from this village to retire in Toronto, where they will share a home with their youngest son Jamie.

30 Years Village Druggist

For thirty years Mr. Mackey has been Omemee's druggist, and he and his wife and family have shared many experiences with the people of this village that will not soon be forgotten. Many such were recalled during the evening's informal proceedings.

Finally Dr. G. N. Earle, on behalf of all present and those prevented from being present, addressed Mr. and Mrs. Mackey, expressing appreciation of their activities in the community life in which they had participated in so many helpful ways. He extended to them good wishes for their future happiness in retirement.

Gifts Presented

As a token of friendship, he asked them to accept the gift of a mahogany Duncan Phyfe table with a basket of roses.

Suitable replies were made by Mr. and Mrs. Mackey, who extended gracious invitations to all the friends to visit them in their new home. H. Hill also spoke.

Omemee will miss their good friends, the Mackeys.

King Needs Long Rest

LONDON, March 30—(Reuters)—A bulletin issued at Buckingham Palace today said the King continues to make good progress after his operation on March 12 but a long period of convalescence will be necessary.

MISS LORRAINE DAVIDSON, the charming model from the Canadian Department Stores, is pictured wearing a fine wool suit in Eaton's cameo grey shade fashioned in this spring season's silhouette with more natural shoulder line, pinched waist and pencil slim skirt. . .to complete her ensemble Miss Davidson wears a Cameo navy straw hat trimmed with spring-like flowers and a wisp of veiling. Her shoes, bag and gloves are also in Cameo navy. On her lapel may be seen a cluster of scatter pins, a new trend in costume jewellery. The model's fashionable outfit is one of many in styles, sized to fit misses' and women's figures.

To Investigate Navy Incidents

OTTAWA, March 30 — (CP) — Defense Minister Claxton said Tuesday the body that probes incidents aboard three naval ships will include some people outside the navy.

He told John Probe (CCF, Reginal) a "full and thorough investigation" will be made into disturbances aboard the destroyers Crescent and Athabaskan and the aircraft carrier Magnificent.

Mr. Probe suggested that a parliamentary or other non-navy committee be set up to investigate all aspects of navy service. Mr. Claxton said a parliamentary committe ewas not considered appropriate.

On another navy matter, Mr. Claxton told G. K. Fraser (PC, Peterborough West) there will be no change in the policy of turning wartime navy prize money—about 3,000,000—over to the navy and air force benevolent funds.

He said he had no submissions for a change from the Canadian Legion, but would investigate to see if they had gone elsewhere.

Plane Burns In Farmer's Field 5 Killed In Crash Near London

Newfoundland Seamen

This is their culture, this—their master passion
Of giving shelter and of sharing bread,
Of answering rocket signals in the fashion
Of losing life to save it. In the spread
Of time—the Gilbert-Grenfell-Bartlett span—
The headlines cannot dim their daily story.
Nor calls like London! Gander! Teheran!
Outplay the drama of the sled and dory.

The wonders fade. There overhead a mile,
Planes bank like gulls. Like curlews scream the jets.
The caravans move on in radar file
Scarce noticed by the sailors at their nets,
Bracing their bodies to their tasks, as when,
Centuries before Argentia's smoking funnels,
That small ancestral band of Devon men
Red-boned their knuckles on the Squirrel gunwales.

As old as it is new, as new as old,
Enduring as a cape, as fresh as dulse,
This is the Terra Nova record told
Of contractual blood behind the pulse
On sea or land. Was it but yesterday
That without terms and without drill commands,
A rescue squad found Banting where he lay
With the torn tissues of his healing hands?

Examiner Brings Canadians Dr. Pratt's Poetic Tribute

With considerable pride The Examiner publishes above a special poem, "Newfoundland Seamen," from the pen of the celebrated Newfoundland-Canadian poet E. J. Pratt. Several weeks ago The Examiner wrote Dr. Pratt, asking if he would consider writing a special poem for The Examiner and several other daily papers across Canada to mark the federation of his native Newfoundland with his adopted Canadian homeland. The poet agreeably consented, and that is how our readers are today privileged to have this fine poem at this historic time.

E. J. Pratt was born at Western Bay, Newfoundland, in 1883. His father was a clergyman, his grandfather a sea captain. It may be from this grandfather as much as from his boyhood among capes and dulse, dories and sea-breakers that the poet derives the strong, sensitive feeling for the sea and seafaring men which informs many of his famous poems—such narratives as "The Roosevelt and the Antinoe" and "The Titanic," and the lyrics of "Newfoundland Verse" and "Verses of the Sea."

Best-Known Poet

Dr. Pratt is our best-known living poet, and by virtue of his fine pen and occasional pieces like "Dunkirk" (1941), "They Are Returning" (1945) and his most recent poem "Newfoundland Seamen" which we publish today, he might be called the untitled Poet Laureate of Canada. Dr. Pratt was requested by Prime Minister Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent to write a poem for the occasion and the above poem has been submitted.

E. J. PRATT, C.M.G.
From the portrait by Kenneth Forbes

He is Professor of English, Victoria College, Toronto, and makes his home in that city. He has one daughter. He has been honored by the King with the C.M.G.

Some phrases in "Newfoundland Seamen" may gain in meaning for readers who are not Newfoundlanders by the following notes. "Gilbert" is Sir Humphrey Gilbert, heroic Elizabethan explorer and seaman who was drowned on his return from Newfoundland in 1583. "Grenfell" is Sir Wilfred Grenfell, Labrador medical missionary who died in 1940. "Bartlett" is Captain Bob Bartlett of Brigus, Newfoundland, famed Arctic seaman and explorer. He accompanied Admiral Peary on his Polar voyages and has done valiant and valuable work of exploration and navigation for the Canadian Government. "Argentia" is the great naval-military base in Placentia Bay, and was the setting for the Roosevelt - Churchill Atlantic Charter meeting. "Squirrel" is Gilbert's ill-fated ship on which he was drowned. "Banting" is of course Sir Frederick Banting, Toronto doctor, co-discoverer of insulin, who lost his life in an air crash on the east coast of Newfoundland, February 21, 1941.

Canada To Meet UK Cheese Pact

SPENCERVILLE, Ont., Mar. 31 (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner predicted Wednesday that Canada will fulfill her 1949-50 cheese contract with the United Kingdom, to the tune of 50,000,000 pounds.

He referred to the cheese contract at a nomination convention here which saw J. Frank Casselman, Chesterville farmer, selected to represent the Liberals in the Grenville-Dundas riding in the next federal election.

"One week ago I didn't believe we would be able to do it," said Mr. Gardiner. "But before coming to this meeting I was advised by one of my department officials that it looks as if the contract will be fulfilled."

There was a marked increase in cheese production, the minister said. Dairy farmers were turning more milk into cheese production and stocks of cheese had increased proportionately.

Churchill To Deliver Major Speech Tonight

BOSTON, March 31 (AP) — Winston Churchill is expected to tell the world tonight what hope he sees for man in this war-marred century. The 74-year-old statesman, who spurred battling Britain with his call to "blood, sweat, and tears," will speak on "The 20th Century, its Promise and its Realization."

He is scheduled to speak at 9 p.m. EST.

Tonight in his immediate audience of 13,900 at Boston Garden will be some of the ablest thinkers of the western world—statesmen, educators, scientists and philosophers.

They are gathered for a three day mid-century survey, initiated by Massachusetts Institute of Technology on the "Social Implications of Scientific Progress."

Charity Bill Filibuster Lasts 4 Hours

Jolliffe Fears Press Will Lose Freedom Under Frost Proposal

TORONTO, March 31 (CP)—With the threat of a long filibuster on a charities bill temporarily lifted, the Ontario legislature today heads into an 11th-hour drive to complete consideration of departmental estimates.

Provincial Treasurer Leslie Frost said earlier this week he hoped the House would finish its study of the estimates by the end of the 1948-49 fiscal year. That fiscal year ends at midnight tonight.

The C.C.F. opposition, holding 21 seats in the 90-seat legislature, last night started what was expected to be an all-night filibuster to delay second reading of the Progressive Conservative government's bill to regular charitable foundations. Opposition Leader E. B. Jolliffe attacked the bill for 4¾ hours—with two hours out for dinner—but adjourned the debate at 11:05 p.m. at the suggestion of Mr. Frost.

The bill provides that if a charitable trust or foundation has more than 10 per cent. of the interest in any business, it must dispose of the remaining 90 per cent. within three years. If the foundation converts the business into cash, it may invest the proceeds in investments authorized by law, but again is limited to investing in not more than 10 per cent. of the capital stock of any company.

Answers Attacks

Replying to attacks on the bill in the editorial and news columns of the Toronto Daily Star, Mr. Frost in a 60-minute explanation of the measure's purposes mentioned the Atkinson foundation.

The late Joseph Atkinson, former owner of the Star, willed assets of the Star and the Star Weekly to a charitable foundation with instructions that profits from the enterprises were to be distributed to various charities. The arrangement went into operation after Mr. Atkinson died last May 8 at 82.

Mr. Frost said the terms of the Atkinson will set out that the primary object of the two papers should be the dissemination of news and opinions. Charity was secondary, he said. But if the principle objective of the foundation was charitable, then the bill would assist the charities.

He denied the accusation made by some critics that any one business was being singled out by the bill. He declared as "absolutely without foundation" the criticism that the Government proposed to enact retroactive legislation.

"If the charitable foundation is set up for the purposes of true charity, then there can be absolutely no objection to this bill. The bill assists the testator in carrying out his objects and ensures that the charities as well as the taxpayer received a square deal."

Want To Force Sale

Mr. Jolliffe, launching his attack on the bill, suggested that the purpose of the legislation was to force sale of the Star.

Charge Strong-Arm Men Imported By Taxi Union

NEW YORK, March 31—(AP)—Importation of union strong-arm men was charged today as owners of New York City's biggest taxicab fleets declared they will run as many cabs as possible despite an impending strike.

A union linked to John L Lewis' United Mine Workers repeated its cry that "not a wheel will roll" after 4:30 a.m. EST tomorrow in the city's $100,000,000-a-year taxi industry.

Union members have been ordered to "wipe all cabs off the street."

Two thousand policemen were held ready to step in if there is violence.

Jack J. Jackman, spokesman for a large group of independent owner-drivers, charged the union had brought in men from southern mining towns.

Leon Zwicker, director of the taxi union, denied that the men brought in are "goons"—strong-arm men.

Zwicker said 100 UMW organizers "from all over" are in the city helping the taxi union. "If there are any goons," he said, "they will be the operators' goons."

Principal issue in the strike—voted Tuesday by more than 5,000 union drivers and taxi garage workers—is a demand for immediate union recognition without going through a representation election under state labor laws.

Crashes In Pond

EDGAR SPRINGS, Mo., March 31—(AP).—A United States Air Force transport plane crashed into a pond near here during a storm last night. Six persons were reported aboard the craft but highway patrolmen at the scene have found no bodies or survivors. A spokesman at Scott air base, Ill., originally said he understood secret documents were aboard the craft, but later denied the statement after talking to Patterson field authorities.

Five-Man Group To Study UE Union Policy

OTTAWA, March 31 (CP) — A five-man committee of top union men in the Canadian Congress of Labor will investigate complaints against the Affiliated United Electrical Workers, the CCL announced today.

The leftist UEW was deprived last week of representation on the Congress' National Council, its policy-making body composed of heads of major CCL unions. This action was taken on a complaint of the Ontario Federation of Labor.

Clarence Jackson, Canadian director of the UEW, had been its representative on the Council. His membership was suspended indefinitely pending investigation of the complaint.

The investigation committee will consist of Sam Baron, Montreal, Canadian director of the Textile Workers' Union of America, Fred Dowling, Toronto, Canadian director of the United Packinghouse Workers, J. E. McGuire, Ottawa, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, C. H. Millard, Toronto, Canadian director of the United Steel Workers of America, and William England, Toronto, United Rubber Workers.

All members of the committee are strong anti-Communists and down-the-line adherents of the CCL executive's policy of trampling down leftism influences in the Congress.

They will investigate an Ontario Federation of Labor complaint that the Electrical Workers Union, through its official publication, was attempting to destroy the Federation by charging its leadership with "union-splitting," "war-mongering" and "Hitler-like tactics."

Part of the UEW attack was directed against the Federation for its support of the Atlantic treaty.

The investigating committee was expected to meet in Toronto April 6 and report to the executive council at a later session, the date for which has not yet been set.

11 Boys Steal 19,000 Tubes

BRAMPTON, March 31 (CP)—Eleven boys ranging from 10 to 15 years Wednesday appeared in juvenile court here on charges of stealing 19,000 fountain pen rubber tubes from a freight car at Malton.

Three of the accused received one year's suspended sentence. The remainder were dismissed.

Railway investigator E. Thomas said the tubes were found lying along the tracks and throughout apartments in the Malton emergency housing units. The tubes were valued at $300.

Small Demonstrations Staged In Damascus

DAMASCUS, March 31—(AP) — Small demonstrations were staged in Damascus streets today in support of the army regime that deposed Syria's government in Wednesday's bloodless revolt.

Brig. Husni Zayim, army chief of staff who directed the dawn coup, continued negotiations with political figures on the formation of a new government.

(There was no indication in this dispatch as to the fate of President Al Sayed Shukri Al Kuwatly and Premier Khaled Bey Azem.)

One Survivor Climbs From Wreckage; No Warning Of Danger

LONDON Ont., March 31 (CP) —Five persons including Dr. Willard Henry Dow, 52-year-old president of the Dow Chemical Company of Midland, Mich., were killed today when a company-owned plane crashed and burned in a farmer's field four miles from London Airport as the pilot apparently sought haven from a sleet storm.

There was one survivor. Other dead: Mrs. Dow, wife of the company president; Mrs. Calvin Campbell, of Midland, whose husband escaped with minor injuries; A. J. Bowie, the pilot of Midland; co-pilot Fred Clements, mechanic of Midland.

Campbell crawled from the burning wreckage, and is in hospital here with ankle injuries.

The twin-engined Beechcraft was en route to Boston, Mass., where the Dow party was to hear Winston Churchill speak at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology tonight.

The plane left Midland about nine a.m. when it struck rain and bad icing over western Ontario. An hour and a half later, it crashed in a farmer's field.

There was no indication that the plane was in trouble until moments before the crash when the control tower at London Airport picked up unintelligible signals from the plane's radio.

Suffering from shock but able to be interviewed in hospital by Provincial Police Campbell said the crash happened so suddenly without warning of distaster.

"We knew the weather was bad," he said, "but there seemed to be no cause for alarm. My wife was sitting beside me. Suddenly the plane lurched and in a matter of seconds we struck something and bounced. In a matter of seconds we smashed into the ground.

Couldn't Save Wife

Campbell said he did not lose consciousness. He saw flames sweep around the wreck and lick into the cabin. His legs were numb but he reached over and grabbed the unconscious form of his wife.

"I tried to drag her from the plane but the flames became so hot that I lost my hold. I just managed to crawl out of the wreck before the cabin was a mass of fire."

The only eye-witness was believed to be Ernie Robinson, farmer. He related he was just entering his barn when he heard the roar of motors. He looked up in time to see the plane strike a high knoll.

"It bounced off, and flames streaked from the plane. It belly-crashed on a piece of flat ground a couple of hundred feet

Chimes To Be Rung

Plan To Amend Bill Allowing Hospital Inquiry

TORONTO, March 31 (CP). — Attorney-General Blackwell said to-day he proposed to among a Bill authorizing an investigation of charges of maladministration of the Metropolitan General Hospital at Windsor.

Mr. Blackwell told the Legislature the amendment to be introduced at the committee stage would enable the municipality or the government to take any necessary action following the investigation.

Mr. Blackwell said the hospital was neither a public nor a private hospital and did not come within the terms of either the Municipal Act of the Public Inquiries Act.

The Bill, given second reading to-day would enable the government to start an investigation at the request of Windsor Municipal Council. The investigation would make public the facts concerning the hospital administration, but made no provision for correcting any deficiencies that might appear.

G. B. Ellis (CCF-Essex North) said in view of the state of public opinion in Windsor he hoped "for the sake of the hospital," that there would be "nothing less than a full and thorough examination" of the hospital's operation.

Welfare Minister Goodfellow presented for second reading a bill which would shorten the period in which producers and distributors of milk must agree by collective bargaining on prices.

He said the bill provided quicker access to arbitration by the Milk Control Board.

J. B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog.-Toronto St. Andrew) said the bill "reflects the weakness of the government policy on milk."

The Milk Control Board consisted of representatives of producers and distributors and a county judge. There was no representative of consumers, Mr. Salsberg said.

Mr. Goodfellow said the bill provided only for collective bargaining between producers and distributors.

He had never heard of consumers being represented in collective bargaining between management and labor.

TELEPHONE THREATS

TORONTO, March 31 (CP) — Police said today they are investigating anonymous telephone threats reported by Mr. and Mrs. George Greig, winners of $100,000 in the Irish hospitals sweepstakes on the Grand National Steeplechase last week.

Army, Navy 15-Gun Salutes Boom Across Canada For New Tenth Province

Island's Commission Government Meets For Last Time Today; Opponents Will Wear Black Ties, Rumor

OTTAWA, March 31—(CP).—Army and Navy 15-gun salutes will boom out across Canada Friday marking the entry of Newfoundland into Confederation. The new province will be welcomed officially by all three services on both coasts and in most provincial capitals. The Navy announced that all ships will fly flags April 1 from 9 a.m. local time to sunset. Ships authorized to fire salutes will mark the occasion at 7 a.m. EST, while naval divisions ashore across the country will honor the event by dressing with masthead flags.

In addition to taking part in tri-service proceedings at Ottawa, the army has authorized units in all provincial capitals, and Vancouver, to fire 15-gun salutes at noon local time April 1 if local arrangements permit.

In the case of the Air Force, it will be celebrating its 25th anniversary that day and it is planned to make special mention of Newfoundland's entry into the Dominion at gatherings and dinners throughout Canada.

In Ottawa a combined RCAF-Army guard of honor will be mounted in the shadow of the Peace Tower at noon Friday when Newfoundland will be welcomed by Governor-General Alexander, Prime Minister St. Laurent, and other officials.

Telegrams Sent

Telegrams of congratulations and welcome will be sent from many Ontario points. The Board of Education at Niagara Falls has sent greetings to Newfoundland's Education Minister, and at least one London, Ont., school has telegraphed St. John's Mayor. Kitchener school children will exchange letters of welcome with Newfoundland children.

Principals in charge of individual school ceremonies have ordered flags to fly and maps to be hung in halls and in assembly rooms. Everything from New-

Britain Lending $36,000,000 To Russia In '49

LONDON March 31 (AP) — Britain disclosed today it is planning to lend Russia £9,000,000 ($36,000,000) so that Russia can buy non-military supplies from Britain in the next 12 months.

The disclosure came in budget estimates presented to the House of Commons.

The advance to Russia, the estimates said, was for "non-military supplies under wartime arrangements for which final contracts are being concluded."

A treasury spokesman said he believed the Russian advance is connected with a 1941 agreement with Russia for non-military supplies.

The Russian figure was listed in the budget estimates under the general heading of "supply, food and miscellaneous services."

The Ministry of Supply, which procures armaments and directs atomic energy development, submitted a budget of £324,679,000, compared with £317,000,000 the previous year.

The new budget shows an increase of almost £10,000,000 for research and development over the previous year.

Aircraft and aircraft supplies were slightly lower, but the budget for armament and vehicles was almost £19,000,000 higher

Steals $14,000, Gets 2 Years

TORONTO, March 31 (CP) — George W. Lowry, 20-year-old father of two children today was sentenced to two years in prison on eight charges of theft, involving $14,000, from citizens with whom he had contracted to build homes.

Police testified the "boy contractor" had obtained sums ranging from $1,500 to $3,000 for construction of homes and used the money for other purposes.

Lowry claimed he used the money for excavation work.

The charges were laid under the Mechanics Lien Act.

Judge Irritated At Way Cross-Examinations Being Dragged Out

BELLEVILLE, March 31 (CP) —Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay today bluntly told Provincial Constable J. E. Keays to speed up his cross-examination of witnesses.

Obviously irritated as hearings dragged through the 19th day, the Ontario Supreme Court Justice warned he might order night sittings of his Royal Commission.

The Commissioner told the constable his cross-examination of Staff Inspector Arthur Moss is "serving no purpose whatsoever."

Mr. Justice Mackay angrily interrupted a lengthy exchange between the constable and the inspector.

The inspector, who had investigated the constable's charge of perjury against Corporal Sam Ervine in January 1948, was being questioned about his report.

The Commissioner was all smiles moments later when he gave the constable a short lecture on the dignity of a court room.

His interruption was prompted when the constable asked the inspector if he believed alterations had been made in a document.

Up To Commissioner

"You cannot ask the witness to determine the very facts that I must determine," the Commissioner said hotly.

He asked the inspector a question about a point where the interrogation had bogged down. When Inspector Moss answered the question, Constable Keays snapped "I've been trying to get that out of the witness since Wednesday."

A few minutes later Constable Keays stalked across the courtroom and flung a document before the inspector. Commission counsel C. P. Hope leaped to his feet in protest.

"He does that in a most arrogant way," Mr. Hope said, "and I ask that it stop."

Mr. Justice MacKay turned to the constable and smiled.

"We tread softly and with dignity in court," he said, "because there is something here that is the result of 1,000 years of trial and error. . . something infinitely bigger than anything here."

The inspector was questioned about the investigation he made into the constable's charge that Cpl. Sam Ervine committed perjury.

Under a Delusion

Inspector Moss said after his investigation, in January 1948, he was satisfied Constable Keays was "laboring under a delusion."

"Those were pretty serious charges for Keays to make against a brother officer," Constable Keays said. "If he couldn't prove them, why didn't you recommend him to the Commission for dismissal."

Inspector Moss said he took what he thought was appropriate action.

Almost immediately the two men continued the verbal battle they began Wednesday when Inspector Moss went to the stand.

Apparently dissatisfied with an answer to one of his questions Constable Keays said: "Surely, Staff, after nearly 40 years' service, you know better than to ans-

Three Rebel Groups Set Up Administration

RANGOON, March 31—(AP)—Three rebel groups have combined forces to set up an administration over 300 square miles of territory in Midwestern Burma, it was authoritatively stated here today.

The groups are the "White Band" people's volunteer organization, Communists and mutineering Burma rifle units, according to government officials who fled the area.

These sources said the rebels have set up a "military administration" in the areas around Prome, 160 miles north of Rangoon, and Thayetmyo, 50 miles further north.

NO MAY DAY PARADES

LONDON, March 31 (CP) — Home Secretary J. Chuter Ede today told the Commons there will be no May Day processions in London this year. In a written reply Ede said the traditional May Day parades fall under the edict prohibiting political processions for three months in the metropolitan police district of London.

Senate Leaders Endorse Atlantic Treaty

OTTAWA, March 31 (CP) — The conduct of Russia, Parliament's handling of national finances and a western duel over Eastern Canada came up for comment in the Senate Wednesday as it considered a variety of items.

Both Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader, and Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative chief, expressed strong approval of the Atlantic Pact in discussing a resolution putting forward its principles for consideration.

Senator Robertson said the value of the treaty lay "in the moral trust we place in each of its intended signatories." It had become necessary because Russia, in the United Nations, had shown that it intended to spread Communism by using the UN as a shield.

Senator Haig warned that "there's no use denying it—Russia is getting ready for war. . . (but) they may not go to war if they know we are getting ready for them."

The handling of the nation's federal budget came up as Senator Robertson proposed that the Senate find some way, probably through committee studies, of dealing in detail with the budget and estimates.

At Same Time

He offered this as an answer to perennial charges that the appropriations are dumped in the Senate's lap at the last minute. Senator Robertson suggested that committees could consider the items at the same time as the Commons does, rules or no rules.

The clash over East-West came as the chamber approved a vote of $234,000,000 as interim supply in advance on the 1949-50 estimates. One figure covered the federal subsidy on Western feed grains for the East.

Senator Haig considered it unfair that Westerners should be taxed to give the East cheap feed and said the Eastern provincial governments should provide the bonus.

KIWANIS MUSIC FESTIVAL SCHOLARSHIP winners were presented with their awards at the closing concert in the PCVS auditorium on Wednesday night. Left to Right are Jack King, winner of the W. R. "The real issue is whether the largest and most powerful newspaper critics shall be forced out of action by legislation," he said. "This legislation has no bearing on the supervision of trusts and foundations. It is based on the treasurer's theory that a business will operate more efficiently if its sole aim is to make profits."

He suggested the bill should be renamed "An Act for the Relief of George McCullagh and his Friends."

Mr. McCullagh is publisher of the Globe and Mail, a morning paper, and the Telegram, which competes with the Star in the evening field.)

Mr. Jolliffe said the government's suggestion that, because "the profit motive" had been removed from the Star's administration the business could not be run efficiently was "naive and childish." Direction had been left to "working newspaper men" who were more capable of running a newspaper than "ex-brokers who have been lucky in the mining game."

Mr. Jolliffe said a Globe and Mail editorial of March 28 "contained downright falsehoods" and "monstrous distortion" of the true facts in attempting to show there was precedent for the retroactive feature of the bill.

Mr. Jolliffe said the bill threatened freedom of the press. In other parts of Canada, newspapers were steadily becoming fewer as they fell into the hands of persons owning two or more papers.

"In 1930 there were 116 daily newspapers and 99 owners. Now there are 85 with 55 owners. In Halifax, four daily newspapers have merged to two. Seven chains (in Canada) own 29 newspapers with more than half the daily newspaper circulation.

"We have the Southam chain, perhaps the most important. Then there is the Thompson chain, which operates eight daily newspapers.

"We now have the McCullagh chain in Toronto."

Not Democratic

"In United States cities of more than 10,000, only 37 cities have any competition in the daily field," continued Mr. Jolliffe, himself a former newspaper man.

"Mr. Hearst's (William Randolph Hearst) papers go into the homes of 45 per cent of the people in the United States and that is not a very democratic thing."

Another 11 per cent of the total circulation was accounted for by the McCormack-Patterson chain (Chicago Tribune, New York Daily News and Washington Times - Herald) and by the Scripps-Howard chain of 19 dailies.

In Canada, four papers in St. John, N.B.—The Telegram, Journal, Times and Globe—had been merged.

"That's the situation we hope to avoid in Ontario. And I may say we have no intention of permitting it to happen in Ontario."

Merger Drift

If one looked at the names of Ontario provincial papers, he could see the drift toward mergers and monopolies in Owen Sound, Kitchener, Stratford, Brantford, Peterborough and elsewhere. Papers in some of those cities did not now use the two names of original papers but represented mergers. They contained within themselves the corpses of other papers.

"In Ottawa, we have only two papers where there were three. And one of them is opposed to this bill."

"Which one is that?" asked Municipal Affairs Minister George Dunbar.

"The Journal—the one that supports you," replied Mr. Jolliffe.

Agrees to Adjourn

To a house weary after the previous night's sitting which lasted until nearly 5 a.m. Wednesday, Mr. Jolliffe read long extracts from the Atkinson will and from the will of the late John Ross Robertson, former owner of the Telegram. He read pages from a Supreme Court of Canada ruling handed down several years ago on the Manitoba Government's so-called "press gag" bill.

Mr. Jolliffe was in the midst of reading an editorial from the Ottawa Journal criticizing the bill when Mr. Frost said he would accept a motion to adjourn the debate.

"When I get to the end of a paragraph, I'll be glad to make such a motion," returned Mr. Jolliffe.

Mr. Frost told the Legislature that if legislation is not enacted "we may have by this time next year scores of foundations operating businesses and there is no doubt they will multiply as time goes along."

Huge Subsidies

At present the province was "hugely subsidizing" these trusts by way of succession duty exemptions.

"Within a short time they will create havoc in legitimate business. They will undermine confidence in our tax system and create a type of unfair competition subsidized with the people's money that can have no other result than to be completely unfair to the taxpayer who is endeavoring to make his way, earn dividends and pay taxes."

The legislation "in no way destroys charitable trusts and foundations as such but . . . greatly assists them," he said.

It was "inescapable" that charitable trusts and foundations should not operate businesses beyond a limited time. There was "no reason in the world" why investments of charitable foundations, should not be regulated as are investments in trust companies, loan companies, insurance companies and trustees in general.

No Individuals

In introducing the bill last Friday he had been "careful not to mention any individual or trust. It would be most unfair to imply that, because there are some undesirable cases . . . all the great trusts and foundations we have in Ontario are subject to the same criticism. Such is not the case."

"I have a feeling of very great reluctance to discuss the business of any individual on the floor of this House. I am compelled, however, in view of the reference made to this bill in the Toronto Daily Star and the comments which they have made in relation to the good faith of my colleagues and myself to make some reference to them.

"I may say that if it had not been for the violent criticism which have been indulged in by this paper I should unden no circumstances have mentioned, directly or indirectly, the Atkinson foundation."

If Mr. Atkinson wanted to perpetuate his newspapers and business "then he should pay his taxes like anyone else." If this object was charitable, "then this bill assists the charities" by providing that the papers may be sold and the proceeds invested as authorized by law.

Stands By Bill

Mr. Jolliffe said Mr. Frost had made "a forthright declaration of its intention to stand by this bill notwithstanding the misgivings which he knows full well have arisen in the minds of his supporters throughout the province," and despite criticism of the bill levelled by newspapers "usually friendly to the administration."

It had not taken long for it to become apparent, Mr. Jolliffe said, that this bill "has nothing whatever to do with succession duties or the supervision of charities" and was "aimed at the only foundation the treasurer is able to name as being affected and to force sale of the newspaper it controls."

The bill named "an act respecting monopoly or near-monopoly of the press of this province to the advantage of the government of the day," Mr. Jolliffe said.

The bill named "an act resecting certain charitable and other gifts," should be renamed "an act for the relief of George McCullagh and his friends."

Waited Too Long

Mr. Jolliffe said the Telegram before its sale last fall was operated as a charitable foundation with profits—after payment of certain annuities to heirs—going to the Toronto Sick Children's Hospital.

During that period Mr. Frost was in office five years and "had never raised his voice to complain how unfair it was for this newspaper to be in competition with privately-operated newspapers."

wer a question in the witness box like that."

"When you're dealing with poison, you must use the proper antidote," Inspector Moss said.

The constable said if the inspector had made an adequate investigation "we wouldn't have this scandal now."

"No matter what he had done, it wouldn't have made any difference to you," Inspector Moss replied.

Mr. Justice MacKay told the constable his cross-examination was "serving no purpose whatsoever, as far as I'm concerned."

Inspector Moss produced a letter from Inspector Chris F. Airey, in charge of the Niagara Falls police dsitrict, to Commissioner W. H. Stringer. Constable Keays was in that district for three months in 1948.

The letter said the constable was distressed, in "pitiful" condition and cried frequently. The inspector said he thought "the man would go crazy" if he were separated any longer from his family in Belleville.

The letter said he believed Constable Keays was either suffering from an "obsession" bordering on mental illness or else "downright wicked."

Inspector Airey wrote the letter after Constable Keays submitted his resignation from the force last October, making the allegations that led to the commission's appointment."

Inspector Moss produced a letter Inspector Airey wrote while Constable Keays was stationed at Niagara Falls, recommending that the constable be sent back to Belleville.

Offered $500

Sgt. E. F. Hartleib was the next witness called.

Sgt. Hartleib said he was offered $500 to arrange a transfer to Belleville for Sgt. J. A. Stringer of Ottawa, one of the men Constable Keays had accused of perjury. Sgt. Stringer then was stationed in Kitchener.

Sgt. Hartleib said the morale was good at the Belleville detachment when Cons. Keays was first posted there. He said the constable introduced a new filing system which improved efficiency.

Blames Jealousy

He said the morale of the detachment deteriorated because of "jealousy" among several officers.

Constable Keays asked if Dorothy Dowdell, provincial police stenographer, had issued instructions to officers and was the "subject of ridicule" in Hush, a Toronto gossip weekly.

Grinning broadly, Mr. Justice MacKay said: "Simply because anything is mentioned in Hush, doesn't mean there is any foundation in fact. I've had that distinction so often myself I wouldn't take it too seriously."

Sgt. Hartleib agreed with the constable's suggestion that "it was common knowledge that provincial police cars at Belleville were used for everything but police work."

He said police cars were at the disposal of the wife and daughters of Inspector W. A. Page, senior officer in the Belleville district.

foundland dogs to economic advantages of Confederation will be discussed in the various school grades.

While most Ontario cities will not hold municipal ceremonies, owners of public buildings have been asked to hoist flags and exhibit maps of Canada and the Tenth Province.

Toronto's Welcome

Toronto's Mayor Hiram McCallum will read a two-page message of welcome on the City Hall steps Friday noon. The Newfoundland Ode will be played, followed by "God Save the King." A flag ceremony also will be held.

Another Friday ceremony will be held in Kingston at a cairn which stands at the entrance to Fort Henry. The cairn commemorates activities of the regiments in the 1812 War who were joined by the Royal Newfoundland Regiment in military operations against the United States. School children will be let out early to attend the ceremony.

Apart from official celebration ceremonies Friday, there is no comment or speculation on how the event will be marked here. There are far-fetched rumors, however, of wholesale wearing of black ties, mournful songs in drinking places and even a mock burial of an effigy representing Newfoundland's independence.

Economics, politics and religion always have held a sinister and deadly meaning for the people of this island.

When the House of Assembly was opened in May 1861, it marked the beginning of a bloody riot on the streets of St. John's in which three men were shot to death and several others—including a Catholic priest—woundsd. This resulted after an election-count disagreement.

Riots In Depression

There were the unemployment riots of 1933-34, described by many conservative Newfoundlanders as a time when there was "murder in our hearts." These ended with appointment of a commission government after the investigations of a Royal Commission.

Commission government will meet for the last time today—merely to approve the minutes of previous meetings—to end its 15-year service. Governor Sir Gordon MacDonald returned to England some weeks ago and was replaced by Sir Edward Emerson.

Sir Albert J. Walsh has accepted the post of lieutenant-governor on a temporary basis. He will be sworn in at a brief ceremony Friday at 1:15 p.m. Newfoundland time.

Hon. Colin Gibson, secretary of state for Canada, will present a Canadian certificate of citizenship to Sir Albert who will receive it on behalf of people of Newfoundland. This will be the only official ceremony in connection with confederation here.

Better Treatment Asked For Pigs Going To Market

TORONTO, March 31.—The Ontario Hog Producers' Association Wednesday decided that pigs on the way to packinghouses were deserving of kinder treatment but the association's views were prompted by mercenary rather than humanitarian reasons.

The organization also voted in favor of restoration of the provincial hog bonus for Grade A, asked for increased levies to support their organization and sought establishment of a pork products marketing board, which would be the exporting agency for Canadian pork products.

But it was on the matter of gentle treatment of slaughter-bound swine that they concentrated much of their attention. One motion which became before the organization late in the afternoon noted that producers encountered "tremendous" losses because of bruising. Something, they felt, should be done about it.

In the course of this discussion it was noted that repeated urgings and campaigns had had little effect. What was needed was provincial legislation making it an offense and providing penalties "for any person who, in the handling of livestock to market willfully or carelessly causes injury and bruises." Members also decided in favor of inspectors on hand to see that such legislation had teeth.

When they finished with the motion they had decided, in effect, that when this or that little piggy goes to market, he's going to get there in good shape—or else.

Another resolution to which the swine men gave plenty of attention dealt with shipment of porkers during the winter months. Frequently, they said, pigs moved in rail cars arrive at their destination frost-bitten. This has a bad effect on the cut-up value of the carcass, to say nothing of discomfort to the pigs themselves.

Want Cars Lined

In order to get around this little difficulty it was decided to urge all shippers using rail transportation to "line the cars with building paper tacked on with lath, or take such other suitable means as will reduce this loss as much as possible."

President Charles McGinnis suggested that perhaps the Humane Society kept a watchful eye on such negligence, and inspectors would not be needed to prevent bruising. After all, he said, the society was on the watch for cruelty to animals and bruises usually resulted from some form of cruelty.

But perhaps, he added, the membership felt that the Humane Society wasn't completely able to cope with the situation, and the inspectors would be a good idea. The membership felt that way, and it was decided to ask for inspectors to check on unnecessary methods of persuasion which resulted in bruises when porkers were headed for market.

The Association also decided it needed additional funds to support various activities, and voted to ask the minister of agriculture of Ontario for permission to increase the levy on hogs from two cents per animal to five cents. Members felt that, since it was their own money, the minister should not object to the boost.

One of the main resolutions of Wednesday's meeting dealt a proposal to form a Pork Producers Marketing Board to replace the Dominion Meat Board, expected to go out of existence when contracts are no longer made. This organization would explore markets, make sales in any country and be the exporting agency for pork. Processors and producers would have representation on the board.

Another resolution asked that the wages of county co-operators, caring for hogs being raised for record purposes in connection with the new provincial cost branch, be raised from 50 cents to $1 per hour. The association asked for an investigation of reports that packing houses paid bonuses to truckers to head stock to their plants, and for more research work on swine disease at the Ontario Agricultural and Veterinary Colleges.

A neighboring farmer, William Carpenter, was sitting in his kitchen when he said he heard "the roar of an airplane flying very low. Sudenly the motors stopped and there was a dull roar, when I reached the scene there was no chance of saving anyone from the wreck."

Early this afternoon, the debris was still smouldering and too hot to attempt to remove the bodies.

First reports were that an RCAF plane from nearby Centralia station had crashed. The air force Beechcraft was due at the airport at about the same time the Dow plane was in the vicinity but the pilot turned back to Centralia on account of icing conditions.

Greater Social Security Planned Gardiner Says

SPENCERVILLE, Ont., March 31—(CP).—Even greater social security measures than now exist are being planned by the Federal Government, Agriculture Minister Gardiner disclosed Wednesday night. He spoke before a Grenville-Dundas nomination convention which saw J. Frank Casselman selected as the Liberal standard-bearer for the riding in the next Federal election. The riding is now represented by Clair Casselman, Progressive-Conservative Whip in the Commons. The two Casselmans are not related.

Mr. Gardiner did not disclose what these measures would be but there has been some speculation that they may mean amplification of the Old Age Pensions Act, which included reducing the age at which pensions may be granted from 70 to 65.

Mr. Gardiner pointed out that last year the government had paid out $271,000,000 in family allowances and a total of $650,000,000 for all social services and said planning of further social legislation was one reason why the government "purposely kept up" taxation at the end of the Second World War.

Looking Ahead

At the end of the recent war, many people claimed that the government should reduce all taxes, but they were purposely kept up to assure that the social services planned by the then King administration (former Prime Minister Mackenzie King) would be brought into effect.

2 Warsaw Men Held For Theft

Two Warsaw men, Sydney Henry and Clifford Henry, were placed under arrest at noon today by the Provincial Police on a charge of stealing a quantity of spruce and balsam logs, property of Allan Payne, also of Warsaw.

The arrests were made by Provincial Constables Feeley and Henderson, and the men were being held at police headquarters in Peterborough at press time awaiting arraignment before a magistrate. The alleged thefts are believed to have occurred early his week.

Small Gains Turn Up In Number Of Stocks

TORONTO, March 31 (CP). — Prices backed down from Wednesday's gains on the Toronto Stock Exchange as small gains turned up over a wide list of issues. Industrials showed mild losses in dull action and base metals and Western oils sagged. Golds were quiet in early dealings with a few issues attracting attention in mid-session.

Volume for the first three hours was 438,000 shares, about 57,000 shares less than yesterday's similar period.

Losses ranged from fractions to about a point in a wide list of industrials. Utilities weakened and papers and steels were slightly lower.

Base metals reacted mildly on small declines.

Some of yesterday's strong gains in Western oils were cut into as losses ranging up to five cents appeared.

Deny Food Shortage On Canadian Ship

OTTAWA, March 31 —(CP)— Naval headquarters said Wednesday the allegation that there was a shortage of food aboard the destroy Crescent was "so ridiculous" that it did not require comment.

Headquarters made the statement following publication in the Vancouver Sun of extracts from a letter which it said it had received from a member of the Crescent's crew, claiming that food shortages were responsible for a recent incident aboard ship.

The naval statement said:

"This allegation is so ridiculous as to require no comment. Supplies are perfectly adequate on all Canadian naval ships."

Present Brief UE Ignored

TORONTO, March 31.—Tension between the Ontario Federation of Labor (CIO-CCL) and its left-wing affiliate, the United Electrical Workers, was heightened Wednesday when the federation ignored the UE in the annual presentation of a labor brief to the cabinet.

UE representatives were conspicuously absent among the 100 labor men who attended the presentation of the brief.

C. S. Jackson, Canadian director of the UE, said his union had not been informed of the presentation, nor given an opportunity of discussing the brief.

"It is obvious we were boycotted," he said. "We are an affiliate of the Canadian Congress of Labor and of the Ontario Federation of Labor," he added.

The UE and Jackson were suspended from the executive council of the Canadian Congress of Labor last week for attacking the leadership of the federation.

UE leaders, who espouse Communist policies, and the federation have been at odds for months.

St. Peter's Boy Orates At Washington

Bill Duignan, president of St. Peter's High School Key Club represented Canadian Key clubs in the International Key Club Oratory Contest in Washington, D.C., Saturday. Duignan, winner of the Ontario, Quebec and Maritime Orotory Contest last year, again defeated representatives of other clubs to earn the privilege of representing Canada.

Speaking to an audience of 3,000 Mr. Duignan told the Key Clubers and others at the Key Club convention, sponsored by Kiwanis, of the beauty, the promise and the freedom of Canada. He ended his speech by saying:

"It is a comfortable feeling to know that we have a friendly and sympathetic neighbor across an unfortified border, 3,000 miles in exchange of friendship and goodlength. There has been a mutual will between two great countries. We have learned to work together, trade with each other and develop our joint resources. Together we will utilize the great inland waterway that penetrates to the heart of our great continent. We will harness its power, deepen its channel. Together we will defend our common northern frontier. Together we will make the Atlantic safe for ourselves and oppressed nations; together we will face the future whether it be bright or dark. We who are of many races and creeds will stand together; yet each will keep his own individuality, his own culture and his own national aspirations."

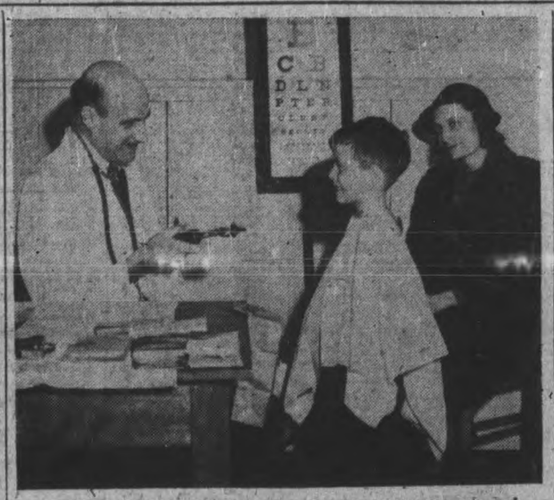
20 Canadian Representatives

The topic of Duignan's speech with which he surpassed Canadian contestants and placed well in a field of 13 in the International Oratory Contest was "Fun to Live in Canada".

The 20 representatives of Canadian Key Clubs met in the Annapolis Hotel Friday night to decide a Canadian winner. Saturday Bill Duignan with 12 Key Clubers from the States spoke. The international winner was a boy from the South.

Duignan, back home again with his laurels, explained that the American contestants each represented four states. Key Clubs in each state had contests which the winner spoke in competition with representatives from three other states, the winner representing the four states at the convention. The oratorical contest was held in the Departmental Auditorium.

In the one large conference, the Sixth International Convention, there were conferences for each officer of the Key Club. Bill Duignan said resolutions were made regarding United States politics such as the Hoover Plan of Readministration and the Taft-Hartley Act. He added that the Canadians contested some parts of the debates hotly. But usually the Canadian representatives limited themselves.



Discuss U.N. Veto

On a discussion of the veto in the United Nations the boys at the convention decided it should be done away with. They were afraid the powers of the U.S. would get out of hand.

For entertainment the boys were taken on a tour of Washington to see the F.B.I., the International Art Gallery and memorials. At the President's Dinner, Frank McCabe, president of the Kiwanis International, addressed the boys. "Operation Happiness" an Air Corps Show was shown to the Key Clubers. Rain prevented a show of the U.S. P-80's, the fastest plane in the world.

Mr. Duignan left Peterborough Wednesday and was in Washington Thursday noon. He met there the rest of the Canadian delegates. He was in Washington until Sunday.

Twenty-five hundred Key Club representatives attended from various States.

Dr. Fred Robertson Nominated Northumberland Liberal Candidate

CAMPBELLFORD, March 31 (ENS)—Dr. Fred Robertson of Cobourg, was chosen federal candidate of the Liberal party for Northumberland county at an enthusiastic nomination convention in the town hall, Warkworth, on Wednesday night. The hall was filled and an overflow of nearly 150 was accommodated in the council chambers.

Other nominees were W. A. Hogle, Campbellford; John D. Burnet, Cobourg; and Eric Dawson, Haldimand township, but they declined to allow their names to stand. The nomination of Dr. Robertson was made unanimous in a motion by Eric Dawson.

Acceptance Speech

In his acceptance speech, the candidate said that his one desire was to serve the citizens of Northumberland county. "I believe," he stated, "in a united Canada, in democratic principles, and in free enterprise. We must foster better relationships between Canada's two great races and learn to co-operate with those who differ from us."

He declared that socialism was ready to magnify the weaknesses of free enterprise but in countries under socialism production and prosperity had suffered. There should be social security for all, he remarked, and labor should have freedom in forming unions and in its relations with employers. Agricultural, industrial, and white collar workers and the small business men should be recognized as having an important place in our economy.

Candidate A Local Man

Dr. Robertson was born in Colborne and educated in the local schools. His father, William Robertson, was a dentist and represented East Northumberland in the Provincial Legislature for a number of years. He graduated in medicine from Toronto University and until two years ago practiced his profession in Cobourg. At the present time he is engaged in the canning business. He has always taken an active part in politics, having served as president of the County Liberal Association.

The Hon. Stuart Garson, Minister of Justice, speaking before the convention, said that the roots of our democracy were not found in parliament but in the convention halls. Political freedom was not a condition enjoyed by all because only a small fraction of mankind were aware of its benefits.

"Our freedom today," he declared, "is in great danger and in order to preserve it we must have a government of strong, intelligent men. You have such a government at Ottawa. Its record over the years is equal to or perhaps surpasses that of any preceding legislative assembly."

Garson Praises Government

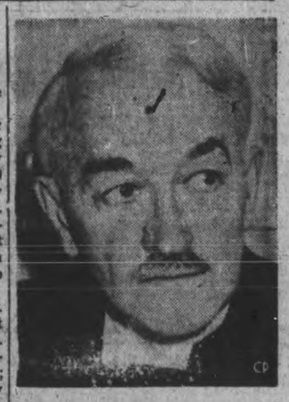
The Liberal government, he said, accomplished three major achievements. Under Prime Minister King it led Canada out of the depression of the thirties by making trade agreements with the United States and twenty other countries. It brought Canada through the greatest war in history without undermining or destroying the economy of our country. It has made Canada according to population the greatest trading country in the world.

Public Debt Reduced a Billion

"We are criticized," he remarked, "by the Tories and Socialists for having a surplus. They contend we should lower the taxes and forget about an excess in the public treasury. Through our system of taxation we have reduced the public debt by over one billion dollars. This year's budget places exemptions at the prewar level and by reducing interest charges on our public debt we can gradually ease the burden of taxation."

Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe was the second senior Cabinet Minister to speak. "When we took office," said the Minister of Trade and Commerce, "production and trade had almost ceased. Unemployment swept the country from one end to the other. Through wise administration and careful spending we gradually improved our situation against adverse world conditions. Then the war came and out of it we have built a better Canada."

Howe Cites Trade Expansion



The value of Canada's total production in 1939 had risen from five billion dollars to 15 billion dollars in 1948, he stated. During the same period exports had been stepped up from one billion dollars to three billion dollars. In 1939 the Canadian people had an investment in their country of one billion dollars and by 1948 this figure had exceeded three billion dollars.

"It has been said," remarked Mr. Howe, "that our economy has collapsed regarding foreign markets. Our world trade is so good that, with very few exceptions, we have nothing more to sell. Practically everything we produce in Canada finds a ready market in some part of the world."

He said that the Liberal party had had only two leaders during a period of 57 years and only three leaders over a span of 60 years. During that time the party had won 10 general elections. "Our present leader is a gentleman, a statesman, a man of great talent and ability and one in whom the people need not fear to put their trust."

On the platform were the Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe and Hon. Stuart Garson, Dr. Fred Robertson, Mrs. Robertson and daughter of Cobourg; Lorne McDonel, Kingston; Wm. Fraser, Trenton; Harry Fisher, Cobourg; W. A. Hogle, Campbellford; Eric Dawson, Haldimand township; Mrs. Upper, Colborne; John Burnet, Cobourg; and Ted Woodyard, Durham county.

An orchestra from Cobourg provided the music. Wm. Fraser introduced the speakers; J. C. M. German, Cobourg, acted as secretary, and Leonard Gordon of Colborne presided.

The Charitable Gifts Act

The Charitable Gifts Act, which is now before the Legislature of Ontario, is a most interesting and potentially valuable piece of legislation. We have examined the statement regarding it which has been circulated by the Hon. Leslie Frost, the provincial treasurer, and there are many aspects of the Act which appear to us to be wholly admirable. Briefly, the Act provides that no charitable trust or foundation shall hold more than ten per cent. of the capital stock of any company; the aim of the bill is to prevent any undesirable concentration of business control in the hands of a charitable trust, and the evil consequences which might spring from such an arrangement. The purpose of the bill is to make sure that assets which are exempted from succession duties because they are ostensibly to be devoted to charitable causes shall in actual fact be devoted to those causes, and that charity shall not be used as a cloak for escaping succession duties. We do not think that any reasonable person will find fault with the Act on these grounds.

* * *

In this Act, as it now stands, however, there is a provision to which we object strongly. All existing charitable trusts and foundation are given until April 1, 1952, to comply with this law. The Bill is, in effect, retroactive in that it affects trusts and foundations which have already been set up, in good faith. We do not approve of retroactive legislation on moral grounds, for we think that a will which has been made under one condition of the law should not be set at naught by a new law.

* * *

In this particular instance we think that the retroactive aspect of the bill is extremely dangerous, for it brings into question the honour of the Provincial Legislature. Obviously one of the chief foundations affected by this bill, as it stands, will be that which was set up under the will of the late Joseph Atkinson of the Toronto Star. Mr. Atkinson was a Liberal, and he ran the Star as a Liberal newspaper, and he was often violently at odds with the Conservative government at Queen's Park. If this bill is made law as it stands, the Legislature will never be able to escape the charge that it used its great power to pursue political animosity beyond the grave, in order to wreak a posthumous revenge upon Mr. Atkinson. We do not say that this is the Government's intention; we do say, however, that such a suspicion will always exist, and that the Legislature should avoid anything which suggests that it is being used as an instrument of vengeance. The bad blood between the Star and ex-Premier Drew of Ontario is still too freshly spilled for the Legislature to escape this serious imputation.

* * *

We strongly approve the Government's intention to block any holes which may exist in the present system of succession duties, but we cannot approve the aspect of this bill which savours so much of vindictiveness. A Government must be above suspicion, and the Charitable Gifts Act, as it stands, looks shockingly like Vengeance posturing in the robes of Justice.

The Community Concert Association

Yesterday we commented on the success of the Kiwanis Music Festival in fostering a love of music in this district. We should be neglectful if we did not make some reference also to the Community Concert Association which, year after year, brings a series of excellent concerts to as many Peterborough people as can be accommodated in the P.C.V.S. auditorium. The Association is having its annual drive for members this week and, as always, every available seat will be taken, and there will be a waiting list. Because it is so successful the Peterborough public sometimes forgets the service which this organization performs, and becomes critical of its work.

The work of the Association is limited by its budget, and its budget is limited by the number of seats in the largest public hall in the city. For this reason it is probable that, in each season, there will be a concert or two which some people do not like. We suggest that it is not fair to judge the work of the Association on the program of a single season; to form a valid opinion of its worth, at least three seasons should be considered as a group. Looking back over the last twelve concerts, we cannot think that anyone would find fault with the standard which the Association has maintained.

Looking back even farther, we draw attention to a few of the artists of the very first rank who have been brought to Peterborough by the Association: Malcuszynski, the Trapp family, Bartlett and Robinson, Piatagorsky, William Primrose, Susan Reed, Rose Bampton, Menahem Pressler—these names spring to the mind as highlights, and there were others who were very nearly as good. The visits of artists of this quality raise the level of musical understanding and appreciation in Peterborough incalculably. The Concert Association performs a service of the very first rank for this city.

Let us, therefore, give the Concert Association the praise which is its due. It keeps Peterborough in touch with the great international world of music.

Vale Atque Ave, Newfoundland!

At midnight of this last day of March, 452 years after John Cabot discovered it and laid claim to the new-found land in the name of Henry VII of England, Newfoundland ceases to exist as colony and nation. In the next breath of time, Newfoundland becomes the Canadian Province of Newfoundland.

The island nation and people bring to the Dominion a long, honourable heritage of stalwart achievement and brave hearts. In saying Hail! to the new Province we think back on its history and give also the tribute of Farewell! The Newfoundland Daily News said editorially on New Year's Eve last in a vein of nostalgia:

> We have heard people lament that this old year, now in its dying hours, is the last year of a free Newfoundland. Realists will mock at this since the union to come about at the end of next March is characterized by as much political liberty as we have ever enjoyed. It is not of that, however, that the sentimentalists are thinking. Newfoundland has stood so long alone—her culture, her traditions, her strengths and her weaknesses all her own; her freedom to adjust her policies to her own needs and even idiosyncrasies unchallenged—that it will seem like the loss of cherished liberties to have to take on new loyalties and to share old loyalties with others. There are, of course, those who have told us that in the greater glories of the future we shall find no occasion for regrets. We can only hope these prophets of the new era are right but they will at least allow those less certain of the future to shed a tear for the passing of the old era.

Hail and farewell, farewell and hail! Our farewell is not so much a good-bye to the island colony and nation as, in the literal sense of the word, a wish that it and all Canada with it will truly fare well through the future centuries of our united story.

The Vanished Button Hook

A contemporary remarks that few people in their 'twenties have seen a button hook. Perhaps so. What would they want with a button hook? On women's clothes buttons, except for ornament, have been supplanted by zippers, and women were the great users of button hooks. They used them to button their high boots—strange affairs which reached halfway up the calf and were considered the only proper wear for walking. Standing with one foot on a chair, a woman deftly slipped the button hook through the button hole, hooked the button around its shank, and pulled it through, with a quick twist which (when the boots were new) caused a slight but audible pop.

Men used button hooks, too, for men's boots used to button. And not only did they button up the front; patent leather shoes with light cloth tops buttoned up the side. And when men wore spats with buttons, instead of dome fasteners, they sometimes used button hooks to do them up.

There were button hooks of all sorts. Common ones, with advertising matter stamped into their steel handles, were given away in shoe shops. For men of fashion, button hooks with leather handles were sold; and sometimes also these handles were of staghorn. No lady's toilet set was complete without a button hook with an ivory handle. As well as hooking buttons, these instruments were used for picking locks, recovering lost dentures from drains, and children used them when playing dentist.

The button hook lies derelict beside the path of human progress, along with the skirt hook, the carpet stretcher and those prettily painted containers into which women used to stuff their "combings", in anticipation of the day when enough dead hair would be accumulated to make a "rat".

From The Critic's Notebook

THE HEAT OF THE DAY, by Elizabeth Bowen (McClelland and Stewart). This admirable, subtle book is the work of one of the ablest novelists living today. It may be that for readers who demand sensation it is a little too subtle; connoisseurs of feeling and human relationships will find it greatly to their taste. I cannot escape a feeling, however, that the book fails at its most important point. Its theme is treason, and the treason of the chief male character is never quite satisfactorily explained.

The scene of the book is London in 1942 and the curious psychological climate of that time is splendidly conveyed to the reader. In such a climate people long for certainties, and Stella Rodney, a widow of forty who is engaged in some secret service work for the British government, thinks that she has found certainty in her love for a younger man, Robert Kelway. She gives herself completely to this emotion. Miss Bowen sums up her attitude in a sentence: "To have turned away from everything to one face is to find oneself face to face with everything". She turns from her own family and friends to Robert's family and friends and then she learns that her lover is selling secrets to the enemy. It would not be fair to tell more of her story.

Miss Bowen creates atmosphere with wonderful sureness of touch. Her descriptions of Robert's family, their invincible middle-classness and underlying foolishness, are brilliant, for she never yields to the temptation merely to guy them. Her evocation, too, of the relationship between Stella and her grown-up son is finely done. It is one of her best strokes of imagination, also, that the man who shatter's Stella's dream, a man called Harrison, is always rather vague—the sort of man whose name nobody ever quite remembers, one of those tiresome nonentities who are, nevertheless, real people capable of doing much damage. But for me the reasons for Robert's treachery were never quite compelling enough. Treason is a most difficult theme, and perhaps I err in expecting it to be dealt with on a somewhat larger scale than this.

This is a novel which you should not miss if you attempt in any way to acquaint yourself with what is being done in the world of fiction. It has rare qualities of imagination and insight, and it is beautifully written.

DOUBLE MUSCADINE by Frances Gaither (Macmillan). "Double Muscadine" is an arsenic and old quilt-pattern affair, with its setting in the state of Mississippi before the Civil War. The writer has based her novel upon the records of the murder trial of a quadroon slave girl. A sound historical knowledge of the people and the country about which she writes has produced a convincing background of plantation life with its intricate relationships between blacks, whites and quadroons, but this is not enough to sustain our interest in a plot that lags.

It is fair enough to confuse the issues, but in a courtroom story surely our sympathies should be enlisted definitely on one side or the other? In "Double Muscadine" they are not. Perhaps this is because the trouble-making quadroon girl, Lethe, is not a fully developed character, and not sufficiently different in any essential from Aimee, her enemy. Thus, the outcome is not of sufficient importance to keep the reader interested.

Muscadine is a flowering plant, native to Mississippi, on which is based the pattern for a woven coverlet. The yellow dye necessary to complete the pattern is a poisonous substance which figures in the murder. So, the weaving of the coverlet is made the symbol of the story. A good symbol too, because weaving is a slow process.

Because it is a murder trial story, the reader may want to know who was proved guilty. The shuttling style may help him to get to sleep, many a night before he finds out. This might be described as a leisurely whodunit.

THE GOD-SEEKER, by Sinclair Lewis (Random House). Several critics, I observe, have damned this book because it is not up to Mr. Lewis' best level. Admitting that it is not in his best vein (indeed, it seems at times to slip back to his apprentice days, when he wrote "Our Mr. Wrenn") I must record a personal opinion that Sinclair Lewis in his off moments has still much to recommend him to many readers. He has never had a graceful style, his wit if often like the scratch of a rusty nail, and he is too fond of the cruder sorts of irony; nevertheless, he has vigour and a largeness which excuse many faults, and as a caricaturist he is the master of any American writer of our time. It is an old complaint that his caricatures are overdrawn; but the same thing was said of Dickens. Many people who complain that Lewis grossly overdoes his caricatures are incapable of seeing what is right under their noses; Lewis's worst grotesques have counterparts in daily life for those who have eyes to see.

In this novel a young carpenter named Aaron Gadd is converted at a camp meeting, and goes west from New England to serve as a missionary on the Minnesota frontier. All this takes place a century ago, when the U.S.A. was in the throes of a rather second-rate religious revival. Aaron endures the missionary life as long as he can, then marries a half-breed girl and grows rich.

Lewis pokes fun at the missionaries and their preoccupation with sectarian differences, and gives full value to their very real devotion and sense of vocation. His hero is never more than half-alive, for Aaron is rather a touchstone to bring out the special qualities of several other characters than a character himself. But with all its faults there is much to praise in this book, and it would be wrong to pass it by merely because it is not fit to rank with "Babbitt" or "Elmer Gantry".

THE MACKENZIE, by Leslie Roberts (Clarke, Irwin). This is one of a series "The Rivers of America". It is written by a Canadian who has flown over the river and territory of which he writes three times. It is illustrated by another Canadian, Thoreau MacDonald. The print and paper of the book are a disappointment and do not flatter the illustrations. The writing is colloquial, but its story-telling style may appeal to popular taste. Several chapters are given over to the known history of this great river of the north, and the second half of the book brings us up-to-date.

The rivers of Canada are vital, usually romantic, parts of Canada's past and present. Compared with the rivers of Britain and Europe a dozen of ours are vastly greater and potentially more important. They are not yet as storied as the Rhine, the Rhone, the Danube and the Thames, but their story grows as they flow and as engineers, historical scholars, novelists and the people on their banks use them. The chief value of this book is that it gives one of them—the great Mackenzie of the Northwest Territories—a place in print. The Romance of Canada flows with her rivers.

The King's Throne

(WATERTOWN TIMES)

THRONES must sometimes be built to suit those who sit upon them. And that is true in the case of King George VI. Recovering as he is from a circulatory affliction, it will not do to have him stand for two hours while knighting the fifty persons on his New Year's honour list. Consequently, the workmen have been constructing a lower chair in which he may sit while giving the accolade to the men and women selected. The invalid chair will be upholstered in crimson velvet. It will bear the royal coat of arms. It will be mounted on a dais in the cream and gold ball room of the Buckingham Palace.

In appearance the throne on which His Majesty is seated for this ceremony will be far more impressive than the chair in which sovereigns are anointed at their coronation. Four British lions crouch at the feet of the Coronation Chair, but the ancient piece of furniture in Westminster Abbey's Chapel of Edward the Confessor, is in reality a very shabby affair. Its stiff wooden back and arms bear the marks of irreverent penknives, and many a visitor has marveled that so plain an article could be treasured. Yet few pieces of furniture in all the world are more famous. Here Edward I sat for his crowning. Beneath it is the Stone of Scone brought from Scotland in 1297. It was probably under the chair when Edward II, Edward III and Richard II were crowned. Henry IV used it, and so on down to the present. Twenty-six inches long, 16 inches wide and eleven thick the stone is attached to the chair by iron clamps.

Although apparently but a block of Scotch sandstone tradition holds that this was the stone upon which Jacob rested his head while at Bethel. The kings of Scotland were crowned upon it for many centuries, and British monarchs follow the same custom. It has thus become a symbol of personal sovereignty representing 640 years.

At Kingston-on-Thames another such stone, on which seven Saxon kings were crowned, can be seen in the street, while Kingston in Ontario also derives its name from the King's Stone.

The Vanishing Church Supper

(ST. MARYS JOURNAL-ARGUS)

ONE worthy church enterprise which almost succumbed during the war years was the church supper. No doubt almost all of our readers will recall with pleasure the church suppers of old, or at least of the twenties and thirties. Due to wartime ration requirements these suppers became almost extinct, and who is there to say that they have really revived as yet.

Sitting in on a recent, and all too rare, church supper we were led to recall once more that such affairs seem to be vanishing from the face of church life. And if this is true, it is indeed a pity. For the church supper was one occasion which seemed to add so much to the church life, to the feeling that the church was after all the social centre of the community, and if the members of the congregations and other interested people of the town did not all meet together on very many occasions they did find the church supper a common meeting ground and a splendid community-wide social gathering.

And why is the church supper vanishing? Perhaps the main reason is that the ladies' organizations have found them to be too much work. As in all free enterprise the main purpose behind a supper is to raise money for the church, and if the money can be raised more readily in some other way the sponsorship of suppers tends to diminish.

Let's hope, however, that the ladies do not continue to look at things this way altogether in the future. There's still a large slice of our local population who will travel far and pay fairly for a good church supper. Catering to their desires should always prove satisfying to the soul and lucrative to the treasury.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And as David returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner took him, and brought him before Saul with the head of the Philistine in his hand. And Saul said to him, Whose son art thou, thou young man? And David answered, I am the son of thy servant Jesse the Beth-lehemite. (I Sam. 17: 57, 58.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking unto Saul, that the soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul.... And David went out whithersoever Saul sent him, and behaved himself wisely: and Saul set him over the men of war, and he was accepted in the sight of all the people, and also in the sight of Saul's servants.

And it came to pass as they came, when David was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, that the women came out of all the cities of Israel singing and dancing, to meet King Saul, with tabrets, with joy, and with instruments of musick. And the women answered one another as they played and said, Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands.

And Saul was very wroth, and the saying displeased him: and he said, They have ascribed unto David thousands: and what can he have more but the kingdom? And Saul eyed David from that day and forward. (I Sam. 18: 1, 6-9.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And Saul spake to Jonathan his son, and to all his servants, that they should kill David. But Jonathan Saul's son delighted much in David: and Jonathan told David, saying, Saul my father seeketh to kill thee: now therefore, I pray thee, take heed to thyself until the morning, and abide in a secret place and hide thyself....

So David fled, and escaped, and came to Samuel to Ramah, and told him all that Saul had done to him. And he and Samuel went and dwelt in Naioth. (I Sam 19: 1, 2, 18.)

If ye have bitter envying and strife in your hearts, glory not, and lie not against the truth ....For where envying and strife is, there is confusion and every evil work. (James 3: 14, 16.)

The Essential News

A skilful reporter learns by experience both the factors that tend to influence him and the forces that seek to limit the news. He is an invaluable servant of modern civilization.

One could make a simple test of the reliability of the perception of the average person by asking each member of a group, a family, for example, what impressed him about a church service they had attended. One might notice the way the preacher spoke. Another might notice the quality of the choir's singing. Another might notice the quality of a neighbour's Sunday suit. Another might notice all these things and many more. Another might have been wholly engrossed in the spiritual significance of the service.

What then was the essential "news" of this event? The "reporters" all differ. But an experienced reporter is able to get closer to the truth than an untrained observer. The heartening thing is that truth has a way of spreading, however much men fail to grasp it, or how inadequately they report it.

Cobourg Judge Says Police Chief Within Right To Make Arrest

COBOURG, March 31.—(ENS).—Chief William J. Carey had reasonable grounds for the arrest of Mrs. Edith Waite of Cobourg on a charge laid under the Mental Hospitals Act, ruled Mr. Justice Urquhart Wednesday in dismissing the $8,000 damage action brought by Mrs. Edith Waite against him, alleging false arrest.

His lordship, however, was critical of the fact that Mrs. Waite was ultimately sent to Whitby for mental examination on a vagrancy charge instead of the crown proceeding on the original charge.

Dr. George Keils, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital, Cobourg, said Wednesday that he was "definitely of the opinion that Mrs. Waite was mentally ill" after his examination, following her arrest. Provincial Constable Lyle Erskine testified that Chief Carey had been very tolerant in regard to Mrs. Waite, and that he had on occasions asked him to take a look at her house while on highway patrol to see if everything was all right.

Magistrate R. B. Baxter said that on Nov. 14, 1946, he was handed the information against Mrs. Waite, laid under the Mental Hospitals Act. He had been advised by Crown Attorney Harry Deyman that she had been examined and was mentally ill. Difficulty had been experienced in getting people admitted to mental hospitals because these institutions were overcrowded, and so it was easier to have her remanded for observation on a vagrancy charge rather than keep her waiting in jail. Mrs. Waite was quite agitated, he said. She might have had to remain in jail for two weeks on a charge under the Mental Hospitals Act, and he accordingly suggested the vagrancy charge to the crown attorney to expedite matters, the magistrate testified.

Kept Waiting

"Sometimes they keep us waiting two weeks after we send the papers up to the department. On a vagrancy charge the local officers take the patient away at once to the hospital," explained the magistrate. Witness added that Chief Carey never exhibited any ill will towards Mrs. Waite that he had ever noticed.

Before directing that the jury be discharged and the action dismissed with costs against the plaintiff, his lordship ruled on the evidence. He said that it resolved itself into two parts — whether the chief had reasonable cause to arrest her, and whether the case was affected by the six months' limitation to institution of action under the Public Protection Act.

Must Prove Point

"In this case the onus is on the plaintiff to show that the chief did not have reasonable cause and that he had malice. I have no doubt that on November 12, 1946, and some years previously, she was mentally ill and a nuisance to her neighbors and others, within the definition of the Mental Hospitals Act, and for that reason the defendant had reasonable cause in taking the action that he did. It is also significant that he consulted the crown attorney and was advised what to do. I agree that more than usual care and discretion was used by the chief and the warrant was fully justified in being acted upon," said his lordship.

"Unfortunately the original charge was not continued," he said, "and the magistrate and crown attorney took a short cut that was an irregular procedure, one that was commonly taken by police officers, until the Court of Appeal in the Dick case ruled that vagrancy charges should not be laid against people who had means. However, the chief was not responsible for that procedure, and had the earlier procedure been continued I feel that she inevitably would have been committed to an institution. The chief arrested her lawfully.

Those faraway places with strange-sounding names,
They're where the Legion would ride:
To Grimsby where juicy Peach Kings hang ripe,
Or Sarnia where Sailors abide.

The home of the Gordons up Orillia way
Is still on the puck map, it seems;
But faraway places with strange-sounding names
Of these each Legionnaire dreams.

* * * * * *

Yeah, the Legionnaires pulled out right after noon today for Grimsby and the second of their best-of-three OHA senior "B" semi-final series. Up one now, they're hoping to finish it tonight, but if not then the teams will switch to Oshawa ice to decide it on Saturday e'en. We honestly think the Peach Kings will be tougher'n somewhat on their own ice but the speedy Legion squad will give them a sizzling scrap. Winner of this series meets the Sarnia-Orillia survivor next week, these teams settling their series in Guelph on Saturday, and Sarnia will run a special train. And, if the flu bug buzzes away from us, we expect to trek along with Legion to see some of these "faraway places" they sing about.

Some Cage Activity

The only cage action in the city this week are Girls' Loop playoffs, commencing at 8.15 p.m. tomorrow, in the YW, CGE vs. Collis, and Lockeys vs. Normals. First pair are intermediates and the others are juniors, second games of their three-game series. They ought to be right interesting. PCVS senior boys are off to a Toronto tourney this week-end, and PCVS juvenile boys have two important frays at the Collegiate on Monday and Tuesday. They're in all-Ontario finals, a two-game series, with Sudbury here at eight p.m. Monday and again at 4.30 Tuesday aft. Points to count.

* * * * * *

Secretary Bill Snyder of the OBA writes from Hamilton to say the annual OBA convention here April 8-9 will be one of the most important in years. On account of they have 27 amendments to rules to consider, highest number in 15 years. And 17 nominations for office, another latter-day record. Prexy Fred Bradley has recovered from a sick spell and will be on deck along with the other officers and many delegates from all parts of the province. Committee meetings, reports, lobbying and whatnot will take up Friday aft and eve, with the general meeting on Saturday morning and afternoon. It'll be held in the Empress Hotel.

* * * * * *

Ken Will Be Missed

We've taken in quite a few of these baseball conventions around and about. In Peterborough, Oshawa, Toronto, Kitchener, the Falls, and so on. One figure we'll miss considerably at this two-day affair is that of the late Ken Colling. As long as we can remember, the Belleville enthusiast was on deck, having a whale of a time renewing old diamond and convention acquaintances, and he was a member of the executive for some time. But Ken died early last winter and there'll be many a mention made of him when these delegates gather in Peterborough next week-end. It won't seem quite the same to us with Ken missing.

The Masked Marvel won from Earl McCready at the Brock St. Spring Gardens last eve in the main mat go, with aid of ropes for leverage. It wasn't a popular fall and it looks like it'll take Atkins or some other tough topnotcher to smear the burly Marvel. Though Earl isn't exactly a setup, either. Ray Villmer spotted Wee Willie Davis a lot of poundage in the semi-windup but went to a speedy draw with the huge Hollywood roughneck. And Pat Flanagan earned the prelim. Jim Laidlaw, efficient arena manager, tells us the pro matmen will not be back till a week from tomorrow as Spike Jones' band takes over the usual grappling night.

By the score of 59-43 the Trinity church curlers defeated St. Paul's curlers in a challenge match that was played last evening.

It was a real fine evening of good fun and it was greatly enjoyed by all. Good-natured quips were passed along all evening with the St. Paul curlers bearing the brunt.

After the game light refreshments were served by Mrs. S. Lowe and committee.

C. Lawrence and S. Lowe spoke on behalf of St. Paul's, and R. F. Downey did likewise for Trinity.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the ladies for their part in making this a most enjoyable evening.

The prizes won by N. Hamley's rink and C. Lawrence's rink were donated by Mr. and Mrs. S. Lowe.

'TWAS ROUGH GOING—Eddie Sandford of Boston found traffic slightly heavy during Tuesday night's game in the Stanley Cup semi-final play-offs with Toronto at Maple Leaf Gardens. Here he is firmly wedged between Bill Juzda and Garth Bosch of Toronto as he rushed for a loose puck. That is Joe Klukay of the Leafs going around at the left. Leafs won 3-1 to take a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series. On Wednesday night Leafs again beat Bruins 3 goals to 2, to take the series 4-1.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Gerard Cote, Canada's great little marathoner, trotted faithfully about the country highways around St. Hyacinthe, Que., today grimly determined to win the Boston Marathon next April 19.

The training grind is nothing new to Cote, aiming at his fifth title in the Boston classic.

Cote, still disappointed at his showing in the Olympic marathon last summer, has been in training all winter. He averages 80 miles a week and on his running days usually goes from 20 to 24 miles. When snow conditions were bad he ran over cleared roads in Montreal suburbs, 40 miles from his home.

Cote finished 17th at the Olympics, limping over the line in pain from a severe charley-horse. He didn't offer excuses; he finished the course. Lloyd Evans of Montreal came in 16th, passing Cote on the Olympic stadium track. Evans also will be at Boston.

To Edgar Laprade's pronouncement that National League hockey is "terrible," NHL President Clarence Campbell had this to say Wednesday: "I don't believe Laprade ever said any such a thing and if he did it isn't true."

Then Campbell quickly marshalled facts and figures from his season's NHL records in a terse dissenting opinion.

Laprade was quoted a few days ago in Port Arthur as saying "the small fellow with some ability is smashed by the guy with the muscle."

Dave Sands, Australia's "dark destroyer" has caused no little excitement in British boxing circles today. After watching Marcel Cerdan flatten Dick Turpin Tuesday night, Sands said he'd like to fight the world middleweight champion.

Sands, who holds the Australian middleweight, light-heavyweight and heavyweight crowns, said "Cerdan's style would suit me admirably."

Cerdan, winner of the world crown last summer in the United States, scored a seventh-round K. O. over Turpin, British and Empire middleweight titleholder.

At Albany Wednesday the New York State Legislature took a step toward legalized off-track parimutuel betting. With only five negative votes the Legislature approved creation of a nine-member commission to study all aspects of the proposal and report to the Governor and Legislature by Feb. 15, 1950.

Assemblymen Frank J. Becker, who introduced the Assembly bill, said "if we are going to have gambling, and we have, it might be a good idea to recognize and tax it."

Gulfstream Park at Miami recorded a whopping $1,323-for-$2 daily-double payoff Wednesday. The double was made up of Bomb Command ($62.50) in the first race and Petrose Girl ($39.30) in the second.

One of baseball's oldest Major League veterans died at San Diego Henry Bernard, 78, one-time Philadelphia and Cleveland pitcher.

Mask Beats Earl McCready In Main Pro Grapple Bout

The Masked Marvel won a questionable third fall from Earl McCready in the main mat bout at the Brock Arena last night. Earl, at 241 pounds, came off the ropes with a flying body scissors but the 249-pound Mask held his feet and dropped McCready. However, he used the ropes for leverage as he pinned McCready's shoulders to the mat. The referee didn't see this and the good-sized crowd of fans didn't like it a bit. Earlier, Earl shook off eye rasps and other rough stuff to nearly pin the Marvel once with his "rolling cradle splits." The fall was eight minutes.

Earl won the second fall in 17 minutes when he hit the Mask with a hard flying body scissors off the hemp following an exchange of elbow smashes. There was a lot of hard grapping between two powerful men, with the unpopular Mask trying to get away with plenty of illegal stuff as Referee Cliff Fox was kept busy. The Mask threw McCready into the turnbuckles and tried to garrot him, besides pulling hair, but Earl did his best to yank off the Marvel's mask despite warnings from the referee. His fall was popular with the crowd.

Beat the Count

The first fall went to the hooded one in 16½ minutes when he got back into the ring in time to beat the count. Both had rolled out and mixed amid the fans, and then the Mask rammed Earl's head into the ring boards and hopped back in to win. He had played it rough all the way, but McCready punished him with a tough armlock first and later a leglock. He tried to rip off his hood, also, but the Marvel proved powerful and threw him several times into the corner ropes to hold his own in a hard session between big men.

Ray Villmer, 224, held his own with 280-pound Wee Willie Davis in the semi-final to go to a time-limit draw. It was a pleasing joust with Villmer looking small beside his big, rough opponent, but making up for it on speed and style. After the gong, Villmer caught Davis in a nifty airplane spin to flatten him as the fans roared approval. Willie was rough and used illegal tactics throughout, though Referee Fox handled the bout well, and Villmer had to cash in on his speed and agility every minute. There was lots of action and plenty of noise, with the customers swarming around the ring at the finish. Davis roughed it up with Ray after on the way to the dressing room.

Popular Pat Flanagan, at 223, won the prelim from Mike (Prince) Mahalakis, scaling 226, in 22 minutes with a series of drop kicks. It broke up a sizzling tussle as both turned it on in a hot go. Mike tried to pull hair, but had trouble finding it on Pat's pate. Flanagan was his usual colorful gymnastic self, with much aerial work, flips, body slams and some fists thrown. The ref was busy all the way and the spectators enjoyed it a lot.

German Baron Tries To Stage Comeback

LONDON, March 31—(AP) — Twin ambitions will keep Baron Gottfried Von Cramm, the German tennis star, swinging his racquet two more years.

At 39 the Baron is trying a come-back and wants to play once more on the green grass carpets of Wimbledon, where he was runner-up in 1935 and 1936 to Fred Perry, and in 1937 to Don Budge.

He also wants to get German tennis players, taboo right now in international championships, restored to good graces.

"I have decided to play another two years," Von Cramm said in an interview here, "so I resigned my job as chairman of a committee for youth activities.

"I want to play at Wimbledon, but I won't make a fool of myself. I will only do it if I think I have a good chance to show up well."

Von Cramm, fit and immaculate-looking as when he was one of the world's best known players before the war, is still his country's No. 1 star. He recently made his first visit to London since 1939 to try and obtain British help in getting the German Lawn Tennis Association readmitted to the International Lawn Tennis Association.

Traffic Deaths Higher

CHICAGO, March 31 (AP) — Traffic deaths in the United States during the first two months of 1948 totalled 4,400, four per cent more than in the same period of 1948, the National Safety Council said today. Unseasonably mild weather in the Eastern States increased travel and was blamed for the upswing in fatalities.

Tulsa Whips Dallas

By The Associated Press.

Tulsa Oilers and St. Paul Saints are just a single game short of completing two of the biggest comebacks in the history of the United States Hockey League. Tulsa defeated Dallas 4-1 Wednesday night at Dallas to take the southern division's playoff. St. Paul needs a victory Friday night at Omaha to make it two straight over the Knights and eliminate them in the best-of-three northern-division playoffs.

Sydney Players' Stock Rises After 1-1 Tie With Marlboros

TORONTO, March 31 (CP) — The opening game of the Eastern Canada Senior Hockey semi-final ended in a stalemate but that was enough to send the stock of Sydney Millionaires shooting skywards today.

Toronto Marlboros had to come through with a last minute goal to gain the 1-1 deadlock with the Maritime money-men last night. The highly-touted Ontario Champions were quoted as high as 3-1 favorites before the best-of-five series started but the odds should drop to no better than even money for the return game here Saturday night.

The 8,129 fans who watched the teams battle on equal terms left Maple Leaf Gardens talking about the last Maritime representatives to capture the Allan Cup, the Moncton Hawks and Halifax Wolverines of the 1933-35 era.

They also talked about how close the Millionaires came to taking an opening victory. A second-period goal by Cliff Roach, third-string Sydney centre, stood up until 19:12 of the third period. Then Ray Hannigan netted the Toronto marker that sent the game into overtime, limited to 10 minutes under Canadian Amateur Hockey Association rules.

Hotly Protested

Roach's goal was hotly protested by Marlboros, who said he kicked the puck home. But Referee Stan Pratt of Ottawa ruled it was deflected in after a corner shot by Johnny Myketyn rebounded off goalie Howie Harvey's pads.

Millionaires matched speed and bumps with Marlboros in a way that did credit to the Sydney scouts who lined up this team to carry the Cape Breton coal city's colors.

Roach, the goal scorer, was the only Sydney native on their 14 man roster, although a couple of others came from nearby points.

The others were gathered as far west as the Pacific Coast League. That was where Doug Fritz, the bespectacled defenceman who was the rallying force for the Millionaires, played his hockey last season. The 31-year-old veteran previously performed in Ontario with Hamilton and St. Catharines teams.

Best line on the ice was the Millionaires' first string trio of centre Don Whalen, who comes from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Paul Platz, a left winger from Winnipeg, and right winger Don McRae, a fighting redhead also from Winnipeg.

Royals Too Good Paste Rockets 10-2

MONTREAL, March 31 (CP). —Montreal Royals, a well-blended mixture of home-grown products and imports, showed too much all-round polish for the plucky Inkerman Rockets last night, and handed the Ottawa district champions a 10-2 pasting in the first game of a best-of-five Eastern Canada junior semi-final.

Matt Benoit and Gordie Armstrong, who scored two goals apiece, led the sniping parade as Royals marked up three counters in each of the two opening periods and added four in the finale. Other Royal marksmen were Bill Rattray, Bert Hirschfield, Bobby Frampton, Gordie Knutson, Neil Langill, and Skippy Burchell.

Percy Armstrong and George Boivin notched the Inkerman goals, both in the second period.

Leafs Edge Bruins 3-2 Enter Stanley Cup Finals

BOSTON, March 31 — (CP)— A leg-weary Toronto Maple Leaf team rested to-day after winning the right for the third successive year to enter the final playoffs for the Stanley Cup.

Toronto, injury-free and bolstered by reserves in depth, took a 3-2 decision here last night over Boston Bruins, hit by injuries but still fighting-game, to take the National Hockey League semi-final Cup series four games to one.

Leafs' opponent in the final has not yet been determined. Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens are deadlocked with two wins each in their semi-final series and meet to-night in Detroit.

Whichever team emerges the Toronto squad isn't expecting an easy time. Asked if he had any preference, Coach Hap Day replied: "No, sir, they are both tough."

Johnny Crawford and Boston Captain Milt Schmidt, whose absence last night through injuries hit Boston hard, took the defeat philosophically: "Too bad we had to lose, but the gang never quit. They have nothing to be ashamed of."

Made Life Dangerous

A capacity crowd of 13,909 at Boston Gardens made life dangerous for both teams with a barrage of bottles, fruit and potatoes that littered the ice after a third-period penalty was handed to Bruin rearguard Fern Llaman.

The teams were sent to their dressing-room and the crowd warned that the game would not continue until the ice was cleared. The delay lasted 17 minutes.

Boston's first goal by Grant Warwick was sandwiched between first-period tallies by Toronto's Cal Gardner and Ray Timgren.

A freak goal in the second period by Bentley gave Toronto a two-goal lead that Boston did not touch until the last 53 seconds when Johnny Peirson shunted in Paul Ronty's pass for the final score.

DiMaggio Plays Another Year

ST. PETERSBURG, Fa., March 31 (AP)—The old toothy grin was back on Joe DiMaggio's face.

"I'm afraid I'll play another year—every blankety blank inning," he said. "It looks I'll have to work for my money."

DiMag has just passed his first test with flying colors. The tender right heel that threatened to end his great career gave him no trouble in a six-inning chore against Cincinnati. It was his first start.

"The pain is not completely gone," said Joe, "if it (the heel) improves a little more, I'll be very happy."

City Assessor To Discontinue Progressive Assessment Plan

Progressive assessment of buildings in course of construction or alteration will be discontinued by the city's assessment department, Mr. Norman A. Wilkes, assessment commissioner, said today to the Examiner. However, they will be assessed, and taxed will be levied, for the period of the current year from the time of completion until the end of the year.

Mr. Wilkes discussed that detail of assessment in a statement explaining the circumstances as follows:

"Section 57A of the Assessment Act, as amended several years ago, provides that the assessor shall, after the return of his roll, add to the roll,—'The value of any building which, after the return of the roll, is erected, altered or enlarged; the value of any building or land part thereof which cease to be exempt: and the name of any person who, after the return of the roll, commences to occupy or use land for business purposes.' It is further provided that such additions shall be placed on the tax roll, and taxes collected for that part of the current year remaining."

To date, Mr. Wilkes said, the assessment department has added items under this section for the following year's taxes only, overlooking the necessity of adding them for the remainder of the current year.

"In future," he said, "buildings erected, altered or enlarged; land and buildings ceasing to be exempt; and persons commencing to occupy or use land for business purposes, will be assessed and taxes levied for the remainder of the current year. However, contrary to past procedure, buildings will be assessed until completed or unusable unless deliberately left unfinished."

Levy to Remaining Period

That policy eliminates progressive assessment, but if any new work is completed, including erection, alteration or enlargement, the improvement is to be assessed and taxes levied for the remaining period of the current year. There is to be no assessment for a new cellar or other progress on a building.

Valuation for assessment and taxation is not to b applied until the work is completed. An exception, Mr. Wilkes said, might be in the instance of a property constructed for a store on the ground floor and apartments or office above. If part of the premises is completed, then it would become assessable and taxable for the purposes of the current year, and for the period in which that part is actually in use.

Continuing, Mr. Wilkes said: "It should be pointed out that, not only are taxes to be collected for the current year, but section 125 of the Act gives relief from taxation in respect of any building demolished, or any person not carrying on business for the whole year, for the period of the balance of the current year year then remaining.

Also it must be realized that services such as police and fire protection and garbage collection are as necessary to a new structure as to an old. In order to promote a more complete understanding, the assessment commissioner would be pleased to discuss this, or any other phase of assessment with any interested person or persons, either individually or collectively, at any time."

The city assessors have been engaged for some time in their annual calls at every residence and place of business in the city. "This entails more than 10,000 calls," Mr. Wilkes said. "In general, the assessor receives a courteous reception and full co-operation from the public, and, in turn, gives a courteous hearing and full consideration to any complaint about assessments."

Lack of Understanding

"Too often such complaints stem from a lack of understanding by the taxpayer who confuses an increased mill rate, or increased taxes, with assessment. Much time is lost explaining to each individual that the assessment had not been increased. A little thought on this matter would save the assessor many hours of explanation.

Assessment procedure is governed by the Statutes of Ontario, Chapter 272 (The Assessment Act), with numerous amendments each year. The assessor is bound by the provisions of this Act and is liable to severe penalties for failure to comply with them."

Britain Pays More For Swedish Newsprint

LONDON, March 31—(CP)—It must seem quixotic to Canadians that Britain should be paying $171 a ton for Swedish newsprint when Canadian newsprint is available at less than $100 a ton, Leslie Hore-Belisha told a political meeting.

The former secretary for war, a Conservative, said that Britain was paying for Swedish newsprint and other commodities so that she could buy from Canada with steel the Dominion required.

"At a time when British food supplies are lower than they were before the war we are threatened with another cut in the exiguous meat ration, Canada's statesmen are complaining that food supplies from Canada are being sent to Britain in ever-decreasing amounts and that unless more is done by us to take the produce of Canadian farmers, Canada will soon be brought face to face with a major crisis accompanied by a serious price recession."

DIXIE, a six-year-old Newfoundland dog, comforts her sobbing mistress, Patricia Ann Baker, during a recess in Dixie's trial for her life in Weymouth, Mass. The dog, accused of being a "public nuisance and menace," was brought to trial when 30 persons petitioned for its death. The judge ruled Dixie should be permanently restrained by the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Neal Baker, shown with the dog and child.

Canada's Assistance Puts France On Feet

WINDSOR, March 31—(CP)—The Marshall Plan and assistance which Canada gave France in the way of credits before ERP went into effect are the main reasons that country has scored remarkable achievements since peace, M. Francisque Gay said Wednesday.

M. Gay, French ambassador to Canada, said that for the first time in several years France has ample coal production, is exporting steel and has rebuilt its economy to satisfy home consumption and also to take advantage of export markets.

The ambassador, speaking to the Windsor Chamber of Commerce and delegates to the regional conference of chambers of commerce, said he saw the day, at the conclusion of the Marshall Plan, when France will be able to make normal purchases of raw materials and machine tools from money earned by export. During the last year, 60 per cent of the purchases made by France were settled by exchange goods.

Newfoundland Strategic Area In Canadian Defence Set-up

By MEL SUFRIN

OTTAWA, March 31 — (CP). — Newfoundland—a strategic area in military terms far exceeding its physical size —will slip neatly into the pattern of Canada's defence system at one minute before midnight tonight. Simultaneous with the official entry of Newfoundland into confederation, the new province will be fitted into the country-wide command and area system of the armed forces.

Defence Minister Claxton announced that for military purposes Newfoundland will become a part of the Canadian army's eastern command and will take its place in the navy's existing Atlantic command and the R.C.A.F. Central Command.

Senior officers to represent the three services in Newfoundland have already been appointed and it is expected they will fly to St. John's April 7 to set up headquarters. Small staffs will follow later.

For the navy, Commodore V. S. Godfrey has been appointed Commodore Newfoundland. The liasson officer for the Air Force is Wing Cmdr. E. L. Wurtele while Brig. M. S. Dunn, promoted from the rank of colonel today, will command the new army area.

Present defence department plans are to establish a naval reserve division in Newfoundland, re-establish the Royal Newfoundlan Regiment as a reserve force unit of the army with both infantry and artillery components, and set up reserve formations of the R.C.A.F., Mr. Claxton said.

Headed Ontario Unit

Brig. Dunn, 44-year-old native of Chelsea, Que., was educated in Ottawa and Toronto and was on the staff of Cornwall, Ont., Collegiate and Vocational school before outbreak of the Second World War.

At the time he was an officer in the Stormount, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders. He went active and saw service in the Mediterranean and Northwest Europe. He took command of the Highlanders in 1942 and has since held a number of senior posts, including officer commanding the Canadian section of general headquarters, 2nd Echelon, in Italy. In 1945 he became officer in charge of the Canadian section G. H. Q. 2nd Echelon, Pacific Force.

Found Dead In Jail

SYRACUSE, N.Y., March 31—(AP)—A man identified by police records as Walter Lasher, 58, of Toronto, was found dead in a jail cell Wednesday. Coroner Harry L. Gilmore said death was due to natural causes. Lasher, brought to Syracuse last January after completing a prison sentence at Kingston, Ont., was awaiting sentence here on a first-degree grand larcency conviction. It was his fourth felony conviction, making him subject to life imprisonment.

Scared By Phenomenon

THE PAS, Man., March 31.—(CP).—Manitoba game officials plan to investigate a natural phenomenon that has frightened superstitious Indian hunters away from the Island Lake region in Northern Manitoba. Two Indian moose hunters reported finding a mysterious patch of ground, about 50 by 50 feet, completely free of snow. The Indians say "The Devil" used the spot as a sleeping place. Officials believe an underground sulphur spring may be responsible.

Named Steel Controller

OTTAWA, March 31—(CP) — The Trade Department announced Wednesday the appointment of Douglas Arthur Jones, 32, of Hamilton, as federal steel controller. He succeeds F. K. Ashbaugh. Mr. Jones, formerly with the Steel Company of Canada at Hamilton, joined the Trade Department about three years ago. For some time now he has been acting as deputy to Mr. Ashbaugh. The latter is expected to leave for Tillsonburg, Ont., where he has a number of tobacco farms.

Says Fines Outmoded

EDMONTON, March 31.—(CP).—J. A. Edmison, president of the Canadian Penal Association, charged Tuesday that the system of court fines is a modern version of the old-time debtors' prison. In an address to the John Howard Society, a prisoners' aid organization, Mr. Edmison said Canadian offenders frequently go to jail because they are unable to pay fines levied as penalty for crimes.

Today we live in a GREATER CANADA...

Harbour of St. John's

...greater by 150,000 square miles of territory ::: by vast resources of mine, forest and fishery—and, most important, by 325,000 new Canadians, now proudly welcomed as fellow-countrymen.

From the beginnings of our recorded histories, the bonds between Newfoundland and Canada have always been close—and never closer than during the last war. Now final union fittingly completes the friendly association of centuries.

For Canada, this new and vast geographic expansion also marks one more advance in the continuing development of the modern Dominion which has become, in every field of activity, a land of new and greater opportunity for all young Canadians commencing their careers today.

DISCOVERED by Cabot in 1497, the island became Britain's oldest colony, corner-stone of the Empire.

WITH every seaport a fishing port, Newfoundland exports fishery products to the value of $30 million annually.

TODAY pulp and paper has become a great Newfoundland industry, centered on the mills at Grand Falls and Corner Brook.

Hundreds Apply To Visit Israeli State

NEW YORK, March 31.—(AP).—Everybody wants to go to Israel.

At least, that's the way it seems to a small, hard-pressed visa staff at the Israeli consulate.

Travel restrictions were lifted after the Arab-Israeli truce was signed. Since then, people have flocked by the hundreds to Israeli Government offices for travel permits.

From last June to December 31 only 800 visa applications were filed here. More than 1,300 were received during January and February alone. The consulate waiting room gets more crowded every day.

Not many applicants are emigrants. Most are Americans bent on a sentimental pilgrimage to the new Jewish state. Many are businessmen on survey trips with capital to invest in Israeli enterprises.

Principal obstacles to increased travel to Palestine are inadequate ship transportation and hotel facilities. All Tel Aviv hotels are booked up until the end of May. It is understood, however, that travellers still can find accommodations in private homes.

Leaving Canada

OTTAWA, March 31.—(CP).—Like Americans, a lot of Canadians are anxious to get a good look at the new state of Israel. They're leaving Canada, says a Zionist spokesman, at the rate of about 100 a month.

Most of them are tourists. Some of them are manufacturers with money to invest in the Jewish state. Scattered among them are only a few who are leaving Canada for good.

"There are few Canadians who want to emigrate to Israel," says the Zionist information office here. "They like to go over for a month or two and then come back."

Israel's difficulty is that while it has a consulate in New York, it as yet hasn't one in Canada. To remedy this, negotiations are being carried on with the Canadian Goverment to establish a consulate in Montreal.

Start Making Paper From Straw, Grass

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 31—(AP)—Scientists disclosed Wednesday that they have started making paper from straw and grass, and have produced trees that grow bigger and faster.

These developments were reported to the National Farm Chemurgic Council.

E. R. Timlowski, a chemist, said the new method for making paper, including newsprint, means that 90 per cent of all the paper the United States uses can be made from straw and grasses that are now waste products.

Norwegian People Write Off Lunch, Shorten Work Day

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OSLO, March 31 — (CP)—Regardless of the clock, afternoon doesn't exist in Norway—any more than lunch does.

Both have been written off in favor of a short continuous working day, an early dinner and a long, sociable evening.

The "morning" a Norwegian's business day, begins about 10 a. m. and lasts just long enough for dinner at home by four. Lunch is almost unheard of;—it's the vanished meal.

Norwegians, in their amiable, leisurely way, work through the customary North American lunch interval although callers then may be invited to a neighboring cafe for coffee and a "smoerbrod," the national open-topped sandwich, today dressed with disguised herring or under a salad.

Service is poor and Norwegians good-naturedly refer to their waiters as "the slowest and most impolite in the world." Both are under-statements.

Waiters, paid by a compulsory service charge varying between 10 and 15 per cent, expect an additional 10-per-cent gratuity from patrons.

But street-car and bus conductors are polite to a fault. Conductors descend to help passengers in and out.

Bright City

Oslo, with one sixth of Norway's 3,000,000 population, is a city whose abundant neon signs and bright store windows lend a deceptive air of gaiety.

It has little night life apart from a vigorous theatre—eight stock companies—and a good weekly symphony concert. There are no night clubs. Movie theatres show films at five, seven and nine o'clock and customers may not enter after a performance begins.

"Good" eating places abound, if you like fish, but most Norwegians entertain at home.

Family celebrations are second nature. Each family has at least one large flag which goes up to mark births, marriages and deaths, anniversaries personal and national, and on the slightest suggestion of the government. Neighbors share joys and sorrows and whole streets' flags droop at half-mast or exult together.

The Norse are keen athletes, who say "half our life is spent on skis and the other half in walking." The short business day leaves them free for evening hikes into the mountains around Oslo, for ski trips in winter, and for walks in summer when offices close at three and don't open on Saturdays.

Many See Fatal Jump

HAMILTON, March 31—(CP)—Crowds Wednesday watched the fatal seven-storey plunge of attractive, 39-year-old Lena Williamson, from an office in the Canadian Bank of Commerce building in down-town Hamilton. Police said the woman leaped to her death from the office of the Industrial Accident Prevention Assurance Company. She had been in poor health.

13 Vets Of Riel War Living In Toronto

TORONTO, March 31—(CP)—Sixty-four years after the 10th Royal Grenadiers marched out of Toronto to quell Louis Riel's rebellion in Saskatchewan in 1885, only 13 members of the regiment survive—six of them in Toronto.

At their annual gathering in Toronto Wednesday the six recalled that the Northwest campaign was short, sharp and successful. They left Toronto on March 30, 1885, reached the west by flatcar and on foot, forced the surrender of the Rebel leader Great Bear, and were back in Toronto on July 23.

The six are W. J. Cantwell, 84; S. H. Dye, 82; John Menary, 83; Thomas Allen, 83; Alfred Burridge, 83, and H. R. Roberts, 82.

Rev. H. G. Douglas Served As Student Missionary To Newfoundland

Confederation should redound to the mutual benefit of both Newfoundland and Canada to a very considerable extent, declared Rev. Harry G. Douglas, pastor of Knox United Church, when asked by The Examiner for his views on the union of the two British possession which takes place April 1. Rev. Mr. Douglas, who spent three years in the interior of Newfoundland as a student missionary, said that Newfoundland had vast, undeveloped resources in lumbering, mining, agriculture, and the tourist trade which he felt Canadian money would be quick to exploit.

Mr. Douglas said that Confederation would likely sound the death knell of the old barter system on the east coast, where the fishermen had been kept poor by being forced to trade their fish with the merchants for food and clothing.

Intelligent People

Newfoundland people are "the finest and most hospitable persons one could wish to meet," said Mr. Douglas. He added that many of them were not clever from a purely book-learning standpoint, in view of their lesser educational advantages in past years, but nevertheless the people as a whole are very intelligent. Their kindliness was another outstanding characteristic.

The fishery, long the mainstay of the Old Colony, is no longer the chief industry of the island, Mr. Douglas stated, the pulp and paper industry, centred around Grand Falls and Cornerbrook, now being far in excess of it in dollar value.

Offered to Build Road

Mr. Douglas emphasized that one of the things that has held the country back the most has been the lack of a main highway across the island. He recalled that some years ago the late Henry Ford offered to put a road through if the government would let his cars in duty free. This permission was not granted, so the road was not built.

The clergyman deplored the fact that in the past large numbers of Newfoundlanders who who had to go to Canada or the United States to complete their education did not return to their homeland because there were no opportunities for them to make a living in their chosen field.

Mr. Douglas lived in Newfoundland from 1930 to 1932, at three different small towns along the Newfoundland Railway: Notre Dame Bay, Bishop's Falls, and Deer Lake, which are all located at the end of the western division of the railway.

Nickel Mine

Apart from the east coast, the country has been very little developed, there being no communities in the interior except those along the railway line or at the sites of the two big paper mills. The only major exception to this rule is that American Smelters have a nickel mine at Buchans, but 95% of the production goes to the United States. All that Newfoundland gets out of it is the $5.00 per ton freight rate for rail shipment of the ore. This has been a sore spot with many of the people for a long time.

Get Somewhere

Once the country is developed by Canadian capital, Newfoundland will really get somewhere, in the opinion of Mr. Douglas. Even the fishing industry could be developed more than it has been in the past, and Confederation should benefit it greatly. In support of this contention, he said that Newfoundland waters have a small fish, similar to the sardine, which should be capable of the same degree of development as has occurred in Norway and New Brunswick.

The tourist possibilities of Newfoundland are fabulous; the scenery, both in the interior and along the coast, being both breath-taking and picturesque. Countless thrills await the angler, the hunter, and the camera hound.

Mr. Douglas declared that, though Newfoundland was the tenth largest island in the world, it had little more than a population of a quarter of a million people.

As an example of the development possibilities of the island, he said that Newfoundland has an unusual type of stone which is particularly good for the making of monuments. Scotland imported a quantity of it for her national war memorial and the only other place in the world where it can be obtained is in South America.

There was a great field in the Old Colony for the introduction of co-operatives, which could do much to raise the living standard of the people.

Mr. Douglas recalled that some years ago the United Church of Canada had sent an agricultural expert into the country, who had told the people much that they did not know before about farming. As a result, many now know how to grow other vegetables beside just potatoes, which was about all they were growing previously. He said soil conditions in the interior were good and that the people could grow more of their own food, if given a leg up. Mr. Douglas said that during part of this stay he had lived on an island in Notre Dame Bay where there was only one cow for 200 families.

Mine Kills 57 Japs

TOKYO, March 31.—(AP). — Fifty-seven Japanese were killed and 16 injured in an explosion of a drifting mine at the fishing village of Nadachi Wednesday. The United States Army reported that among those killed was a Japanese policeman who waded out and tried to hold the mine away from shore while villagers were organizing a boat party to tow it away.

Boy Burned To Death

MANIWAKI, Que., March 31.—(CP).—A six-year-old boy, whose mother could not coax him from under his bed, was burned to death Wednesday in a fire which destroyed a two-storey dwelling about 20 miles south of this Gatineau valley town. The mother, Mrs. Romeo Patry, pregnant with her seventh child, was burned about the hands and face trying to reach her six-year-old son, Robert.

Help To Newfoundlanders

Unquestionably, Confederation with Canada will greatly benefit the people of Newfoundland as the months and years roll on, declared H. T. Cranford, vice-president and general manager of the Western Clock Company, Ltd., a native Newfoundlander, when asked by The Examiner for his reaction to the Newfoundland-Canada union which takes effect on April 1. It was unfortunate, however, that some other means of bringing it about had not been adopted, Mr. Cranford added.

Mr. Cranford said that if the union negotiations had been instituted by a responsible government, instead of by the commission-appointed national convention, there would have been much less resentment than there was from some quarters.

Mr. Cranford said he was willing to concede that possibly no other method could have been used under the existing circumstances, but he said that the considerable degree of ill-feeling which the adopted method generated would probably "take a long time to die out." Most of the opposition to Confederation came from one section for the most part, the Avalon Peninsula. It was unfortunate that the negotiations had to be clouded by the ill-feeling which crept into them, but he felt sure the situation would rectify itself in due course.

Canadian Nets Seized In Raid

GENEVA, O., March 31—(AP)—Two raiding parties seized $4,000 worth of gill nets Canadian fishermen had allegedly placed in United States waters northwest of Ashtabula harbor, Charles Mitchell, Ashtabula County game protector, announced Wednesday.

Mitchell reported he personally led one of two raiding parties. American fishing tugs were commandeered for the purpose.

When the Canadian tug crews saw the United States tugs approaching, they cut the nets free and headed for Canada, Mitchell said.

Along with an estimated 30 boxes of nets hauled from the water were about 1,600 pounds of whitefish trapped inside the twine. The fish, worth about $700, were given to the Ohio tug-owners as compensation for their co-operation in the raid.

The seizure took place within sight of the Ohio shore and about 10 miles south of the international boundary line, Mitchell said. He said it was the first raid the Conservation Department has made in many years, but that raids would continue on Canadian nets placed in United States waters in violation of international agreement.

The Canadians may claim their nets by coming to Ohio to face court proceedings, Mitchell said.

Must Pay Alimony

MONTREAL, March 31.—(CP).—Vernon G. Cardy, Canadian hotel magnate, was ordered by a superior court judgment Wednesday to pay $1,400 a month alimony to his wife, Hilda Bouvier, pending hearing on merits of his wife's petition for a judicial separation and an alimentary pension of $2,083 monthly. Cardy also was ordered to pay $1,000 provisional costs.

Air Force spokesmen at Scott air base, Ill., said it was believed there were five men on board. The plane was carrying classified documents. No bodies have been found so far.

New Translation Of Bible Begun By English Churches

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

LONDON, March 31 (CP)—A new translation of the Bible into modern English now is being planned by a joint committee of the Protestant Churches of Britain.

"It is not intended to displace or rival the authorized version," a member of the committee said, "nor will it be a revision of the revised version of 1884.

"We are attempting a totally new translation from the original languages. The committees are only at the beginning of their labors and there will be many years of drafting and criticism before any of the completed manuscripts are ready for printing."

Just recently 61-year-old Monsignor Ronald Knox, British writer and scholar, completed the first part of a new translation of the Old Testament made from Vulgate Latin. In 1945 he published a translation of the New Testament. Both have been approved by Roman Catholic authorities.

Representatives of the church of England, the Methodist church of Great Britain, the Congregational Union of England and Wales and the Baptist Union of Great Britain and Ireland have met in the work on a modernized Bible.

Ask For Cowboys Also

CALGARY, March 31—(CP)—Two young women from Sarnia expect an added service from the Calgary Exhibition Board, sponsors of Calgary's famous annual stampede. Along with a letter requesting ticket reservations for the July event, they asked that "two cowboys, preferably over 25 years of age," be reserved for them. The board was stumped but not for long. With the tickets were sent pictures of two bronk riders atop their steeds but the board isn't promising anything.

Trade Fair To Feature Fish Display, Quiz Program

With the purpose of promoting interest in the Trade Fair, the Kiwanis Club are planning a series of four quiz programs starting next Wednesday. On that night five pupils from St. Peter's High School will compete with five pupils of PCVS in answering questions on Canadian history and geography. The following Wednesday the Normal School will compete against the winners on the first program.

In addition to the programs an essay contest is being held in the separate and public schools of the city for Grades 7 and 8 on the Trade Fair. Three prizes will be awarded to the three best essays.

In the attraction department every afternoon the CGE Cooking school will be operating. Here demonstrations on the preparation of food will be given.

Live Fish

Every evening a show will be put on sponsored by the Examiner. Such outstanding people such as Ross Bertran, Ted Rust, Mildred Morey and the Marquettes will perform. They are from the Norman Harris Artists Limited in Toronto.

For the sportsmen and children the Department of Lands and Forests will have its Exhibition of live fish. The fish in the illuminated tanks attracted crowds at the Sportmen's Show in Toronto.

On April 26 the Trade Fair will be officially opened by Mayor M. J. Swanston. The Minister of Planning and Development, the Hon. George Arthur Welsh, will be the guest speaker at a Civic Dinner Thursday April 28. Representatives of Canadian Dailies and trade journals will be present at this dinner.

It is hoped by club officials that the Trade Fair will be made an annual event if this year's fair is successful.

BROWN BETTY WITH CHEESE

Temp.: 350 deg.-375 deg. F. Time: About 1 hr. and 20 min.

3 to 4 tbspns. melted butter
1½ cups soft bread crumbs
6 medium apples (tart)
⅓ cup Crown Brand Corn Syrup
¼ cup sugar
1/16 tspn. salt
1 tspn. ground cinnamon or nutmeg (or both)
1 tbspn. lemon juice
2/3 cup grated cheese
1/3 to ½ cup water (depending on variety of apples)

Toss melted butter and bread crumbs together. Place about one-half cupful in the bottom of a 1½-quart greased casserole and cover with half of the apples (pared, cored and sliced), and half of the combined Crown Brand Syrup, sugar, salt, cinnamon or nutmeg, lemon juice, cheese and water. Now put another layer of buttered crumbs over this (about ½ cupful) and top again with a layer of sliced apples, then a layer of the combined mixture. Top all with the remaining buttered crumbs. Cover and bake in a moderate oven (350 deg.-375 deg. F.) 30 to 35 minutes, then remove cover and bake until apples are tender (45 minutes or longer). Serve warm or chilled, with plain whole milk or cream.

Like The First Breath of Spring . . . are these Coconut Cream Cakes with SWANS DOWN CAKE FLOUR giving them fluffiness, tenderness, and finer texture. Swans Down, you know, is sifted over and over again until it's 27 times as fine as ordinary flour.

COCONUT CREAM CAKES

1 cup sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
1 tspn. Calumet Baking Powder
¼ tspn. salt
1 cup sugar
3 eggs, unbeaten
6 tbspns. hot milk
2 tspns. lemon juice
¾ cup red jelly
1 can Baker's Southern-style Coconut
½ cup cream, whipped

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt; sift three times. Add sugar to eggs and beat until very thick and light. Add flour all at once, stirring quickly but thoroughly. Add milk, mixing quickly until batter is smooth and well blended. Add lemon juice and blend. Turn into large cup-cake pans which have been greased lightly on bottoms only. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about 20 minutes. Remove from pans. Cool. Spread jelly on tops of cakes. Fold ¼ cup coconut into whipped cream. Spread whipped cream mixture on top of jelly and sprinkle with remaining coconut. Garnish each cake with a bit of jelly. Makes 18.

Three Ambulance Men Receive Commissions

Three members of the Peterborough Branch of the St. John Ambulance Brigade received their commissions as officers at a recent meeting of the Brigade in Toronto. Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH, received his warrant as divisional surgeon, Patrick O'Toole for divisional superintendent, and George Siddall as ambulance officer.

Results of the annual re-examinations held near the end of the year have been received and candidates were successful with one member receiving his voucher, and 11 others receiving a label to their medallion.

Due to the small membership, several requests have had to be refused. The local branch encourages anyone with St. John Ambulance awards to help with the work in the city.

Seeding On Ontario Farms Slated To Start Earlier Than Usual

By The Canadian Press

Spring is coming back to Canada and across the land the farmers are busy with preparations for the annual cycle of seeding and harvest. In Southwestern Ontario balmy weather has enabled farm operations to start already. In most other parts of Canada, except possibly in sections of Quebec and Manitoba, seeding is expected to get under way earlier than usual.

An old Quebec saying holds that a late Easter means late seeding. Easter Sunday this year is April 17, two weeks later than last year. But apart from folk sayings, there are indications this spring of a late start on Quebec's long farms. Snow still lingers in many areas.

The Winter just ended was fairly moderate from Toronto eastward to the Atlantic. But in the west it was long and severe, even in the winter playground province of British Coumbia. Effects on the western winter may be seen in spring planting.

On the prairies, the arrival of winter followed closely upon a dry summer and fall. That meant little moisture soaked into the subsoil before cold weather came. Now many farmers are finding the land drying out rapidly but the subsoil is drier than is desirable. The farmers can make early start on seeding, but the lack of moisture in the soil could be bad for crops if spring and summer rains are scanty.

"Normal spring seeding conditions" are expected in Manitoba. Farmers plan to sow more wheat and barley this year than last, but less flax.

Ten Days Earlier

Saskatchewan grain growers hope to start seeding about April 28, about 10 days earlier than last year. Their wheat acreage likely will be increased to 15,800,000 from last year's 14,389,000, but sowings of barley, rye and flax will be cut down.

Alberta expects to sow 10 per cent more wheat than last year's 6,259,000 acres, about as much barley and oats as in 1948, but less flax. As in the other provinces, the drop in flax acreage is due to flax prices no longer being guaranteed.

Agriculture in British Columbia is carried on the year 'round. Seeding is going on now in many districts.

Seeding in the maritimes likely will start about the first week of May, with general acreage of grain crops approximately the same as last year.

Eskimos Given Aid

EDMONTON, March 31—(CP) The RCAF wrote "finished" to another mercy mission Tuesday night when one of its aircraft returned safely from a flight 400 miles inside the Arctic Circle. The other aircraft cracked up in landing at Fort Ross and has been abandon-

Witnesses Say Cox Car Tried To Pass On Hill

COBOURG, March 31 (ENS)—Charge of motor manslaughter against Garnet Cox of Peterborough, arising out of an accident which took place near Fraserville last November, was heard Wednesday before judge and jury in assize court. It is alleged that Richard Mercer of Peterborough, passenger in the Cox car died of injuries received in the accident.

W. Foote of Toronto testified that on the night of the accident he was driving south from Peterborough, some three miles south from Fraserville. A car was ahead of him going in the same direction and two oncoming cars came over the crest of a knoll. One car pulled out and was abreast of the other northbound car when it collided with the car ahead of Mr. Foote, proceeded on and hit his car and then struck a third car, which was behind him, finally ending upside down in the ditch. Witness said he swerved his own car almost off the road in a vain attempt to avoid the accident.

Jack Thompson of Haultain Post Office, said that he and some companions were on their way home from Bewdley to Peterborough just before the accident. There was a three-car line up on the highway and the car ahead of him pulled out on the crest of a knoll to pass the car in front but collided with an oncoming car.

Witness In Tears

Mrs. Leila Mercer, widow of the deceased, gave her evidence with difficulty, bursting into tears on several occasions during her testimony. She said that she and her husband, Cox and her sister went for a drive that day, taking 24 pints of beer in the car trunk. They came out on No. 2 Highway near Cobourg and drove on to Port Hope before heading back to Peterborough. At Port Hope they had supper. Each had five or six pints, the last beer being around seven p.m.

On the way towards Peterborough, she continued, they were in a line of three cars with she and her husband in the back and Cox and her sister in front. Just before the accident, their car and another car had been slowing and speeding up and passing one another. Cox had been driving properly and when he turned out to pass, an oncoming car came over the knoll and there was a collision.

"I don't remember anything after that," she declared.

To defence counsel, T. J. Carley, witness said that Cox had been driving properly.

The case continues today.

TB Association Readied For Mass Survey

Dennis A. Fitzgerald on Wednesday night was elected president of the Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association at the first annual meeting. He succeeds George A. Macdonald.

The huge project facing the association in the immediate future is the X-raying of an estimated 45,000 people in the city and county free of charge.

Executive officers for 1949 are as follows: Mr. Fitzgerald, president; Mr. Macdonald, immediate past president; L. H. Ingram, 1st vice-president, James J. Heffernan, 2nd vice-president; Mrs. R. C. Honey, secretary, and R. J. Ward, treasurer.

Other officers are C. H. Elliott, William E. Foley, Charles Ray, James Humphries, Mrs. H. A. Shearer, and Mrs. M. J. Swanston.

$7,064 On Christmas Seals

The treasurer reported that $7,064.54 was raised through the sale of Christmas seals. Cost of X-rays to referred cases at the two city hospitals was $870; and a mass survey in Norwood and Havelock cost $337.50.

After praising the association for doing "a man-sized job" Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH, went on to give a short talk on TB.

"Medical science is working to find a drug to combat TB."

He suggested that the control and eventual eradication of TB was being effected through preventative measures — particularly detection of it in the early stages by mass X-ray surveys.

Disease Explained

TB is contagious, like mumps and measles, he said; but it is not hereditary. "It is caused by a specific organism."

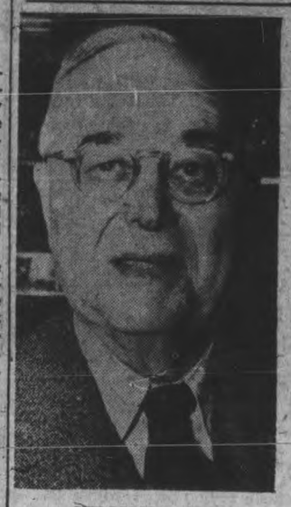
Three types of pathogenic TB were then described: avian, affecting birds; bovine, affecting cattle; and human, the one of particular interest in his talk.

The organism can affect any tissue of the body, he stated; it usually attacks children in the bones and mature adults in the lungs.

Cure is almost certain if the condition is diagnosed early enough; if it is allowed to continue unchecked "the chances of cure are materially lessened." The second necessary thing toward ensuring that the patient will be all right is that adequate treatment be undertaken at once, i.e. treatment by hospitalization or in a sanitarium.

Free Treatment

Because it takes so long to effect a cure, treatment in Ontario sanitariums is offered free. About 95 per cent of patients in these institutions receive their treatment at public expense, he said. About 3 per cent pay something and less than 2 per cent are able to pay their own expenses.



There is no charge for TB patients, according to statute, in five of the provinces, the MOH said.

In 1947 Dr. Kelly said the incidence of disease per 100,000 in the Dominion was 43.4; Ontario had the lowest percentage at 24.9 and it went as high as 67 in those provinces where no free treatment was allowed.

The local association could give even more aid in the future to TB patients, Dr. Kelly affirmed: by helping those entering a "San" to adjust themselves; in rehabilitation work; and in occupational therapy.

By sponsoring the community chest X-ray survey the association is making a major contribution toward the eradication of TB in Peterborough County, Dr. Kelly declared.

Mayor Max Swanston and Alderman Hugh Waddell both spoke in support of the mass survey.

Music Festival Scholarships Given Finalists

Definite proof that there exists a wealth of musical and speaking talent among the young people of Peterborough and surrounding districts was forthcoming Wednesday night in the PCVS auditorium when a number of class winners in last week's third annual Kiwanis Music Festival were heard in an unusually fine program. Many of the young artists showed promising ability and the audience expressed their appreciation of each number with undoubted enthusiasm.

Three $75 scholarships and one $35 award were presented during the intermission to their winners by the donors, as follows:

Gliddon Memorial Scholarship for piano, donated by the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association, Peterborough branch, won by Miss June Hutchinson of Peterborough and presented by Mrs. Thursa Williamson; Vocal Section Scholarship, donated by Vincent M. McCabe, president of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club, won by Miss Jean Dunn of Lindsay and presented by Mr. McCabe; and violin scholarship, donated by Zeller's Ltd., won by Bill Anderson of Peterborough and presented by Dennis Fitzgerald, local manager of Zeller's; verse speaking award, donated by W. A. Richardson, won by Jack King of Peterborough, and presented by Mr. Richardson.

Roses Presented

At this stage of the program baskets of roses were presented to three ladies who contributed outstandingly to the success of the festival, Mrs. G. W. Craw, accompanist; Mrs. Stan Northrop, secretary and Mrs. Al Plaskett, registrar.

The following is the program: urban school chorus, Grades 7 and 8, Prince of Wales School, Peterborough; boys' duet, F. Taylor and K. Hallett, Lindsay; rhythm band, King George School, Peterborough; violin solo, B. Anderson, Peterborough; rural school chorus, SS No. 9, North Cavan; piano solo, June Hutchinson, Peterborough; junior church choir, St. Andrew's Junior Church Choir, Peterborough; senior church choir, Mark Street United Church, Peterborough; piano solo, L. Fletcher, Bowmanville; boys' choir, unchanged voices, St. John's Anglican Church Boys' Choir, Peterborough.

Bowmanville Pianist Applauded

Vocal duet, Jean Dunn and William Perry, of Lindsay; piano solo, Mrs. B. Smith, Peterborough; baritone solo, Don Landry, Peterborough; soprano solo, B. Chase, Lindsay; piano solo, L. Holman, Peterborough; mezzo soprano solo, J. Nesbitt, Lindsay; verse speaking, J. King, Peterborough; girls' duet, Joy and Joan Westaway, Cameron; piano duet, M. Schwartz and F. Schwartz, Peterborough; tenor solo, B. Davidson, Lindsay.

Prolonged applause greeted the piano number by Miss L. Fletcher of Bowmanville, whose artistry made a deep impression on the audience. Other numbers which received a special ovation included those of the St. John's boys' choir, Prince of Wales school choir, rhythm band of King George school, and the SS No. 9 rural school choir, North Cavan, duet of Jean Dunn and William Perry and Mrs. B. Smith's piano solo.

Chairman of the program was E. G. Pridham, immediate past president of the Kiwanis Club. He introduced President V. M. McCabe, who cordially thanked all who had contributed in any way to the success of the festival. Mr. Pridham also introduced Stanley Northrop, chairman of the club's festival committee, who reviewed the history and rapid development of the festival in the three years since the club started it. The tireless efforts of Mr. Northrop and his wife in their months of planning the details of the festival were highly praised by Mr. McCabe.

An outstanding feature of the festival was the large percentage of class winners secured by Bert Cutt of Lindsay, over 100 of whose pupils were entered, with over 25 per cent of them coming out at or near the top. Proof of this was contained in the fact that seven of his students took part in the final concert.

Sudbury Man Claims Stolen Radios

Three radios, part of the $5,000 loot which city police found at Courtney's Gift Shop, Simcoe St., when Harold Brillinger was arrested recently, were claimed today by Al Forbes, a radio dealer at Sudbury, Ont. Brillinger pleaded guilty to stealing the radios when he faced one of 11 charges against him at Brantford, Ont.

Mr. Forbes came to Peterborough Wednesday with Detective O. Gauthier of Sudbury police force. A keen badminton player, the detective renewed old acquaintances at the market hall Wednesday evening, where he played in 1945. At that time he was a patient at the Veterans' Hospital.

A debenture payment of $20,400, including $400 interest, was made last year, leaving a net revenue of $10,827, indicating a profitable year. Balance due the corporation with respect to purchase of the arena was said to be $18,600.

FEDERATION of Newfoundland with Canada which takes place at midnight tonight receives the hearty approval of former Newfoundlanders now living in Peterborough. Three of them who were born on the Island are shown above along with the Newfoundland coat-of-arms which will take its place on the remaining plaque at the entrance to the Peace Tower, Parliament Buildings, Ottawa.

Former Newfoundlanders Say Union With Canada Step In Right Direction

(Also See Page 10)

Newfoundland's federation with Canada which will be consummated tonight on the stroke of midnight is of special interest to Peterborough citizens who are Newfoundlanders by birth or have lived on the Island. The Examiner sought out four of them, representative of various occupations, points of view and of various localities of Newfoundland. Interviewed individually, they all agree that the union is a step forward, intimately beneficial to both Canada and Newfoundland which with the dawning of April 1st, will be as Canadian as Ontario.

They speak of Newfoundland's vast and still almost unexploited resources, of the magnificent scenery, its attraction to tourists, and the increased opportunities Newfoundland will have to develop industrially and economically.

While they say it is a "good thing," this federation, two of them are critical of the way the union has been arranged.

They would like to have seen it brought about by a responsible government, rather than an appointed commission government. They note the opposition in the Avalon Peninsula, the city of St. John's area, but a third man interviewed reports that from recent letters he has received, the opposition there is lessening, approval growing.

The Peterborough Newfoundlanders are quick to point out from their experience in Canada and Newfoundland, the social and educational benefits the union will bring to Newfoundland.

"Newfoundland should be an asset to Canada," said William Noftall, 74, of Bethune St. commenting on the union of that land with Canada. Mr. Noftall left his native St. John's at the age of 32 and has lived in Peterborough ever since.

He was of the opinion that the benefits would be mutual: Newfoundlanders would have a higher standard of living and the rest of Canada would have access to the natural resources of the 10th province which are still mainly undeveloped.

And by the way—the correct pronounciation according to Mr. Noftall has the accent falling on second syllable — NewFOUNDland. All others are the inventions of outsiders, he averred.

"I think it will be a big benefit to every Newfoundlander," he said. "The only thing they are worrying about is taxes."

Revenue From Duties

He explained that much of that country's present revenue is derived from duties imposed on imported goods; when that is lifted from the large volume of Canadian products which are brought in it could be a serious

Tourist Money To Aid Canada

Canadians should not feel they are getting the worst of the bargain when Newfoundlanders joins Canada, said Balfour Duder 563 Armour Road, of the CGE. Mr. Duder came to Canada from Newfoundland in 1939 and to Peterborough in 1941.

He felt that Canada would lose money at the first but the money would be more than made up over a short time. He added that when Newfoundland joins Canada, two large airfields, large zinc and iron ore deposits, timber and the large paper manufacturing industry will belong to Canada.

Newfoundland will help considerably with the American dollar situation. They have a large tourist income from the United States. The people from the States he said, come up to hunt moose and caribou. Fishing for salmon and tuna in Newfoundland is the best on the Atlantic shoreline of North America.

On the other hand Mr. Duder felt the Newfoundlanders were going to benefit more in the opportunities offered to them such as in education. Mr. Duder pointed out that a student can not obtain a degree in Newfoundland but can get the first two years of a four or five-year course. Students in Newfoundland have been going to the Maritimes to further their education.

"The general feeling in Newfoundland is that a responsible government should have been given the people before they voted," said Mr. Duder whose sister is still in Newfoundland.

"It is not that they did not want to join Canada. They wanted back their responsible government, which was taken away during the depression, before they voted."

C.N.R. Will Incur Big Losses Taking Over Nfld. Railway

OTTAWA, March 31 (CP) The Canadian National Railways, which showed a $33,532,000 deficit in 1948, will have "substantial" losses in 1949 through assumption of the Newfoundland Railway, R. C. Vaughan, president of the company said Tuesday.

Mr. Vaughan told the Commons Railway Committee—making its annual study of the CNR report—that he had no figures immediately available to show what the losses will be, or to show what deficits the Newfoundland Railway has shown in the past.

He was questioned by Harry R. Jackman (PC. Toronto-Rosedale), who suggested the CNR might be "not very eager" to take over the Newfoundland Railway.

Mr. Vaughan said the company had nothing to do with assuming operation of the island system. The company was not anxious to undertake any system which would show a loss.

Mr. Jackman and A. M. Nicholson (CCF. Mackenzie) said they thought the CNR should be operated as a business and not be loaded with encumbrances which would "embarrass the company with increasing deficits" which made the company look inefficient."

Mr. Vaughan said the company had been trying to get the committee to recognize this for years, by increasing its capitalization.

"And Mr. Jackman," interjected Transport Minister Chevrier, "has always been opposed to it." He was glad to see Mr. Jackman's interest in the welfare of the CNR, since, "I think it indicates a change of mind."

In answer to questions from Thomas Reid (L, New Westminster), Mr. Vaughan said the company did not propose to change the narrow gauge rail equipment of the new province to standard size. The smaller gauge track could be serviced by Newfoundland shops and there would be "no justification" for a change-over.

As the committee's study turned to new equipment, the talk shifted to diesel engines.

Mr. Vaughan said the CNR was constantly shifting more and more to the oil-burning engines as old equipment was replaced. The diesels were more economical in heavy work areas than steam locomotives because they required less attention between jobs.

Since the new oil discoveries in Alberta, the CNR was concentrating diesels in the west. A further 100 steam locomotives in the Edmonton area were being converted from coal to oil. However, the relative expense as between coal and oil depended on the prices of these products at different points.

The company was studying the whole diesel problem to discover exactly how far the program could be extended.

HARWOOD, March 31—(ENS)—A small fire of undetermined origin broke out Monday at the home of Ailbert Thorold in the village. Lawrence Isaac, a neighbor, discovered smoke issuing from the mattress of Mr. Thorold's bed and quickly gave the alarm. About 30 men gathered.

Now easier and quicker to bake flakiest pies with Swift'ning*—the NEW kind of shortening!

LEMON POSY PIE

It's easy to bake the kind of cakes and pies you always wished you could—with Swift'ning, the new kind of shortening. Quick-mixing Swift'ning saves time, work. Keeps without refrigeration. Get Swift'ning today!

Preheat oven 450°F. Use a 9-inch pie pan and only standard level measurements. Sift 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour and ½ tsp. salt in a bowl. Cut ¼ cup Swift'ning into flour with pastry blender or 2 knives until particles are size of small peas. Sprinkle cold water, a little at a time, over different parts of flour mixture, tossing lightly with a fork. ☛ Use as little water as possible—just enough to make dough hold together (3 tbsps. or less!) Place dough on waxed paper. Press gently with the paper into a ball. Let stand at room temperature for a few minutes.

LEMON FILLING

Soak 2 tsps. unflavoured gelatin in ⅓ cup cold water about 5 min. Put 3 slightly beaten egg yolks, ½ cup sugar, ¼ cup lemon juice, ¼ tsp. salt in a double boiler. Cook over boiling water until slightly thickened, stirring constantly. Add gelatin, stir until dissolved. Add 1 tbsp. grated lemon rind, remove from heat, chill until beginning to set. Beat 3 egg whites until fairly stiff; gradually add ¼ cup sugar, beating constantly. Fold into cooled gelatin mix. Pour into cooled pie shell; chill till set. Trim with prepared strawberry halves or other fruit, and the pastry leaves sprinkled with green-colored sugar.

Digestible—nutritious too!

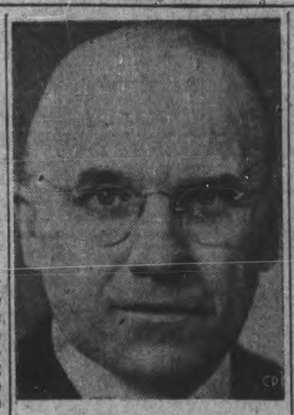
REQUESTED TO LEAVE — John Goss, Vancouver musician, was requested to leave the United States by immigration officials while attending the World Peace Conference in New York. Called away from the conference banquet by the officers, the unsuccessful Labor-Progressive candidate for Vancouver Point Grey in the 1945 B.C. elections, said: "I was naturally annoyed at being grilled by those U.S. officials, but agreed to leave rather than embarrass the conference."



Cultural Battle In Lorraine

STRASBOURG, March 31 (AP) —An unofficial cold war for the cultural allegiance of nearly 1,000,000 German - speaking Frenchmen is being waged between France and Germany in Alsace-Lorraine.

Since the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71, the people of these twice-annexed provinces have spent 47 years under German rule and 31 under French. The German influence thus remains strong especially in Alsace where the French-speaking section of the population was always smaller than in Lorraine. The French are doing their best to counteract it.

Since the liberation, German-language newspapers are required by government decree to print one quarter of their contents in French. Most of them get away with it by printing a single French-language article for each issue, though they do publish complete French editions for the section of the population which prefers them.

There is some evidence that French is slowly gaining ground. Before the war only about 10,000 French newspapers were sold daily in Alsace. Now, although the army garrison is much smaller, this figure has been more than quadrupled.

Police Practices To Be Probed

By The Canadian Press.

Winnipeg police practices are to be looked into by a commission of inquiry appointed by the Manitoba Attorney-General, J. O. McLenaghen.

The investigation arises from charges in Manitoba's Provincial Parliament that Winnipeg police as a general practice bar persons taken into custody from getting in touch with relatives, lawyers and friends—sometimes for several hours after the arrested person is put in the cells.

G. S. Thorvaldson (PC-Winnipeg), who brought up the matter in the Legislature, cited 10 cases which he said involved persons held incommunicado by police for several hours. He said that, in one case, police handcuffed a prisoner to cell bars after he tried to attract attention so he could telephone home.

In another case, a man arrested after a collision in which he was severely injured was denied a doctor, Mr. Thorvaldson said. In still another case a boy was held from 5 p.m. until the following noon without notification to his parents and was beaten by police, he said.

Given 7 Days Drunk Driving

Four constables gave evidence at city police court Wednesday of the condition of Ray McIlmoyle Mount Julian, when he was arrested January 24 on No. 28 Highway between Burleigh Falls and Young's Point. McIlmoyle was found guilty of drunk driving by Magistrate W. R. Philp K.C., and sentenced him to jail for seven days.

Provincial Constable A. R. Edwards told the court he was driving a police cruiser along the highway at 9 p.m. when he met a truck driven by McIlmoyle on the wrong side of the road. He had to pull the cruiser onto the shoulder of the road to let the truck pass and then he turned around and followed it. The truck was going from one side of the road to the other at a speed of approximately 30 m.p.h.

When he asked McIlmoyle to get out of the truck and walk along the road, the accused staggered, nearly fell, and had difficulty in speaking, the constable said.

There was a passenger, Roy McColl, in the truck, Constable Edwards said. He was in a dazed condition and a very sunny mood.

The constable said McIlmoyle was able to answer his questions intelligently.

Police Chief Samis of Lakefield said that when he arrived at the scene, McIlmoyle was unsteady on his feet.

Provincial Constable Gordon Langton, who saw McIlmoyle when he was brought in, described the accused's condition as "mellow, not excited and he could not stand straight." Provincial Constable Earl Berwick said McIlmoyle had difficulty in removing a windbreaker he was wearing.

McIlmoyle accounted for his irregular driving by stating that the steering gear was defective. The wheel could be turned three parts around before it would even catch. The truck had previously been upset when loaded with logs and the frame was bent as a result.

McIlmoyle did not dispute police evidence of a case of wine and two bottles in the truck, he said he had had none to drink. At 3 p.m. he had had two bottles of beer and two more at 5 p.m.

The magistrate said that he could understand that defective steering on the truck could be responsible for unsteady driving, he was satisfied that McIlmoyle had been drunk when driving along the highway.

Mr. Carnochan died in hospital on Sunday following an illness of a few days' duration. He was born in Dorset, Ont., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Carnochan, and before coming to the city four years ago lived in Haliburton. His wife, the former Ida Kirkpatrick, predeceased him.

Good Foul Shooting

Donald Griffin, star for the PCVS Senior Basketball team won Tuesday the M. E. Knox trophy, donated for foul shooting. He set a new record of 46 shots good out of 50 shots. Gordon Burns, who won the trophy last year with 45 good shots, was second this year with 44 shots out of 50.

Largest run of good shots was made by Griffin who had 19 shots without a miss. Burns missed two of his shots in the first ten. Thus, in order to win, he could miss only one shot in 40.

Al Northcott, co-star with Griffin on the Collegiate team, was third with 41 shots made good. Hugh Dibben was fourth with 40 shots good.

Contest was held in the gym at the YMCA.

Grader Operator Exonerated In Boy's Death

The death of David Mahood 7, who was run over by a city grader on March 23 was accidental, a five man jury decided on Wednesday at an inquest in city police court. The boy, who was killed instantly when a wheel of the grader ran over his head only a few yards from his home, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrie Mahood, 539 King George St.

The jury stated that Ambrose Clancy, 22, operator of the grader, was exonerated of any negligence and recommended that some device such as a mirror be attached to those types of vehicles so that the operator can see anyone walking or riding behind the grader.

Constable Vernon O'Donoghue, who investigated the accident, said Clancy told him he had run over a child. The boy was lying in the road covered by a blanket. He thought he was already dead.

Rear Vision Poor

To test the rear vision from the driver's seat, the constable climbed into the cab. He said it would be impossible for the driver to see any child of approximately the same size as the young lad, any closer than six feet six inches from the rear of the vehicle.

Herbie Tripp, a six-year-old playmate of young Mahood and the only witness to the accident, said his friend put his bicycle in a ditch and then ran to the tractor. The vehicle was moving forward at that time but then it backed up. He saw Mahood fall from the grader to the road and lie there as a wheel passed over him.

Young Tripp said he and Mahood were returning from buying candy at a nearby store when the accident occured.

The driver of the grader said he was keeping an eye on young Tripp whom he saw running alongside before reversing the vehicle. He had often had to warn children not to climb on to grader and when asked by the coroner Dr. Herbert N. Young how often he had to do this, he said possibly a dozen or two dozen times a day. He agreed with Crown Attorney John Bradshaw that the graders seemed to have an attraction for children.

James Burgess, superintendent of the Board of Work, said the grader driven by Clancy that day was a type commonly used for surfacing roads. He said the question of improving the vision from the driver's seat had been considered many times. It had been suggested that an additional man might stand on the platforms at the back of graders but the objection to that plan was that while he was keeping children away from the back, they might be playing around at the front. He said it might be possible to fix a mirror to enable the driver to see the road behind the grader.

Donald Little said that after the accident Clancy came into his service station to ask him to call a doctor and the police as he said he had run over a boy. Dr. C. F. Cahill, who examined the boy, said death was due to severe crushing and injury to the head.

LEAVING CABINET — Resources Minister J. A. MacKinnon has announced he will retire from the Cabinet at the end of this season of Parliament and will not contest another general election. Reports say he may be slated for a Senate appointment

WELL BLAZE EXTINGUISHED—Mopping up operations are going on at this Conteral-Leduc No. 1 gas well in the Lac la Biche area, 150 miles north-west of Edmonton. The well went wild under heavy gas pressure and burst into flames. Crews worked for 24 hours to stem the flow of gas which sent flames roaring 40 feet into the air. Only the scorched remains of the derrick are left stading. The white stream gushing from the ground to the left of the well is a double jet of water, only sign left of the disturbance.

Morrison, Bevan, Cripps Vie For Leadership

By JAMES McCOOK

LONDON, March 31 (CP)—If Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister, persuades his party the way of moderation is right he may be able to drop the "deputy" within a few years

If he fails, hard-hitting health Minister Aneurin Bevan may become leader of a new Labor government pledged to aggressive nationalization and similar ventures.

If Morrison and Bevin cancel each other out, then Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is expected to be Prime Minister as Attlee's successor.

The one certainty in such discussion is that Attlee, chose as a compromise leader in the midst of Labor divisions in the '30s, can continue as long as he wants. The wiry former social worker who never made an exciting speech in his life has led the Labor government through anxious years and made his own place secure in doing it.

Attlee's Achievement

The measure of Attlee's achievement is the anxiety of his party to have him lead it through the next general election, expected in 1950. This he expects to do, but after a recent bout of illness many predict he will resign soon afterwards, whether or not his party is successful in winning re-election.

Morrison, above all, wants Labor to go slow on further nationalization. He thinks a new program of nationalization would bring disaster by alienating the middle-class vote.

Bevan takes the opposite view. He would nationalize further for the sake of an integrated socialist state.

Lakefield To Have Booth For Tourists

LAKEFIELD, March 31 — (ENS).—Chamber of Commerce decided to erect a tourist booth in the village when the proposal was made by Harold Hamblin at a meeting of the Chamber on Tuesday.

Mr. Hamblin said that in view of the large sums of money spent by tourists in the village, he felt the Chamber should do all it could to accommodate them.

Walter Killoran's offer to build a tourist booth for $200 was accepted, and the booth is to be placed on the lot next to E. H. Northey's drug store, which Mr. Northey donated for this purpose.

Frank Payne, Frank Coyle and Walter Killoran were named as a commiteee to find a suitable location for a village sign on Highway 28.

Archie Stewart, Harold Hamblin and Jack Leonard were named to cavass the merchants.

Change Hinted Towards Spain

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., March 31—(CP)—A change is possible in the attitude of the United Nations towards Spain.

The majority of the world peace agency's 58 members have given the Franco regime the diplomatic cold shoulder for more than three years—since a general assembly resolution barred Spain from membership and recommended withdrawl of ambassadors.

Now some Latin-American countries are reported to ask the assembly which opens in New York April 5 to lift the diplomatic ban.

The United States has indicated she is warming to the idea of re-establishing normal relations with Spain.

Britain and the United States withdrew their ambassadors at U. N.'s behest and now are represented by lesser officals.

Spokesmen for the British delegation to U. N. said Britain will abstain from voting if the subject comes up.

Conservatives Making Drive For Welshman's Vote

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, March 31 (CP) The Conservatives have made a powerful bid for Welsh support in the next general election by proposing that there should be a cabinet minister with special responsibility for Wales, assisted by a council of Wales.

They believe this proposal will be more acceptable to the Welsh than the Labor government policy announced in November under which a Welsh council will advise the government on Welsh opinion and on departmental activities affecting the principality.

The Labor plan had an unfriendly reception from many Welshmen. They have long believed Wales is as much entitled to a cabinet minister as is Scotland, represented in the high councils of the United Kingdom by the Secretary of State for Scotland.

A Conservative statement of policy on Wales set forth.

"The character of the land itself, and consequently the way of life, in most of the principality is in sharp contrast to England; in fact, the border marks very fairly the limits of typical Welsh country.

"This geographical separateness is emphasized by separateness of race. Above all, the possession of Welsh as a spoken tongue and of Welsh literature as a live and growing heritage has helped to preserve the national consciousness and has in turn been fostered by it. The national individuality expresses itself in the religious and cultural life and the habits of thought and action of the people."

Other Proposals

The Conservative policy for Wales continues:

"We believe in the importance of Welsh local government and are opposed to sweeping amalgamations of counties and other areas."

Industrial policy in regard to Wales should promote the natural and steady growth of a strong stable and diversified structure, founded on the local basic industries of coal, iron and steel.

Overland communications should be improved and a reformed system of charges established to allow full exploitation of Welsh ports.

Quarrying and other minor industries of Wales should be given encouragement and "a fair field."

In rural areas, measures were needed to help hill-farming, water, electricity, roads and housing.

In education there should be greater opportunities for technical instruction.

Education should aim at retaining "the connection of Welsh children with the thought and traditions of their country and with the life of the area, especially the rural areas, to which they belong."

Shake-Up Continues

MOSCOW, March 31 (AP) — The Communist newspaper Pravda disclosed last night that D. T. Shepilov has succeeded M. A. Suslov as chief of the propaganda and agitation section of the central committee of the Communist party.

SPRING FEVERISH Paris fashion models turned the tables on NEA-Acme staff correspondent Rene Henry when he showed up to cover their beauty contest. The models thought him "tres beau" and made him an entry. They gave him the full treatment, measuring him lengthwise and sidewise and observing his form. Henry didn't win though.

By The Canadian Press

Ever wonder about the working lives of those neat-looking youngsters scurrying about the Provincial Legislatures?

The legislators couldn't get along without them. When a member needs anything a page boy is there to get it. It's all designed to save an MPP's energy and speed public business.

Some harsh words were voiced in the Ontario House the other night about allegedly bad conditions for the boys.

It was a young man who "went to bat" Wednesday night for the boys — 22-year-old Reid Scott, CCF member for Toronto Beaches and the youngest member of the Legislature. He contended that the fifth-floor room used as a page boys' lunch room was a veritable "Fagin's den in Oliver Twist." Other members raised questions of pay and working conditions generally.

But Dana Porter, minister of education, whose departmental estimates were under opposition fire at the time, thought the boys' life in legislative halls wasn't too strenuous and that they were paid reasonably well. He went on to give more facts and figures:

The boys in the Ontario Legislature—eight of them—are aged from 11 to 13 years. They receive $4 a day for a normal week day from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., six days a week. When a night session is under way, four of the boys go home; those remaining receive 75 cents for supper money. At the end of the night, they are sent home in taxi-cabs.

Funeral Service Held For Mrs. T. Forsyth

HAVELOCK, March 31. — (ENS).—The funeral of Mrs. Thomas Forsyth, 87, took place Wednesday. The service at the home of her son, William Forsyth, was conducted by the Rev F. R. Vanderburgh. The body was placed in the vault for burial later in Maple Grove Cemetery.

Pallbearers were Thomas Forsyth Jr., Douglas Forsyth, Earl Ketchen of Havelock (grandsons), Albert Tyler of Peterborough, Clarence Glenn and Harry Mann of Trent River.

Mrs. Forsyth fell in her bedroom on Thursday, receiving chest injuries, from which pneumonia developed.

Born in Belmont Township near Trent River, she was a daughter of the late John Sedgwick and Mary Buck. She was a life-long resident of this district and was an adherent of the United Church.

Surviving are her husband, a daughter, Mrs. William Ketchen; a son, William Forsyth of Havelock, and a brother, Matthew Sedgwick of Trent River.

CABINET MINISTER? — F. Gordon Bradley, attorney-general in the last Liberal Government in Newfoundland and a strong advocate of Confederation, is expected to be appointed to the federal cabinet as Newfoundland's representative. The first Newfoundland minister will be sworn in April 1.

Filibuster Rare In Legislature

TORONTO, March 31.—(CP)—Filibusters are rare in the Ontario Legislature, but the House seems to be heading into one as a result of the Government's attempt to have its charitable foundations bill pass second reading.

The delaying action started Wednesday night with a 4¾-hour speech—broken only for the dinner recess—by E.B. Jolliffe, leader of the CCF opposition. One of his party spokesmen said all 20 other CCF members planned to speak against the bill and keep the talkfest going.

It appeared that the Legislature, which extended its Tuesday night sitting until nearly 5 a.m. Wednesday, was due for an all-night siege of talks. But at 11 p.m. Mr. Jolliffe agreed to adjourn the debate until the next time the Government calls for discussion on the bill. He will then resume his discourse and probably his party members will be prepared to speak their pieces.

In United States governmental bodies, where filibusters develop once in a while, speakers seeking to prolong the debate usually tell stories, read newspaper clippings, quote scripture and reel off reports and statistics. Their main aim is to keep talking.

Governor-General Back

OTTAWA, March 31.—(CP)—Governor-General Viscount Alexander returned to Ottawa Wednesday after his trip to California and Western Canada. He will attend ceremonies here Friday marking Newfoundland's entry into Confederation.

Tells IODE Chapter About Yellowknife

NORWOOD, March 31 (ENS)—Mrs. R. K. Tedford was the speaker at the March meeting of 40th Northumberland Chapter, IODE, on Thursday. She spoke about Yellowknife and showed snaps taken by her brother, Mr. Walter Cleland, who lives there. Mrs. A. M. Weir, regent, presided.

Mrs. H. Pearce and Mrs. William Chamberlain will be in charge of the overseas box for April. A salvage drive was planned for next month. It was announced that the annual convention in Hamilton was open to all members.

Mrs. James Baskin and Mrs. C. A. Copp, were appointed to convene a May Day bridge party.

Mrs. G. W. LaBrash signed the register as a new member.

Discussion regarding bringing in French students took place with some of the members expressing their willingness to take one.

Mrs. Weir thanked Mrs. Tedford for her address. Mrs. W. H. Giffen and Mrs. Weir were hostesses at the tea hour. Tea conveners for the April meeting will be Mrs. H. R. Atkinson, Mrs. C. A. Copp, and Mrs. de C. B. Cuteliffe.

Deny Conscription

BERLIN, March 31 (Reuters)—German authorities in the Soviet zone Wednesday denied reports that young men were being conscripted for compulsory police service. The authorities said that so many had volunteered that no compulsory recruiting was necessary.

Of Interest to Women

four-year-old Carol Flint and five-year-old Jimmie Clark, stole the show. To the one male in the audience, an admirer and friend of their own age, their perfomance was superb. The children's clothes were practical and serviceable choices for dress-up and play time. Carol was the biggest hit looking just like Little Red Riding Hood with her long golden curls under the button-on hood of a raincoat, exactly like the material and style. She carried a plaid taffeta umbrella—just her size. Jimmie typified the well-dressed young man in a polo coat, cap to match, brown fabric gloves and brown oxfords.

The children presented a small problem when they kept insisting to take home the clothes they modelled as well as the doll, wagon and toys they had used as props.

Selections for the teen-ager were shown by Barbara Ann Roy. She had a nice idea for Easter Sunday in a cabbage red wool suit, matching felt hat with roll brim, a smartly fitted "clutch" bag and gloves in the same shade. She wore a shortie topcoat in light blue that would also go with her striped cotton dress for summer. Bridging the age gap, Lynda Allen showed mothers what an eight-year-old likes. Blue chambray pedal-pushers with plaid trim dressed up with an eyelet trimmed white cotton blouse like an everyday choice throughout the holiday season.

Sports Togs

Going fishing this summer? Well, the very outfit for a day at the trout stream is blue denim jeans, doubly stitched in red, and a white tee shirt. Wilma Goodwin's exuberant spirits and wide smile were keyed to the good sportsmanship of her togs. The bright panel of her bathing suit can be seen miles away it was said, offering protection—or invitation—from novice fly casters and such. Ready for any type of outdoor activity, she wore a smart plaid topper with air force blue slacks.

A trio of cottons, plain, striped and plaid, offered splendid solution to the 90 days. Two were handy button-fronters, the other had pretty scalloped detail on the skirt and a picture neckline. Colorful scarves enhanced each. A party dress was tiny figured dark crepe with softly pleated skirt, belted at the waist. A two-piece office dress shown boasted two lovable qualities — never shrink, never wrinkle.

Two Silhouettes

Irridiscent is a word appearing often in fashion write-ups this year. This time it applies to a two-tone raincoat, styled with hood and pack-all pockets. The two shapes in coat outlines were modelled, all with detail at the back. Mae Bertrand combined a lighter-than-navy princess coat with navy felt cloche, and over-shoulder bag, gloves and shoes in red. With a red twill loose casual Yvonne Leonard wore a pretty demi-bonnet straw in grey, matching bag and rayon gloves. Differing from the classic suits was a grey gabardine model worn by Belva Payne which had tabs in the gores—a new note. Mary McCabe showed the popular shortie in grey wool, nicely gathered in the back to a rounded yoke. Her flower-trimmed hat with open crown was very spring-like and she carried a dainty box type handbag.

The commentary was interspersed with beauty hints and interesting facts. For instance: the first Butterick pattern was made in 1890 and started women making their own clothes.

The show concluded with a ring of laughter as "Mr. and Mrs. Schultz" clowned in beach wear of the dim past.

Refreshments were served by the models, assisting Miss Savigny, Mrs. Allan and Mrs. Helen Carey, Miss Hazel Guerin, Miss Wilda Armitage and Mr. I. Roy, who had helped with the arrangements.

Door prize winner was Miss Thelma Bertrand.

Store Girls Entertain By Modelling Clothes

Girls on the staff of Zeller's Limited entertained their friends Wednesday evening at a small-scale fashion show. It was eleven years since a showing of this kind had been held in the store. Miss Elaine Savigny, newly appointed personnel director, instituted the affair and its splendid reception may prompt her to plan further showings.

Pushing racks of spring and summer clothes aside, the girls made room for a wide stage with carpeted runways on the second floor. They created the effect of a garden full of flowers, enclosed by white picket fencing, with a view of trees, rocks and water in the background.

Commentator Mrs. Mary Allen traced the evolution of present-day fashions from the first Egyptian skirted garment, in a preface to the showing. Pictures in the family album came to mind as she recalled the Renaissance period, bustles, the duster coats used for motoring in 1910 and the neat and modest Gibson Girls. Within the memory of many present long-waisted dresses of the somewhat vulgar '20's which she mentioned, and the dirndl skirt that is still in favor, introduced in '30 and '40.

Gibson-Wellman

The wedding of Helen Alice Wellman, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Wellman, 600 Bolivar St., to Kenneth John Gibson, took place Saturday at the home of the bride's parents. The groom is the eldest son of Mr. M. Ernest Gibson and the late Mrs. Gibson.

The Rev. E. C. Moore officiated at the ceremony assisted by the Rev. Dr. D. Bruce Gordon, Miss Ethelwyn Gibson, sister of the groom, played the wedding music.

The bride wore an afternoon dress of cameo blue crepe with matching mohair headdress. She carried a ring bouquet of pink roses and white hyacinth with white satin baby streamers tied with tiny rosebuds. Mrs. Earle H. Wellman, her sister-in-law, was attendant, attired in blue crepe with headdress of pink mohair, and carried a ring bouquet of pink carnations with white hyacinth.

Mr. Ernest Gibson was groomsman for his brother.

For her wedding trip the bride chose a grey gabardine suit, wine topcoat, navy accessories and carried a brown squirrel neckpiece.

Mr. and Mrs. Gibson will live in Peterborough.

Tells Women "Still In Prams"

TORONTO, March 31—(CP)—Agnes Macphail thinks there will be less talking and fewer night sessions when more women get into legislative bodies.

"It's a queer place, the legislature," said Miss Macphail, C.C.F. member of Ontario for York East. "They seem to think time runs out on March 31 and they have to get everything settled before then."

She slipped away from a night sitting of the Ontario House to attend a program marking the 40th anniversary of International Women's Day. She told her listeners that women "have to be twice as good as men to get recognition—and they are lucky to get it then."

Politically speaking, "women are still in their prams," said Miss Macphail.

TEN BALES OF CLOTHING were packed on Wednesday for Europe in the basement of George Street United Church by members of their Women's Missionary Society. It is a twice-yearly affair and they estimate each shipment is valued at more than $1,000. Shown above, Left to Right, are Mrs. J. M. Fanning, Mrs. Fred Horton, Miss Thurza Allen, Mrs. F. W. Burnham, convener, Mrs. R. Parnall, and Mrs. H. S. Powers.

PRINCE OF WALES SCHOOL

Father's night, held Tuesday by Prince of Wales Home and School Association, was a complete success with a large gathering of parents participating. The meeting was entirely taken over by fathers, Mr. John Donaldson in the chair, Mr. W. Baggs as secretary and Mr. H. Kearns as treasurer.

The Rev. H. G. Douglas conducted devotions, opening with scripture reading, followed with a few fitting remarks. His theme was a Chinese saying "There should be another point on the compass called 'Where are you'?" but not meaning to determine time or place he pointed out but "Where we stand in the good we do in this life and where we are in our children's thinking."

Senior choir which won first place in the Kiwanis Festival sang under direction of Mr. H. Wilson, accompanied by Miss Musa Cox. Their numbers were a negro spiritual and the Festival number "A Funny Felow". Mr. R. Flagler contributed two solos and was accompanied by Mrs. E. Foster.

Mr. B. W. Switzer, PCVS teaching staff, gave an address on secondary schools and the industrial course. He stressed that the industrial course is in no way to be considered inferior to the academic, pointing out there are few differences.

Aim of the industrial department is to turn out a superior person well fitted for work in local industries with the fundamentals of a trade as well. Even to specialize in a trade, all must take certain basic subjects. Mr. Switzer said the industrial course will stand up under scrutiny with any course in school.

Occasional guidance tests are taken for ability and aptitude and there is group counselling where courses are discussed. Each student is counselled individually twice in Grade 9. If he is doubtful of what he should take up a general course is advised.

The school tries to place students in work for which they show exceptional ability with the feeling that if employer and employee are satisfied, it will give the school a good name, the teacher said.

Mr. Q. McKinney told interesting sho[illegible]es of songs and led in community singing of sea shanty that was into most heartily. Later, folk dancing was enjoyed.

Attendance prize was won by Mr. H. Wilson's class. A motion to send a delegate to the Home and School convention in Toronto at Easter was passed.

The evening closed with serving of refreshments.

Queen Alexandra March Tea Draws More than 200 Friends

Teas had not been held in the Queen Alexandra School for five or six years until the Home and School Association decided on a March Tea and staged it Wednesday afternoon. Aim of the executive was to promote sociability among the members, but the result had widespread effect with representatives of all the city associations swelling attendance to more than 200.

Mrs. O. J. Hayward, president, and Mrs. P. S. Dallin, vice-president, received the guests in the Kindergarten Room after four o'clock. Seating accommodation was taxed so that they had to queue for a time, but the waiting was taken with good nature and added to the exchanges of friendliness.

Seemingly ample supplies of home cooking were laid out on two tables in the hall. In an hour they were bare and attendants raided stocks in the kitchen to meet customers' demands. Mrs. A. Bonney was in charge, assisted by Mrs. G. Norriss, Mrs. B. Boucher and Mrs. B. Whitton.

Grade 8 girls, Lois Jackson, Carolyn Hendren, and Mildred Hayward, donned colorful fancy aprons and stood behind the fudge table to help Mrs. E. S. Kingdon with sales. They had decorated the booth with yellow streamers and piled the small containers of candy on large basket trays for an attractive effect.

The tea room needed little decoration, for walls and tables displayed the youngsters' work and novelties as several sizes of wooden Dutch shoes. The table was arranged by Mrs. George Gatfield using a white linen cloth with cutwork and dainty pink tapers in tall crystal candelabra flanking a bouquet of pink carnations.

Filling tea cups were Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, Miss Ruth Telford, Miss Helen Staples and Mrs. A. W. Nelson.

Mrs. G. H. Hutchinson, tea room convener, had as assistants Miss H. Bonnycastle, Miss B. Hart, Miss G. Cox, and Miss I. Connolly of the teaching staff, Mrs. R. Sager, Mrs. J. Arnott, Mrs. C. McBride, Mrs. A. Axford, and Mrs. J. McGee. The plates were replenished by Mrs. George Coleman, Jr., and Mrs. R. Cochrane, and Mrs. C. Moore made the tea.

Delightful soft music encouraging relaxation and enjoyment of the atmosphere was provided by Mrs. A. Black, Mrs. G. Wilson Craw, and Mrs. E. J. Johnson, alternating at the piano.

Mrs. B. Baker and Mrs. W. Dorrington were presiding at the treasurer's table during the tea.

DOROTHY DIX

Discouraged Maid Wonders Why the Men Avoid Her

Dorothy Dix

DEAR MISS DIX: What's wrong with me? I am a girl of 25 who has good looks, intelligence, and agreeable personality, pretty clothes, a good job, everything that the average business girl has, except boy friends. I meet many nice fellows with whom I would like to step out for an evening's entertainment, but after the first date I hear no more from them, although I am a gay and witty conversationalist and I never suggest places that are expensive to go to, nor do I put a crimp on their purses.

I am not particularly interested in getting married. All I want is a little male companionship once in a while. I work with a bunch of married men and they are always teasing me about never having any boy friends. Will you please tell me what is wrong with my technique in dealing with men? Every year I get a little older and still no good times, no dances, no dates.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Why some girls have dates to burn and other girls never even have a cut-in at a dance, is a mystery that not even Sherlock Holmes could solve. No one knows the secret of what makes a girl popular with men. It isn't beauty because many a homely girl is the belle of the ball. It isn't brilliance of intellect, for men are more apt to flock around dumb Doras than they are college graduates.

No Answer

Just why one girl sits at home evenings with Mama and Papa while her sister dances her slippers off, is just one of those things for which there is no answer. Life has not many tragedies that are bitterer than that of the young girl who is eager for fun and good times, but who finds herself a wall-flower. But Betty need not feel that she is a failure because she has no steady. Many a girl who has no dates in her teens has a wedding date with her, or some man old enough to appreciate her.

So don't get discouraged because you have so few dates, if any. Mr. Right will come your way some day, and if he was hard to get, he will be easy to keep. And that's something these days.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married three years and have two small boys. I was very happy until my husband stopped taking me out. The reason he did that is because I am on the outs with my in-laws, and he says there is no one he would trust to take care of the children while we went to a show or a night club. He says we should wait until they are of school age, then it will be safe to leave them with a baby-sitter.

I love my boys and husband; but, oh, Miss Dix, I never went out much when I was in my teens and I do so long for the bright lights and to dress up and go places and have some fun. I go to the show once a week, but it isn't any pleasure when I have to go by myself. What can you do to help me?

C. C. C.

ANSWER: When you have little children, you have given hostages to fortune, and you are bound to consider their welfare before you do your own pleasure. So your husband is right in thinking that you should stay at home with your babies, instead of gadding around to night clubs. There is no denying that small children, with their incessant demands for attention, are a hard and exhausting chore; yet you brought them into the world and they are your job, and one that you dare not flunk.

But while I can but urge you to stay at home with your boys at night instead of going to places of amusement, I sympathize with you in longing for the gaieties that you have never had. It is hard to spend your evenings changing didies when your feet are aching to dance.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Don't you think it only right for my husband to stay at home with the children and me on Sunday, as that is his only day free from work? I work at home six days a week and only ask that my husband spend his Sundays with me, but he always wants to go places and do things.

This makes me very unhappy. Should I keep on forgiving him for the sake of our marriage and continue to be miserable?

SAD WIFE.

ANSWER: I think you are altogether in the wrong about this and that, instead of fighting with your husband over his wanting some relaxation on Sunday, you should try to make it the pleasantest day of all the week.

Any man or woman who habitually works six days a week needs rest and change. So why don't you bundle your husband and the children in the car and go on a picnic? Or, if the weather is not propitous for such an outing, why not cook up a dinner that will make Sunday a festive occasion? Most husband and wife troubles are just the result of boredom.

Newfoundlander

blow to the treasury. But he contended that this is unlikely as Federal authorities and present Newfoundland administrators have probably reached a satisfactory arrangement.

Mr. Noftall recalled that when he was a boy houses were held freehold, generally on a 99-year lease. There was no taxation on the property.

Dismissing stories of proverty in Newfoundland he said, "I don't think the cost of living is any higher down there than it is in Canada at the present time."

In fact a couple of years ago he returned by plane to his native island found many of the commodities that were practically unobtainable here quite plentiful in St. John's.

"You could buy anything you wanted, clothing, shirts boots, washing compounds, chocolate bars—lots of everything."

"The 'out harbor people' (i.e. those living outside St. John's) don't live so well, but there is never any real poverty," he said. "But when there is a bad fishing season they have a hard time."

Not a Good Fishrman

"Oh, I was a terrible fishermen," he told the Examiner when asked if he had ever earned his bread and butter at Newfoundland's leading industry. He confined that the roll of the sea made him seriously ill—so ill in fact that even the thought of it caused sickness.

As a youth he used to ship out of St. John's and remain away for the three-month fishing season off the Labrador coast. Most of the catch was netted near the White Bear Island, he recalled.

One of the stories Mr. Noftall still likes to tell his friends is that after three months fishing and despite the discomfort of seasickness he made only enough money to buy a barrel of flour. After that he apparently decided it was more profitable to sell the flour than to catch the fish because he entered the grocery trade and has remained in it since.

Newfoundland has approximatly 6,000 miles of sea coast and travel is cheapest and easiest by boat. There is one railway line, roughly following the coast, Mr. Noftall said, and that is 576 miles long and extends from Port au Basque (the railhead port nearest Canada) to St. John's.

To supplement these "there are a few highways being built now," he stated; and as soon as Confederation is completed these should be both increased and improved.

When the plebiscite was held the pro-Confederationists were a bare majority, he pointed out; but he added that the islanders are becoming increasingly favorable to the idea. To illustrate this he cited the case of his niece who lives at Grand Falls in Newfoundland, she voted against Confederation but since has changed her mind, and according to a letter received from her so has a majority of those who originally dissented.

"Much of the opposition to Confederation came from the Water Street merchants in St. John's," he said. "They were dead against it, but not so the people around the island; they were the ones that carried the vote."

Coincidentally Mr. Noftall went to school in St. John's with Canada's foremost poet, Professor E. J. Pratt, whose special poem for the occasion appears today.

"I remember him well," said Mr. Noftall, "he was a very clever scholar. I've often been going to look him up when I was in Toronto, but never have."

The Rev. J. T. Pratt, father of Professor Pratt, was a Methodist minister "on the circuit" who used to make the rounds of the various churches. Mr. Pratt's ability as a preacher is still remembered by Mr. Noftall, who left his birthplace in 1907 to come to Peterborough.

LONG STARE

Fish do not close their eyes during sleep.

Long Service Pins Given 9 Employees

Long service scrolls and pins in recognition of 10, 15, and 20 years' service with the Shell Oil Company, Ltd., were presented to nine employees of the company at a dealers' meeting held on Monday night in the Canadian Legion hall, Murray Street. Those honored were: Kim Dorgan, T. H. Cunningham, R. Callan, H. Brentnell, R. Sheehy, W. H. Wunker, M. Carter, E. Gordon and S. Bell. Presentations were made by W. Dessoy of Toronto, division manager, who was introduced by L. Philp, Lindsay branch manager.

The meeting, the annual one, was attended by dealers from Lindsay, Coe Hill, and Peterborough, with F. Deller, Peterborough branch manager, as chairman.

Tax Action Peremptory Says Counsel

J. C. N. Currelly criticized what he described as the peremptory action of the income tax authorities in prosecuting Frederick Charles Marshall and Peter Bruce Munro, executor of the estate of Charles Hayward, only eight months after Mr. Hayward's death. Mr. Currelly admitted that the law stipulated returns must be filed within six months of death, but he claimed that was unusual for legal action to be taken so soon after expiry of that period. It was almost impossible to close an estate in that short space of time, he declared.

Mr. Currelly asked for remand for sentence on a plea of guilty but after Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, said he had no legal right under the circumstances to do this, the plea was changed to not guilty and the case adjourned for two weeks.

It was stated that Mr. Hayward died on May 1 last year as the result of a train accident. The charge was laid eight months later and at that time it had not been possible for the executors to determine the income of the dead man.

No Reply To Letter

P. D. Scollard, prosecuting, said the accused executors had received a registered letter as early as November last year. If they had replied then explaining the circumstances, he felt sure no legal action would have been taken. It happened so often, Mr. Scollard said, that people ignored the registered letters from the income tax collector and then they complained when prosecutions followed.

Mr. Currelly still maintained that the authorities had acted peremptorily and the magistrate said "I think it may be rather fast action."

Two Fines

Raymond Denis Bacon was fined $125 on a third prosecution for failing to file returns for the years 1943-47 and Hector John Bradley $25 for the same offence in respect of the year 1943.

Two Liquor Offences

G. B. Simmonds pleaded guilty to two liquor offences before Magistrate W. R. Philp K.C., at city police court today. He was fined $10 with $2.50 costs for drinking while under 21 years of age and $15 with $2.50 costs for illegal possession of liquor. Eight bottles of ale were confiscated.

Suspend Licence But Finds None To Suspend

Gordon Chapel avoided suspension of his driver's licence, which would have resulted from his conviction today on a plea of guilty to careless driving, because he had no licence. After W. B. Gordon had pleaded for leniency and Magistrate W. R. Philp K.C., had imposed a fine of $10 with $2.50 costs, it was found he had no license to surrender.

Chapel, who gave his address as 416 Stewart St., was said by Crown Attorney John Bradshaw to have broken a telegraph pole at Reid St. and Chemong highway when driving an army type jeep late at night on March 19.

Mr. Gordon said the accused was a returned serviceman who was living at Lindsay at the time of the incident. He was a mechanic and had to drive back and forth between his home and Peterborough. The truck had a right hand drive and was a high vehicle which was inclined to be top heavy.

The accused had been taking the corner from Reid St. into the Chemong highway, Mr. Gordon said, and might possibly have been driving too fast. He was unable to swing the vehicle around the in the beaten track of Reid St. cut off as it joins the highway. The truck went on to the snow bank and the driver lost control.

Mr. Gordon claimed that a heavy steel vehicle such as the jeep would have little resistance to a wooden pole and he thought the offence was not as serious as might first appear.

Final Tribute Paid Mrs. Jane Clifford

The funeral of Mrs. Jane Clifford, who died March 25 in Peterborough Civic Hospital, was held on Monday afternoon from the Comstock funeral home. The service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. James Semple of George Street United Church.

Mrs. Clifford was the only child of the late Ann Hibbert and John McRoberts. She was born in Cartwright and later lived in Warkworth for several years before coming to Peterborough, where she spent the rest of her life. Her illness extended over most of a year, during that time her acceptance of pain and suffering was an inspiration to those who came in contact with her.

Her husband predeceased her two years ago. Mrs. Clifford was a member of George Street United Church and a faithful member of the WMS. She was a niece of Mr. James McRoberts of South Monaghan, Andrew McRoberts of Calgary, Alberta, and a cousin of Mrs. J. O. Ball, Port Hope highway, Mrs. W. Fallis of Millbrook and Mrs. Wm. Carbrey of Norwood.

Pallbearers were Clifford White, Albert Jones, Harold Ball, Lloyd Raper, Albert Bonney and Herb Trotter.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, March 31—(CP)—The local livestock market just stood still up to noon. Early sales were too few to establish prices and only 40 cattle and 30 hogs were received. Some 150 head were left from yesterday.

Hogs were steady at $31.75 for grade A and $31.35 for grade B1. Sows were $24, dressed.

O Canada As National Anthem Gets Divided Support In House

OTTAWA, March 31—(CP).—A proposal that "O Canada" be adopted as this country's National Anthem stirred the Commons to patriotic debate yesterday, but found divided support.

It developed from a motion by Phileas Cote (L—Matapedia-Matane), author of a similar debate-provoking resolution last year calling for a distinctive flag, as the Chamber devoted its first sitting to a study of private members' proposals.

The three-hour discussion ended without the resolution coming to a vote and it promptly fell to the bottom of a list of 40 other private motions, with little likelihood of revival this session.

Mr. Cote, moving that the French and English versions of "O Canada" be adopted as the National Anthem, said he believed the time had arrived for such a step and added he made the suggestion without prejudice to "God Save the King," which should remain as the "common denominator" of the Commonwealth.

Rene Beaudoin (L-Vaudreuil-Soulanges), expressing approval of a national anthem, moved an amendment to add the words "as 'God Save the King' is the anthem of all the nations of the Commonwealth" at the end of Mr. Cote's motion.

The ensuing debate found divided opinion within most parties, with only one leader, M. J. Coldwell, CCF chieftain, coming out in support of the resolution. He felt it fitting that this country adopt the symbols of a developing nationhood.

Special Estimates

Just before the abbreviated afternoon sitting adjourned. Finance Minister Abbott tabled special supplementary estimates of what the government will spend in Newfoundland in the first fiscal year after her entry into Confederation. Totalling $55,126,618, they cover the extension of Federal services to the new province.

Touching off the Commons debate, Mr. Cote noted that the government had ordered the playing of "O Canada" and that the conventions held by major political parties last year had suggested the song be accepted as the anthem.

Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) took issue with the proposal and, pointing to the approaching union with Newfoundland, suggested the people of Newfoundland should have something to say on the suggestion. Parliament should be careful about influencing the people on the way in which they expressed their loyalty.

Mr. Coldwell expressed belief that "O Canada" had come to be accepted across the country. At the same time, Canada should continue to revere "God Save the King" as the symbol of her membership in the British Commonwealth. Besides a national anthem, she also should have a national flag.

T. L. Church (PC-Toronto-Boadview), felt this was the wrong time to introduce such a proposal. In any event, "God Save the King" was both a prayer and an anthem while "O Canada" was neither because it did not refer to God, the King or the Queen.

HONORS BRAVE SCOUT—Viscount Alexander, Chief Boy Scout for Canada, made a special trip to Queen Alexandra Solarium at Victoria to invest Herbie Sam, 14-year-old crippled Chinese-Canadian youth, with the Cornwall badge, a high Scout honor. Too ill to be moved, Herbie is a victim of tuberculosis of the spine, and has spent the last nine years on his stomach.

Youngsters In Durham Take Pills

Barber Loans Jeep To Rush Tots To City Hospitals

MILLBROOK, April 1—Prompt and effective action by Dr. J. W. Wright of Millbrook and Dr. George W. McNeill of Pontypool was credited with saving this week the lives of three Durham county children who swallowed quantities of medicinal pills.

Jan Scott, 21-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Scott of Millbrook, was an overnight patient at Peterborough Civic Hospital, seriously ill from sleeping tablets of luminol which he had taken from his mother's purse. It was reported that the little fellow had been ill with a severe cold, and that he had followed his mother into the kitchen, climbed on to a chair, and obtained the pill box from a purse his mother had left on a shelf.

Dr. Wright's swift action in the use of a stomach pump and fast motor trip to Peterborough Civic Hospital resulted in complete recovery of the child who was taken back to his home the following day. Hospital officials said the pills would probably have been fatal in a short time.

Two Discharged

At St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, two Pontypool children were discharged today fully recovered from chocolate-coated laxative pills which it is believed they thought to be 'chocolate bars.' They are Linda, two, and Robert, three, of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Stevenson of Pontypool. They were admitted to the hospital in a serious condition.

When Dr. George W. McNeill was called by telephone he gave instructions for emergency treatment, and then called the local barber, Harry Carter, to bring his jeep to the Stevenson house for a trip to the Peterborough hospital. The children received the doctor's attention and were bundled up for the drive to the city. Roads riven by the lifting effect of frost hampered Dr. McNeill and his driver in their mercy rush to Peterborough.

It was believed that each of the two children swallowed about 15 of the laxative pills. They were taken to their home at Pontypool today after an experience that brought them close to death.

These three little ones from neighboring Durham villages owe their lives to the combination of quick decision and skill in emergency of the two doctors, Dr. Wright and Dr. McNeill, the facilities of the Peterborough hospitals and in the case of the Pontypool children, to the cooperative aid of Harry Carter and his jeep.

No More Christmases For 'Nubbins' Hoffman; Outlives Doctors' Predictions By 5 Years

CHEYENNE, Wyo., April 1—(AP).—Fragile little Forest Hoffman who was better known as "Nubbins," died in his home early Thursday.

He was only seven. He was the boy who saw five more Christmases than doctors thought he would.

He had spent much of his last four years in hospitals and operating rooms.

Yet when he took a turn for the worse early in March, Nubbins told his mother: "I don't want to go to the hospital again."

The boy fell into a coma more than a week ago and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Hoffman, felt the end finally was close at hand.

In November, 1944, he suffered from a bladder obstruction and doctors told his parents they feared he wouldn't live long. So the Hoffmans decided to celebrate Christmas early for the son they had adopted soon after he was born.

A sympathetic country insisted on being counted in on the celebration. Presents and messages of cheer streamed into the Hoffman home from all over the United States.

Twice in subsequent years "Nubbins" was in a Denver hospital when Christmas came around.

Minimum Old Age Pension Raised $2.50 Monthly By Ontario Government

New Basic Rate Will Be $32.50 Per Month; Done As Expression Of Good Faith After Federal Government Fails To Act

TORONTO, April 1—(CP).—Welfare Minister Goodfellow announced in the Legislature today the province will increase the basic old age pension from $30 a month to $32.50. Mr. Goodfellow said the Ontario Government "has consistently stated that it is prepared to pay the provincial share of any basic pension set by the Federal Government."

"However, since the Federal Government has not indicated in its budget any intention to increase the basic pension at this time, the Government of Ontario, as a practical expression of its good faith, is increasing the payments made to old-age pensioners to an amount equal to 25 per cent. of a basic $40-a-month pension."

"In other words, every pensioner who is eligible to receive the basic $30 a month set by the Federal Act will now receive $32.50 a month."

A pensioner who is not eligible under the Federal Act to receive the full basic pension will receive an increase from the Ontario government in proportion to the amount of the Federal pension he receives.

Private institutions maintaining old age pensions would benefit from these additional payments, Mr. Goodfellow said. With the $3 a month paid these institutions under the Charitable Institutions Act, their total monthly papments will be $5.50 in addition to any amount they receive from the Federal share of the pension.

Dominion Pays Most

Under the present pension scheme pensioners receive a basic $30 a month of which the Federal government pays 75 per cent and the Ontario government 25 per cent. The $2.50 monthly increase announced today represents 25 per cent of an additional $10 a month which the Ontario government feels the Dominion should pay.

In addition the Ontario government at present pays a monthly bonus of up to $10 in cases of special need.

Churchill Says A-Bomb Saves West From Reds

BOSTON, April 1 — (AP). — Doughty old Winston Churchill Thursday night thrust out his bulldog jaw and told the world that:

"Europe would have been Communized, like Czechoslovakia, and London under bombardment some time ago but for the deterrent of the atomic bomb in the hands of the United States."

But, he said, "war is not inevitable."

Speaking of the "war of nerves" he advised the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Mid-Century Convocation:

"If we persevere steadfastly together, and allow no appeasement of tyranny and wrong-doing in any form, it may not be our nerve or the structure of our civilization which will break — something else will break, and peace may yet be preserved."

The 74-year-old former Prime Minister of Britain said that the question, "Is time on our side?" was "not a question that can be answered within strict limits."

"We have certainly not an unlimited period of time before a settlement should be achieved.

"The utmost vigilance should be practised, but I do not think myself that violent or precipitate action should be taken now."

Churchill repeatedly asserted that "we have no hostility to the Russian people," adding:

"We seek nothing from Russia but goodwill and fair play."

Bradley Secretary Of State As St. Laurent Welcomes Newfoundland

OTTAWA, April 1 — (CP). — Appointment of F. Gordon Bradley of St. John's as Canadian Secretary of State and as Newfoundland's first representative in the Federal Cabinet was announced today by Prime Minister St. Laurent. The Prime Minister made the announcement during ceremonies on Parliament Hill to mark Newfoundland's entry into Confederation Thursday night as a 10th province.

Mr. Bradley, Attorney-General in the last Liberal Government in Newfoundland, succeeds Hon. Colin Gibson as Secretary of State. Mr. St. Laurent made no reference to a new post for Mr. Gibson, who is in St. John's attending union ceremonies there.

However before the announcement was made there was speculation that Resources Minister MacKinnon will retire from that portfolio and be succeeded by Mr. Gibson. Mr. MacKinnon announced a short time ago that he plans to retire from the cabinet and from parliament at the end of this session for reasons of health.

Mr Bradley, who at age 61, has a reputation as one of Newfoundland's top criminal lawyers. He was Attorney-General of Newfoundland from 1928 to 1932 when the Island still had responsible government.

Equal Partner

The Prime Minister welcomed Newfoundland into Confederation as a "full and equal" partner with the older provinces to share with the rest of Canada "in the work and in the wealth of our nation."

"Together," he told the new Canadians, "we shall strive, under God's guidance, and with confidence in our future, to build a greater and better land."

Mr. St. Laurent extended a welcome to Newfoundland in a 30-minute ceremony held on Parliament Hill at noon and broadcast through Canada and the new Island province. It followed a similar ceremony held in St. John's, where Sir Albert Walsh was sworn in as the first Lieutenant-Governor of Newfoundland.

Mr. St. Laurent, after delivering his welcome address, mounted a new and freshly-painted scaffold to strike the first blow in the carving of the Newfoundland heraldic symbol on an empty shield above the archway under the peace tower. The spot was left blank more than a quarter-century ago when the buildings were constructed and the emblems of the other provinces carved.

Never Strangers

Directing his first words to the new province, Mr. St. Laurent told the people of Newfoundland that in "greeting you as fellow citizens we do not feel that you in Newfoundland have ever been strangers."

"In peace we have been happy to live and work beside you. In two wars we have been glad that you were in our company and we in yours. We have the same traditions and the same way of life. We are both proud of our association in the British Commonwealth of Nations. We have shared—and continue to share—a common loyalty to His Majesty the King."

Say Suspicion Kept Police Force Divided

BELLEVILLE, April 1 (CP) — Two Provincial police constables today told Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay of suspicion and dissension within the Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

The two officers generally confirmed the testimony Constable J. E. Keays has given before Mr. Justice Mackay's Royal Commission, investigating the constable's allegations against seven police officers and a Crowd Attorney.

Other witnesses have told of two "teams" in the police detachment, one, comprising Constable Keays and Constables J. W. Richmond and C. E. Siple; the other comprising Cpl. Sam Ervine and Constable J. B. Driscoll and Constable G. R. Purdy.

Cpl. Ervine, Constable Driscoll and Constable Purdy are among the men named by Constable Keays in his allegations of fraud perjury and maladministration of justice.

Constable Richmond and Constable Siple testified today.

Constable Richmond, 25-year-old Canadian army veteran, testified that on Dec. 19, 1947, he was asked by Constable Keays to look at the police diary of Cpl. Sam Ervine. Under the date of Sept. 28, he testified, there was no reference to a patrol of No. 14 Highway north of Belleville.

Constable Richmond said he examined the diary again on Dec. 26. The diary then said that Cpl. Ervine had patrolled the Highway Sept. 28.

Save 2 Mounties In Arctic Wander 18 Days In Storms

OTTAWA, April 1—(CP).—Man's struggle in the North goes on unabated. Two RCMP officers, lost for 18 days in Canada's sub-Arctic, were rescued, it was announced by RCMP and army headquarters Thursday night.

The RCMP officers, identified only as Cpl. Ivan Rolstone and Special Constable George Powder, were back at Fort Reliance today, a Northwest Territories station on the eastern arm of Great Slave Lake.

They were found March 29 at Sandy Lake, 70 miles east of Fort Reliance, after 18 days of wandering in storms and sub-zero weather, trying to find their way back to the post.

When located, the officers' team of 12 huskies had been reduced to three. The other nine had starved to death. The team and the two officers had set out earlier this winter from Fort Reliance on one of the longest patrols in the north—from Fort Reliance 600 miles southward to Beaverhill Lake, about 300 miles east of Edmonton.

Charter Plane

They had been overdue two weeks on their return trip to Fort Reliance when the RCMP chartered a plane at Fort Smith, north of Edmonton and began the search.

When sighted by Bush Pilot Jack Cameron, the men, suffering from cold and fatigue, were making a gruelling trek through the snow towards Reliance with three dogs and a toboggan.

Even as the rescue was announced, a mercy flight was underway in another part of the north to aid two Eskimo children mangled by dogs.

And at the same time a plane took off from Churchill, Man., to speed supplies to starving Eskimos in the Arctic, left without equipment.

Stamps Mark Union

OTTAWA, April 1 (CP) — Special commemorative postage stamps to mark the union of Newfoundland and Canada went on sale today in post offices across the country and in the new island province. A large-sized green issue, the 4-cent stamp carries a picture of the "Matthew," the ship in which John Cabot made his first exploratory voyage to the island more than 400 years ago.

RCAF Celebrates Birthday Becomes 25 Yrs. Old Today

OTTAWA, April 1 (CP)—Canada's junior service, which is 25 years old today—April 1—celebrates its silver anniversary by pushing on with its first peacetime offensive establishments.

No special ceremonies are planned to mark the anniversary, but the RCAF already has its birthday present—recognition in this year's estimates as the most important arm of the Canadian forces.

This year, for the first time in history, the appropriation for the air force is larger than that for either the navy or army, at $169,347,577 compared with $100,852,549 last year. In comparison, the army appropriation is $147,707,321 against $101,181,375 last year, and the navy $82,180,856 against $55,146,394.

It's a big step forward from the 300-man force which constituted the RCAF when it was officially formed April 1, 1924, or from the 5,000-man air force with which Canada entered the war in September, 1939.

Today, the junior service has formed its first offensive unit — an interceptor fighter squadron still training at St. Hubert, Que. Before the year is out, a second such squadron will be formed, to stand as Canada's first line of defence in an emergency.

Both units are expected to be stationed permanently in eastern Canada, probably at Bagotville and Mont Joli, Que.

Other operational flying units formed or planned for the near future include a fighter-bomber squadron now training at Rivers, Man., one Maritime squadron, two transport squadrons, one communication squadron, three photo survey squadrons, and an air observation post squadron.

Six Vessels Collide In Bad Channel Fog

LONDON, April 1 (Reuters)—Six ships, including a Danish freighter and two Swedish vessels, were involved in collisions during the night in one of the worst Channel fogs in years.

One Britsih coaster was believed sunk and two British fishermen were known to have lost their lives. A third is missing.

The Swedish freighter Nordic (2,447 tons) collided with the British vessel Selskar (2,118 tons) in the Thames estuary.

Only slight damage was caused in a collision between the Swedish tanker Soya (10,431 tons) and the Danish freighter California (416 tons) off the mouth of the Thames.

The 403-ton British coaster Charles M. was believed to have gone down after a collision with an unidentified vessel. The Charles M.'s crew of seven was picked up, but no trace was found of the other ship.

Bodies of two fishermen were found on rocks near Hastings, tangled in the rigging of their smack the Pioneer. A companion was missing.

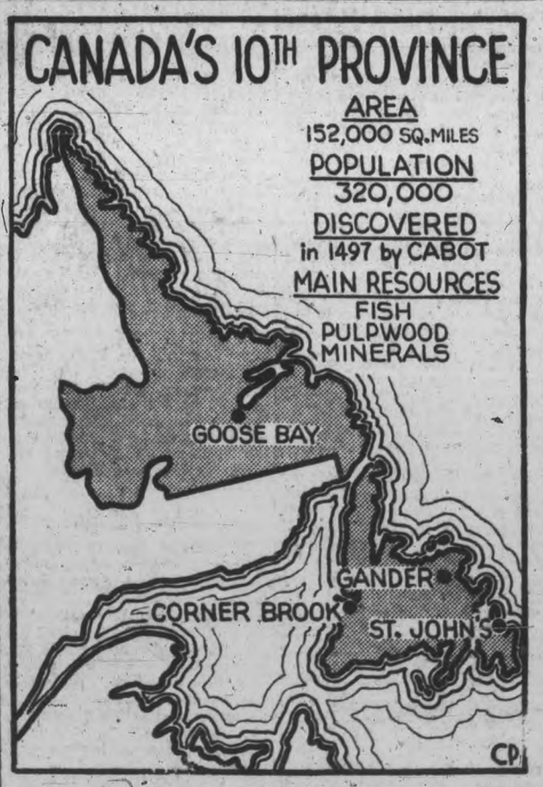
Reds Detain Berliners

BERLIN, April 1 (AP)—Hundreds of western Berliners were reported held by Soviet police today following raids on trains and railroad stations in the city's outskirts. The lightning roundup Wednesday night was conducted for the ostensible purpose of checking identification papers.

King George Gives Blessing.

OTTAWA, April 1 (CP)—The King, in a message conveyed by Viscount Alexander, today gave his blessing to Confederation between Canada and Newfoundland.

"May the union that is now complete continue, under God's guidance, to grow in strength, prosperity, happiness, and may it bring new benefits to its people from sea to sea," His Majesty said.



The message was read by the Governor-General before the throng that gathered on Parliament Hill to witness ceremonies marking the historic union between the old British Colony and Canada.

The message:

"Please convey to the government and people of Canada on behalf of the Queen and myself our appreciation for the message of loyalty and good wishes which you sent me.

"On this historic occasion I am glad to send my good wishes to the people of the greater Canada —to those of the old provinces and to those of the new province of Newfoundland—who will now go forward together to the high destiny that awaits them.

"Today marks the fulfilment of the union into one great nation of all peoples of the British Commonwealth in the northern part of North America. May the union that is now complete continue, under God's guidance, to grow in strength, prosperity, happiness, and may it bring new benefits to its people from sea to sea."

CANADA'S TENTH PROVINCE — From to-day Canadian students will be taught the Dominion comprises 10 provinces. Ceremonies at Ottawa and St. John's mark the entry into Confederation of Newfoundland, Canada's oldest colony. Canada's area will be extended by 152,000 square miles and 320,000 people will be added to the role of Canadian citizens. Discovered in 1497 by John Cabot, the main resources of the island are fish, pulpwood, and minerals. St. John's, the capital, is the oldest city in North America. Corner Brook, major pulp centre, is the largest settlement on the west coast. Two of the world's largest airfields, Goose Bay in Labrador and Gander in Newfoundland, are two more assets Canada will gain from the union.

Mother, Baby Shot By Father

TORONTO, April 1 (CP) — George Cooper, 45-year-old interior decorator, was expected to appear in court today on a charge of attempted murder as a result of the shotgun shooting Thursday night of his wife and baby daughter.

Police said Cooper was badly beaten about the head in a fight with two of his older sons minutes before two shotgun blasts ripped through the front window of a home in the city's west-end.

The pellets caught Mrs. Cooper in the side and shoulder. Eight-months-old Cynthia Cooper, in the arms of her sister, Connie, 12, was also wounded by the shot. All three were taken to hospital. Connie was later released and authorities said conditions of the other two are satisfactory.

Shortly before the shooting Cooper peered through the front window and threw a whisky bottle in the front door. After the fight with his sons he walked to his house and returned with a 12-gauge double-barreled shotgun. Two shots were fired through the window and venetian blind inside.

Peace Mission Lands In Communist Peiping

NANKING, April 1 (AP)—The Chinese government's peace delegation landed in Communist Peiping this afternoon.

The Communists immediately clamped a ban on the publication of all news concerning the activities of the Nationalist negotiators.

The delegation, feeling as if it was "standing on the edge of a bottomless gulf," took off from Nanking after consulting with acting president Li Tsung-Jen and leaders of the Kuomintang (government) party.

Firemen Rescue 20 As Hotel In Flames

BOSTON, April 1 (AP) —Firemen rescued more than 20 persons down ladders this morning when a three-alarm fire swept the Hotel Windermere apartments in the back bay.

Over 100 occupants escaped to safety from the six-storey building. One woman, overcome by smoke, was taken to hospital.

Heavy smoke and flame breaking through the roof led to earlier fears that numerous casualties might result and three alarms were sounded in quick succession.

Red Protest Snubbed By U.S., Allies

Russia Says Pact Very Aggressive Directed Against Her

WASHINGTON, April 1 (AP)—Diplomatic authorities predicted today that the United States and the other Atlantic powers will reject outright Russia's protest against their security treaty.

Russia's protest was delivered here late Thursday, having been sent around to the State Department by the Russian Embassy.

The text as released by the Russian news agency complained that the Atlantic Defence Pact, due to be signed here Monday by 12 countries, is aggressive in character and is directed against the Soviet Union. Russia had previously taken this stand in a less formal way.

There was no immediate official comment here, but there appeared not the slightest chance that the protest would affect the signing schedule.

Acheson scheduled a high-pressure round of conferences with western European Foreign Ministers today. They included a talk on Germany with Robert Schuman of France. Schuman arrived here Thursday night.

Other Meetings

Acheson arranged talks later in the day with the Foreign Ministers of Belgium (Noon), Luxembourg (4:30 p.m.) and Portugal (5:15 p.m.). They all fit into the pattern of a determined effort by the Atlantic powers to iron out all their major differences. The unity effort will be made formal in the Atlantic Treaty to be signed here Monday.

Thursday Acheson discussed the German and Greek situations as well as other European questions in a two-hour talk with Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain, then went immediately into a conference with Dirk U. Stikker, Netherland foreign minister, with whom he talked mostly about Indonesia.

In the statements so far made on the treaty by Bevin and others of the top-level diplomats gathered here for the signing of the pact, all the emphasis has been placed on the "peaceful" and defensive nature of the alliance. Virtually nothing has been said about the real power which will be arrayed behind it.

Delegates' Removal Studied By Pearson

OTTAWA, April 1 — (CP). — External Affairs Minister Pearson told the Commons Thursday the government has obtained reports from the Canadian Embassy in Washington and the Consulate-General in New York about the removal of three Canadians from the so-called World Peace conference held in New York last week-end.

"I am examining it to see if any further action seems to be required," he said.

He said the United States authorities have "every right" to prevent Canadians and others from entering their country and to deport Canadians or other foreigners. Canada herself claims that right.

But, he went on, "in view of the fact that the circumstances surrounding the exercise of this right in the case of the three Canadians in question seems to have been, to say the least, unusual and in view of the fact that only Canadians appear to have been interfered with at the banquet in question, I thought it desirable to request at once a full report on the situation from our Embassy in Washington and from our Consulate-General in New York."

TORONTO FRUIT

TORONTO, April 1 — (CP) — Wholesale fruit and vegetable prices here today were unchanged with the following exceptions:

California pineapples, 16s, 18s 24s 30s, all $6; Florida cabbage $2.25-$2.50; cucumbers 24s, 30s, $6.50.

The birth af a child of one sex after three of the other sex is considered unlucky in India, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Non-Confidence Motions Moved; Budget Flayed

OTTAWA, April 1 (CP)—The CCF and Progressive Conservative parties, belaboring the 1949-50 budget, called on the Commons Thursday to declare non-confidence in the government. They both placed want-of-confidence motions on the record.

The third major party in the Chamber—the Social Credit group—joined in criticizing the government for alleged failure to provide tax relief for the farmer and the poor and declared its intention of supporting the CCF motion.

The two motions will not come up for decision until the debate ends, probably after the Easter recess.

The Progressive Conservative motion came from J. M. Macdonnell (PC-Muskoka-Ontario), official opposition financial critic. It asked the Chamber simply to declare that "this government does not possess the confidence of the country."

M. J. Coldwell, CCF chieftain, appended an amendment asking the Chamber to declare non-confidence for three specific reasons:

"Failure" to remove the sales tax; removal of the subsidy on flour, which added to the high cost of living, and "failure", despite high living costs, to improve the living standards of the millions who live on income below the income tax exemption bill.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, criticized the Government because it did not lift the eight-per-cent. sales tax and said he would support the CCF motion.

Scores Persecution

Prime Minister St. Laurent promised to refer to Mr. Pearson a request by E. G. McCullough (CCF—Assiniboia) that Canada protest to the United Nations against religious persecution in Spain.

The Senate gave unanimous approval to the principle of the North Atlantic treaty, endorsing it without a dissenting vote.

In the Commons, Mr. Macdonnell said the Progressive Conservative party did not object to the budgetary tax cuts is such, but it did object that the government withheld the tax relief until the eve of an election "and for a most improper purpose."

But there were "big" gaps in the budget which brought no benefit whatever for the farmer or for the non-taxed portion of the population which had to go on paying a high cost of living. By making the reductions retroactive to Jan. 1, Finance Minister Abbott had recognized that he "must answer the signal of distress from the party and put cash on the barrelhead."

"Last Hope" Budget

It was a "last hope" budget which concentrated on the coming election. The needs of those single persons who earned between $1,000 and $1,250 a year and the married people whose income ranged from $2,000 to $2,500 had been ignored. The exemptions for children should have been boosted by $200 instead of $50.

Touching on trade, he said the government had made "no real statement" on the gravity of that situation and had given no indication of constructive action.

Mr. Coldwell termed the budget a "typical traditional capitalist budget" which offered tax reductions for the masses of the voters but actually gave the main benefits to the wealthy.

He aimed his main criticism at the continuation of the eight-per-cent sales tax because, he said, it hit the farmers and the poor hardest. At the same time the budget failed to ouline any plan to meet future problems and failed to lay the groundwork for an integrated system of social security.

Pensioners Hard Hit

High prices and inflation, which still were continuing, would have a "disastrous" effect on pensioners and others who had to struggle along on low fixed incomes.

As for trade, the government was not following the policies necessary to stimulate two-way trade with the United Kingdom and other foreign markets necessary to absorb Canadian surpluses.

Mr. Low hammered at "hidden" taxes, such as the sales tax, and said they pyramided the cost of living and added to inflation. If the government could not abolish them, it could at least increase old age pensions and provide subsidies for bread, milk and other essential foods.

By retaining the hidden taxes, the government simply was playing into the hands of the Communists since the budget did not provide "one particle of consideration for the poor." All the consideration was for the middle and upper class income groups.

Charges Income Tax "Snoopers" Scare Farmers

OTTAWA, April 1 (CP)—Solon Low, Social Credit leader, charged that hundreds of western farmers have been frightened "by the inquisitions of income tax officials" who have been "directed to snoop around . . . and have used every device the secret police could have used to extract information."

Joining the Commons' annual budget debate, he contended that the "state of mind of a good big portion of the National Revenue Department is definitely Communistic."

"What should be a helpful and sympathetic attitude on the part of the tax-gathering officials and inspectors and the myriads of other employees in this department has become as totalitarian an attitude as could possibly be imagined."

Mr. Low expressed "delight" over the budget's tax concessions, but argued that the poor people have been overlooked. He maintained that adoption of Social Credit principles offers the only logical solution of economic ills.

Like Secret Police

In his attack on tax officials, he said: "The people bitterly resent the way these fellows have been directed to snoop around the farms in Western Canada, where they have used every device that the secret police could have used to extract information upon which to make it possible for them to pull in a few dollars more of taxes. . . some of their methods have been ridiculous in the extreme."

"It is a wonder that the farmers up in the Peace River constituency did not do some damage to some of these poor fellows on sight. Of course, the servants of the government were only doing what they were told to do, and it looks to me as though they were made to believe that their continued employment would be based on how much extra money they could drag out of the farmers."

Farmers May Hire Own Children Tax Free

OTTAWA, April 1 — (CP)—Revenue Minister McCann told the Commons Thursday that farmers now may hire their own children for work on their farms, pay them wages and deduct the payment from gross income for income tax purposes. He warned, however, that if the wages exceed $400 yearly the child to whom the money is paid no longer may be considered as a dependent in reporting income tax. If the current budget is adopted, this limit will be lifted to $500 for 1949.

Drug Addict Jailed

TORONTO, April 1 (CP) — William J. Whythe, who admitted he had spent 15 or 16 years in jail for narcotics addiction Thursday told Judge Robert Forsyth that imprisonment was "no way to cure my social problem." He was sentenced to two years plus a $300 fine or three additional months for illegal possession of narcotics. It will run consecutively to a two-year term he received on a similar charge last February.

P.M. QUOTES PRATT POEM

In his official address of welcome at noon, broadcast from Ottawa across Canada, Prime Minister St. Laurent quoted the first verse of E. J. Pratt's new poem "Newfoundland Seamen". This poem was written at the special request of the Examiner. When later the Prime Minister asked Dr. Pratt for a special poem to use at this time, the poet sent him a copy of "Newfoundland Seamen". The complete poem appeared on our front page yesterday.

Planes Gradually Replace Fire Lookout Towers

TORONTO, April 1 (CP)—The Ontario Legislature today considers estimates of four departments—health, welfare, planning and travel—the last of the 1949-50 departmental budgets it has to deal with this session.

Final approval was given on Thursday to the government bill limiting yellow or yellow-and-red coloring in margarine to 1.6 degrees. Opposition members sought without success to increase the degree of coloring to 2.7, to withdraw the coloring section of the bill and to give the legislation a six-month hoist.

The House gave unanimous support to the government's new milk control bill. The bill, aimed at speeding up milk price negotiations, also set up a provincial arbitration board.

Public galleries were crowded Thursday night in expectation that the filibuster which the CCF started Wednesday night against the Charitable Foundations Bill would be taken up again. But the night sitting was given over to study of estimates of the Lands Department and the Reform Institutions Department.

Need Right Clouds

Lands Minister Scott, introducing his estimates, said his department had solved the problem of producing rain over forest fires by bombarding clouds with dry ice. But it still is necessary to have the right kind of clouds over fire areas.

Mr. Scott also said Ontario is gradually abandoning the lookout tower system of spotting forest fires in favor of aerial fire detection. Use of planes in finding fires is a United States idea and Ontario Fire Rangers have found it a good one. Flying Rangers spot smoke faster than do lookouts on the ground.

For the first time within memory of Maj. Alex Lewis, clerk of the Legislature, there was singing Thursday night on the floor of the House. Members sang "O Canada" and "God Save the King" to celebrate the entry of Newfoundland into Confederation. Speaker M. C. Davies read a special prayer for Newfoundland and the House gave three cheers for Canada's new province.

Two Opposition members voted against their party in an attempt to defeat reading of the bill which limits to 1.6 degrees the amount of yellow coloring in margarine.

A. A. MacLeod (Lab. Prog.-Toronto) moved an amendment that the bill should not be given third reading for six months.

Two Liberals Bolt

Two Liberal members—H. W. Walker (Welland) and G. T. Gordon (Brantford)—voted with the Labor-Progressives in support of the amendment. It was defeated 75 to 4.

Leslie Wismer (CCF Toronto Riverdale) moved a further amendment that the section dealing with color be stricken from the bill and that margarine coloring be unlimited. The Speaker again ruled this amendment out of order.

Mr. Gordon and Mr. Walker again voted against their party and with CCF and Labor-Progressive members. The ruling was upheld 56 to 23.

There was no division on the motion to give the bill third reading. The standing in the 90-seat Legislature is Progressive Conservatives 51, CCF 21, Liberal 14, Labor-Progressive 2. There are two vacancies.

"The entry was not there Dec. 19 but was there on Dec 26?" asked Mr. Justice Mackay.

"Yes sir," replied the constable.

Charges Injustice

(Cpl. Ervine has testified that he made the entry on Sept. 28, Constable Keays alleges the entry was put in the diary to back up allegedly perjured testimony Cpl. Ervine gave at the trial of Leroy Woods for a traffic offence in November 1947.)

Constable Richmond said he later was told by Constable G. R. Purdy that an injustice had been done to Constable Keays. Constable Purdy is accused of putting in a false report on an accident involving Woods.

Under cross-examination by Malcolm Robb, Constable Richmond said he could not recall any specific entry on the page when he first looked at the diary.

Ordered Away

Constable Richmond testified that he had been instructed to stay away from the commission hearings until he received orders to report.

Constable Keays charged Thursday that Constable Richmond, Sgt. E. F. Hartleib and Constable C. E. Siple had been told to stay away from the inquiry because they had agreed to testify for him.

Constable Siple was called as the next witness.

He told the same story of dissension in the Belleville police detachment that has been told by other witnesses. He said it was obvious that Constable Keays did not get along with Cpl. Ervine and Constable J. B. Driscoll.

He said that Dorothy Dowdell, the office stenographer, issued instructions to police officers and took part in investigations.

He told of a party, before Constable Keays posting from Belleville, from which Cpl. Ervine was driven away by Constable Purdy. He said the corporal used a loud-speaker system to tell of the influence "Art" (Inspector W. A. Page, in charge of the Belleville district) had with "Bill" (Commissioner W. H. Stringer of the provincial police.)

The next day, Constable Siple said, he and Cpl. Ervine drove to Constable Keays house with the corporal bringing a bottle of rum, Cpl. Ervine was driven away from the party, he said.

Constable Siple said that Constable Purdy once told him he had done Constable Keays and injustice. Constable Siple said he advised Constable Purdy to go and tell Constable Keays about it.

Constable Siple said he had seen a provincial police car drive past the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Badgley with dimmed lights.

Constable Keays charged Thursday the home of the Badgleys, friends of his had been under police surveillance, since the commission began.

Mr. Robb asked Constable Siple if he was suggesting there was some surveillance of the Badgley house.

"In my opinion, yes," Constable Siple said. The car was numbered 924, but he did not recognize the driver.

Constable Siple said that two Provincial officers lived on the same street as the Badgleys.

A. A. McLeod (Lab.-Prog.-Toronto-Bellwoods) asked the Minister how many persons received this additional amount from the province.

Mr. Goodfellow said that as of last Feb. 28, of the 80,000 old age pensioners in Ontario, 21,277 received all or part of the additional $10. Receiving the full $40 pension were 6,923.

The Welfare Minister, introducing his estimates, said expenditures of his department had increased from $9,600,000 in the fiscal year 1943-44 to more than $22,500,000.

Big Battle Between Unions Looms After CSU Calls East Coast Strike

Tie-Up Pits Canadian Seamen's Union Against International Union; Aimed At Affecting 90 Ships Altogether

OTTAWA, April 1—(CP).—A rough battle for control of sea-going labor on the east coast shaped up today in the wake of a strike called by the Canadian Seamen's Union (TLC) against all Canadian-flag deep-sea ships on that coast. The strike, aimed at tying up almost 90 ships, pitted the 6,000-man CSU against the Seafarers' International Union, an AFL-affiliated group with 90,000 members in the United States which has stepped into the Canadian field in a move sponsored by anti-Communist union forces.

The tie-up became effective late Thursday on every Canadian ship sailing out of eastern ports and CSU officials said it would extend to others on the high seas or in foreign ports, manned by some 3,000 CSU members and even to the west coast if necessary.

Harry Davis, CSU president who announced the strike, called the action of the operators illegal, declaring that after Conciliation Board proceedings he and other union officers were nearing a settlement with Labor Department officials when they unexpectedly received word that the Eastern operators had signed with the Seafarers.

Meanwhile the Seafarers group was reported preparing to move into the Eastern Canadian ports in some strength to back the signing of its contract with the Shipping Federation of Canada.

Bring Reinforcements

One informed source said the SIU was planning to bring East some of its "on the beach"—temporarily unemployed — members from the West Coast. Another said it would bring in seagoing personnel from the United States.

"It's going to be a knock-down, drag-out battle," said an informant close to the SIU leadership.

Mr. Davies himself, with his union battling now for its life, said last year's violence on the Great Lakes could well be duplicated on the East Coast.

The sudden coup of the SIU obviously jolted the CSU leadership.

"We charge that such actions are illegal and in violation of the Federal Labor Code," Mr. Davis said. "It is not surprising that industrial outlaws like some Great Lakes companies are breaking the labor laws when a government - operated company line like the CNS can brazenly adopt the same tactics."

The powerful SIU first moved into Canada last summer when Frank Hall, rail union chief in the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, engineered a deal that had it absorb the "company union" Canadian Lake Seamen's Union.

The strong SIU came into Canada with the evident intention—backed by some Trades and Labor Congress forces — of driving the CSU out of the seamen's field. First moves in this direction were within the unions. Now they have spread to declare open warfare.

Nova Scotia Has Highest Budget

By The Canadian Press

An all-time record in expenditure was predicted in the 1949 budget presented to the Nova Scotia Legislature by Premier Angus L. Macdonald.

Expenditures of $33,975,361 would be more than $6,250,000 more than last year's record. Premier Macdonald estimated revenue at $34,467,749, leaving a surplus of $492,388.

Revenue for 1948 was $33,502,015 and the province showed a surplus of $4,875,233, second highest in history.

Expenditures would increase on highways, public works, health, education and welfare programs. Highways and public health showed an increase of more than $1,000,000 over last year.

Drawing attention to the reduced surplus predicted, Premier Macdonald recalled that when he tabled the public accounts last Wednesday he indicated "we could not go on year after year showing surpluses running into several millions of dollars."

Drew Withdraws Libel Action

TORONTO, April 1 — (CP) — George Drew's $100,000 "Gestapo" libel suit against the Toronto Star was withdrawn Thursday.

Mr. Drew, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, started the action in 1945. It arose from editorials in the Star during the 1945 provincial election campaign commenting on claims by E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF leader, that Mr. Drew, then premier of Ontario, maintained a "political Gestapo" or secret police force.

A Royal Commission found the Jolliffe accusations groundless.

At the original trial of Mr. Drew's action, a jury returned a verdict of "no libel" and Mr. Justice D. P. Kelly dismissed the action. Court of Appeal ordered a new trial on grounds of misdirectoin of the trial jury.

The Star then appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada to block the new trial. The Supreme Court decided last October that the trial could proceed.

Since the action was a civil one, it could be withdrawn from the courts at any time.

He then read a message sent today to the King carrying "The expression of our devoted loyalty together with our sincere good wishes to you and to Her Majesty the Queen."

Mr. St. Laurent told the Newfoundlanders that "We, of the rest of Canada, feel you are joining a good country—a country of which you will come to be as proud as we are," a country which had a "distinctive character and distinctive qualities."

Confident of Future

"We are confident of our country's future. We feel that our nation can hold its head high among the nations of the world.

"With the pleasure we have in welcoming you of Newfoundland as Canadians today, there is mingled a feeling that you could have joined no better nation."

But, while the formal union was completed today, the "real" union —"the union of hearts and minds" —took place in the recent "terrible war in which Canadians and Newfoundlanders were so closely joined."

At the same time, it was not alone in war that Canadians had come to know and appreciate the qualities of Newfoundlanders.

"During the centuries since the original settlement of Newfoundland, the people of your island have met the forces of nature, on sea and on land. In adversity and in prosperity they have developed qualities of heart and spirit for which they are renowned."

Mr. St. Laurent assured the people of the new province that they would not lose their own identity, of which they were "so justly proud".

CANADIAN GENERAL ELECTRIC

presents a progress report of the Company's activities

Because we believe that the operations of the Company continue to be interesting to all who live and work in this city, we are once more presenting our "human balance sheet"—an informal report to our neighbours in Peterborough.

Throughout the past year, under difficult supply conditions, we maintained high production. The result of this was a record payroll at Peterborough Works of $11,235,000, compared to $9,604,000 in 1947.

Today, a situation exists which is both stimulating and challenging. For some of our products there is a great and increasing demand. For others—the products in free supply—a healthy competitive market presents a growing challenge to our efficiency in manufacturing and to our energy in selling.

The continuing need for electrical apparatus has two sources. First, the electric utilities, for equipment to be used in the great power developments that are being pressed ahead in every Province. Second, industry which needs many electrical products and is even now making preparations to use the increased supply of power as it becomes available. These conditions result in a heavy backlog of orders for many of our products.

In addition to the new heavy apparatus assembly shop that is nearing completion, we are also providing facilities for the manufacture of electrical components for diesel electric locomotives. This should prove a rapidly expanding programme as Canadian railroads are converting to this modern railroading equipment as quickly as it can be produced.

In fulfillment of our policy to produce more goods for more people at less cost, we continued to improve our manufacturing methods and our use of materials.

We are confident that, with the continued whole-hearted co-operation and loyalty of the men and women of Peterborough Works, we shall go on producing the right goods at the right price to meet the demand that exists from utilities, industry and the home.

L. F. McRae

Manager Peterborough Works

Record payroll in 1948...

Our Peterborough payroll in 1948 reached the record figure of $11,235,000, compared with $1,838,000 in 1939. The number employed in Peterborough in 1948 was 2½ times the number employed in 1939, and as great as the total number employed by the Company throughout the Dominion in 1939. For the last quarter of 1948, the average weekly earnings were $5.24 above the average for the electrical industry, $7.89 above the average for all manufacturing industry. High wages and employment at C.G.E. continue to contribute to the prosperity of Peterborough.

Plant expansion continues

At the end of 1948 we had spent over $7,000,000 in Peterborough on our post-war expansion programme. But that is by no means the end. As part of this plan to provide new and improved facilities at Peterborough Works a further 2½ to 3 millions will be spent. The most modern equipment is being installed in the plant, helping to produce high quality products and maintain steady employment.

Job dividends for employees at Peterborough Works

At Canadian General Electric Company, retirement pensions have been in effect for many years. When eligible employees reach retirement age at Peterborough Works, they receive a pension for the rest of their lives. Pensions are paid from a trust fund, financed entirely by the Company, which cannot be used for any other purpose. The pension fund now stands at over $6,000,000 of which $1,200,000 was added in 1948. In addition to retirement pensions, employees benefit from further job dividends in the form of life insurance, paid statutory holidays and vacations. A suggestion system gives employees a continual opportunity to earn extra dollars by submitting ideas which will improve methods and products or lower costs.

The Company's part in civic affairs...

The sum paid every year in municipal taxes by Canadian General Electric Company—for many years past the city's largest single taxpayer—has gone far towards meeting the costs of services and civic improvements in this city. In the same way, the substantial Dominion income tax payments which the Company makes have contributed to Canada's social security measures. Perhaps a better indication of the interest in the civic and community life of this city are the substantial contributions the Company makes each year to Peterborough welfare organizations.

Sand On Our Sidewalks

Thirty years ago if people broke their necks by falling on a slippery winter sidewalk, condoling friends blamed the weather, spiteful ones the victim's carelessness, but few thought of blaming the municipality. In these progressive days icy pavement is legally not considered a hazard imposed by nature on urban dwellers, but the fault of the Council. So thousands of tons of sand are dumped every winter on streets from St. John's in the Province of Newfoundland right across the Dominion even to Vancouver in the sunny Province of British Columbia. What happens to this sand?

* * *

The roadways are swept in the spring, the mess cleared up, and taken somewhere or other for disposal. But in most municipalities the sand on the sidewalks remains to be wafted through the air, tramped into carpets, ground into floors, until city employees can get along all the streets with their brooms. By the time this is accomplished, spring has well begun, much of the sand has gone into the houses, or been lifted into the air. It is a big job to sweep every sidewalk in a city like Peterborough, and we do not blame the Board of Works that the cleaning-up is slow.

* * *

It would be the part of a good citizen and a careful home-owner if the family's hose were got out now, a broom employed and the litter of sand lifted from the walk in front of the house. It would be a bit of spring cleaning which would not only lessen the housewife's indoor tasks, but give the streets an air of cleanliness after the snow, slush and mud.

* * *

What a pity that sand seems to be the most practical non-skid material for sidewalks. It is, or speedily becomes, dirt. It is destructive outdoors as well as in. We talk much of conservation in these parts. Yet much sand is finally wasted, and the very sand that makes footing safe in winter kills the lawns and flower-beds in summer to which it has been blown or carried. It seems to be one of the ills of winter which we must bear through spring and summer.

The Dominion Drama Festival

There have been expressions of discontent from Manitoba and Saskatchewan because the winners in their regional drama festivals have not been invited to take part in the Dominion Drama Festival which will be held in Toronto during the week of April 25. Because six of the twelve contestants at the Finals are from Ontario the Western groups have complained that it is "an Eastern Show", and have suggested that the West may lose interest in it.

There is nothing new in this. The officials of the Dominion Drama Festival have grown accustomed to complaints from the West. But we think that our readers may be glad to have a little information which makes the Western complaints less impressive. First of all, we must point out that in Manitoba there were only two plays entered in the regional festival — not a very good showing. And next, we draw attention to the fact that of the nine regions (for festival purposes) in Canada, four are in Ontario. As Ontario has the largest population of any Canadian province, it requires three festivals in English, and one in French, to take care of its needs. To say that four regions are sending six plays to the Finals is a rather different thing from saying that one province is providing half the entries.

The officials of the Dominion Drama Festival have said that the choices for the final program were made strictly on merit. The Festival is not a political affair, and no region has a prescriptive right to be represented in its final competitions. Further, we must point out that in 1950 the Dominion Finals will be held in Calgary, and we will bet that the plays at the Finals will be, for excellent reasons, chiefly from the Western regions.

Peterborough has an interest in this dispute because the local Little Theatre's production of The Taming of The Shrew has been invited to appear in the Finals, although it did not win the regional festival at Brockville. Further, the present plan is that the Peterborough play will appear in a place of honour, as the closing play of the Festival, on Saturday night, April 30. Although we may understand the chagrin of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, we can hardly be expected to share it.

Triple Taxation

For several years the profits of corporations in Canada have been taxed three times: they are taxed when they are profits in the hands of corporations; they are taxed again when they are distributed to shareholders; and they are taxed a third time because neither the Dominion nor the provinces will allow corporations to deduct taxes paid to one or the other when calculating returns. It must be pointed out also that the dividends received by stockholders are taxed at the highest rate in the stockholder's income tax group. By no means all stockholders are rich men and this triple taxation hits them hard. It also makes people who have money to invest chary of putting it into new business enterprises.

In the 1949 Budget the Finance Minister has made a move—a very tentative one—toward altering this situation. A stockholder may now deduct from his total payable tax ten per cent. of that part of his income which comes from dividends on shares. It is not much, but it is important because it shows that the Finance Minister recognizes the injustice of the present taxes on the profits of corporations. It is to be hoped that a more generous recognition of the plight of stockholders will be shown in a later Budget.

If anyone who holds no stocks himself is inclined to think that stockholders and corporations deserve anything that happens to them, let him think again. Canadian business cannot increase unless people have money to risk in new enterprises, and no money will be risked if the return on it is pared down by triple taxation. And the future of every one of us — capital, labour, rich, poor, good and bad—is hitched to the healthy expansion of Canadian business. Any Government which ignores or wilfully slights business cuts its own throat, for it is business which finds the money for the nation's payroll, and for all the schemes which the government wants to put into effect. Governments do not make money; they spend it, and business finds the money which pays the taxes.

Scraps Of Russian Paper In Berlin

Until last week two currencies were legal in the western zone of Berlin—the mark sponsored and supported by the Anglo-French American power, which is the currency of the three western occupation zones; and the Russian-sponsored mark, which is currency in use over all the Russian-dominated parts of Germany. The western-sponsored mark has not been accepted as legal tender in the Russian controlled sectors of Berlin. Last week the western authorities announced: "As from this day the East mark shall cease to be legal tender in the Western sections of Berlin". This decision, affecting two million persons in western Berlin, is, to the Germans, the most significant proof that the West is winning the Cold War and intends to stay in Berlin.

The Lord Mayor of Berlin said: "The introduction of the West mark is a hundred times more precious as proof that West Berlin belongs to West Europe than all the repeated statements of the Allies that 'we are going to remain in Berlin' ". The Russian mark is now a worthless scrap of paper in western Berlin, and the occupants of that section of the great shattered city are heartily glad.

They have not liked it very well at any time, and for a variety of reasons. The chief one is that the western mark was worth, in real terms, four or five times as much as the eastern mark. Yet the eastern mark had to be accepted as of equal value in payment for rationed foods, rents, taxes and certain essential services. The eastern marks were of less value because the Russians printed more of them, and basically the western Berliners had no confidence in their worth. All the confusion and hardship brought on by the two currencies is now ended, and the West European status of West Berlin has been established in the minds of the people by the laws of economics, over which is the potent umbrella of the Berlin Air Lift.

The Calgary Herald thinks that doctors should not hire pretty receptionists "because they make you forget what ails you". That's a type of therapy which any doctor should be glad to include in his bag of tricks.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column, particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

SIR: I notice that when the street lights are turned on about seven o'clock these evenings, they blink on and off a couple of times before remaining on for the night. Why is that?

ANSWER: My explanation is that the little genii of electricity, suddenly released from the power-house for their nightly city-wide spree, are so excited and pleased, that like small boys out on a razzle-tazzle, they jump all over the wires, hither and yon, as if saying "Look fellows and all you people about town, here we go again". So they sputter and spark and zip around before they become properly lit up for the night's illumination.

Mr. Dobbin of the Utilities Commission gives a more prosaic though to me not more credible explanation. He says that nobody is jabbing the main switch off and on, but that probably some of the relays stick a bit when the juice comes through the control wire to them. It is these relays that slip off and on that make the lights blink until the current eventually keeps them lit. That seems to be, basically, the same explanation as mine.

QUESTION: In my mother's day there was a regular rite of being "At Home". People had definite afternoons every month or week when they were known to be At Home. I remember that my mother's day was the second and fourth Tuesday of each month. Some even had their "days" engraved on their calling-cards. Do you not think it was a good and useful custom, the disuse of which is regrettable? Why has the practice been dropped?

ANSWER: Because women are too busy, going to clubs, bridges, motoring; because few these days have maids and cooks; because it is much easier to visit now by telephone. Sometimes people's "afternoons" were heavy for the hostess and a boring necessity imposed by etiquette on the callers. "At Homes" survive now only as names for school dances and the like, and in official circles upon special days like New Year's.

The big end-of-the-year edition of the St. John's (Newfoundland) "Daily News" came my way a few weeks ago. Most of the first page of the first section was given over to paid notices about people being At Home. For instance, His Excellency the Governor-General and Lady Macdonald were At Home at Government House on the afternoon of January 1st. So was the High Commissioner for Canada, from three to five o'clock at 74 Circular Road. Dr. Lang of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, "assisted by others", was At Home at the Kirk Manse. The President of the Newfoundland Conference was At Home at Wesley Manse. The Anglicans had their show, too, for the Bishop of Newfoundland and Mrs. Abraham, the Dean of Newfoundland and Mrs. Rayson, were At Home at Bishop's Court.

In case you should think that everybody in St. John's was at home that afternoon, and there could be no guests at the At Homes, I might mention two two-inch advertisements on the same page. One read: "Lady Emerson will NOT be At Home on New Year's Day". The other read: "Mrs. A. M. Tooton will NOT be At Home to visitors on New Year's Day". Even without the hospitality of Lady Emerson and Mrs. Tooton, by my count of the advertisements I could have attended six parties that afternoon between three and seven, if I moved quickly enough and my legs could withstand the abundant Newfoundland hospitality.

This sort of thing is not without its commercial opportunities. On an inside page was a large advertisement saying in part: "AT HOME—Brookfield Service Station will be At Home to its countless Customers and Friends on New Year's Day and each succeeding day for three hundred and sixty-five days of the coming year". Visitors would presumably be paying guests.

SIR: The adjudicator at the recent Music Festival in Peterborough was reported by The Examiner to have said that the Canadian hard "r" was the only sound we have which cannot be sung as said. I agree that we should discipline our 'r's, not only in singing but in speech. But surely there are other sounds commonly heard on our street which should be softened or amended. For instance, what about the 'u' in the word "tutor"? I hear it pronounced all over as "tooter". That sound shouldn't be sung. The word is pronounced something like "tewter", despite what some Americans say.

ANSWER: You have made your point. I disagree that the 'oo' sound should not be sung. What about the word "two"? I don't like to hear the sound in "tutor", however. Our 'o's need attention, too, as in "hot", which one often hears as a harsh open sound like "hawht" instead of—well, the sound cannot be represented without using the international phonetic script.

Here is some doggerel I happened on which makes a good test of enunciation:

"A tutor who tooted the flute
Tried to tutor two tutors to toot;
Said the two to the tutor,
Is it easier to toot, or
To tutor two tutors to toot?"

See how fast you can say those lines and still keep the differences between the various 'u' sounds clear. Here is another, a sort of general challenge:

The hosts of ghosts were eating roasts,
Some were seated on cedar posts.
The strongest and boldest were loudest in singing,
The smallest and quickest were strong string stringing
To chord with the chimes from the church chimes ringing.

* * *

SIR: Why call the sofa a "chesterfield"?

ANSWER: Why indeed? I suppose because "sofa" sounds too common. Actually, "sofa" is an exotic word. It is Arabic, from the Arabic word 'suffah' meaning bench or couch. The piece of furniture called "chesterfield" was specifically a kind of deep, well-stuffed sofa with two upright ends, named after one of the Earls of Chesterfield, who commissioned a furniture-maker to build one for his comfort. The names of people often become associated with things which they favoured or designed. For instance a mackintosh (or mack) is named for the inventor Charles Macintosh (d.1843) who invented the waterproof fabric of which the macks are made. Our sandwich is so named because John Montague, 4th Earl of Sandwich, 1718-92, used this form of food to allow him to continue gambling for long periods without interruption.

ARE the kings of England crowned in Westminster Abbey or in Canterbury Cathedral?

ANSWER: Since the chief prelate of the church is the Archbishop of Canterbury, and his seat is at Canterbury (in Kent), and Canterbury Cathedral is the mother-church of the world-wide Anglican communion, one might expect the King, who is head of the Church, to be crowned there. He is not. Edward the Confessor (c.1010-1066), who began the building of the new Abbey at Westminster, was crowned in Westminster Abbey and all the sovereigns of England have since been crowned there excepting Edward V, the boy king, and Edward VIII, who were never crowned. Edward the Confessor was also buried in the Abbey, and for hundreds of years other sovereigns were buried there—until George III, who died in 1760.

Letter To The Editor

COMMENDS LIONS' POOL

Sir: Being one of a group of instructors that teach swimming on the two Peterborough beaches in the summer time I would appreciate a space in your paper to write in favour of the Lions' Club. We have approximately six weeks in the summer holidays to actually teach swimming as sometimes the water is too low to allow for classes and when the river is swollen it is too dangerous to use. We all know the treacherous currents in the river and the constant warnings given. We also know there is the occasional accident in the pools as in the home, but the large sum of money used every year and the manual labour given by the Lions to repair damages to the wading pool and H wharf every spring, could be used to far greater advantage in an inland pool.

I understand there is to be an enclosure around the pool and dressing rooms and also good supervision so the youngsters and adults would naturally have to enter the enclosure before entering dressing rooms and vice versa, so there should be no one in bathing suits up on the street. As to noise, there would be about the same, I would judge, as from the neighboring ball park. I myself have seen youngsters carrying their clothes on their arm and attired in bathing suits and carrying their shoes in their hands gingerly treading over stones on Smith street and Burnham street, making their way to the water for their swim.

In the parks at all times in the summer in any city most everyone wears shorts or at least as little clothing as possible so as to get the benefit of the sun's rays.

I think too, we often lose sight of the fact that the Lions give up their evenings to run Bingos and other money making enterprises and do not receive any benefit individually. True, they will have a lovely pool belonging to the Lions Club but individually they will just have the satisfaction of knowing their hard work is responsible for making a safe place for the children of Peterborough to swim.

I only wish they could share with us the satisfaction and pleasure we feel when the youngsters come to us, their eyes brimming with happiness and say, Gee—I can swim.

In conclusion I would like to point out that the Y.M. pool is a grand pool that fills a big demand, the Y.W. pool marvellous for teaching but is not adaptable for teaching speed swimming or advanced diving. It is the hope of the swim enthusiasts in Peterborough that one day we shall have a Civic Pool so that the natural talent we see in the youngsters may be developed and we will have girls able to enter big competitions in speed and diving.

Yours sincerely,
PANSY E. L. FORBES.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Lord, make me to know mine end, and the measure of my days, what it is; that I may know how frail I am. Behold, thou hast made my days as an handbreadth; and mine age; is as nothing before thee: verily every man at his best state is altogether vanity. Selah . .

And now, Lord, what wait I for? my hope is in thee. . (Ps. 39: 4, 5, 7.)

* * *

Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations. Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, ever from everlasting to everlasting thou art God. . . . For a thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night. (Ps. 90: 1, 2, 4.)

* * *

Know therefore this day, and consider it in thine heart, that the Lord he is God in heaven above, and upon the earth beneath: there is none else.

Thou shalt keep therefore his statutes and his commandments, which I commend thee this day that it may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee, and that thou mayest prolong thy days upon the earth, which the Lord thy God giveth thee for ever.

Unconsidered Trifles

It was a crowded meeting. The political candidate was doing his best to hold a rather restive audience.

Some of his remarks, however, were greeted with fierce storms of disapproval.

Suddenly one of the hecklers in the back of the hall shouted:

"Experience teaches fools!"

The candidate was equal to the occasion.

"That," he returned, "is why I ask you to profit by my experience."

Customer: "But you have the sign, 'Ici on parle Francais' on your window."

"Well, what does that mean?"

"It means that French is spoken here."

"Oh, is that it? The fellow who painted it on my window told me it was Latin for 'God Bless Our Happy Home.' "

Robert Johnston 40 Years In Coal Business

Robert Johnston, 487 Hunter St. W., celebrate today 40 years in the retail coal business. His yards on the railway siding, and the small neat office displaying the sign "McCarthy and Johnston" are landmarks in Ashburnham. The yard and building were originally at the corner of Mark and Hunter Sts. For 10 years before coming to Peterborough 30 years ago he was in the coal business in the West.

Mr. Johnston was born on the boundary line between Hope and Cavan townships 77 years ago. His parents, James Johnston and Mary Ann Nesbitt were of Northern Irish stock. They had a family of nine sons and two daughters, all were members of the Anglican Church at Bailieboro.

Went To Canadian West

Before he was 30, and still with his father, he married Letitia Byers. The young couple went to the Canadian West to farm near Frobisher, Sask. Three years later they bought out a retail coal business in Rouleau, Sask., a community south of Regina.

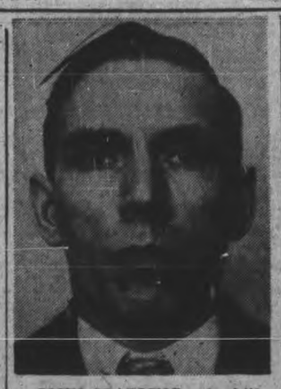
Handling coal then in Western Canada was an easier business than in the larger centres today he recalls. Farmers came long distances for their year's supply, some of them taking three days to make the round trip. They not only hauled the coal they purchased but unloaded the coal cars. Three carloads were often emptied in a forenoon. Mr. Johnston estimates he sold more coal with less handling than many firms much larger, and he certainly sold it cheaper.

Returned to Peterborough

In 1918 he came east to Peterborough and bought the business share of the late Archie Weir and since that time the firm has been trading under the McCarthy-Johnston name.

Although he goes to work daily, and has missed little time due to slight illness, he leaves most of the book work to a younger staff. He was a keen curler for 10 years and admits having played against some of the formidable skips of the city.

Although he was raised in the Anglican faith, Mr. Johnston has been an ardent United churchman for many years. He attends Knox United and has been one of the session for the past 12 years. In fraternal circles, he belongs to the Canadian Order of Foresters.



Speaking of Ashburnham, he remarked on the many changes and said that his coal sheds were a part of the city's past. They were originally the freight sheds of the old Cobourg Railway Company. He said that they were so well built, originally, that the lumber sheathing is the only material that has been replaced. The building frames and even some of the original roofing is still as sound as ever.

MARMORA, April 1—(ENS)—Chased by dogs, a young deer ran along the high wall outside of Marmora Protestant Cemetery on Wednesday. Toast Proposed To New Province

Two of the scholarship winners at the recent Kiwanis Music Festival were guests on Thursday at the weekly Club luncheon.

Bill Anderson of Peterborough, winner of the violin scholarship entertained the members with his playing; and Jack King, also of Peterborough, gave a sample of his art which won him the verse-speaking award.

The attention of Kiwanians was called to the fact that Canada was about to gain a 10th province in Newfoundland, and a message of welcome was sent to the new Lieutenant-Governor of the island, Sir Albert J. Walsh. A toast was proposed to the new province.

There was no guest speaker at the Thursday luncheon. President Vincent McCabe was in the chair.

Newfoundland Born Minister Explains

HASTINGS, April 1 (ENS). — Rev. N. Cole, minister of Hastings United Church, a native of Newfoundland, addressed the pupils of Hastings Public School Thursday in E. McKeever's Senior Room in celebration of the union of the Island with Canada. He displayed maps of Newfoundland, Labrador and the North Atlantic, tracing the voyage of John Cabot from England.

Mr. Cole spoke of the political life of Newfoundland as well as describing geographical features, economies and a number of other aspects of the country.

He pointed out the advantages of the country from the standpoint of defence, and dwelt on the great mineral deposits in Labrador, the tourist facilities of the coastal waters and the modes of transportation.

The children's interest was kept alive with humorous and interesting incidens of the minister's life in Newfoundland, extending from the lands of the Eskimos in North Labrador to settlements of educationalists of Irish, English, and Scottish descent in the south.

As a souvenir of the Confederation he distributed more than 200 postage stamps of Newfoundland.

Mr. Cole mentioned that a hymn by Sir Cavendish Boyle, written on an ode to Newfoundland, would be sung at the service on Sunday in commemoration of the federation with Newfoundland.

Aylmer Youth Held In Cobourg Theft Case

Nicol of Cobourg and Chief C. W. Graham of Port Hope. He is the third youth arrested and locked up in connection with the robbery of Margles' store in Cobourg and Linton's store in Port Hope. He was remanded in custody to appear in court to-day.

Decision of the city council to make available the Ashburnham Bowl, presently occupied by the softball diamond, for the Memorial Centre this summer will be welcome news. An ideal site just across the street on Hunter from the original site picked. And the announcement that work would commence in May on the big auditorium gives promise of completion within a year. Of course, the softball diamond will have to be moved within a year. Of course, the softball diamond will have to be moved into the southern part of Riverside Park, with lights erected, but that's not too big a project. Action at last on the Memorial Centre is indicated which is welcome news even at this late date. What date, by the way? Oh, yes, April 1 once more—and a merry April Fool to you all! This is one day we can lie right out in print and we couldn't resist the opportunity.

Boost For Baseball

Annual OBA convention in Peterborough on April 8-9 should be a boost for baseball locally this summer. It'll encourage the various clubs here to organize shortly and plan for another busy season. Since the City League was re-organized some five years ago, a lot of boys have made real diamond progress, some of them being in senior company. Yes, baseball bounced right back into one of the important summer sports here with this revival and 1949 should see a successful season from peewee right up to senior. The diamond at Riverside will be switched around this year with bleachers used as the old stands were ripped down for safety sake.

That was a honey of purest buckwheat, that 5-3 win for Legion in Grimsby last evening. It gave them their OHA senior "B" semi-final series in two straight and shoots them into provincial finals against either Orillia or Sarnia, who settle their series this week-end in Guelph. A lot of local fans felt that the Peach Kings would win the second one in their own orchard, and force a third tilt in Oshawa on Saturday. Nor would we have been surprised at that, either. That's why it was such a thrill to see the hustling Legionnaires wind it up in two straight. Finished stronger again to definitely earn the series. A fine team, and the boys were plenty happy as they pulled into town around five a.m.

Peaches Are Canned

So confident were the Peach Kings of a third game that they were advertising tickets for the fray in Oshawa. And the writer of the weekly there, after the game in Lindsay, sneered at Legion and the class of hockey up this way, saying Grimsby had an off night. He went on to rave about Legion having but one line, a poor defence and no goalie—and promised that Grimsby would "massacre" them in the second game and give them "the beating of their lives". What a laugh. The boys plan to send him a telegram and ask him how he feels now. A bus of fans went from here and a number of cars to help swell the crowd to about 2,000. And it was a lightning fast game. Bill Crowley got a cut on the head but will be okay for the next number.

* * * * * *

With all of 'em fighting so effectively the last half of the game, especially, one shouldn't single out any. Still, you can't pass up the three-goal chore by Chum Fryia, two of them being winning markers in the third. The two Greenlaws went good, too, and Parnell. And the other forwards, the defence and Ross Nicholls. They all turned in a swell showing. Peach Kings fought hard, also, but were fading in the third. They were well beaten, which speaks okay for the class of hockey up this way, as Grimsby had eliminated Brantford—a senior "A" club last year. And, now, the boys are saying: "Bring on Sarnia or Orillia—this is our year to take the crown!"

Hither And Yawn

It's looking like Red Wings and Leafs in Stanley Cup finals now, eh?....Wings and Canadiens go tomorrow in Montreal....Grid Panthers "do" is tonight at 6.30 at South Beach, as a final reminder ....Legion sent word they wouldn't be in the City Softball League this season, so it's a four-club circuit....A party asks if a hockey score should be counted at the end of regulation time or overtime to settle a pool; the final score, even if overtime is necessary, is the usually accepted way of settling it when not specified otherwise in advance....Red Hollingsworth and Ab Frick drove up to Grimsby from St. Kitts to cheer Legion along last night....Ab said to us: "I always go to see a Peterborough team playing down this way, and this is the first time they've won"....The fans' bus from here picked up a fiddler in Toronto who helped in the post-game celebration considerably....Legion's home game in the finals will most likely be played in Lindsay next week....Golly, it's six a.m. and time we got to bed.

PCVS Juveniles Enter Finals

PCVS Juveniles, coached by Bev. Goulding, meet the Northern Ontario OBA champions, Sudbury CHNO Airwaves, Monday and Tuesday for the All-Ontario Basketball Championship. The games will be played in the Collegiate gym. The Sudbury crew has been playing exhibition games with Sudbury's two school teams, the Tech and the High School. The Tech team is the NOSSA championship team of 1949.

PCVS Juveniles consist of six seniors and seven boys from the junior A team. The senior boys have been doing the most playing for the team so far but have been getting an added boost from the juniors on the squad with Ted Evans and Byron Young, the standouts of the juniors on the team.

In five games, four playoff and one exhibition, 253 points have been scored by the Collegiate for an average of 50 points a game. Of the shots taken from the floor the team has scored on 30.8 per cent and in foul shots taken, they have made 54 per cent good.

Don Griffin, a natural basketball player, is the team's leading scorer with 91 points in the five games. Al Northcott is next with 61 followed by Neil Thompson with 46.

Referees for the two-game series will be Ron McComb, Toronto, and Bob Dyer, Peterborough.

Toronto Maple Leafs fought their way into the Stanley Cup finals for the first time since they won the trophy in 1942 when they eliminated the Montreal Canadiens in the semi-finals, total-point series by eight goals four years ago tonight. Leafs then vanquished the Detroit Red Wings in the finals four games to three to win the Stanley Cup.

Shockey's Clinch First Place In City 5-Pin Loop

First place in the Men's City Five-Pin Bowling League at Duffus' Bowling Alleys was settled Thursday night when Shockey's won two games from King George to go eight points up, with but one night to bowl in the league. High pinnage of 3631 was rolled by the new champions, but the high single game went to the Hotelers who toppled the pins for a 1310 count.

Ostranders whitewashed Rileys to go into a second place tie with that team. Bond Clothes and Cavanaghs each took six points from the Empress Old Timers and the McCannan Electrics. Russelle's, Charlotte Credit Jewellers, Sunocos and the Marinos scored four-point victories over Fashion Craft, De Laval, Esquire's and Clapper's Sports.

Fred Martin has the high average tucked away for the year. Doug Abraham, Ned Vitarelli, Bert McCarrell, Bill Martin and Roy Suddards are battling it out for the second and third positions.

Clarence Downer has high three for the year's play to date with 962. Doug Abraham and Fred Martin follow close behind with 955 and 954. Fred Martin is first with the high single of 394, with the second slot filled by Gord Adams with 387. Third place is shared by Ned Vitarelli and Bert Hall with 385.

For last night's bowling Bill Lewis hit the pins for a triple of 857 as Cy Whatley rolled 846 and Doug Abraham 827.

Single game honors were taken by Cy Whatley with a score of 349. Others who followed close behind are Stan Murduff 334, Doug Abraham 333, Jack Playford 328, Joe Denault and Bill Lewis 315, Roy Lewis 311, Nels Routley 309, Mel Anthony 308 and Buck Fleming 300.

Here and There In Sport

Harry Psutka, former catcher with Kitchener in the Ontario Inter-County Baseball League has been signed by Detroit Tigers of the American League.

Psutka, who just completed a pro hockey season with Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League, disclosed his signing in a letter to Kitchener baseball officials.

He will be farmed out to one of Detroit's farm clubs.

Five goals by Torpedo Tony Demers sparked Sherbrooke St. Francis to a 7-0 victory over Montreal Royals here Thursday night and earned the Saints the right to meet Ottawa in the Quebec Senior Hockey League final. It was Sherbrooke's second straight triumph in the abbreviated best-of-three semi-final series. The Saints took the first 1-0.

Carl Liscombe, high-scoring left winger of Providence Reds, has been voted the American League's most gentlemanly player for the 1948-49 season, it was announced Thursday at New York.

Liscombe, who also won the circuit's most-valuable-player award, will receive $300 from the league for winning the Jack Fox Memorial or "clean player" award. Liscombe nosed out Sid Smith of Pittsburgh Hornets for the award.

A Scottish Cup semi-final replay between Clyde and Dundee has been slated for April 4, it was learned Thursday at London. Last Saturday the teams tied 2-2 in overtime. The winner of the Clyde-Dundee match meets Rangers April 23 in the final. Rangers ousted East Fife 3-0 last Saturday in the other semi-final.

At Albany, N.Y., Governor Thomas E. Dewey Thursday night vetoed a bill that would have created a commission to study the possibility of legalizing off-track pari-mutuel in the state.

At Detroit, a $250,000 libel suit was filed in Wayne County circuit court Thursday by a Detroit Red Wing hockey player, Jack Stewart, against Andy O'Brien, a newspaper columnist from Montreal. Stewart charged that O'Brien, sports editor of the Montreal Standard, made false statements regarding the Detroit player's conduct in early games of the current Stanley-Cup series between the Red Wings and the Montreal Canadiens.

Detroit Beats Canadiens 3-1; Leads Semi-Finals

DETROIT, April 1 (CP)—The Montreal Canadiens may be down a game in their semi-final Stanley Cup series with Detroit Red Wings, but since the difference between the two clubs is so little they're far from out yet.

The Red Wings Thursday night went ahead in their best-of-seven series for the first time since the first tilt when they scored a 3-1 victory in the fourth game to take a 3-2 lead in the set.

The defeat was the second straight for the Canadiens after Detroit won the first game, the Canadiens took the next two, but the Wings have emerged on top in the last two.

Harry Lumley, agile Detroit netminder, came through with a stirring performance Thursday night to play a leading part in the Red Wing's latest win.

The Detroit team, however, was unsure of the victory until the last four minutes of play. Jerry Couture and Gordon Howe notched the markers 32 seconds apart to break a 1-1 tie.

The victory put the Red Wings within a single game of a berth in the Stanley Cup finals against the defending champion Toronto Maple Leafs. The loss means Canadiens will have to win the next two games.

Only Fooled Once

Lumley, repulsing attack after attack, was only fooled once. Rip Riopelle fired a backhand shot as he sprawled tumbling past the Detroit goal and caught Lumley by surprise for the first goal of the game.

Riopelle's score came when Canadiens Kenny Reardon and Detroit's George Gee were off for roughing just after the second period opened.

The slim one-point margin loomed bigger as the game progressed and the Montreal team held onto it until 5:10 of the third period when Sid Abel took Red Kelly's pass and ripped in an angle shot.

In the third session, after slipping between the Montreal defence team of Doug Harvey and Butch Bouchard, Couture slid a 10-foot shot along the ice that goalie Bill Durnan didn't even make a move to stop.

That was the straw that broke Montreal's back, but Howe wasn't satisfied. He intercepted a Montreal pass at the blue line, moved one stride in and let fly from 55-feet to score on a shot that had Durnan screened.

The team's move to Montreal Saturday night, where a Detroit victory will give them the series. If Montreal wins the teams will be back here for the deciding game Tuesday.

Barrie Flyers Beat Combines 4-1 In Playoff

TIMMINS, Ont., April 1 (CP)—Defeat, if and when it comes to Barrie Flyers, will probably look strange.

Last night Barrie turned in a 4-1 victory over Porcupine Combines to take their 11th straight victory in almost six weeks. The win gave them a stranglehold, three games to none, on the best-of-seven series for the Ontario Junior Hockey Championship.

Next, and possibly final, game in the series will be played here Saturday.

Barrie found the going tough in the late stages Thursday night. Trailing 3-0 going into the third period, Porkies took new life from a picture-goal by Ray Volotaire and for the first time in the series outshot Barrie for the remainder of the period.

Playing for the first time in the series on their home ice, Combines threw third-period shots at Barrie goalie Gil Mayer that made him prove his worth to his title of best junior goalie in the Ontario Hockey Association.

On the whole, Barrie had the lion's share of the play. But the Flyers ran into the same stiff back-checking that they found in their first two games against Porkies, which they won by 4-0 and 11-2 scores.

Scores First Goal

Gord Pennell scored Barrie's first goal on a pass from Stan Long, but the Flyers couldn't find their way again past slim Lorne Howes, Porcupine netminder, until the second period.

Then Don Ashbee tallied on a three-way play with Sid McNabney and John Sheddon and eight minutes later Long found the net on a pass from Harold Hopper.

Volotaire's third-period goal at 1:13 gave an indication of the stick-handling skill latent in the northern team. He took a pass from Meston, sped in on Mayer and braked to a stop. Then he backed up and, fired into the corner as Mayer sprawled.

Howes, who has shone throughout the series in the Porcupine nets, was knocked to the ice by Hopper as he crossed the mouth of the net in the third period. Apparently unconscious, he was carried from the ice but he returned 10 minutes later as if nothing had happened.

Barrie's final goal was scored by McNabney on a pass from Ashbee and Don Burcham.

Curling News

By Herb Martin

Twenty men's rinks entered in Thursday night's bonspiel and completed three five end games, thus winding up the curling season of 1948-49. Who won the spiel? We don't know. We didn't wait to see. We had an idea that it would be well past midnight before the last straw would be played. It's been a long season; play began about the middle of last November and there has been something doing every day since. Schedules, bonspiels, friendly games, challenge game. It all adds up in making it a great season—but did you ever stop to think how much curling we would have had, had it not been for artificial ice—just think it over.

We understand that the rink closes Saturday at 6 p.m. Curlers are advised to remove all of their sweaters, coats, tams, etc., etc.

Remember the annual meeting for men curlers Monday, April 4, at 8 p.m.

Legion Rubs Out Grimsby In Second Straight To Hit Provincial Finals

By CEC PERDUE

Two goals by Chum Fryia late in the third period at Grimsby last night gave the local Legionnaires a 5-3 victory over the Peach Kings to eliminate the peninsula team in two straight games and send Legion into provincial OHA Senior "B" finals next week against the Orillia-Sarnia winner.

About 2,000 fans, including a number from Peterborough, saw another fast, exciting and close playoff contest, with the Vitarelli pack once again showing fight and hustle the last half to finish stronger and earn the duke. They were trailing 3-1 in the first frame, tallied the only marker of the second, and outscored the scrappy Kings 3-0 in a fast third stanza. Play threatened to get rough at times but was kept under control. But nine penalties were handed out, five to the visitors.

Scores Three

Fryia scored three of the victors' goals in a fine effort, while line-mate Toodie Greenlaw and brother Bob Greenlaw were in on a pair each. Figuring in on one apiece were Crowley, Rochetta, Parnell, Vitarelli and Godfrey. But it was the hustle and fight shown by the whole squad as a unit that meant victory. All the forwards worked hard both ways, the defence checked the homesters pretty much to a standstill, especially in the last half, and Ross Nicholls was his usual cool self in the cage. None of the losers was in on more than one goal. They worked hard, but faded toward the finish.

The Peach Kings roared in there throughout the first period and had a fair margin on territorial play. Blanchard tested Ross early and, with Rochetta off for holding, they pressed hard but to no avail. Soutar drew the finger for tripping and Crowley tore in like a jet plane to rap home a neat in close pass by Bob Greenlaw. Parnell got it next for cross-checking but was back when Dunham tied the score with a backhander at close quarters from Gluck. Barlow put them ahead in the crease with Miller's pass, but it was allowed. Crowley got a two-stitch cut on the head but drew the lone penalty for charging. Toodie came close and, with Bill back, Dodds put them up 3-1 on a neat solo effort right in on the net.

Cuts It Down

A rush by Ned Vitarelli and Bob Parnell nearly paid off to open the second chukker. The Kings pressed for four or five minutes, with Fryia threatening once, till Glass got the nod for boarding. The Parnell line pressed till he returned and Nicholls robbed Blanchard. Legion began to fight in more to keep Grimsby on the defensive and Godfrey was robbed as the first visiting line pressed hard when Reid got it for hooking. He was back when Fryia counted inside on a passout from T. Greenlaw and Parnell to make it 3-2 for Grimsby. They kept pouring in hard and Ross had to hop once to save near the finish, but Legion finished the frame stronger.

Play zipped up and down fast early in the third, with Greenlaw having one good try, and then the Parnell line almost counting. They checked the Peachmen up closely and had Goalie Leeson jumping. When Duffie went over for interference, Hill came close. He returned and Soutar left with a banged-up shoulder in the hot going. Burns was gated for holding but was back in time to see Bob Greenlaw tie up the score at 12.03 on smart in-close combination with Rochetta and Vitarelli, having but one defenceman to beat. Fryia put the Legion in the lead at 14.18, taking Godfrey's forward flip at centre and weaving in smartly to pick a corner. Coombs was gated for interference but got back when Fryia worked out of a corner with T. Greenlaw's pass at 18.26 to backhand the boot-heel into a corner of the twine tepee, and that was that.

The teams:

Legion—Goal, Nicholls; defence Vitarelli and Godfrey; centre, Rochetta; wings, R. Greenlaw and Crowley; alternates, Parnell, T. Greenlaw, Fryia, Hill, Stewart, Coombs, Mortimer and Burns.

Grimsby — Goal, Leeson; defence, Reid and Clancy; centre, Dodds; wings, Hutchison and Glass; alternates, Duffield, Warner, Blanchard, Barlow, Dunham, Soutar, Gluck and Miller.

Star London Soccer Team Keeps Eye Out For Stars

LONDON, April 1—(CP)—The report that Arsenal's talent scouts are studying the soccer credentials of a two-year-old child roused no fears of cradle-robbing. People are too used to Arsenal's reputation for thoroughness in selecting future stars.

Every day, from all over the country, the mailman brings letters sent by youngsters who want to play for soccer's biggest name team. Each is carefully considered. But few correspondents are called, and fewer are chosen.

Any prospective player must submit patiently to preliminaries. If there's a hint of promise, a scout is sent to watch him. The next step may be a spot on an Arsenal farm team. Then the personal touch starts.

A prospect is encouraged to continue school studies. When he reaches 17 and is old enough to sign a professional contract, he is invited to visit the club's ground at Highbury in North London and is shown over dressing-rooms, gymnasia and lodgings. Parents usually are asked to meet management and talk things over.

Then there's the Arsenal "code of conduct." This is a small red book with details on medical and dental treatment, training hours and care of equipment. A section in small type reminds the recruit that Arsenal players must make it a point of honor to conduct themselves "in a manner which will ensure your taking the field in a perfectly balanced mental and physical condition, thus enhancing your own and the club's reputation."

Dozen Talent Scouts

Arsenal employs more than a dozen talent scouts, known to the club as "Accredited Agents." Saturday after Saturday they travel across Britain, watching individual players on whom the club has reports. The information they send back to club headquarter is carefully recorded.

Most first-class teams build up cross-index files giving an extensive background picture of each young player—his character his father's occupation and so on. Some even codes tabulating players in grades according to ability.

West Bromwich Albion is among the clubs which shows keen interest in the younger fry. A large, flag-covered map in a club room shows the areas in which West Bromwich have prospects under a scout's eagle eye.

Against this background nobody was surprised when they heard about Arsenal's interest in the two-year-old. The report involved Guy Foster, 42 pounds in weight and close on to three feet in height. His uncle wrote Arsenal a glowing letter about the infant's budding soccer talent

Tom Whittaker, Arsenal manager, didn't take any chances. He asked Foster to bring the nephew around in about 15 years. Meanwhile he suggested, the boy "is just a little young for inclusion in any of our present teams."

40 Bowlers Attend Club Turkey Dinner

LAKEFIELD, April 1 (ENS)—More than 40 men attended the turkey dinner held by the Men's Bowling Club in Lakefield Hotel on Tuesday night.

At the head table were President William Bane, vice-president Milton Hopkins, secretary Percy Poyse, treasurer Sid Hutt.

Bernie Johnston's team won high score prize and Calvert Colwell's team consolation, while Elmer Graham won the high single.

Following the dinner the group held an evening's bowling to wind up the season.

8 Basketball Teams In Knockout Tourney

TORONTO, April 1 — (CP) — Eight basketball teams from Ontario secondary schools meet tonight in knockout competition for the Ontario interscholastic basketball championship.

Peterborough meets Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury tangles with Hamilton Westdale, Ottawa plays East York and Windsor faces Toronto Western Tech.

In an elimination game last night at Hamilton Westdale defeated Niagara Falls, 49-43 and in Toronto Western Tech beat University of Toronto schools, 43-28, and East York beat Central Commerce, 41-30.

Congratulate Air Force

OTTAWA, April 1 (CP)—Canada's Air Force, celebrating its silver jubilee today—April 1—has been swamped with congratulatory messages from around the world. Chiefs of staff of the Royal Air Force, the Commonwealth air forces, the United States Air Forces and those of Norway and the Netherlands have joined in heaping good wishes on the RCAF.

BETTY GANNETT, 42, Polish-born director of youth activities for the Communist Party, hurries to a New York taxi after being freed in $1,000 bail from Ellis Island. Miss Gannett, seized by the FBI, was charged with being a member of a group "which advocates the overthrow of the government by force of violence."

Hershey Downs Cleveland 5-1

By The Associated Press.

Hershey Bears Thursday night jumped into the finals of the American Hockey League's Calder Cup playoffs, and now are waiting the outcome of the battle between divisional winners to see who their title foe will be.

The Bears, unbeaten in post-season play, completed a sweep through two lower series by humbling the defending champions, Cleveland Barons, 5-1.

This gave them two straight over the Barons—the same sort of hurry-out treatment they earlier had accorded Indianapolis.

Meanwhile, the "A" series between Providence, the eastern winner, and St. Louis, the western pacesetter, continued hot with indications it might go the full seven games.

Providence Reds were forced into 28½ minutes overtime last night to gain a 5-4 victory over the Flyers at Providence. The Reds now lead three games to two.

The series now shifts to St. Louis where the Flyers will try to get even Sunday night. A seventh game, if necessary, will be played at Providence.

Opposition To Re-Arming Begins Already In Congress

By GEORGE E. RONALD

WASHINGTON, April 1—(CP).—There are murmurs of protest already about the United States plan to help re-arm anti-Communist Europe. Some Congressmen are asking: Is it really a wise plan?

It is a minority protest and probably will remain so. But when the administration unveils its program of military aid for North Atlantic pact countries, it may swell to troublesome proportions.

This is the argument President Truman's planners are going to have to face:

Many a top-flight military man believes the Russians could occupy western Europe within a few months, just as Nazi invaders did in 1940. Therefore, is it wise for the United States to provide modern war equipment to countries which could so easily be swallowed up? Should the United States arm western Europe or save its strength?

Need Strong Europe

That argument, the administration contends, has serious flaws, no matter how sincerely it is offered. The reply of Congressmen who take the long-range view of United States security is that the stronger Europe is made, the less will be Russia's chances for any "blitz" victory.

"If we can make it sufficiently clear, in advance, that army armed attack affecting our national security would be met with overwhelming force, the armed attack might never occur."

The President made that observation in support of the Atlantic alliance. The argument presumably will be used too in backing the arms plan, which will be disclosed soon after the signing of the alliance here Monday.

Missionary Group Told About Africa

LAKEFIELD, April 1—(ENS)—Mrs. W. Leonard gave a paper on missionary work abroad at the Missionary and Service Club, Tuesday. A letter was read from Rev. L. Steed, Toronto, telling of missionary work being carried out in Africa by her son, Rev. Harold Steed.

Mrs. E. M. Northey was hostess and Mrs. R. E. Sutton had charge of the evening's program. Mrs. S. A. Grylls gave an interesting review on the study book.

Mrs. Charles Hunter led in prayer. Miss Betty Jane Roth contributed a solo. The president, Mrs. Stanley Richardson, presided for a brief business session. Lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. E. Anderson, Mrs. G. Kerry and Mrs. C. Coons.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Richardson on April 26.

Push Child In River

HUNTSVILLE, April 1 (CP)—Two five-year-old boys pushed a younger playmate into the Muskoka River from the steamer dock of this summer resort centre, police said Thursday. Bobby Rancier, four, was reported missing from his home since noon. Police, who started dragging the river for the child's body, said the five-year-olds ran home to tell their parents what had happened after pushing Bobby off the dock.

Authorize Mile Of Mains At Cost $21,721

Utilities Commission authorized the laying of nearly one mile of water main on Clonsilla, Third and Western Avenues and Frank St. at their meeting Thursday. Estimated cost is $21,721.19. Services will extend the footage to about one mile and a quarter.

G. S. Matthews presided with Commissioners G. A. Macdonald and Fred Hills present. R. L. Dobbin submitted a program of work of approximate cost of $62,060.50. Scanning it, they asked the question: Where is there sufficient revenue in any of it?

Discussion gradually shaped the suggestion that the Commission should be guaranteed at least 10 per cent. of the cost of new water main work. Although it was not adopted, it presented the alternative of eventually increasing the rates to all water users. "To get 10 per cent," said Mr. Dobbin, "we should have a connection to a house every 50 feet on both sides of a street on which a main is laid."

"We are getting to the point where we must hesitate about authorizing new work," Mr. Matthews remarked. Referring to one street that was being discussed, he said: "We don't know how many houses would follow you," meaning that the Commission had no prior information as to the number of applications for connections that would develop from the laying of a water main on that street. "We'll have to hesitate unless we are willing to raise the rates all over the city."

Ignore Services

A fairly common practice of citizens desiring to build homes for themselves has been to buy a lot, without consideration of whether service mains have been or are likely to be laid on that street. Then, when they have begun to excavate for the cellar they apply to the Utilities Commission for water. And at the same time they ask City Engineer Chalmers for a sewer.

Recent comment from both the Commission and the council is to the effect that in too many instances of house building on such streets, vacant lots were available on other streets with both services already provided.

Cost of property on the one street may be cheaper than on the other with its sewer and water pipes, but when this necessary accommodation is laid on the first street, the difference in value is soon equalized in assessment.

City council declined this week to approve the laying of a sewer on Cameron St., west of Monaghan Road, because of the cost of service to a row of houses that were being planned, while similar construction might proceed on streets on which sewers were already laid or promised.

Encourage Building

Both bodies have been encouraging the building of houses in many sections of the city but in the words of Mr. Matthews Thursday: "We are getting to the point where we've got to hesitate." The Commission and the Council have reflected the sentiment of the public in favor of providing for new housing, but their members are now disposed to suggest that some of the vacant lots on streets with water and sewer mains should be examined by prospective builders instead of leaving that consideration of existing services until the last.

Both bodies have recognized that the general public is directly interested in this matter. Water consumers throughout he city probably would not be aware of it until their rates were increased, if new mains are going to be laid on streets where the number of houses is not enough to yield required revenue.

Where Is Revenue?

In looking over Mr. Dobbin's program, the question "where is there revenue in any of it?" was asked by the Commissioner virtually in unison. There is little work remaining to complete the water main connections on Rose and Wilson Avenues. Mr. Dobbin asked for direction as to where he should then begin the 1949 schedule. Highland Heights in the McFarlane Ave. section, near the canal, and the Parkdale subdivision east of Nicholls Oval were mentioned. It may be that the 10% guarantee of revenue will be required from both.

The Clonsilla-Western Ave. part of the program was considered last year, and was placed near the top of the new list.

Details of this work were set out by Mr. Dobbin for the Commission's information.

Clonsilla Ave.: Sherbrooke St. to Western Ave.; seven applications received from 12 existing houses, with a possibility of about 12 more services in the future.

Required—2350 feet of 8-in. main. Estimated cost $10,568.74 (includes 7 services); revenue from seven services at $18.75—$131.25 a year.

Western Ave.: from Clonsilla south to New Chamberlain St.; five applications received from 11 existing houses with a possible total of 20 services in future. St. Alphonsus Church house will be off this extension.

Required—900 feet of 6-in. main; estimated cost $3,569.97 (includes five services); revenue from five houses at $18.75—$93.75 a year.

Third Ave.: from Clonsilla Ave. to High St. Two applications received. There are 13 houses now built, with land for four more. Required: 710 feet of 6-in. main; estimated cost $3,506.28 feet (includes 13 services); revenue from 13 services at $18.75—$243.75 a year.

Frank St.—from end of main to Western Ave. The new St. Alphonsus Church will be fed off this extension. Four additional applications have been received, with 12 more possible in future. Required—970 feet of 6-in. main; estimated cost $4,076.20 (includes 6 services); revenue from six houses at $18.75—$112.50.

Encourages Rejection

FRANKFURT, Germany, April 1—(AP)—A responsible American official said Thursday Britain encouraged the left-wing Social Democratic party to turn down the latest Allied proposals on a Western German constitution. The S.P.D. decision, announced at Bonn Wednesday night, solidified the deadlock between the Allies and the Germans over the formation of a Western German state.

MAJ. GEN. CLAYTON L. BISSELL, former assistant Army chief of staff, has been charged, in Frankfurt, Germany, under the Articles of War and may be court-martialed. Certain unspecified acts, while Bissell was military and air attache in London, are being investigated to see if a trial is warranted.

Cancer Causes 40 Deaths Daily In Canada

Forty people die of cancer in Canada every day Dr. W. G. Cosbie, assistant professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Toronto told on Thursday the Peterborough unit of the Canadian Cancer Society. The unit was launching a month's intensive campaign to raise money, at a dinner at the Kawartha Club at which Dr. Cosbie was the guest speaker. The campaign is to be carried out in the city and throughout the county during April and the year's target is set at $7,000.

No More Today

The professor said that cancer kills more people in America annually than the total number of fatal casualties in all wars in which the United States was engaged before the Pearl Harbor incident. There was no more cancer today than at any other time he said, but it was brought to the attention of the world more forcefully in recent times because of the modern improvements in diagnosis and also because people lived longer lives. Cancer was more prevalent among older people.

Because science had conquered the diseases of infancy, cancer had risen from being the tenth most common cause of death to the second. It was now second only to heart disease.

Four hundred years ago a new born baby had an expectancy of life of only eight years. In 1900 it had risen to 40 years; in 1920, 48 and at the present time life expectancy was 63 years.

During the recent war three of every thousand men in the armed forces died of natural causes compared with 12 in the first world war and 63 in the Boer war.

The modern way of life had not resulted in an increase of cancer, Dr. Cosbie claimed. In the bones of mummys dug up from the tombs of pyramids evidence of cancer had been found, he said.

Called Gangster Cells

In explaining the workings of cancer cells, the professor said they had been described as gangster cells. They did no other work than to expand and because of this they were able to compete well with other cells.

There were two ways of treating cancer, Dr. Cosbie said. One was by empirical methods—giving treatment which made the patient more comfortable without actually curing—and the other was specific treatment. Science had not yet found a specific way of treating cancer, he said. Only 25 per cent of cancer cases were treated radio therapeutically, the remainder being surgical cases.

The two common beliefs concerning the causes of cancer were that it was either the result of a blow or was passed on as a contagious disease. The professor emphasized that it was not contagious. He said it was often considered better for the public not to think too much about cancer; that ignorance was better than knowledge. He felt, however, that fear was the first aspect of the problem to be fought.

The professor mentioned cancer detection clinics which had been set up in Montreal and Quebec. It was impossible to supply that service to the entire country, he maintained. He said it would cost 39 million dollars a year to provide those services throughout Ontario and every one would have to return every six months for re-examinations. He felt that, under the circumstances, such large sums of money could be put to better uses.

Diagnose Early

Importance of early diagnosis was emphasized [illegible] the speaker thought family d[illegible]s should be encouraged to d[illegible]se cases in the early stages. [illegible] thought general practitioners should be paid a special fee for every diagnosis. Treatment of cancer did not have to be centralised. If skilled doctors and facilities were made available, patients could be treated in local hospitals. In order to study results of cancer treatment it was necessary for cured patients to return to the hospitals from time to time to enable the doctors to see the effects of heir work. Dr. Crosbie wanted cancer to be made a registerable disease just as infectious illnesses were.

The consultative clinic scheme, at present operating in the north, is to be expanded greatly throughout Ontario, the professor predicted.

After the president, Charles Allen retired from the dinner to attend another engagement, the chair was taken by Miss Myrtle Sargent who explained that after the unit had raised $1,400 last year, the Ontario Division of the society had asked Peterborough to aim for $7,000 this year. This unit was mainly concerned with educational work and service in the form of treatment, she said. She announced that Mrs. M. Bennett would be in charge of the headquarters in the Bradburn Building, George St. during April and that J. McDonald was the new treasurer.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. J. C. C. Dawson and Fred Overend proposed a vote of thanks.

CARLING'S CONSERVATION CORNER

Trees and water are two of the mainstays of farming in Ontario. Together they help to protect farm lands—and cities and towns—from flood and drought. Trees are perhaps the most important weights in the delicate balance of nature.

Prince Philip Soon To Get His First Home

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

LONDON, April 1 —(CP)— Time and again the Duke of Edinburgh remarks to friends: "I'm looking forward to having a home at last—I've never really had one."

For as long as he can remember Prince Philip has been at boarding schools or naval establishments, spending his vacations with relatives and friends.

Now at last he and Princess Elizabeth are counting the days until they can move into Clarence House, Regent's Park, and have a home of their own after 16 months of married life.

Both have given much time and thought to planning the move —more complicated than even a normal royal "moving" because their furniture has never been under one roof before.

The bulk of the future contents of Clarence House has been kept in commercial storage depositories in London. Consequently the young couple have to furnish their house on paper. Scale plans of the house were supplied by architects while detailed lists were made of all their furniture and household possessions.

Using these, they have decided where everything is to go and every week or so they visit the new house to see how their plans will work out.

Like most couples, Elizabeth and Philip have to fix their standard of living according to their income—and some believe Clarence House will be the most economically run home ever occupied by an heir to the throne.

The Duke has no income beyond his naval pay and the Princess has no vast fortune either. The £50,000 ($200,000) a year which the state pays Elizabeth and her husband sounds plenty, but considering their financial obligation it isn't really so much.

Only things they will get free of charge are rent, rates, repairs to Clarence House and an income tax rebate on their official expenses.

Elizabeth plans to run the house with about 20 servants—a third of the staff employed by the previous Duchess of Edinburgh.

On Right Track

MONTREAL, April 1—(CP) — Defence Minister Claxton told students at Sir George Williams College Thursday that Russia's protest against the Atlantic Pact "lead us to believe we are on the right track." Addressing a meeting sponsored by the college's political problems club, Mr. Claxton said ultimately the pact will have the effect of reducing total amounts spent on armaments by participating nations.

Mother Wins Acquittal

REGINA, April 1—(CP)—Elva Anderson, 21-year-old unmarried mother accused of burning her newborn baby in a coal stove, Thursday was acquitted of infanticide and neglecting the baby at birth. Dismissing the infanticide charge, Judge B. D. Hogarth said: "There is no evidence the child was born alive, so I cannot find she caused its death." Judge Hogarth also ruled the crown did not prove neglect.

Marriage Triangle

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 1—(AP) —Three men lost their lives Thursday night in what police described as a double murder and suicide which was the apparent result of a 37-year-old man's disintegrating marital life. The victims, Detective William T. Fitzgibbons said, were: Casimir Saskowski, who shot himself as police closed in on him in his automobile; Peter Harold Hertel, 37, a bachelor; and Edward J. Cohn, a lawyer who police said they understood had been handling a divorce case for Mrs. Saskowski.

At the same time it made public the testimony in his secret trial before a United States military commission at Munich Feb. 17.

A NORWICH PRODUCT 29-7

SIR OLIVER FRANKS, left, British ambassador to the United States, greets Rt. Hon. Ernest Bevin, Foreign Secretary, upon his arrival in Washington for talks with U.S. officials concerning solidarity among Western powers. The first of a series of major conferences started this afternoon.

Farmers Have Commenced Spring Work On The Land

Another agricultural year began Wednesday with farmers turning the first furrows of the new season. Walter Bowles of Scott's Corners put his hand to the plow again after the inactivity on the land since the frost seized it last fall. W. C. Kimble of Bobcaygeon was out ahead of his neighbors in that section of Victoria, and Ernie McWilliam reports that the spring plowing campaign has been opened in Otonabee.

Fall wheat and clover have wintered well, and the circumstances of the change of season are favorable throughout this area.

That is a brief appraisal of farm outlook as March ends. It sounds like a summary dismissal of a rather important phase of farm affairs, the condition of the fall crops in their emergence from winter. There may be a few spots of damage here and there, but farmers talking to The Examiner have not mentioned them. Mr. McWilliam at Dewart's, W. A. Davidson at Co-Op, Frank Patterson, agricultural representative, with many daily contacts from the agricultural belt, relay the information that winter departed without any whiplash of losses to the grain and clover fields.

Syrup Crop Light

Maple syrup (and sugar), first crop of the year, is coming to market with intimations that the output is likely to be light. Farmers say they are still hampered by insufficient help, and generally the labor problem.

The 1949 lambs are gamboling, seed grain is going to the cleaners, and the first reforming of the farm front has all the signs of an orderly movement, without any damage and losses to be counted.

Forehanded farmers are getting a head start on their planned operations. They lay out their job as does the factory manager—machines to be dusted off and oiled, parts to be examined, bolts tightened; fertilizer purchased, instead of waiting until the last minute of the eleventh hour.

Mr. McWilliam said the grain movement was normal. Mr. Davidson mentioned some farmer who had taken delivery the other morning of some weight of fertilizer between eight and ten tons.

"Then there are others who keep putting off until they are lucky to find any left when they do get around to enquiring about the fertilizer supply."

The distributing trade was chary about stocking heavily with fertilizer during the winter. Manufacturers lacked the usual handy outlets, and present storage is less than usual.

"I wouldn't say there was scarcity," said Mr. Davidson, "but there is quick movement of supplies; they appear to be going out about as fast as they arrive, because there was not just the same volume of buying during the winter."

Dave McIntyre of Otonabee says the countryside at Mather's Corners has a cheerful, greening look these days, and there is present promise that the new harvest year is getting off on the right foot.

So, that is the first review of the agricultural front. Frost is gone from the ground, wheat and clover fields have a healthy color, even the land is showing broad evidence of drying, and farmers are ready for work.

No More Babies

LOS ANGELES, April 1—(AP) —Mrs. Georgette Brucks, 21, who pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the death by beating of one of her three children, has born her fourth child and has been sterilized. She was taken from her jail cell to a private hospital, where the child, a six-pound, seven-ounce boy, was delivered last Thursday. Her one-to-10-year prison term was suspended after she agreed to submit to a sterilization operation.

Control Funds Having Charity As 2nd Aim

TORONTO, April 1 — (CP).— A Toronto newspaper in a front-page story to-day quotes Provincial Treasurer Frost as saying that Ontario's Charities Bill is aimed at trust funds operated with charity as a secondary objective. Resumption of debate on the second reading of the government measure has been delayed until Monday to permit passage of departmental estimates.

The paper quotes Mr. Frost as saying:

"We are after a charitable trust or foundation that controls a business in perpetuity and operates it with charity as a secondary consideration. A trust that holds securities and does not hold control is not the class of trust we are concerned with in this Bill."

Pact Resolutions

VANCOUVER, April 1—(CP) —Harold Winch, British Columbia CCF leader, said Thursday that resolutions condemning the Atlantic Pact will be placed before the CCF's annual convention here April 14-17. In an interview, Mr. Winch said the resolutions were submitted by British Columbia CCF groups.

Canada Bigger Than Europe Following Union

By The Canadian Press.

Union of Newfoundland with Canada makes the Dominion larger than Europe, raises its population to more than 13,000,000, gives it a new 14th city, and a seventh time zone.

It does these things to Canada:

Population—raises it from an estimated 12,883,000 by 320,000 to 13,203,000.

Area—increases it from 3,690,000 square miles by 152,000 to 3,842,000, compared with Europe's 3,776,000.

Expanse—extends its width about 275 miles to roughly 3,350 from Cape Race to Queen Charlotte Islands.

Border—adds nothing to the 3,987-mile border with the United States.

Provinces—gives it a new ninth province in population, a new seventh province in size.

Cities—gives it a new 14th city, St. John's with 60,000 people, between Verdun, Que., and Regina.

Red Cross Drive

TORONTO, April 1 (CP)—Incomplete returns in the $5,000,000 Canadian Red Cross campaign indicate that the half-way mark was passed March 26, national headquarters announced Thursday. Calgary and Charlottetown were the first large centres to report "over the top."

PRINCESS MARGARET ROSE, accompanied by Alderman Charles Gill (right), Lord Mayor of Bristol, England, reviews a Guard of Honor of Naval Cadets during her visit to Bristol last Monday.

Adjourn Hearing

TORONTO, April 1 (CP)—Preliminary hearing of Virgil Barkman, 49-year-old barber charged with manslaughter Thursday was adjourned to April 28. The $4,000 bail was renewed. Barkman is charged with the traffic death of William Miller, 21-year-old youth whose fiancee, Helen Billson, also was injured. Miss Billson, a model, still was in hospital and could not testify.

Kidnapped Near Church

VIENNA, April 1—(Reuters)— Three civilians Thursday seized a middle-aged well-dressed man near St. Stephen's cathedral in Vienna and dragged him into an automobile carrying Russian licence plates. Passers-by heard the man shout in Austrian "Help, help the Russians have got me!" as the car drove away.

Film Producers Reject Oscars

HOLLYWOOD, April 1 — (AP).—Chances increased today that the coveted Academy-award "Oscars," symbols of excellence in the motion-picture art, soon will become collectors' items.

Five top movie producers have come out flatly with an announcement they are stopping their contributions to the awards.

The producers, in a joint statement from New York, indicated they are withdrawing financial aid to the awards to remove "any suspicion of company influence."

Robert Montgomery, Academy secretary, declared Wednesday night:

"The Academy is not in a financial position to sponsor the awards itself. And since the film companies benefit by the Oscars, it seems only fair that they should help contribute to the presentation ceremony."

Montgomery pointed out that the companies exploit to the limit any Academy award won by their pictures.

Churchill Baton From Ancient Tree

BLENHEIM, Germany, April 1—(AP)—Winston Churchill is going to receive a marshal's baton made from a tree which "witnessed" the historic victory of Churchill's ancestor, the Duke of Marlborough, here in 1704.

The walnut wood is being donated by the mayor of Blenheim. The Royal Borough of Kensington, London, will present the baton to Churchill when he is made an honorary citizen of the Borough. The baton will be a replica of the one John Churchill, Duke of Marlborough, carried when he defeated the Spaniards in the Battle of Blenheim.

The tree was just a sapling then.

DAISY'S DAY WAS Thursday, when this cow, more formally known as Lynnden Hartog Daisy, a 6-year-old Holstein, set a new all-time world's record for yearly butterfat production. Daisy, on twice-daily milking, turned out 1,324 pounds of butterfat in a year. She's owned by Jack Wauchope of Schomberg.

Seeks Council Seat In Halifax

Dr. Lloyd P. Rutherford, proprietor of the Halifax Veterinary Hopital, Halifax, N. S., for the past nine years and prior to that a resident of Peterborough, arrived here Thursday by plane, via Toronto, on a visit to his sister, Mrs. Miriam Cuffe, 626 Charlotte street, who is now seriously ill in St. Joseph's Hospital. Dr. Rutherford planned to return to Halifax by air today.

Dr. Rutherford has been active in civic affairs since moving to Halifax and has just filed nomination papers as a candidate for Alderman in Ward 3 of the City Council in the annual civic elections which take place April 27. He is campaigning against the veteran member of the council, Alderman Frank Adams, who has been on the council continuously for the past 20 years.

Dr. Rutherford made one earlier futile attempt to gain election to the City Council two years ago when he ran in a four-cornered by-election contest in Ward One called to fill a vacancy.

The former Peterborough resident is vice-president of the Halifax South Civic Improvement Association, vice-president of the Halifax Citizens' Housing Association, a director of the Halifax Y.M.C.A. and a past president of the Y's Men's Club.

Kennedy Thinks Bill Quite Fair

TORONTO, April 1 — (CP) — Premier Kennedy said today in a statement that the controversial bill to regulate charitable foundations, now before the Ontario Legislature, is "fair and right."

"This bill . . . carries out in the most equitable manner, I think, one of the first duties of a government in a system such as ours," said the Premier's statement. He said he regretted being unable to speak on the bill in the Legislature because of illness.

Premier Kennedy said he felt the bill "is long overdue."

"Succession duties or inheritance taxes are for the purpose of preventing the accumulation of great concentrations of wealth. Their use is recognized in all civilized countries.

"It is also right that there should be only one law for the rich and poor. As long as my government holds office, this principle will be maintained.

Say British Corporals Attacked A Sentry

VIENNA, April 1 —(Reuters) —Maj.-Gen. Tsinyev, Soviet deputy high commissioner in Austria, today alleged that two British corporals assaulted by Soviet sentries in Vienna last Sunday were drunk and had attacked a sentry.

In a statement published in the Soviet occupation force's newspaper, he rejected a protest by Maj.-Gen. T. J. W. Winterton, British deputy high commissioner.

A British official statement had said one of the corporals "unwittingly" stepped inside the barrier as the two walked past the Imperial Hotel, Russian secret-police headquarters.

Tsinyev said the two tried to break through the barrier, despite warnings from the Soviet sentry.

Cornwall Bread Price Set 15 Cents Loaf

CORNWALL, April 1 — (CP) —Bread prices from Cornwall to Quebec border will be increased Friday to a straight 15 cents for a 24-ounce loaf, a bread company official said today. The increase is a result of the Dominion government's cancellation of the flour subsidy. Current prices are 13 cents for unsliced bread and 14 for sliced. Rolls will increase from 22 cents a dozen to 24 cents. No change is planned in the price of sweet goods.

. . . men of Newfoundland fought to wrest a living from the sea and from the land, for themselves and their families.

But they fought with more than brawn alone, and for more than mere physical existence. Their courageous minds burned with the determination that free men should govern themselves.

In 1832, after 30 years of internal and external struggle, men like Dr. William Carson and Patrick Morris led them to their first form of representation by ballot. There followed more years of argument, of battle by negotiation, never by arms—until in 1855 the right to vote became truly theirs.

As the people of Canada welcome the men and women of Newfoundland to Canadian citizenship, it is with respect and admiration, in the knowledge that the decision to throw in their lot with this Dominion was made through the ballot box—the silent spokesman of true democracy.

When YOU cast your ballot at every election—municipal, provincial, federal—you exercise a duty and privilege planned, worked, and fought for by your forefathers. Your vote protects the future of your children. To fail in this duty is to be less than a good citizen.

Fonda Signs Up For Long-Term Broadway Role

By BOB THOMAS

NEW YORK, April 1 (AP)— Henry Fonda has his work cut out for him.

The slow-talking actor has signed on for the duration of the play "Mister Roberts," which may well prove longer than the war in which both Messrs. Roberts and Fonda served the navy.

It's an actor's dream—the security of a long-running and successful role. The few that have achieved it include Frank Bacon with "Lightning;" and Joseph Jefferson . "Rip Van Winkle;" James Barton, "Tobacco Road;" Frank Fay, "Harvey."

This will be a unique project. It will mark the first time for a picture to be made by the same cast and company of a stage hit. The troupe will knock off a couple of months and do their parts before a camera aboard a cargo ship.

Among Exiles

Fonda is one of many Hollywood exiles in the big town. Take a look at the ex-filmities now facing the footlights. There are Irene Rich and Hobart Cavanaugh in "As The Girls Go"; both get big hands from remembering fans. Lee J. Cobb and Arthur Kennedy are the hits of the town in "Death of a Salesman."

Other include Jessica Tandy in "A Streetcar Named Desire;" Bert Wheeler in "All for Love;" Rex Harrison in "Anne of the Thousand Days;" Ralph Bellamy in "Detective Story;" Madeleine Carroll and Conrad Nagel;" in "Goodbye, May Fancy;" Pat Morrison in "Kiss Me, Kate;" Bill Eythe in "Lend an Ear;" John Garfield in "The Big Knife"; Paul Muni in "They Knew What They Wanted;" and Melvyn Douglas in "Two Blind Mice."

U.S. Ends Search For Treasures

By GEORGE BRIA

BERLIN, April 1 —(AP)—The United States is about to write finish to one of the great treasure hunts of history.

It goes under the name of restitution.

In Januray, 1943, most of the United Nations served notice in a London communique that they would reclaim the loot seized by the N[illegible] in their mad stampede over Europe.

When the war ended the big search started. In the American zone of Germany alone, 21,000 claims were filed. A staff of 60 Americans and 500 Germans was organized to weed them out and fill the bill wherever possible.

The job is expected to end formally June 30, but it is virtually complete now.

Up to the end of February, nearly 300,000,000 Reichsmarks (about $100,000,000) worth of property, excluding art treaures, had been turned back to their owners.

Art Treasures Returned

Art treasures—paintings, statues, silverware, entire libraries, rare books, religious icons—also were turned for a nominal value of more than 600,000,000 Reichsmarks (about $200,000,000).

Most of the art treasures went back to France.

The Soviets filed 485 claims. More than 300 of them were rejected. Russia remanded that Soviet teams be allowed to slueth around the American zone in search of loot. The Americans turned him down. They said the claims were rejected because the Russians had failed to provide proof of ownership.

An American official said the Soviets, instead of complaining about the American zone, should look at their own restitution record. By February, 1948, last date for which a Soviet report was available, the Russians had returned only 45,000,000 Reichsmark worth of property from their own zone. Of this, 20,000,000 worth went to the Russians themselves, and large shares were handed out to Soviet-sphere countries.

Mercy Plane Leaves

OTTAWA, April 1 — (CP)— A plane carrying supplies for Eskimos in the Garry Lake district of the Northwest Territories left Churchill, Man., on a flight into the Arctic Thursday. The Eskimos have been short of their necessary winter supply requirements because an aircraft on a similar mission early last winter had been damaged before it could reach the northern outpost.

Fire In Attic Awakens Sleeping Family

Damage estimated at $500 was caused to the residence of Paul L. Minicola, 86 Morrow St., shortly before midnight on Thursday when fire broke out and burned through the eaves and the attic flooring.

The Minicola family, Fire Chief George Smith and the insurance adjuster, Fred Jennings, are unable to determine the cause of the blaze.

"It's a lucky thing I was just dozing and happened to hear the flames or we might not be here to tell about it," Mrs. Minicola commented.

The family has been bothered by squirrels nesting in the eaves of the attic and at first Mrs. Minicola thought the sound coming from that direction was from them. Suddenly she had a suspicion that it might be fire, opened the attic door and saw the interior of the room smouldering.

She immediately closed the door and woke the two sleeping children, Pauline, 11, and Larry, 6. Then she turned in the alarm.

"The real blaze broke out just as the Fire Department turned the corner," Mrs. Minicola said.

Attic Vacant

Puzzling all concerned is the fact that nobody, to the knowledge of Mrs. Minicola, had been in the attic which is vacant; and there is no break in the plastered surface between the attic floor and eaves through which a match or spark could penetrate.

The fire is believed to have started within this section and burned through the eaves and the flooring. To fight the flames the ceiling of a downstairs bedroom and part of the hallway had to be ripped away.

In addition a hole was chopped in the roof from the outside to get at the elusive fire. A booster line was used inside and water damage was described as light.

Mrs. Minicola believed that squirrels might have started the blaze in some manner, but she was informed that it is not one of their characteristics to steal matches.

Mr. Minicola, a salesman, was in Windsor on a business trip at the time.

"We've only had the house a year," Mrs. Minicola said today. "And now we have all this mess; it's very discouraging."

MAIN ST. TOPICS

BANK CLEARINGS

Total clearing passing through the Peterborough Clearing House for the week ending Thursday amounting to $2,047,547.

CHIMES HEARD AFAR

It was a good day for sound to carry. The bells of St. John's Church pealing a noontime official welcome to Newfoundland were heard as far distant as the C.G.E. plant.

TWO SUPERANNUATED

Employees of Utilities Commission presented cheques Thursday to Daniel Kennedy and Clarence Cooke of the staff of the gas department who are retiring on pension. The presentation was made by Mr. Ernest F. Reid.

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS DOWN

Customs receipts for the month of March were $353,054 in comparison with $522,867 for the same period in 1946. March marks the end of the fiscal year. Total receipts for the 1948-49 were $4,959,339 and for the previous year $5,016,421.

CLEANED UP

Workmen of the Board of Works blocked off the Market Square for its annual wash and cleaning today. Usually all parking space is taken up early in the morning, but things were different today with only six cars there.

REMANDED

Gerald Monahen, 203 Crescent St., charged with assaulting City Police Constable Gordon Trennum today shortly after midnight, later told Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC at city police court that he was drunk at the time of the alleged incident and could not remember. He was remanded on a $500 bail until Wednesday.

BRAKE LINE BROKE

While driving in a line of traffic on George St. on Thursday the brake line of his truck broke causing Blake Matthews to collide with the car ahead. This car in turn bumped the car ahead of it. Constable J. Morrow investigated and found the damage to be not more than $40.

USE 1948 FORMS

Revenue Minister McCann suggested in the Commons Thursday that people filing income tax forms on the basis of quarterly payments use the 1948 forms but take into account the new deductions and rates announced in the recent budget. G. K. Fraser M.P., Peterborough West noted that Thursday was the first quarterly deadline.

QUALITY GOOD

Veteran trappers report the muskrat run is only fair. The ice in the marshes still hinders the trappers. Although some ice did move out last week, another thin layer has been added the last few days when the temperature has dropped. Quality of skins turned in so far is described as good.

Cox Acquitted On Two Counts By Cobourg Jury

COBOURG, April 1—(ENS).—Deliberating less than a half hour Thursday afternoon, the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty in connection with both motor manslaughter and dangerous driving charges against Garnet Cox of Peterborough.

Cox was the driver of a car which last November was involved in an accident with three other cars near Fraserville. Richard Mercer, passenger in the Cox car, died after the accident.

"The jury must have accepted your version of the story," commented Mr. Justice Urquhart in dismissing the charges against Cox.

Robert Wrightley of Havelock, who was in the first of two cars in a southbound string which met the Cox car going north at the time of the accident, said that he was 50 feet from the crest of the knoll when he first saw the lights of the oncoming car driven by Cox. He said it was hard to drive against the lights but was sure that he, Wrightley, was on his own side of the road. Cox's car hit his.

Provincial Constable Emmett Crowe of Peterborough testified that weather conditions were good and the pavement dry. He found that four cars had been implicated in the accident. Wrightly's car was 320 feet south of Cox's car on the west side Foote's car was on the west shoulder of the highway. The Austin car was north of the Cox car on the east shoulder. Cox was lying in the ditch and was apparently badly injured. Witness told of the marks found at the scene of the accident.

Sees Gouge Mark

There were no marks on the south side of the hill, Constable Crowe said. However, there was a gouge mark on the other side of the hill, 12 inches west of the white centre line at a point nine feet from the west edge of the pavement. Skid marks ran from east of the white line into the west ditch, ending at the Cox car

Sinclair Davies, passenger in the car which Cox was following at the crest of the hill, testified that Cox was passing his car when the collision with Wrightly's automobile occurred.

Provincial Constable A. F. Grayling of Peterborough said that when he examined the Cox car he found a 24-pint carton and a 12-pint carton of beer. There were 16 full pints intact and 11 empties as well as several broken bottles. It was apparent that there had been originally 36 bottles of which 16 were full and the soggy condition of the cases indicated that others were filled when broken, he said.

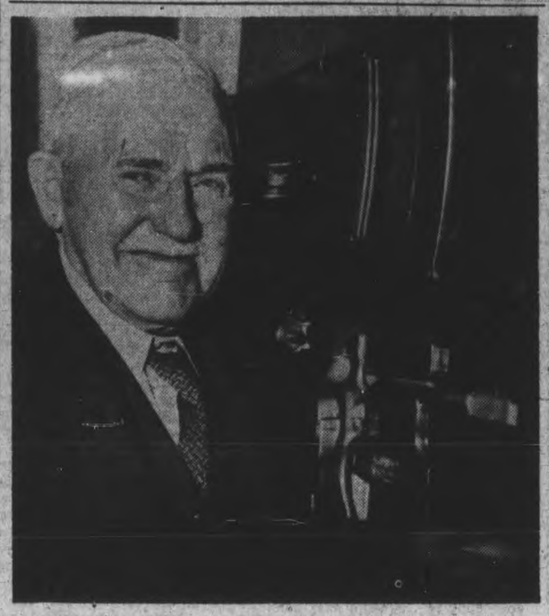
Anne Huey of Peterborough, defence witness, said she was riding in the front seat with Cox at the time of the accident. Mr. and Mrs. Mercer were riding behind. They had started from Peterborough at around 3 or 3.30 that afternoon and took a case of beer with them which Mercer put in the trunk of the car. They drove out by Keene, Hastings, Baltimore and in to Cobourg and thence to Port Hope. Each had had four or five pints of beer but the last bottle was drunk near Baltimore around seven o'clock in the evening. They stopped at Port Hope for something to eat at 8.45, leaving for Peterborough at 9.45. On the way from Bewdley they passed two or three cars. Their own speed was from 40 to 45 miles per hour.

Car Ahead Swerves

"Just before the accident, the car ahead of us swerved to the east and I thought he did it in order to let us pass but we didn't have a chance as a car came towards us and collided. We were two or three feet to the right of the centre line. Just at the time of the accident, the car ahead of us went over on the shoulder of the road and the oncoming car seemed on the wrong side of the road when we struck," she testified.

Questioned by Crown Attorney Harry Deyman, witness said that the Cox car didn't turn out to pass. Mr. Deyman read from her statement to Constable Crowe.

"I noticed as Garnet tried to pass one car it speeded up," read Mr. Deyman.



"I meant the car ahead of us speeded up," she explained.

Describes Route

Garnet Cox described the route taken by the four on their drive the day of the accident. He had a case of his own beer and Mercer put a case in the trunk of the car and they drank them off and on during their drive. Each had four or five pints that day, having their last drink around seven in the evening. After eating at Port Hope, they headed towards Peterborough.

Just before the accident there were three cars in a string. He passed one of them and then noticed the lights of a car coming at him, followed by the crash. He testified that at the time he was on his own side of the road and had not attempted to pass the car ahead of him. To Mr. Deyman he said that the crash occurred just after he had come over the crest of a knoll and he noticed that the car ahead of him, just before the impact, had swerved to one side.

Harry Deyman acted for the Crown and T. J. Carley K.C., for the defence.

Instalment, Or Lump Tax? He Lumped, Lost, $25 Cost

Several local residents have recently learned that it pays to read the small print on their income tax forms. And it has cost them money for the lesson. One highly-respected professional man on Hunter St., who would no more think of trying to cheat the Receiver-General than his wife (it's a hopeless proposition in either case, he confided), was recently billed for an extra $25 on his 1946 income tax returns.

When he received the notice to pay he began a slow burn. He reasoned to himself that in 1946 he had carefully made out his form and that he could use $25 as well as the Finance Minister; so he wrote a lofty letter to the regional income tax branch asking how come.

The reply was prompt, courteous, pointed and even illustrated with a specimen form.

Enclosed, besides the request for payment, was a form T7B "an income tax remittance form for instalment payment."

It is to be used by all individuals except farmers and fishermen with more than 25 per cent. of their incomes derived from sources other than wages or salaries. And it requires that taxpayers in this class make three yearly instalment payments instead of the usual one.

Those failing to meet this requirement are penalized for the oversight; and that is why the local resident received the extra $25 levy.

That information ended the correspondence there and then—with the exception of one letter which bore a Peterborough postmark and contained a reluctant cheque for $25 made out in favor of the Receiver - General of Canada.

"Oh, there are others in the same boat," he told the Examiner. "As a matter of fact I know at least five others who have received similar notices."

Ambitious Plan Will Include City And County

In a mass survey, believed to be the most ambitious ever attempted in Peterborough County, 45,000 residents of city and county will have an opportunity to be given chest X-rays over a seven-week period.

Purpose of the survey is to detect the first traces of TB and thus help to cut down the prevalance of that disease which last year took 6,000 Canadian lives. It is being sponsored by the Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association in conjunction with the Department of Health and the organizational work is being carried out by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Last year mass X-rays were made in Norwood, Havelock Lakefield and several northern localities in the county. This year it was decided to cover the city of Peterborough, but later plans were expanded to take in the whole county.

Divided Into Three Groups

The city which contains the bulk of the county's population has been roughly divided into three groups for X-ray purposes: schoolchildren (grade Eight and High School students), workers in industry, and general.

Geographically it has been split into four zones: Zone One—East City; Zone Two—north of Charlotte St., east to the Otonabee and west to the city boundary; Zone Three—south of Charlotte St., to Lansdowne St., east to the Otonabee and west to the boundary; Zone Four—all that area south of Lansdowne St.

To call the attention of local citizens to this important project and imoress on them its value, Mayor Max Swanston will issue a proclamation from the city hall officially designating the week beginning April 18 as "TB Week."

One week after the proclamation the mass surveys will commence in the Industrial division enbracing about 10,000 workers. Of the 24 major industries in the city 12 will receive personal visits, according to schedule, from the bus X-ray unit. The portable unit will be utilized also for the two-day stay at the CGE.

Other, smaller industries, will be informed where their employees may go for their x-ray. For example: J. J. Turner Co., Peterborough Card and Paper Co., and Dewart Milling will go to the Peterborough Canoe Co.

All Grade Eight pupils from King Edward School and Immaculate Conception will go to Mark Street United Church in Zone One for the beginning of the school survey on May 9.

The bus unit will remain at the Collegiate Institute from 9 a.m. on May 9 till noon the following day. During that period the students from the Collegiate will be x-rayed as will pupils from Central School and the 92 children under Grade Eight who had positive reaction to the recent TB skin test sponsored by the Board of Education.

On the afternoon of May 10 the bus unit plans to move to St.

Townships Asked To Pass Regulating Bylaws For Auto-Wrecking Dumps

For the w... control of auto-wrecking dumps, the ci... and suburban planners requested the townships adjoining the city to pass regulating bylaws, at their meeting Thursday night. The motion by James Hamilton and Reeve M. H. Johnston urges that these blighting places be kept away from highways.

"I think our council is getting in the humor of taking some action like that," said Reeve Johnston. "We've talked about it, and feeling was against adopting it for the whole township, but we might do it yet."

Reeve Ross Harrison said Smith sentiment was more in favor of restricting the auto-wreckers than it had been.

The planners did not propose that the wrecking spots be driven out of the area. They simply want them put in what they consider a suitable place — where they do not spread their blight to other property and to highway scenery.

James Dutton presided, with the following present: Mrs. W. H. Morton, Mr. Hamilton, Reeve Johnston, Mayor Swanston, Reeve Harrison, Hubert Sills, A. E. Chalmers and W. F. Huycke, KC.

Application of Mrs. R. Aspero for permission to build a combined dwelling and store on Park Hill Road, south side, east of Park St., was not granted. The area is zoned as residential.

Don H. Dinsdale requested that he be permitted to move his beauty shop into the premises at 657 George St., north of Finn's drug store. It was originally a shoe repair shop. Mayor Swanston's motion rejecting the request was adopted.

Mrs. Morton said the building should be removed from that place.

Estimates Cut

Mr. Dutton expressed disappointment of the board that the council had appropriated only $1,500 of the $4,000 which town planners had estimated for their needs.

"This board has reached the point where we can't carry on without some expert advice and help," Mr. Dutton said. "We should have some arrangement with the council whereby we can get the help of men who are competent to draw plans."

The township representatives said they did not engage engineers. "We used to call in J. W. Pierce when we needed expert help," said Reeve Johnston.

Mr. Dutton said there was a street problem on the west side of the city, as mentioned by Mr. Johnston. Although the street is in the township, it will be used in the city's system. For that reason the city should be concerned about it now when the planning and construction was being done.

"We are outgrowing our street pattern," Mr. Dutton said, "and conditions can get worse than they are now."

A motion by Mr. Sills accepted an offer of the management of the Examiner to publish the zoning bylaw and arrange for its distribution at a total cost of $300. This was the solution of the problem of printing and disseminating the facts of zoning as required by provincial statute. The planning board had balked at the cost of getting out something of a booklet form. Mr. Dutton said he had discussed the difficulty with H. L. Garner, who suggested that a cheap method of accomplishing publication would be to print the bylaw in the Examiner, a page or more altogether, then use the type for separate printing of the bylaw in sheets for folding and mailing.

This detail of complying with the Planning Act has held up the passing of the bylaw for at least a year. The board was trying to avoid the expense of printing as at first estimated. In the meantime, they have been embarrassed by lack of authority in all their decision invoking the bylaw and the legislation.

Dorothy Allan Park's Students Win Honors

Dorothy Allan Park one of Canada's oustanding teachers of singing attained wide recognition with her entries at the recent Kiwanis Music Festival in Toronto. Mrs. Parks entered ten candidates from her studio in the several classes they secured $500 in scholarships, a Rose Bowl, thirteen firsts, seven seconds and two thirds.

Fewer Signs Of Malnutrition Found In Newfoundland

By JACK TRACY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL, April 1—(CP)—Indications of improved health and fewer signs of the malnutrition that was impairing Newfoundlanders' strength four years ago have been reported by a group of scientific investigators.

The medical men, who said after a 1944 survey in Newfoundland that widespread malnutrition was causing physical and mental lethargy, a small muscular strength, skin and eye troubles, low resistance to disease and continual poor health with a high death rate, published the report of their 1948 study in the April edition of the Canadian Medical Association Journal today.

After clinical examination and chemical analysis of body fluids of people in low-income groups in St. John's and south-shore fishing villages last year, the doctors reported that "most of the characteristic signs of malnutrition were less conspicuous in the samples of the population studied in 1948 than they had been in 1944."

"We pointed out that this change had been accompanied by improvment in certain indices of public health," the report said. "Reference was made to the sharp reduction in the reported infant morality rate, but the same could have been affirmed for the reported rate of stillbirths, the reported death rate from tuberculosis and the reported crude morality rate."

The medical men, who found in 1944 that Newfoundlanders were getting enough food but the wrong kind, said several factors might have contributed to the change for the better.

They mentioned Newfoundland's greater wealth, increases in quantity and variety of foods imported in recent years and heavier emphasis on education in nutrition.

Programs Benefical

They stressed, however, the effect of enrichment of white flour and fortification of margarine by addition of vitamins and minerals, adopted in 1944-45. They recommended that the government continue these two programs "which apparently by 1948 had produced results."

White flour provides 40 per cent of the Newfoundlander's calories and margarine has been used widely throughout the island for years as bread spread.

The report made to the Newfoundland commission government last August, contained no reference to federal union with Canada, set for March 31, or its possible effect on future health measures.

The medical men considered the most striking indication of public-health improvement was the infant mortality rate which had fallen in 1946 to 76.3 per 1,000 live births from 96, the annual rate for 1940-44. The 1940 rate in Canada was 56.

The crude mortality rate dropped from the annual 1940-44 average of 12.1 per 1,000 of population to 10.5 for 1946. This compared favorably with the 10-10.4 figure of Ontario, a region resembling Newfoundland in stability and ancestry of population, mostly of United Kindom stock.

Increased alertness was noted among people described in 1944 as apathetic. Fewer characteristics attributable to vitamin deficiency, such as dry, lack-lustre hair, lesions of the skin, eyes and lips and less abnormality of the tongue were found in the second survey.

Vitamin C Lack

Prevalence of certain other skin lesions, however, had not decreased and diseases of the gums had increased.

"A reasonable deduction," the investigators said, "is that consumption by the groups examined of foods rich in ascorbic acid (vitamin C), such as leafy vegetables and fresh or processed tomatoes and citrus fruits had not substantially increased."

An early impression in the 1944 survey that Newfoundlanders were of short stature was confirmed last year. Measurements showed the average boy was 1.2 to 3.1 inches shorter, age for age, than the Toronto school boy. Differences for girls were smaller.

They reported however, that "the more extreme degrees of underweight for height and age were encountered much less frequently in Newfoundland in 1948 than in 1944."

The first survey was carried out by 11 Canadian, British and United States physicians at the invitation of the government which was concerned over nutrition. Their report that "widespread malnutrition is impairing the health and efficiency of the people" attracted world attention.

The 1948 survey, in which seven of the earlier investigators participated, was designed to evaluate the effect on health of measures undertaken by the Newfoundland government to improve nutritional conditions.

Among these measures were the enrichment of white flour and fortification of margarine.

Notable Personnel

Physicians who took part in both surveys were Doctors N. Jolliffe, director of New York City's bureau of nutrition O. H. Lowry, professor of pharmacology at Washington University in St. Louis, P. E. Moore, director of Canada's Indian and Eskimo health services, W. H. Sebrell, medical director of the U. S. Public Health Service, F. F. Tisdall, associate professor of pediatrics at University of Toronto, R. M. Wilder, professor of medicine at the Mayo Foundation in Rochester, Minn., and P. C. Zamecnik, associate in medicine at Harvard University.

Doctors W. R. Aykroyd, director of the Food and Agriculture Organization's nutrition division in the United Nations and a former house surgeon in the St. John's General Hospital, and R. E. Shank, Washington University professor of preventive medicine, joined the 1948 survey. Four of the previous investigators did not participate last year.

August, the month of the 1944 survey, was again chosen for last year's check-up. St. John's and the south-coast villages of St. Joseph's, Terrenceville, Bay L'Argent, and Harbour Mille, were chosen again for the 1948 study but Bonavista, on the east coast, was not re-visited.

The physicians checked up on 868 persons, the same number as before and re-examined 227 subjects of the 1944 survey. None of the subjects included representatives of the "relatively small proportion in the upper economic groups."

As a result of the re-urvey the doctors recommended strengthening and extension of the present education program in nutrition and distribution of cod-liver oil and milk powders in the schools.

A recent trend to reduce the the number of milch cows in shore settlements was noted. The doctors suggested careful study of its consequences on the availability of milk for children should a depression reduce the people's ability to buy precessed milk.

They also suggested steps to maintain consumption of milk and citrus juices and to make these and other foods of high nutritive value available at low prices.

Protective Foods

The doctors said the government should consider how cost of protective foods can be kept down so that low-income consumers can purchase enough of them.

The group noted that Newfoundland's improving economic status, only just apparent in 1944, was obvious in 1948.

Many fishermen and other people of the outports had money to spend freely for the first time in their lives. Store shelves, empty before, now were piled with goods. Several stores had increased in size. The people too were better dressed and homes looked better tended.

Where the 1944 report had mentioned that the money value of the catch averaged only $140 a fisherman in 1935, the investigators were told in 1948 that the occasional fisherman earned as $2,000 annually.

"It is scarcely to be questioned," the report said, "that the improved economic status of the population influenced food supplies and diet."

Because of the greater part of Newfoundland's food supply is imported, and since the country's revenue depended largely on import duties until federal union, records of the quantities of foods and food groups imported were available.

It was difficult, however, to correlate the picture of the food supply accurately with observations on nutritional conditions of the people.

Better Food Supplies

The food "pipeline" was relatively empty in 1943 while in 1948 store shelves were relatively well-filled. Also military personnel, in the country between the two surveys, had consumed food included in the import returns.

There was, however, an unquestioned increase in imports of evaporated milk. Supplies had risen by 80 per cent between 1944 and 1948.

Assuming that all the evaporated milk was consumed by civilians, that would have meant the per-head consumption would have increased from 1.9 to 3.5 ounces a day with a proportionate increase in the intake of vitamins A, B1 and G, and calcium.

Imports of fruit, fresh and canned, mostly citrus fruits and juices, almost doubled between the fiscal years 1943-44 and 1944-45 to 12,038,000 pounds. But in 1947-48 they fell again to 4,957,000 pounds.

Imports of jam, sugar and syrups increased from a yearly supply per head of 81.5 pounds in 1943-44 to 132 pounds in 1947-48. The amount of candy increased greatly. There was little change in flour imports.

Consumption of fresh and dried fish probably remained constant. Home production of meat and milk, always small, remained so, though efforts had been made to develop dairy industries in the neighborhoods of St. John's and a few other places.

Fewer Cows, Goats

"The total milk production may have been increased as a result of this, but we were disturbed to learn that in the outports the maintaining of cows and goats, which formerly made a small contribution to the diet, had declined.

"The younger generation, with money in its pockets, found the labor involved unattractive. The last cow in Harbour Mille died, (apparently unlamented) the week before we reached that outport. The impression, furthermore, was gained that kitchen gardens were less numerous than in 1944, and that production of vegetables in the outports had declined."

In addition to the rising economic status of Newfoundland, "which led to greater importation of food and thereby had affected the nutritional situation to some extent, measures aimed directly at improving the nutrition of the people had been undertaken by the government and other agencies."

This comprised a program for public education in nutrition, distribution of a hot-milk drink in schools, cod-liver oil, and to certain individuals of concentrated orange juice.

Quality of margarine and white flour had also been improved through fortification of the margarine with Vitamin A and enrichment of the flour with Vitamins B1 and G, niacin, iron and calcium.

Little educational activity got under way before the early months of 1947.

Gets Many Ideas On How To Spend Her Last Year

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 1—(CP)—A widow's humble plea is being answered by sympathetic Americans—how best to spend $10,000 before death knocks on her door, probably within a year.

Advice is rolling in by letter, telegram, telephone and through radio.

Her name is—Mrs. Heart, we'll say. She is 51 and a retired Oklahoma City business woman. She was told by a physician:

"You have but a year. Your heart condition will prove fatal in 12 months."

Now Mrs. Heart doesn't know what to do. That's why she was asking for help.

"I just know that somebody—somewhere," she says, "will have a better idea than I."

And folk are offering her their thoughts.

'Make a heap of friends," one man wrote. "Don't plan each day. Just take the time and try and live with and for other people, and you'll be happy."

Lots of Advice

That and thousands of other words of advice poured in for her at the Oklahoma City Daily Oklahoman Thursday. Mrs. Heart bound the newspaper to keep her identity secret. She said she knew newspapers sometimes had specialists who gave advice to those in trouble.

Only a few of those writing seemed eager to help her spend her $10,000. Most of them proposed she help others—the poor, the lame, the under-privileged.

After her husband died, Mrs. Heart entered business, built a sizable estate, then retired eight years ago.

"I worked hard for 17 years," she says. "I sacrificed because I wanted a little security when I got older. Now I don't know what to do."

WA Will Send $65 For 1949 Pledge Fund

HASTINGS, April 1.—(ENS).—The March business meeting of St. George's Anglican W.A. was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of the treasurer, Miss D. Plant, with 13 women present and the Rev. Canon C. R. Spencer present.

The persident, Mrs. C. Baker, presided for the meeting, which opened with prayers by Rev. Canon Spencer. The scripture was read by Miss D. Child. Miss D. Plant led in the saying of Litany and members' prayer.

It was decided to ask Miss Greta Clark to speak at a meeting in the near future on her missionary work.

Mrs. E. Burke and Mrs. R. Glass gave a report on their visits to the sick and shut-ins. Canon Spencer said a special prayer for Mrs. E. Smullin who is very ill in Civic Hospital, Peterborough, and Mrs. John Dainard read a card of thanks from Mrs. Smullin for a plant.

Mrs. Wm. McFrayne read the minutes and Miss D. Plant gave the financial report. A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. Birdsall for the flowers she received during her recent illness. She also enclosed two dollars, a donation towards the parcel for Britain being packed this month.

A letter and budget sheet from the pledge fund was read asking the WA. to send $60. It was decided this year $65 be sent to the pledge funds. It was also decided to purchase five dozen cups and saucers for the church. Mrs. C. Baker donated material to be made into tea towels for the church kitchen. Mrs. E. Burke volunteered to make them.

Each member read a part of the study book. Four birthdays were reported for March, Mrs. J. Johnson, Miss D. Plant, Mrs. J. Dainard and Mrs. R. Glass.

Two Warsaw Men Remanded One Week

Two Warsaw men, Sydney and Clifford Henry, arrested Wednesday on a charge of stealing timber from Allan Payne, also of Warsaw, were remanded today in custody with bail set at $500 each, by Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C., at city police court.

Clifford Henry, the first to face the charge, pleaded not guilty. Sydney Henry first entered a plea of guilty with a request for a week's adjournment to obtain legal aid, but after he told the magistrate that he did not take as much timber as was alleged, Mr. Philp accepted a plea of not guilty. The charges state that the value of the timber exceeds $25.

Leave Red Leaflets

WINDSOR, April 1 (CP)—Leaflets, described as Communist propaganda attacking the North Atlantic Pact, were found on the steps of Patterson Collagiate Thursday a short time before Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton urged the students to support the pact, Gen. McNaughton, who read one of the pamphlets, said the aims of the pact and the democracies are "exactly opposite to this."

Little Assembly Has New Plans To End Cold War

LAKE SUCCESS, NY, April 1 (CP) — The Russian - boycotted "Little Assembly" of the United Nations has new proposals for mediating international disputes, including the cold war.

The proposals come before the general assembly opening in New York next Tuesday.

Meanwhile, the Little Assembly Thursday laid more long-range plans for improving international co-operation.

Formed in 1947, the Little Assembly meets between sessions of the General Assembly and handles secondary problems of keeping the peace. It has concentrated on devising methods of conciliation.

The Little Assembly's plans, some members said, offer a way for Russia to co-operate with the majority of the U.N.—if the Soviet Union wants to ease East-West tension.

Russia and the Eastern European countries boycotted the Little Assembly, contending it seeks to by-pass the Security Council.

May Relent

However, Russia took her seat in the trusteeship council after boycotting it for more than two years. Some observers say Russia might do the same in the Little Assembly.

Its proposals are:

1. Use of the veto should be limited. The veto has been wielded 31 times—29 by Russia and etwic by France.

2. Conciliation steps should be standard practice. Mediation of a new case should start as soon as both sides have laid down their arguments.

3. The president of the General Assembly should use his powers of moral persuasion in an attempt to conciliate problems in the same way.

4. A panel of conciliators should be on call for the Security Council and the General Assembly. They would be men of the standing of Chester W. Nimitz, retired United States Fleet Admiral, named recently as administrator of the plesiscite in Kashmir.

USELESS BAN

The Scottish Parliament banned gold in 1457 because it interfered with archery.

BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY ERNEST BEVIN, arriving in New York for the signing of the North Atlantic Treaty, was met by jeering pickets. The pickets, called out by the American-Jewish Labor Council, were calling Bevin "anti-Semitic." As the car bearing the Foreign Secretary rolls by, the girl at right winds up to heave an egg, as policeman at left battles with another picket.

Charge Slave

LONDON, April 1—(AP).—Russia today accused the International Refugee Organization of dealing in "cheap slave labor" for the benefit of certain western countries. In the course of a four-power discussion on an Austrian independence treaty, the Russian Deputy Foreign Minister, Georgi N. Zarubin, asserted the IRO was not fulfilling its job of repatriating persons displaced by the war. It has been transformed, he said, into a body which is providing cheap labor for certain western countries.

Senate Approves Pipe Line Bill

OTTAWA, April 1 — (CP). — The Senate Transportation and Communications Committee on Thursday approved, with a few minor amendments, a government Bill to provide for interprovincial and international gas and oil pipe lines under the administration of the Board of Transport Commissioners.

The Bill, introduced in the Senate last Monday by Transport Minister Chevrier, now returns to the Upper House for third reading before being sent to the Commons.

Mr. Chevrier explained it would permit immediate bills for incorporation of five proposed pipe line companies to start work on projects costing between $200,000,000 and $250,000,000.

Two of the pipe lines would run from Alberta oil fields to British Columbia and the State of Washington. Another would run from Alberta to Regina and a fourth as far East as Winnipeg and St. Boniface, Man. Details of the fifth company's plans were not disclosed.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S ENTRY into confederation added an important area to the Dominion-wide command and area system of the Armed Forces, the Minister of National Defence, Hon. Brooke Claxton, said recently. For military purposes the new province will become an area of the Army's Eastern Command, the Minister added, and it will also become part of the Navy's existing Atlantic Command and the Air Force's Central Command. Present Defence Department plans are to establish d naval reserve division in Newfoundland, re-establish the Royal Newfoundland Regiment as a reserve force unit of the army with both infantry and artillery components, and set up Reserve formations of the RCAF. Aussie Ranchers May Use Planes To Market Beef

By LESLIE BRODIE.

DARWIN, Australia, April 1 (CP)—The Berlin airlift has inspired a group of ranchers in the west Australian cattle country to plan a scheme to air-freight beef to the cities and ports from their isolated ranches.

The ranchers believe the time has come when the aircraft must replace the overlanders who take the cattle out on the hoof to the city abattoirs each year.

The cost of air-freighting is estimated at little over three cents a pound of dressed beef for every 100 miles. Although this is considered high it is offset by saving in weight.

By present methods prime cattle lose around 150 to 200 pounds during a journey of 250 to 300 miles. In times of drought even higher losses are experienced.

Trial flights have been made already and a check up revealed that beef killed on the ranch and flown in to a port in three hours was less expensive than overlanding, which would take more than a month.

Distance has been a great drawback to the ranchers of Australia's far west cattle country. Lack of railroads in the Northern Territoy has forced ranchers to overland their stock to the markets.

1,000-Mile Trek

Sometimes it is necessary to take the stock as much as 1,000 miles to the nearest railhead.

When they leave their breeding grounds they are prime fat and fit for any market, but after the long overland journey they usually need several months fattening up on properties near the abattoirs. In drought years many are lost on the way. The airlift would overcome these difficulties.

Plans for increasing meat production in the Northern Territory have been under consideration for some time. The government has made extensive research in the Northern Territory to increase herds and improve them.

Prime Minister Joseph B. Chifley has said that completion of the government plans depends on an assurance from the British government that it would take all Australia's surplus meat production for the next ten years at a price satisfactory to the Australian breeders.

So far, the British government has given no such assurance and Territorians believe their chance of getting any help from the government is slim.

T. F. Johnston, RR 1, South Monaghan, today pleaded guilty to careless driving on March 16 and was fined $15 with $2.50 costs by Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, at city police court.

Provincial Constable E. J. Crough said that when he was called to the scene of the accident at the intersection of highways 7A and 28, he found a truck turned over on its side across the highway and a car which had been driven north by Johnston turned round facing southeast. He said the truck had gone a distance of 80 feet after the impact.

The constable estimated damage to the car at $500 and to the truck, $300.

He gave an outline of his work, telling of the organizing of entertainment for the Canadian and American forces in the northern Pacific bases.

A film on the Community Concert Artists at the Carnegie Hall of Music, New York, was shown.

Mr. Robinson was introduced by Quirt McKinney and thanked by Joseph Barnard.

Following the regular meeting an executive meeting was held. There it was decided that Jack Wilson would be chairman of the Soap Box Derby committee for this year. Plans for the Derby are well under way. Entry forms will be available in about 10 days time.

Has Armored Car

DETROIT, April 1— (AP) — Walter Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.), who was shot in the arm last year by an unknown assailant, now is riding in a $12,000 armored car with bullet-proof windows, union officers said. They said the car was ordered at the insistence of union leaders but "Reuther himself did not want it."

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1 — (AP) —A new powder which can destroy carbon monoxide in the air was reported to the American chemical society Thursday by two Canadian researchers. This powder can be put into ventilators to purify air in automobiles, mines, garages, submarines and airplanes as well as into gas masks. It was described by Dr. Morris Katz and Sophie Halpern of the defence research board, department of national defence, Ottawa.

Peter's High School and will accommodate students there as well as pupils from Queen Elizabeth, Queen Marry, Queen Alexandra and St. Mary's schools.

Pupils from Prince of Wales, King George and Sacred Heart schools will go to Knox United Church, Zone Three location, on the morning of May 23. The school project will be completed on May 30 when pupils from May's Grove and St. John's schools go to Confederation School for their X-rays.

Women to Canvass City

Actively assisting the Junior Chamber in its organizational work are of the IODE under the captainship of Mrs. Achilles Turner. Including IODE members a total of 450 ladies will be briefed to canvass their appropriate zones and determine from each resident, not included in the school or industrial grouping, what time would be most convenient for an appointment at the unit.

Each household will be informed three weeks in advance of the X-ray that the canvasser will call the following week and make an appointment. Literature on TB will also be left.

In the municipalities outside of the city a somewhat similar arrangement has been made. Junior Chamber officials hope to enlist the support of the various Women's Institutes to canvass their communities. Each urban resident will be mailed a card informing him where he may go to be X-rayed.

Later the canvassers will call to arrange a suitable time.

Present plan call for the bus unit to move to nine different locations to serve the country residents: Ennismore, Selwyn (including Lakefield population), Lakehurst, Young's Point, Douro Warsaw, South Dummer (including populations of Norwood and Havelock), Westwood and Keene.

Financing of this immense project is being arranged by the Peterborough County TB Association. There will be no charge to anyone; it is considered a preventative measure in the fight to eradicate TB.

Other cities have held a similar mass x-ray survey but it is believed that Peterborough is the first to try it on a county scale.

Disease Stops Entry Of Australian Birds

VANCOUVER, April 1 (CP)—Seven "passengers" which arrived here from Australia aboard the Canadian Australian liner Aorangi have been refused admittance to Canada.

The passengers — rare Australian birds of the parrot family—were prevented from entering the country when they were found to be suffering from psittacosis or "parrot disease" which is transferrable to man.

Owner of the birds, Harry Pleyy, of Vancouver, had planned to exhibit them at Confederation Park where he is a keeper. The birds are about the size of "budgies."

The heaviest known materials are metals, but some metals are among the lightest known of materials.

Greet Newfoundland By Pipe Band Parade

SYDNEY, April 1 (CP)—The bagpipes wailed a welcome to Newfoundland across Cabot Strait Thursday as Cape Bretoners in this steel city resorted to the Scots' way of saying "hello."

While the spoken word sufficed in many parts of Canada, Sydney Academy students staged a pipe-band parade to welcome the island into Confederation.

The student body trooped behind kilted pipers. Marchers carried huge signs reading "a welcome to Newfoundland."

Majority of the residents of North Sydney, across the harbor from this city—nearer than any in Canada to the new province—are Newfoundlanders.

Show Navy Exhibits At June Celebration

HALIFAX, April 1 (CP)—Weapons which subdued Villeneuve at Trafalgar and Graf Spee at the River Plate are included in the collection at the navy's Maritime Museum here.

The Museum was created in December, 1948. Since then, exhibits have been added. The navy plans to open the show to the public when Halifax's bicentenary is observed in June.

Most recent addition is a cutaway model of the 13-gun frigate Marlborough—a first-class ship of the line. There are German submarine models, Japanese bomb-balloons, boarding knives and cutlasses.

Schnorkels — underwater "breathers" — for submarines, muskets and ball-and-powder pistols form a background for an elaborate pictorial exhibit.

There is also a model of the royal mail packet Dunottar Castle.

Decision Final

CANBERRA, April 1— (AP) — Prime Minister Chifley said today Australia's decision not to admit Lorenzo Gamboa is final. The Australian government said he came under its "White Australia" ban on Asiatics.

CHICAGO, April 1—(AP)—Dr. Erik Jacobsen and Dr. O. Martensen-Larsene, both of Denmark, in a report in the current journal of the American Medical Association, report that 52 of 99 alcoholics treated with the drug Antabus attained "social recovery." The drug is said to have the effect of making a person unable to drink alcohol without distress.

Dr. G. H. Clapp Dies

Rare Plant Blooms

NIAGARA FALLS, April 1— (CP)—A rare Brazilian plant called the Twelve Disciples plant made news when it blossomed Thursday at the home of Louis Lundy here. The plant's flower appears only once every 12 years and last for a day. Resembling an Iris, the flower develops within 30 minutes from a bud on the end of a leaf.

Plan To Hunt Hudson Bay's White Whales

By JACK AVESON

WINNIPEG, April 1 —(CP)—Manitoba's latest industry is being billed by its promoters as a whale of an enterprise—no pun or exaggeration intended.

The industry is simply that—whaling.

Two thousand or more miles from the haunts of the mammoth sperm whales, hunters will ride the waters of Hudson Bay this summer in small boats, chasing the sperm's little brother, the beluga or white whale.

The industry, with headquarters at Churchill, Man., where a factory was erected last summer, also plans to utilize the remainder of the 1,500-pound sea-faring mammals after diverting the approximately 450 pounds of blubber fat.

The jaw oil has been described as unequalled for fineness and quality and is used for oiling precision machinery and fine watches.

The whale hunters plan to blend the entrails, meat, bones, mice and blood together into a ground meat formula for sale to the fur farming industry. The large whale liver may be used as special feed for female mink and fox, for use before litters are born and to feed baby animals after they have reached the weaning stage.

Veteran of Antarctic

Managing the enterprise, which is due to get under way in mid-June, will be Karl Kruse, veteran of Norwegian whaling expeditions to the Antarctic in the '30s.

A seasonal industry, with the factory expected to operate on a 24-hour processing basis from June 15 to Sept. 15, the commercial whaling will give employment to approximately 40 persons and provide a source of revenue to oldtime Churchill residents who in the past have harpooned the white whales mainly to build up food supplies for ravenous huskies.

Whale harpooning, described by tourists as an exciting sport, is expected to go out of vogue when the industry gets started. Its sponsors prefer that the mammals be caught with nets, one reason being that harpooning causes considerable loss of commercially-valuable blood.

Although this summer will see the official start of commercial whaling in Hudson Bay the project has been considered for many years. Last summer preliminary steps were taken with erection of a large main building, containing a huge steam boiler, 1,500-kilowatt electric generator, 450-horsepower steam engine, generating vats and steam-driven meat grinders.

When the factory wheels start turning the processed whale parts will be given cold storage treatment awaiting rail shipment to various Canadian centres.

The number of whales handled will depend on the luck of the hunters but the total for the season is not expected to exceed 600. This would mean the processing of approximately 1,000,000 pounds of whale.

Unopened Wine Case Not Confiscated

Roy McColl, Clydesdale, was fined $15 with $2.50 costs at city police court today when he pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkeness. He had been arrested Jan. 24 on No. 28 highway when he was a passenger in a truck driven by Ray McIlmoyle, who Thursday was sent to jail for seven days on a drunk driving conviction.

The magistrate, W. R. Philp, KC, ordered confiscation of a bottle of wine which Provincial Constable A. R. Edwards said had been found in the truck with the cap removed. It appeared to him that none of the wine had been taken. An unopened case of six bottles of wine seized by the police on the night of the arrest was not confiscated.

7,000 Brewery Men In New York Strike

NEW YORK, April 1 (AP)—A strike of 7,000 workers at 14 breweries in the New York metropolitan area began early today, a union spokesman for the Brewery Workers of America (CIO) announced.

The plants involved include virtually all major breweries in the area.

The strike action came after an unsuccessful 12-hour negotiation session.

Key issues concern job security and plant safety conditions.

The union also is seeking an $8.50 increase in the present weekly pay of $71, a reduction in the work week from 40 to 35 hours and other benefits.

Conservation Battle

LONDON, April 1—(CP)—Britain's battle for "freedom out of doors" Thursday opened in the House of Commons. Debate began on a bill designed to preserve the beauty of at least 5,000 square miles in 12 selected areas of England and Wales. Lewis Silkin, minister of town and country planning, called the legislation the "people's charter of the open air." The bill would set aside about 25 per cent of the total area of England and Wales as national parks and conservation areas.

Woman Conducts Unique Business

VANCOUVER, April 1 (CP)—Any assignment from trying to patch a broken marriage to finding a sitter for a lonely dog is undertaken by Mrs. Natalie Bartlett, who operates a business here called Universal Personal Services.

She will help her clients to furnish and decorate a house, buy a trousseau, patent an invention or learn to play chess.

Her services have included being a fourth at bridge, delivering letters in the middle of the night and escorting children on long trips from Montreal to Mexico.

Twice widowed, she found three years ago that she would have to become a breadwinner for her three children.

"I like to help people, so I decided to make it pay," the energetic daughter of a Russian Czarist official said.

No request is too strange to be taken on by Mrs. Bartlett and her staff.

When a young wife wanted a dog-sitter for her lonely pup, Mrs. Bartlett promptly found one. One girl wanted to learn the rhumba for a big party. Mrs. Bartlett taught her.

Business has expanded so rapidly that she took on a partner, Miss Elizabeth Jermain, capable North Vancouver girl.

St. James' YPU Presents Play

On a richly draped stage in Wesley Hall the Young People's Union of St. James Church presented a three-act comedy drama, "Eyes of Love" on Wednesday evening. Director Tony Burns brought out the best in this play and those taking part acted with a sincerity and alertness not usually shown by such groups.

Miss Edith Manley as the leading lady gave an excellent performance in a difficult parth, and Art Dixon, playing opposite, showed confidence and naturalness that was effective. Vera Derrett and Lloyd Succee did well in characterizing a couple not to be trusted. Beverley Gibson and Tony Burns carried out the parts of a middle-aged couple, the judge and his wife, with befitting dignity. Vern Johnson adapted himself with ease into the varied emotional parts as he changed from a haggard escaped prisoner into the disguise of an Italian gardener and finally a respectable middle aged man.

Part of a colored maid, ably played by Joan Munro, gave the audience many a smile, as did the lively young housemaid, played by Phyllis Manley, who jokingly repulsed all advances of the butler (Bill Piercy).

Ed Stephenson handled the lighting effects well, adding much to the production. Miss Betty Piercy was a capable stage manager and Bill Piercy was producer.

Fashion Flashes

Latest shade for accessories — gloves, shoes, and especially bags —is a delicious, straw-colored beige that the trade has named bamboo. It goes beautifully with navy, with green, with some blacks, with white, and, strange to say, with another neutral, gray.

✧ ✧ ✧

Becoming a classic is the beautifully cut greatcoat of pale wool fleece, now appearing each season. Pale golden fleece makes a great-coat cinched at the waist with self fabric rope sash. Huge, loose turnback cuffs reach almost to the elbow and the rising collar forms petal points at either side.

✧ ✧ ✧

Easy-to-wear dresses star this Spring. Black polka-dotted white silk twill makes an easy shirtwaist dress with cuffed elbow sleeves and deep, plunging, roll-collared neckline. Black velvet sash with wide streamers; pockets in skirt folds.

✧ ✧ ✧

A fine idea is that of teaming up sheer wool jersey blouses in pastel shades with matching flannel skirts. Pale mauve shades, pale or silver gray, true navy blue, lime and orange are some of the shades available. Blouses go in for deep necklines; skirts have a moderate flare.

✧ ✧ ✧

Good teamwork of straw and felt is responsible for a very pretty, early-Spring hat. The crown and the top of the brim is of palest pink felt. The facing of the brim, which rolls slightly from the face and is wider in front than at back, is of gray straw braid. The whole thing is meshed in layers of palest pink tulle veiling which floats in back.

✧ ✧ ✧

Perfect for a portrait sitting is a ball gown fashioned of yards of palest pink marquisette. The fabric is turned back in flat triangular handkerchief folds on the snug, strapless bodice. Bands of black Chantilly lace, starting in overlapped miter points at the waistline, are appliqued in ribs down the skirt and in overlapping pointed bands near the hemline.

The duet number they are presenting is called "Miss Springtime" and was originated by their coach Mrs. Pansy Forbes.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Silly Woman To Be Annoyed Because Husband Not Jealous

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have a husband who is so sure of me that it gets on my nerves. When I go to parties and flirt a little bit, he doesn't seem to even notice it. He just takes my affection for granted and I would like to see a fiery look in his eye occasionally. Don't you think I should try to find a way to make him a little jealous?

Dorothy Dix

OLD FAITHFUL.

ANSWER: I think any woman who sets out deliberately to arouse jealousy in her husband is such an idiot that she should not be permitted out alone. She is going to hunt for trouble and, believe me, she will find it aplenty. With her own hands she is laying the axe to the foundation of her house of happiness, and before she knows it she will find herself crushed under its ruins.

There are a lot of silly women who think that the way to keep their husbands interested in them is to keep them guessing. Always to intimate that there is some other man in the offing. Perhaps they tried these tactics in the courtship days and they worked, and they brought their husbands to the proposing point by playing up other men against them.

Different Situation

But with marriage the situation is completely changed. Then the woman has made her decision and her husband must trust her absolutely if there is to be any happiness in the family. He doesn't want to have to watch her, or spy upon her, or question her motives. He must have faith in her integrity and her goodness. He must believe in her love so implicitly that he feels that all the wolves in the world wouldn't turn her heart away from him, and that she simply could not be tempted to betray him.

So don't be peeved at your husband's taking your affection for granted. Get down on your knees and thank Heaven for it. It is the finest compliment he could pay you.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Do you think that girls from the ages of 14 to 16 can love as much as those who are older?

ANNE W.

ANSWER: No, my child, they can't really love at all. All they can know is a kind of sickly little calf love that they outgrow in a few years, and that is no more like the deep and abiding love of a grown woman than skimmed milk is like cream.

Of course, girls at that age think they are in love, because they have never experienced any real love and so have no standard of comparison. They think they are in love because they get a kick of meeting a boy and they fill their thoughts full of him, and they have a good time when he is around and miss him when he is absent.

But this is just because they are feeling the first thrill of adolescence, and it flatters them to death to realize that they have sex attraction, and they are so much in love with the idea of being in love that they can imagine themselves in love with any boy who happens along.

But, in reality, what they feel is only a passing fancy. They outgrow it as they do their taste for all-day suckers. Their ideas change from day to do. So don't take seriously what you feel now, little girl. They are just growing pains that you will get over.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a woman 30 years old and have lived with a very dear friend for years. Now this pal of mine is going to be married and has asked me to make my home with her. I love her dearly, but I am afraid if I go to live with her it might interfere with her happiness. What is your advice?

GERTRUDE B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Don't think of such a thing, because her husband would be more than human if he were not jealous of you. No man wants to have some other woman tagging along every time he takes his wife out of an evening and listening in on every conversation they have.

Don't go to live with your friend. Don't even visit her too often. Any third party in a home is a menace to it, and it is especially dangerous to the newlyweds.

Would Intensify Women's Interest In Civic Affairs

By NORMAN ALTESTEDTER

LAKE SUCESS, N. Y., April 1 —(CP)—Blonde, vivacious Mrs. Alva Myrdal skilfully combines the job of raising three children and holding a top directorship in the United Nations.

The newly-appointed Swedish head of the Department of Social Affairs is famed as a writer, educationist and sociologist. Working to improve the lot of people all over the world, she holds probably the highest post in international civil service ever held by a women. Of the United Nations 3,000 emplyoees here, 1,350 are women.

Her husband also is a top-ranking United Nations executive and an internationally-known Swedish economist. He is Dr. Gunner Myrdal, executive secretary to the Economic Commission for Europe.

A leader in women's organizations, Mrs. Myrdal did pioneer work in developing a social policy with emphasis on the family. This is reflected in her country's social service program, considered one of the best in the world.

Today she is taking particular interest in reports from Lebanon, where the Commission on Status of Women is considering such problems as equal rights for women. Mrs. Myrdal wants women to feel that the world expects as much civic activity from them as from men.

Asked what the average family woman can contribute towards world peace, Mrs. Myrdal said.

"She has the particular opportunity to educate her family, to reduce emotional tensions, to develop the attitude of sensible reasoning about problems, to teach them to see that there is often more than one side to a thing.

Family "Moderator"

"She can. . .be the moderator' of the family council—a preparation for true democracy; she can lead her home group in analyzing propaganda in 'reading between the lines,' in understanding how attitude of hatred develop, in creating respect for fundamental freedom in developing moral courage."

"Sincerely, I see no limit to what the 'ordinary family woman' can work on."

Mrs. Myrdal founded the training college for pre-school teachers organized by the Swedish Co-operative Housing Society and served as its director from 1936 to 1948. She has served as an expert in numerous public enquiries into child welfare, population questions, training of the handicapped and educational reform.

Vice-president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women for nine years, she served for many years with women's labor groups and university women's associations.

While brought up in Sweden, Mrs. Myrdal also studied at American universities in 1929 and 1930 and in Geneva.

Among the books she has written are: "Nations and Family," "Women's Work," "Cross Section of Great Britain," "Post-War Planning," and "Crisis in the Population Question," the latter written in collaboration with her husband.

Linda and Robert, at Left, children of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Stephenson of Manvers Station, swallowed chocolate-coated laxative pills. They were attended by Dr. George W. MacNeill of Pontypool. Jan, 21-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Scott of Millbrook, Right, ate 30 sleeping tablets from his mother's purse. Speedy action of Dr. J. W. Joins Allies In Scoring Ill-Treatment

Russia's Satellites Under Fire For Religious Moves

OTTAWA, April 2.—(CP). — Canada associated herself today with separate protests made by the United States and Britain to three iron-curtain satellites over recent religious persecution.

The protests were made today by the United States and United Kingdom legations in Budapast, Bucharest and Sofia and representatives of the two countries made it clear to Hungary, Roumania and Bulgaria that Canada fully shares the views of Britain and the U.S.

The protests charged that, in persecuting Cardinal Mindzenty of Hungary and various other persons, the countries had violated clauses in their peace treaties which guaranteed human rights and freedom of worship.

Announced here by the External Affairs Department, the representations were timed for announcement at the same time in London and Washington. Canada does not exchange diplomatic representatives with the three countries.

The Canadian government was formally associated with the United States and the United Kingdom in the protests to Hungary and Roumania against "violations of the peace treaties with these countries which provide for the protection of human rights."

The Dominion did not declare war on Bulgaria, and the Canadian protest could not be made formally to that country. However, the U. S. Charge D'Affaires and the United Kingdom representative in Bulgaria informed the Bulgarian government orally that the Canadian views are identical with Britain and the U. S.

Blame Icing for Crash

LONDON, Ont., April 2—(CP).—Probe of Thursday's plane crash near here that killed five Americans ended Friday by Department of Transport investigators and London township police. Coroner A. R. Routledge said that he and the police were satisfied that icing conditions caused the crash of the twin-engine Beechcraft.

Pact Could Be Best Peace Medium--Bevin

WASHINGTON, April 2 (CP)—Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain, here to sign the Atlantic Pact, said Friday night it "can be the greatest contributing factor to world peace ever known."

In a speech to the National Press Club, he said it was a "fundamental principle" of the pact, involving the United States, Britain, Canada and several western European powers "that we will never indulge in aggression. . . but to the would-be aggressor we say: think twice, think thrice. . ."

Bevin told 600 newspaper men and guests at the Press Club that he agreed with Winston Churchill's estimate that the men who rule Russia fear the friendship of the west more than they fear its hostility. Churchill said in a speech in Boston Thursday night that Russia's rulers are determined to keep their people cut off from the outside world.

Professes Ignorance

But when he was asked about the idea once expressed by President Truman that Joseph Stalin is a prisoner of the Kremlin, Bevin laughingly replied "the mysteries (of Russia) are as dark to me as they are to the alert American pressmen."

In response to another question, Bevin said that a new $36,000,000 trade agreement Britain has worked out is in keeping with the decisions of the Marshall Plan European organization.

Bevin made these two points in connection with the pact and security for the west:

1. The "settlement of future peace, permanent peace, has to be determined in this next year."

2. The treaty will create a "common pool" of man power, military assistance and economic aid. The question for each country is what to put in the pool.

Gerard Dennis Captured After 3-Block Chase In Futile Escape Attempt

Rookie Patrolman Outruns Alleged Burglar; Six Shots Fired At Fugitive; Police Hurdle Fences, Dodge Clotheslines

WHITE PLAINS, NY, April 2—(AP).—Handsome Gerard Graham Dennis, Canadian accused of society burglaries in the United States, was said to be in a "very glum" mood after his unsuccessful attempt to escape Friday night. Dennis broke away from officers and made a three-block dash. But a rookie patrolman, Cornelius Mullane, 27, outran the dapper former St. Catharines man and captured him. Six shots were fired at Dennis during the chase.

Dennis, 28, is said by police to have staged a series of raids on wealthy homes across the United States that netted him $600,000 in furs, jewellery and other loot.

He pleaded not guilty last Tuesday to 12 indictments accusing him of 27 charges in connection with robberies of swank homes in this area.

Police had taken Dennis on a tour of New York City Friday in an effort to have him point out persons to whom he sold the loot from burglaries.

Bolts Through Door

Back in White Plains as Dennis and officers started to leave a restaurant where they had eaten, Dennis bolted through the door and ducked in an alley.

Hearing the pistol fire Mullane a patrolman with less than a year of service, joined the chase that had policemen hurdling fences and dodging clothes-lines.

In a parking lot, Mullane overtook the fugitive, who tumbled to the ground and surrendered without further resistance.

Dennis was arrested February 16 by Cleveland police. Westchester County authorities had hunted him for two years.

Seven Badly Hurt In Three-Car Highway Crash

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., April 2 (CP)-Seven persons were seriously injured in a three car crash on Queen Elizabeth Way about five miles northwest of this city early today.

Rushed to the Greater Niagara General Hospital in ambulances and taxis were the following: Reginald Davey, John Williams, Alex Smith, Joseph Latner and his wife Elizabeth, all of Hamilton, and Richard McLeod of Stamford Township. Smith and Williams were reported most critically injured.

Details of the accident were not immediately available but it is believed the Latners had stopped on the road because of engine trouble. McLeod and his wife stopped to assist ther they were struck by the containing Davey, W and Smith, all officers o army, navy and air force club a Hamilton, who were returning home after attending a social evening here.

Alex Smith, most seriously injured of the seven, has a possible fractured skull, severe scalp lacerations and possible fractured right hip.

Williams is suffering from a compound fracture to the left ankle, several facial lacerations, cut to one eye and shock.

Latner has multiple painful injuries to both feet, indicating she had been tossed out of the car and dragged along the ground, doctors said.

McLeod escaped with bruises to the forehead and shock and his wife with face and lip lacerations and undetermined back injuries which are not thought to be serious.

Davy has multiple fractures to the lower jaw and possible rib fractures.

Atlantic Pact Powers Plan Grand Strategy

WASHINGTON, April 2 (AP)—Foreign Ministers of all 12 Atlantic-Pact powers were called in to their first huddle today to start drawing up grand strategy machinery for the non-Communist western world.

Canada's representative at the pact signing, Hon. L. B. Pearson, Minister of External Affairs, arrived here Friday night. After the signing he will go to New York to attend the opening session of the United Nations General Assembly.

The strategy groups are specified in the pact itself—a consultative council and a defence committee. All 12 members presumably will be represented on each of these bodies.

The council, according to the treaty, must be so organized that it can meet on short notice to deal with any emergency. It is the body which would be summoned into hasty session, for example, if one of the members of the alliance should be attacked.

The defence committee presumably will get the task of drawing up detailed plans for rearming the Atlantic powers mainly through a proposed American aid program, and defending the Atlantic region in case of attack.

Diplomatic informants said no decisions could be reached on problems of organization today, and probably none could be expected until after the treaty comes into force.

Cement and Nail Shortages Ease

OTTAWA, April 2 (CP) —Importation of 1,000,000 barrels of cement from England should enable the Canada Cement Company to meet its consumers' requirements this year, Trade Minister Howe told G. K. Fraser (PC-Peterborough West) in the Commons Friday. He said the company makes 90 per cent of Canada's cement.

Mr. Fraser asked about cement after contending that it's still hard to get nails in his part of the country.

Mr. Howe said deliveries of additional wire were going to the plants now and the full effect of additional production should be felt next month. It shouldn't be hard to get nails now, he said.

Boy Killed By Train While Playing Tag

BRANTFORD, April 2 (CP) — An eight-year-old boy playing tag was killed Friday when he ran in front of a radial freight train. Hughie Goold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Goold of nearby Mount Pleasant, was "it" and chased a playmate in front of a Lake Erie and Northern Railway train.

Edward May of Brantford, the engine driver, told police the boy jumped out of grass beside the tracks when the train was 50 feet from him. The accident occurred only 100 yards from the boy's home.

Filibuster Resumes Monday

TORONTO, April 2—(AP).—The filibuster against the Ontario Government's Charities Bill is expected to start around two in the Legislature Monday. Provincial Treasurer Frost announced as the House rose Friday that he will call for resumption of the second reading debate on the bill requiring charitable foundations such as the Atkinson foundation, owners of the Toronto Daily Star and the Star Weekly, to dispose of 90 per cent. of their capital stock.

CCF Leader E. B. Jolliffe spoke 4½ hours against the bill last Wednesday before moving adjournment of the debate at the suggestion of Mr. Frost. He has the right to continue his address when the debate resumes.

The government Friday cleared the order paper of most of its major legislation in preparation for a protracted siege. The legislature approved the last of the estimates—the departments of health, welfare, planning and development and travel and publicity—gave third reading to 10 bills and heard Lieutenant-Governor Ray Lawson give Royal consent to 102 others.

Opposition spokesmen said most of the 21 CCF members and 14 Liberal members intend to speak on the charities bill if they get a chance. Mr. Jolliffe is understood to have prepared a new address.

The CCF have moved a camp cot and two deck chairs into the caucus room.

To Move Closure?

There is a possibility, however, that the filibuster may be cut off before it gets properly started. The government could end the lengthy debate by a motion of closure.

The speaker has the discretion as to whether this motion be put to a vote. It is considered unlikely he would allow the motion to go to the house before Mr. Jolliffe, Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver, and A. A. MacLeod (Lab.-Prog.—Toronto Bellwoods) have spoken.

Opposition spokesmen say there is a second method by which a filibuster could be avoided.

The government could bill the Atkinson Foundation—the only charitable foundation mentioned so far in the Senate—for succession duties. This would have the effect of challenging the status of the foundation and similar foundations as bona fide charitable organizations.

During debate on the health estimates, A. A. MacLeod (Lab-Prog-Toronto Bellwoods), pulled two empty wine bottles from deneath his desk. Holding a bottle in each hand, he told Health Minister Kelley that he had been informed that the two brands of wine (Grimsby Wines Ltd. sherry and caatawba) had "some kind of dope in them that puts the consumer in a coma."

Would the health minister have the provincial analyst examine them?

William Griesinger, the liquor commissioner and minister without portfolio, replied: "You've been told? Can you prove it?"

Mr. MacLeod: "Unfortunately I don't have the victims here."

(Mr. Griesinger said later in an interview that he would have an analysis made immediately. The wines were last analysed Nov. 2, 1948 and were found to be "palatable.")

"MacArthur Plan" For Asia Advocated By Stassen

BOSTON, April 2—(AP).—Harold E. Stassen said Friday night that the US should move against Communism by "bolstering" Southern China and all of Asia with a billion-dollar-a-year "MacArthur Plan," patterned after the Marshall Plan. The 42-year-old Pennsylvania University president and prominent Republican shared platform honors with Winston Churchill at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology convocation of top scientists and thinkers at Boston Garden.

Stassen said "we should move, and move promptly, to bolster the southern half of China."

He attacked Stalin and the entire philosophy of Communism, saying he saw little difference between the "Fuehrer principle of Hitler's system" and the "centralism of Stalin's."

The "MacArthur Plan" was brought up after Stassen declared: "Clearly the Marshall Plan in Europe has been the most significant single right thing we have done since the end of the war.

'It is high time that we have a parallel MacArthur Plan in Asia."

Churchill, a dealer in drama, will be remembered for a show-snatching performance which he ended by singing the United States Marine hymn.

He started it with a "thank you" speech for honors awarded him Friday night by Massachusetts Institute of Technology at its mid-century convocation.

It wasn't a long performance. But in it the bulky British wartime leader was at his stage best.

One minute he had a distinguished audience of nearly 14,000 roaring over his sly comedy.

Next he brought them to a quick hush with bold and brave words.

DIES FROM PLUNGE

KINGSTON, April 2.—(CP).—Jack Allison, no fixed address, died in hospital here today after being rescued from Lake Ontario Friday. Allison fell from a coal company's dock on the water's edge.

Sale of Liquor Up $15,000,000

TORONTO, April 2 — Ontario drinkers bought $170,000,000 worth of liquor during the year ending March 31, 1948, and thereby enriched the Federal and Provincial Governments by $96,200,000.

Of this "take" the Dominion Government received $58,200,000 and the province $37,000,000. These figures were given in the annual report of the Liquor Control Board, tabled in the Legislature yesterday. The report was tabled a year after the close of the 12 months it covered.

Net trading profit of the board was $25,231,261. Additional revenue derived from permit sales, fees and taxes on brewers and wine manufacturers; from licenseholders, taxes and from the fines totalled $11,804,722. The Dominion's $59,200,060 revenue customs and excise taxes.

The sale of spirits, beer and wine from the liquor stores during the 12 months under review amounted to $76,454,339. The net value of beer sold from breweries and brewers, retail stores exclusive of any charge for containers, totalled $89,365,375. Sale of Ontario wine from wine stores amounted to $4,767,864.

Total sales were $170,587,578, an increase of $15,018,532 over the previous year. Individual annual liquor permits issued numbered 874,093. Non-resident one-month permits added up to 99,215 and 2,917 special permits were issued to physicians, druggists, hospitals, etc.

Helped To Wreck Taxi 4 New York Strikers Held

NEW YORK, April 2—(CP)—New York was under a "one-two" punch from strikes today, with labor disputes tying up taxi service and beer production.

Beer taps still flowed throughout the city, and there were taxis in the streets, but New York's major breweries, and an estimated 90 per cent of the taxi fleet were idle.

However, one strike with effects in several parts of the world as well as New York was settled early today. Radio officers of Pan American World Airways reached an agreement with the line to settle a dispute mainly involving the use of pilot-operated radiotelephones of the new stratocruisers. The strike had temporarily grounded aircraft on fields here and outside the colntry.

The taxi strike was the most serious here. This morning four men were arrested in the first flare-up of violence when police said the four caused a non-striking driver to wreck his cab. They were charged with malicious mischief.

The case brought to 22 the number arrested since the strike started early Friday. Eighteen have been arrested for disorderly conduct or simple assault. The four today were charged with malicious mischief.

The Pan American agreement included a $30 monthly wage boost and a company promise to replace "obsolete" radio jobs with other positions. Also included was $3,000 severance pay for each operator laid off because of "obsolete" jobs. The Transport Workers Union (CIO) for the operators had said radio operators were a safety factor on overwater flights.

US Soldiers Poisoned

FRANKFURT, Germany, April 2—(AP). — A mysterious food poisoning filled United States Army hospital here with several hundred ill soldiers Friday night. Hospital officials said at least 250 had been brought in.

Seeking N.Y. Banker For $884,660 Theft

NEW YORK, April 2 (AP) — Money pouring in by mail to banks and friends of a missing banker reached more than $100,000 today. But the banker and nearly $800,000 more still are missing.

Personable Richard H. Crowe, 41, fled Sunday, the day before the discovery of the biggest theft from a bank in the city's history—$884,660.

He is making police history also by his efforts to pay off a huge pile of debts, apparently without giving police any clue to his whereabouts.

The money in cash and bonds is missing from a branch of the National City Bank where Crowe was assistant manager.

As the Federal Bureau of Investigation sent "wanted" notices throughout the country on the missing bank official, sought on a federal charge of embezzlement of National Bank funds, the search centred in Florida. The last letter he mailed to his wife came from Jacksonville.

Trolley, Car Collide Hamilton Man Killed

HAMILTON, April 2 (CP). — Howard Mallard, 29, was instantly killed early this morning when a car in which he was riding crashed head-on into a street car on Main Street East near Houghton Avenue. Stanley Garrett, also in the automobile, is in hospital in critical condition. Mallard came to Hamilton about a year ago from his home in Prince Edward Island.

Driver, Passenger Injured in Upset

HAMILTON, April 2 (CP) — Driver and passenger of a Brantford taxi were critically hurt, early today, when the machine went out of control on Highway No. 2 near Alberton and landed in a ditch.

The driver, Robert Newlands, 28, of Brantford, suffered a fractured neck and possible skull fractures. His passenger, Mrs. Beatrice Christie, 27, also of Brantford, suffered a possible thigh fracture.

Alleged Confession Made in Acid Murder

HORSHAM, Sussey, England, April 2—(Reuters).—John George Haigh, 39-year-old company director, today was committed for trial April 26, charged with the murder of Mrs. Olivia Helen Henrietta Durand-Deacon, 69-year-old widow.

Asking for commital to the central criminal court at the Old Bailey, Defence Counsel G. Morris said this was "an exceptional case."

A statement was read to the court in which Haigh was alleged to have said he shot the widow in the back of the head and put her in a tank. Then after going to a restaurant "for a cup of tea" he went back and pumped acid into the act with a stirrup pump.

Use Tear Gas To Halt Riot

ROME, April 2 (AP)—An uneasy calm followed rioting Friday night at Modena in which the police used tear gas and clubs on Communist-led strikers in the north Italy agricultural city.

Dispatches from Modena said several demonstrators, including a woman, were injured before the police and Carabinieri restored order. The fight started during a demonstration by 1,000 supporters of a city-wide general strike instigated by Communists.

The Communists have called on 9,000 bank employees throughout the country to quit work today in a strike for higher wages.

In Rome, Communist and pro-Communist Socialist leaders announced they will support opponents of the North Atlantic Pact.

The Italian parliament has approved the country's adherence to the pact, after stormy debates in which Leftist orators said they would carry to the people their fight against the alliance.

Will Investigate Troop Riots

NANKING, April 2 (AP) — China's top officials today launched a personal inquiry into Friday's riots between Nationalist troops and student peace demonstrators. The military said six soldiers were being held for courts-martial.

Authorities of Central University said acting president Li Tsung-jen and Premier Ho Ying-chin conferred with school representatives to obtain first-hand details of the disorders. Students and soldiers clashed twice just after the government's envoys left for Peiping to open peace negotiations with the Communists.

Judge Attempts To Speed Belleville Police Inquiry

BELLEVILLE, April 2—(CP) —Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay is expected to make strenuous efforts for a speedy clean-up of his provincial police probe when public hearings resume Monday.

He ordered a week-end adjournment of his Royal Commission Friday, ending four weeks of inquiry into the allegations levelled by 44-year-old Constable J E. Keays.

Several times during th last week Mr. Justice Mackay expressed impatience with the speed of the probe. Friday he asked the constable, elaborating on his charges without the aid of a lawyer, to stay "reasonably on the rails of relevancy."

Inspector Page, the 25th witness to be called, was on the stand when the adjournment came. He testified that the Frontenac County crown attorney and the Prince Edward County Court judge had asked him to keep Constable Keays out of their districts. Hastings crown attorney Donnan, he added, asked him not to let Constable Keays take part in investigations.

The constable shot back that the inspector had taken him off police duties without a hearing.

"No charge was laid against you," the inspector answered. "If a charge had been laid, you would have been entitled to a hearing."

"It may very well be, that before such action was taken; you were entitled to a hearing," the commissioner told the constable.

But the commissioner repeated his plea that Constable Keays confine himself to relevant issues.

Inspector Page followed Corporal Stanley Palmateer, head of the provincial police detachment at Bancroft, to the stand. Corporal Palmateer denied Constable Keays' allegation that Mr. Donnan was a "confirmed drunkard."

Marshall Plan Threat Decisively Defeated

WASHINGTON, April 2 (AP) —A major victory under their belts, United States Senate leaders pushed today toward final approval for the $5,580,000,000 European Recovery Program.

What was probably the biggest threat to the bill for a second-year Marshall Plan was smashed Friday night. That was the proposal of Senators Robert Taft (Rep. Ohio) and Richard Russell (Dem. Ga.) to cut the cash outlays for foreign aid by 10 per cent.

The Senate beat back the Taft-Russell amendment by a lop-sided 54-23 vote.

Smallwood First Premier Of New Province; Busy Organizing Cabinet

To Run Island Until Provincial Election Held In May; Finance Minister Lone Non-Confederate To Hold Portfolio

ST. JOHN'S, April 2—(CP).—Joseph Smallwood, Provisional Premier of Newfoundland, today was busy lining up his Cabinet which will run the new province until a provincial general election can be held—probably some time in May. The wiry little man who, almost alone, swung Newfoundland into Confederation, was sworn in Friday as interim Premier, heading a nine-man Cabinet. Three of the nine were placed in the Department of Finance, Justice and Natural Resources. These jobs went to G. A. Winter, Finance; L. R. Curtis, Justice, and W. J. Keough, Resources.

Mr. Smallwood's cabinet—to be known as a "council"—is comprised mostly of men who supported the confederate cause. An exception is Mr. Winter, the new finance minister. He is a merchant and a member of one of St. John's most distinguished families.

Mr. Keough is a Co-operatives leader on the west coast and Mr. Curtis a St. John's lawyer.

Other six cabinet members still to be allotted portfolios are M. J. Sinnott, a retired magistrate, C. H. Ballam, former member of the national convention, H. W. Quinton and H. L. Pottle, former members of the seven-man commission government, and S. J. Hefferton and Philip Forsey, both retired St. John's school teachers.

These six ministers were expected to be placed today and Mr. Smallwood said further appointments probably would be made in a few days.

Pattern Laid Down

The council has powers to enforce existing laws and to make expenditures according to a pattern set forth by the commission government, which ended Thursday.

Two Missionaries To Visit City

Fifty-fifth annual missionary convention of the Alliance Tabernacle will be held in the city during the week of April 4 to 10. The Christian and Missionary Alliance is responsible for about 80 million people in 21 mission fields throughout the world. The Rev. Walter Pister missionary to French West Africa, and Mrs. I. R. Stebbins of French Indo China, will be special speakers.

The Rev. Pister, who translated the Gospel of Mark into the dialect of the Red Bobo tribe, will relate his personal experiences and tell of spiritual accomplishments with them.

Mrs. Stebbins has spent 23 years in the mission fields, ten of them among the Annamese in Cochinchina and the remainder at Bee, with both Annamese and various tribal groups. She has seen mission work grow from a mere 60 Christian converts to more than 15,000 members.

The Christian and Missionary Alliance is responsible for almost 80,000,000 souls and 21 different mission fields. They conduct a program directed by capable and experienced missionary veterans produced by six decades of Alliance Missions.

Services will be held in George Street United Church Monday, April 4-Saturday, April 9. The concluding services will be conducted Sunday April 10 in the Orange Hall at 11 a.m. and in the YMCA at 8 p.m.

Youths Escape In Bad Crash

Three Toronto young men miraculously escaped death or serious injury at 1 a.m. Friday when the car in which they were riding left No. 28 Highway on a curve, near Barrie's service station, turned over several times and landed up against a telephone pole. Those in the car were Kenneth Price, 11 Balshaw avenue; his brother Gordon, 12 Balshaw avenue; and Donald Conway, 12 Balshaw avenue, the driver. Kenneth Price suffered two broken ribs, cuts and bruises while the others escaped with only cuts and bruises.

Car a Wreck

The car, a 1939 model sedan, was a complete wreck, being so badly smashed that Provincial Police constables who investigated the crash marvelled that the boys were able to leave the wreckage alive. The top was practically torn off and the car sustained damage to nearly all of its component parts. Damage was estimated at over $800 and what was left of the vehicle was towed in to Russelle's Garage, Water street.

The car's occupants were taken to the office of Dr. C. F. Cahill by Provincial Contables R. A. Feeley and G. L. Langton where their injuries were treated. They later returned to their homes in Toronto. The trio were returning home at the time of the accident after visiting Conway's wife, is at present visiting her parents in Peterborough.

Suggest Reds Stripped Of Citizenship

OTTAWA, April 2 — (CP). — The House of Commons debated, without taking action, on Friday, a private Bill introduced by Wilfrid Lacroix (L-Quebec-Montmorency) which would outlaw the Communists and strip them of their citizenship rights.

William Irvine (CCF-Cariboo) dubbed the legislation "a Bill of Wrongs" and said its adoption would mean a sanction of the suppression and the oppression practiced by the Communists themselves. Under it, a person could be convicted merely for "having an idea."

A shift in Cabinet portfolios, bringing J. Gordon Bradley of St. John's into the Federal Council as Newfoundland's first minister, was announced by Prime Minister St. Laurent. Mr. Bradley, 61, and Attorney-General in the last Liberal Government in Newfoundland, becomes Secretary of State for Canada, succeeding Hon. Colin Gibson.

Mr. Gibson, 58, who represented Canada Friday at the union ceremonies in Newfoundland, takes the post of Mines and Resources, being given up by the Hon. James A. MacKinnon, 67, who, in turn, becomes a minister without portfolio pending retirement from the government and the Comomns.

Butter Short

At the House opening, Agriculture Minister Gardiner answered a suggestion that Danish butter be removed from the market with the statement that there is no more butter available now than there was a year ago, when there was not "quite enough" to meet demand.

Reconstruction Minister Winters said Central Mortgage and Housing is not making "as much progress as we would like" in the development of a comprehensive housing project for Toronto and surrounding municipalities. The main "difficulties" were the lack of housing and services, particularly schools.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 2—(CP) — Oats and barley futures prices held at or near previous closing levels to show an easier tone in dull trading on the Winnipeg Exchange. The trend reflected hesitation in grain on American markets. A modest expansion in offrings in oats and barley was met by limited support from shippers in both grains. Rye registered fractional losses, receiving thin support in the face of increased offerings.

Firemen And Council Meet To Discuss New Agreement

"We want to do anything in reason," said Harold Black, secretary of the Peterborough Fire Fighters' Union, in a discussion with the fire and light committee of the council on Friday night of terms of a working agreement for 1949 which has not been concluded.

Negotiations were begun toward the end of 1948, and were protracted into this year. Drafts of agreement were exchanged, but final signatures were not affixed to any one, with the result that the council decided that if a definite arrangement was not reached by April 1, relations would be continued under the agreement of 1948. In that prospect the executive of the firemen requested the meeting with the committee.

Ald. Doug Miller presided with Aldermen Gillespie, Grant Miller, Dr. Herbert Young, Anglesey, Waddell and Mayor Swanston present.

An hour's discussion indicated goodwill on both sides, and a spirit of harmony between the council members and the Union delegation, but also some blur of understanding which appeared to be a result of the several drafts of the working agreement and amendments to them. Mr. Black said at the outset that negotiations had left a "muddled impression in the minds of the men," and as the discussion proceeded, Ald. Grant Miller said that certain doubts of the men had made "a mountain out of a mole hill."

Easily Settled

Mayor Swanston remarked in the final note that the matter could be easily straightened out by representatives of the committee and the union "getting together and asking Chief Smith to sit in."

"I suggested that a meeting of our union the other night," Mr. Black said. "All the rambling back and forth has been a cause of confusion."

In the course of exchange of ideas about the agreement for this year, a question was raised by amendment and settled respecting sickness and accident provision for the men, Mr. Black said they understood, according to correspondence that the draft agreement was acceptable to the council at that stage. However, it transpired that another clause relating to work by the day shift at the hall had been broadened. It was to the effect that the employees agreed to do all maintenance work, janitor service, minor repairs and alterations in the building. The word that stirred objections among the men was "alterations," especially as they contended, after they felt that the draft agreement was acceptable to the men. When the draft returned to the union, Mr. Black said, the word alterations had "slid in."

In Draft Stage

City Solicitor Huycke interpolated the explanation that the negotiations were only in the draft stage. The word agreement was being used in the discussion as if decision had been reached and signed. Up to the present it was only a draft, something drawn up, and not closed.

The chairman and members of the council denied that there had been any "sliding in." It was also said that this change had been made prior to the present job at the fire hall.

Mr. David Lowe, Toronto, vice-president of the provincial Federation of Fire Fighters, remarked that "it was too bad this amendment had appeared at a time when major alterations at the fire hall were under way."

Ald. Grant Miller said the whole matter resolved itself into a mere technicality, and Mayor Swanston commented that when the present work is finished there would not be a recurrence of the question this year.

Mr. Black said the men objected to the scope of the alterations, but they had not actually refused to do any work. He agreed that the objections were put forth on the basis of principle, and he also said "because this change contradicted our correspondence with the council."

Jealous of Agreement

Mr. Black told the committee the men were "jealous" of the working agreement. It had already done a lot for them, "and they think a lot of it." They were even enjoying benefits provided by the draft agreement of 1949.

Ald. Doug Miller declared that nothing had been "slid", into the agreement. The draft was only a tentative agreement. It had been considered by the executive committee of the council, and then returned to the men.

Mr. Black frankly said the word "alterations" scared the men, and Mr. Lowe explained that there was no objection to maintenance work, "but the men don't expect to have to do work on a substantial contract like this one."

Ald. Doug Miller said he did not think Clause 12-E, outlining the duties of the man on the day shift, apart from fire service, should have gone into the agreement. "I think it infringes on the authority of the Chief. We know what it is to take out a wall and put in a partition. We considered that to be small alterations. That is what we had in mind. It was not for the intention of taking advantage of the abilities of any of the firemen."

Decide Difference

The chairman said that if it came to a fine question as to what was the difference between minor repairs and alterations it would take a court to decide it.

Mr. Huycke: "Anyway, there have been only drafts of agreement so far: so the field is still open, and dickering has not finished."

Discussion repeatedly traced the shuttling of the drafts, without any complete agreement about them being arrived at. Mr. Black did make it clear that there had been no lack of harmony between the council and the firemen. He said further that the men had hoped that Chief Smith would have been more disposed to consult them about matters about the hall, than they considered he had shown. The men were interested in the efficiency of the department, and also in good relations.

Mr. Lowe remarked: "Every fireman has the hope that he may some day be chief. He wants to hold up the prestige of his department, and he knows there has to be co-operation. They have co-operated even by accepting the word and assurance of the council, and they think you can accept their word."

The discussion ran out of time because Chief John Thompson of the police department had been invited to discuss traffic matters with the council, and had been waiting about an hour.

The actual alterations referred to in the discussion were part of the job of converting the office into space for one of the motor trucks, thereby providing necessary additional space for the fire fighting equipment.

When the question of alterations was recently referred to Mayor Swanston, it was learned, he directed that any work being done by the men be discontinued.

In Hot Water Over Race Policy

SYDNEY, Australia, April 2 (CP)—Australia is in "hot water" again over her white-Australia policy.

Immigration Minister Arthur A. Calwell's literal interpretation of the immigration policy, designed to keep Asiatics out of the Commonwealth, has caused sensational outbursts in southeast Asian countries during the last few months.

The latest case which spotlights the policy in the Philippines and Japan concerns Philippine-born Lorenzo Gamboe, now a naturalized American serving with United States forces in Japan.

Calwell has refused to allow Gamboe to visit Australia to see his Australian wife and two children. Gamboe applied for a permanent visa.

The reason given for refusal is that it would set a precedent to allow other Asiatics in a similar position, mostly wartime refugees who were recently deported, to return.

Reports indicate that Gamboe's wife made no secret of the fact that he intended to remain in Australia.

International Question

CLEVELAND, April 2 (AP) — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, addressing the United States Commission for the United Nations educational, scientific and cultural organization, said Friday night that human rights and freedom now have become "an international question." She said Russia can "make promises because very few people get in that country to verify what they promise."

Syria's Military Junta Dissolves Parliament

DAMASCUS, April2 — (AP)— Syria's military Junta dissolved the House of Representatives today and confirmed the government of Brig. Husni Zayim, who seized power in a bloodless dawn coup on Wednesday.

The Junta also ordered the formation of a constitutional commission to start drafting a new constitution and new election laws. It promised that new elections will be held as soon as the commission has completed those tasks.

Zayim will appoint the constitution's drafters and fix the date of the new elections. The Junta on Friday released two members of the old cabinet from arrest.

The deposed President, Al Sayed Shukri Al Kuwatly, is in hospital, it was learned. Other cabinet ministers including his Premier, Khaled Bey Azem, still are under arrest.

Reds Think Canadians Very Gullible Lot

LONDON, April 2 (AP)—Tass, official Russian news agency, distributed a report today that the Canadian government had agreed to grant the United States exclusive right to exports of nickel, lead, cobalt and asbestos from Canada. The Tass dispatch attributed the report to the Stockholm Communist newspaper Ny Dag.

Ban U-Turns On George St.

That idle pastime of U-turning at Brock and George Sts. and Sherbroke and George Sts. as a main street diversion is going to draw down police court tolls if the council goes through with the ban proposed at the meeting of the committee of the whole Friday night.

It was a recommendation from Chief Thompson, no U-turns anywhere at intersections and stop lights between Brock and Sherbrooke Streets, inclusive. A similar frowning will be turned on Charlotte St. at Aylmer St.

Traffic amendments proposed at this meeting were: Flasher light at Charlotte St. and Monaghan Road, amber lights east and west and red north and south, and larger signs out the highway at the entrance to the city.

"We need bigger signs at the city limits," said Ald. Doug. Miller.

Stop and go lights are to be set up at Lansdowne and Park Sts. where there is now a flasher. That was Ald. Waddell's motion, seconded by Ald. Anglesey. The flasher remains at Aylmer and McDonnel Strets.

These corners will be controlled at rush hours by point duty constables: Aylmer and Hunter; George and Sherbrooke, Reid and Charlotte.

All the committee said about the bus blockade of streets was to the effect that this interference with traffic should be called to the attention of the despatcher at Simcoe and George Sts.

Mayor Swanston himself mentioned the George St. and Jackson Park buses reaching the north side of Hunter St. corner together. When one pulls up behind the other Hunter St. is partly blocked. Similar obstruction of George St. occurs at Charlotte St. Just for that the bus company's despatcher is going to be asked to do some spacing when he lets the northbound cars go.

Zone Altered TB Survey

Zone Two, that area north of Charlotte St. to the city limits, which had been marked off by the Peterborough TB X-ray Council for X-ray purposes has been split in two.

It was decided at a meeting of the Council on Friday night that those persons living north of Dublin St., and who volunteered to be X-rayed would attend the Normal School as clinic centre instead of George Street United Church. Several people had complained that travelling up and down the hill in the north end of the city made the trip to George Street Church too onerous.

Official permission has not yet been obtained for the X-ray Council to use the Normal School but it is believed that it will be forthcoming.

The portable X-ray unit will be at George Street Church during the general survey from May 16 till the evening of May 18, and at the Normal School May 19 and May 20.

A sum of $75 was granted by the Council so a booth could be obtained at Kiwanis Trade Fair. It would be used for promotional purposes.

Most of the meeting was occupied in a detailed discussion of how the mass survey in the city and rural districts would be conducted.

Final Respects Paid J. S. Bell

A large funeral service for the late Joseph Samuel Bell, 75, of 203 Hunter St. W., (Bell Apts.), was held at St. John's Anglican Church on Friday afternoon. The Ven. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson, assisted by by Archdeacon C. W. Balfour, officiated and honorary pall-bearers were A. F. Clark, A. L. Killaly, E. V. Morphet and J. A. Nornabell. Active pall-bearers were Col. Bruce Mills, Charles Coleman, John Dishart, William Gray, Charles Ray and Alex Turner. Burial was at Little Lake Cemetery.

Mr. Bell died on Monday in hospital following a short illness. He was born in Montreal 75 years ago, son of the late John Bell and Hannah Greer, and lived most of his life in Peterborough.

He was an ardent member of St. John's Anglican Church, and of its advisory board and also a lay reader. He contributed generous funds to the new St. Alban's Mission in the south end and for years was prominently identified with the Upper Canada Bible Society. He took a leading part in the Peterborough Horticultural Society, particularly in its Scenic Drive.

A member of the British-Israel Society, he often presided at services of intercession during the Second World War at St. John's Church. During the First World War he was a member of the 57th Regiment and later was a Sergeant Major with Vancouver's Seaforth Highlanders.

Fined For Disturbance

Arrested early today for causing a disturbance on Charlotte St., Herbert and James Scully, 468 Elm St., were fined $10 with $2.50 costs each by Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C., at city police court today.

The Otonabee Memorial Rink campaign is swinging along at full speed, new pledges are coming in each day as well as donations both in cash and in kind. The township has almost all been covered by Finance Chairman Dave McNevan and his canvassers and the response has been most generous so that the committee feel quite confident that the objective will be reached with the help of the outside donations by the time actual building operations commence.

The committee is pretty well decided on the type of building to be erected and tentative plans are for the excavating and cement work to be completed in June and the building proper to commence in September. However, no definite plans may be announced until after the next general meeting to be held in the near future date of which will be announced later.

Acheson Meets Regularly With Diplomats

WASHINGTON, April 2 (CP) — The historic Washington gathering of foreign ministers who will sign the North Atlantic Pact is the start of a new development in post-war diplomacy.

All signs are that State Secretary Acheson will henceforth meet regularly with the Canadian Foreign Minister, Lester B. Pearson, and his counterparts in the governments of the European members of the Atlantic Alliance.

Acheson said meeting at the foreign-minister level "will become increasingly common."

He cited three matters which, one by one, emphasized the need for such get-togethers: European occupation problems, Marshall plan administration and the Atlantic treaty.

Acheson described it as a good opportunity to talk things over. There is no formal agenda, except that the main item of business at a Saturday-morning session was to approve the final text of the pact and smooth out details of the signing ceremony.

Acheson indicated future meeting might follow the same pattern—informal round-table attempts to find a common denominator for action on a specific problem. He left no doubt that he thinks it highly important to have more such talk as often as possible and necessary.

600 Orangemen To Meet In Convention In City

April 11 to April 14 will be Orangemen's days in Peterborough. For on those days the Royal Black Knights or Ireland, Grand Lodge, the L.O.B.A., and the Orange Young Britons, will be holding conferences in Peterborough.

In the YMCA the Royal Black Knights of Ireland will meet April 11 and 12. On April 13 and 14 the L.O.B.A., the Grand Lodge and the Orange Young Britons will meet in one of the churches, expected to be either George Street or Park St. Church, the YMCA and the Orange Hall on Brock Street. Over 600 delegates from Orange Lodges of Eastern Ontario will be here.

Reports from the different lodges will be read, reviewing activities of each throughout 1948. Officers of the Grand Lodge will report on last year's work and disclose to the Lodge the activities on the slate for 1949.

Billeting of delegates is causing some concern for local lodges. Private billets have been secured for 100 of the men delegates. They will be billeted in hotels and tourist homes. A call has been sent for assistance in the billeting of the outsiders for the four days.

Billeting Committee will be located at the YMCA under the Chairmanship of Thomas Sargin-son, 39 Lafayette Ave.

Invitations have been sent Mayor M. J. Swanston, Peterborough Ministerial Association, and the Chamber of Commerce to attend.

Meals for the delegates are the main problem of the local lodges. A spokesman for the Orange Lodge said Friday that he hoped the restaurants would stock up on their reserve of food for that week.

On Tuesday, April 12, the Weir Royal Black Knights will exemplify the Royal Gold Degree. This will be open to members from Peterborough and delegates.

Sponsord by the Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 50, a dance will be held in the YMCA gym Wednesday, April 13. Members and friends will be allowed to attend.

Good Drama Named Best Play of Season

By PAT USSHER

NEW YORK, April 2—(CP)— The time is approaching for the annual awards for the best play of the season and it is probably safe to say now that the palm will go to "Death of a Salesman."

This column picks the sombre drama by Arthur Miller as the leader in the field of straight plays. As for musicals, "Kiss Me, Kate" is out in front by a wide margin. But its position may be challenged by "South Pacific," due to reach Broadway next week.

"Death of a Salesman," in addition to tackling real and everyday problems, is a tense and absorbing drama. It is written skilfully and is blessed with fine acting and fine directing.

Best Ingredients

When it comes to light entertainment, "Kiss Me, Kate" has all the ingredients that add up to making a good musical. Authors Bella and Sam Spewack have happily blended the story of Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" with the counterpart in a modern romance. Cole Porter has turned out a lusty, tuneful score. Some of his tunes are suggestive of the melodies of Elizabethan days. The singing, dancing and acting are all excellent.

Police Power Drama

The whole idea of absolute police power and its effect on one man's mind gets a melodramatic airing in Sidney Kingsley's "Detective Story," which had its Broadway opening last week.

The powerful presentation looks like the latest in the season's crop of top hits. The taut and timely production tells of several hours in the life of a police detective, a man fiercly conscious of his public duty but completely regardless of the idea of checks and balances on police power that a democracy is supposed to provide.

Unswerving in purpose to the point of being sadistic, his tenacity brings even his own wife into the proceedings for a smash tragic ending.

Why This Elaborate Legislation?

On Thursday we commented at length on the Charitable Gifts Act, and we have little to add to what we said at that time. But the turmoil which this Act has aroused grows fiercer with every passing hour, and the hotter the fight, the weaker the Government side appears to be. If, as the Hon. Leslie Frost insists, the only purpose of the Act is to see that money from charitable foundations actually goes to charity, that is easily arranged without any such elaborate piece of legislation as the Act in hand. All that is needed is a commissioner of trusts and foundations, rather like the securities commissioner, who is empowered to examine the disbursements and the accounts of trusts and foundations every year, and to see that the money which is meant for charity is actually going to charity.

* * *

There appears to be very little pretence now that the Act is not framed to catch the Toronto Star, and to wreck the Atkinson Trust. But this Trust has not been in existence for a year, and it cannot justly be said whether it is making adequate disbursements to charity or not. The Act would have been understandable if the Star had been caught in some questionable action, but why has the Government assumed that it would attempt to evade the spirit of a trust?

* * *

Let it be clearly understood that this newspaper is not setting up as a champion of the Star, or the Atkinson Trust, or any other private body. But as a newspaper we are deeply disturbed by the spirit of this Act, which is punitive and revengeful, and which is therefore unworthy of the Legislature of Ontario, to which all citizens of Ontario must look for justice, integrity and decent political behaviour. We are alarmed, also, by a piece of legislation which looks so much like an attempt to silence criticism of the Ontario Government. Much of the Star's assault on Queen's Park was deeply distasteful to us, but it is far more distasteful to think that governmental critics must fear governmental revenge, backed by all the weight of the law. Surely Ontario politics has not sunk so low?

* * *

The Hon. Leslie Frost is spoken of widely throughout Ontario as the new provincial leader of the Progressive Conservative party. His record hitherto has been a fine one and until this Act was broached, we think that most people in the province viewed his probable premiership with satisfaction. What impells him to sponsor this Act, which seems so disarming on its surface, but which looks more and more needlessly vindictive in effect, we cannot presume to guess. But we fear for the good name of the Ontario Legislature if this Act becomes law, for it is perfectly plain that the same effect could be achieved with a far less sweeping piece of legislation, and the purpose of the Act seems all too nakedly to be other than the purpose which is avowed for it.

The Growth Of The Nation

The accession of Newfoundland, with its 325,000 people, its Island area of 43,000 square miles and the Labrador mainland area of 110,000 square miles, calls attention to the growth of Canada, without conquest and without compulsion on the acceding territories. In 1867 when it became a federated Dominion, Canada had but four provinces, an area of approximately half a million square miles and a population of about three million people. Today the area is estimated to be 3,843,000 square miles, the population nearing fourteen millions.

The British North America Act of 1867 united three colonies: Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Canada (Canada East and Canada West). These were formed into four provinces, the two Canadas becoming Quebec and Ontario.

Even in that limited union, Nova Scotia was in the first few years an unwilling partner. It is incorrect to say now, however, that the way Newfoundland has come into the union is similar to Nova Scotia's entry in 1867. Joseph Howe led the Nova Scotian opposition to the union. Charles Tupper's government there preferred not to risk defeat by going to the polls over the issue, so the people had no opportunity to express their opinions. The people of Newfoundland have had the opportunity through the referendums last summer. The final one resulted in solid majority on the side of federation. The Newfoundland Government which had sent delegates to the preliminary Quebec conference was defeated in 1869. Only now, eighty years later, has Newfoundland entered the union.

The first accession after 1867 came from the west. Negotiations with the Hudson's Bay Company had accompanied the Confederation movement, and in 1868 Rupert's Land became part of Canada. The eastern part of this vast tract was almost immediately formed into the Province of Manitoba (1870). British Columbia, the Pacific coast colony, was admitted to the Dominion by British Order-in-Council in 1871; after the presentation of Addresses to the Crown from both the Colony and the Dominion. Prince Edward Island entered Confederation by a similar method in 1873. The last addition to Canadian territory, before yesterday, was made in 1880, when the British Government transferred its jurisdiction over the Arctic islands to the Canadian Government. Saskatchewan and Alberta were the last two provinces to be formed. They were carved out of the northwest by Dominion statutes in 1905.

There have been changes in Canadian territory since then due to undefined borders and arbitration over territory, as for instance, the dispute over the Alaska frontier. This was settled in 1909. The dispute over the ownership of Labrador was ended by decision of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in 1927, which awarded the territory to Newfoundland. The Territory of Yukon was established as an administrative unit in 1898; the Northwest Territories were divided into the three districts of Mackenzie, Keewatin and Franklin in 1918.

The accession of Newfoundland seems likely to end the territorial expansion of Canada in North America. Now this nation more fully than ever warrants its motto A Mari Usque Ad Mare. "From Sea To Sea" was the dream of the Fathers of Confederation, now completely realized.

Another Shipping Tie-Up

Because of a dispute, or a struggle for power, between two rival seamen's unions, the Canadian east coast is again to have many ships and perhaps thousands of men idle. The strike had its not small beginning on Thursday when called by the Canadian Seamen's Union. No one can say now how extensive it will become or how long it will last. The C.S.U. are intending to tie-up 90 deep-sea vessels involving 3,000 men on the east coast. The rival union is the Seafarers' International Union, which, say C.S.U. officials, is coming into their province with the connivance of the shipping companies. One S.I.U. informant is reported to have said that it will be "a knock-down, drag-out battle".

How wonderfully beneficial this will be for the Canadian people as a whole, and for the Canadian economy, a third of which depends on exports! Whatever the rights and wrongs, and however necessary it may be to rid the Canadian merchant fleet of communist-dominated unions such as the C.S.U. is reputed to be, a strike such as this is as bad for the country as for the idle ships and seamen. We cannot afford it. Other methods of settling the disputes and problems are available and should be used.

Diary Of A Hoop Bowler

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: A warm day, and as the snow melted several things came into view which I had lost during the winter, and also a few things which I untidily forgot to pick up last autumn before the snow fell. Spring is I, suppose, a beautiful season, but this between-season, when Winter is giving its last gasps, has little to be said for it. The grass appears, dank and dirty; the trees are hideously naked, like old women surprised without their wigs; cement looks harder, and sand sandier, than at any other time of the year... Yet though there is little pleasure to be taken in Nature, the indoors has suddenly become intolerable. The white sunlight probes through the windows and lights upon disgraceful dust which has formerly escaped notice. There is a fusty, carpety smell everywhere which I did not notice yesterday. It is neither Winter nor Spring and I am full of ignoble discontent.

✧ ✧ ✧

MONDAY: Spring has brought marbles back into favour with all the children I see, but it struck me today that it is many years since I saw a child bowling a hoop. When I was a lad I had an iron hoop with an iron handle to it; the hoop passed through an eye in the handle, which was used to guide it. Walloping that hoop I have galloped many a merry mile. I had also a barrel-hoop which I bowled with a stick; it had no guide and was very fast. I never used one myself but some boys pushed small hoops (wheels from gerambulators were much favoured) with a stick which had a T-bar nailed on the downward end. Where are the hoops of yesteryear? What explains the disappearance of this very ancient sport? Boys rolled hoops in Chaucer's days; boys no doubt rolled hoops beside the waters of Babylon while their elders and gloomiers sat down and wept. But boys do not seem to roll hoops in Canada at present and I cannot find out why it is so.

✧ ✧ ✧

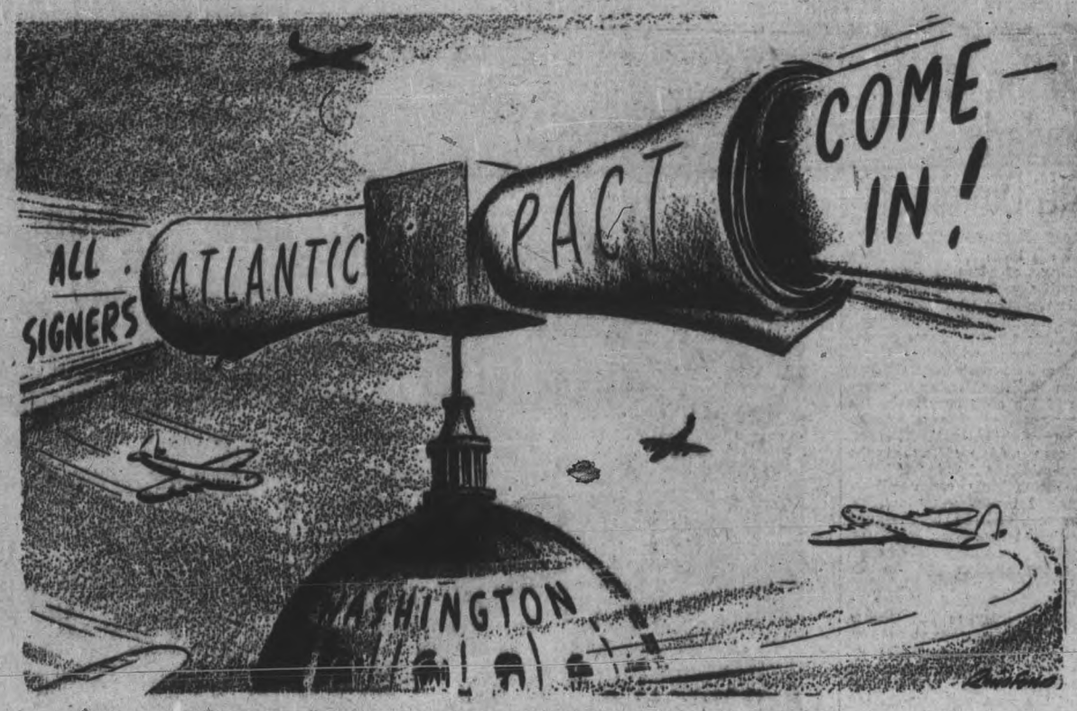
TUESDAY: Eating some Chinese food today I reflected that the Chinese, who are such wonderful cooks, appear to be very indifferent brewers, distillers and vintners. They have a few kinds of wine and spirits, made by ill-treating rice in various unspeakable ways, but nothing that would coax the appetite of the most abandoned drinker of rubby-dub or lilac lotion. They have not even had the enterprise to mix a bottle of gin with a few ounces of soy sauce, which would produce a reasonably wholesome and unmistakeably Chinese drink. Why, I pondered, are the Chinese so backward in this respect? Not, surely from scruple, for they have been leaders in self-indulgence of one sort and another since the beginning of history....I had finished my dish of chicken chow mein long before I had finished with this problem, and it was late in the afternoon before I had wholly dismissed it from my mind.

✧ ✧ ✧

WEDNESDAY: Laughed merrily when I read in my morning paper that the Toronto City Council was in a fantod because a magazine writer said that Toronto women were "sleek, ravishing and sexy". Most of their complaint was inconcerent goobling, but one councillor mastered his blood pressure for long enough to say that this constituted an attack on the good name of Toronto. The root of this trouble lies in the belief of the Toronto council that all female Torontonians are Ladies. A Lady, in Canada, is a dowdy and unappetizing mammal who is much given to Culture and Good Works, but derives no sinful satisfaction from either; a Lady is without discernible sex, but can reproduce its kind by a system resembling radar; a Lady does not have to be attractive, because it is sufficient in this wicked world to be Good. There is nothing a Lady hates so much as a Woman, and women are occasionally sleek, ravishing and sexy. The idea that women invaded Toronto would of course be repugnant to the City Council, which distinguishes itself every year or so by banning The Decameron, or insisting that male and female authors be kept apart on the shelves of the public libraries.

✧ ✧ ✧

THURSDAY: I rarely play cards, but I was taken to the cleaners this evening by a couple of young women in a spirited game of "Authors". Reflected as I played upon the appearance of authors, as a class. They are a mangey lot. Shakespeare appears to have been a dapper fellow, but look at James Fenimore Cooper, who kept turning up again and again in the hands I was dealt. And look at Ralph Connor and Sir Gilbert Parker, the two Canadians included in the game. Scarecrows all of them. Authors should be read, but not seen. Their work unfits them for human society.



✧ ✧ ✧

FRIDAY: Considering the amount of time and ingenuity which are devoted to making it hard for a man to get a drink in this country, I think it strange that nothing is done to keep people from digging their graves with their teeth. Have just finished two volumes of historical studies by Dr. C. H. MacLaurin, the celebrated diagnostician, in which he shows that a surprising number of the most eminent people in history have died of diseases which began in their habit of over-eating. Drink is a spectacular vice, but comparatively few people have any inclination to drink to excess. But the quiet, day-to-day cramming, guzzling, stuffing, bolting and gormandizing which goes on is thoroughly alarming, when we consider its effect on the nation's health. And everywhere we permit signs and advertising positively encouraging people to eat; little children are plied with cake and pie; the old are urged to eat "to keep their strength up" when in reality food will only sclerose their poor old arteries and blow the fuses in their shaky nervous systems. Frankly I think that a move should be set on foot to limit the retail outlets for food, or perhaps bring it under government monopoly, making it too expensive for people to get much of it.

✧ ✧

SATURDAY: Attended the final competition of the Central Ontario Drama Festival; in an interval a gentleman said to me: "The real fun of these things isn't in the plays or the adjudication, but in the hatchet-work which goes on in the audience". Agreed with him. The drama, a seemingly peaceful pursuit, drives some of its devotees near to mayhem; others develop ulcers in five minutes as they view the triumphs of their rivals. Truly a dangerous pastime....A group of very young people won the competition, and a lady said to me "They'll remember this all their lives". True, but many things which happen at drama festivals linger in the memory; not merely the bouquets, but the boffs on the beezer and clops on the chops with which adjudicators are so free. Many years ago an adjudicator said that I acted like a conjuror who was always trying to pull a rabbit out of a hat, and never did it. When I am dead those words will be found graven on my heart.

Letter To The Editor

COMMENDS KIWANIS FESTIVAL

Sir: May I, as a newcomer, be permitted to add one or two remarks to your editorial on the subject of the Kiwanis Musical Festival?

First of all I would like to congratulate the Kiwanians themselves. Comparatively few people realize that the Festival is run at a financial loss. Great credit reflects on the Kiwanians for their far-sighted generosity in sponsoring this annual venture. To mix my metaphors, the foundations are being laid, and the joists will appear in due course.

I was struck by the great talent of so many of the competitors and the excellent diction that helped so much towards that elusive goal, an artistic performance.

It is a great pity that strings were so sparsely represented. There would appear to be great opportunities for development in this field.

It was good to see youth to the fore. In fact they carried off the honours.

In all respects the Festival compared very favourably with a Festival in a centre of comparable size in England.

Yours faithfully,
CHRISTOPHER GLEDHILL.

LET US HEAR THE NEW LEADERS

Sir: If Canada is to progress as is so desired, the people of this nation must become more wide awake to the issues involved in the progress of the country. For the past few years the people of this province especially have had opportunity to be wide awake to the success of the great advances made on certain lines, which certainly have proven a detriment, destruction, of both minds and souls, as well as, families and financial funds, upon which any family has to depend for survival, and causing our courts, jails, asylums, hospitals and in so many cases filling graves with the victims of liquor, which business was forced upon so many thousands of sections without the vote of the people or pushed in by force of power without representation. The liquor deals brought Peterborough the first costly improvements to be made during the time when houses were so needed for the soldiers and others just as deserving. Peterborough had it's first street widening, change and expansion made for liquor services. But what was done by Drew and Blackwell for the general public that compared for the good of the people, with the devastation, crime advancement, destruction of human lives? Canada is young and like all young, must build to stand alone and survive the tasks ahead, therefore, we must be wide awake, weed out the destructive, selfish officials, who serve by power or force and select those, who may have a chance to serve as they are chosen.

Peterborough should invite royally and willingly, the untried officials seeking provincial and Dominion offices and let these people learn fully of their potentialities, issues and pledges by meeting these officials even though their speeches etc. may be by force or necessity of time of a whirlwind type. Even though any section, paper or group of people may be strongly Conservative, Liberal or a C.C.F. the people deserve, should hear or read and exercise every other method possible to make themselves unbiased, wide awake and capable to choose for themselves by vote, the officials they deem best to make their progress, individual lives and the country of Canada, that which it so deserves and should be among other nations.

The people know by experience and knowledge that for which George Drew and Leslie Blackwell live, work for, fight for and stand for, but we do not know by experience or knowledge, that for which, other high elective officials may pledge themselves to seek for this country and it's people. So why not extend the warm welcome to the new ones, that they too may be informative, active willing instructors of their issues for this campaign?

Yours, etc.,
MRS. JOSEPH HAMILTON.

It Is Full Of Surprises

The distance from Halifax to Boston, by water, is not great: about 365 nautical miles. But in that rather short space of ocean, the mariner can meet a greater variety of weather than might be expected. It is possible to make the journey in placid, sunny weather with calm seas all the way. It is also possible to travel the entire distance in dense fog.

More often, the traveller experiences an assortment of weather which, if it does not enchant, at least makes the voyage interesting.

Captain Neil Roach, of the liner Lady Nelson, has reported an extreme example of this variety. It seems that on the recent voyage from Halifax to Boston, the ship ran into snow and rain, sleet, bright sun, a thunderstorm, and finally, heavy fog. Since the voyage lasted but 24 hours, that is as great a variety of weather as one could wish—even greater perhaps.—Halifax Chronicle-Herald.

The Moscow Party Line

There are people who deny or doubt that Communist parties in all countries take orders directly from Moscow. It might profit them to look at this sequence of events:

Ten days ago Maurice Thorez, French Communist party leader, said that in a war between France and Russia French Communists would support Russia.

Two days later Palmiro Togliatti, Italian Communist party leader, said that in a war between Italy and Russia Italian Communists would support Russia.

Three days later Harry Politt, British Communist party leader, said that in a war between Britain and Russia British Communists would support Russia.

Four days later William Z. Foster, United States Communist party leader, said that in a war between the U.S. and Russia American Communists would support Russia.

Are such statements, in rapid succession and couched in the familiar Moscow dialect mere coincidence?—Ottawa Journal.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

The word of the Lord came unto me again, saying, What mean ye, that ye use this proverb concerning the land of Israel, saying, The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge.

As I live, saith the Lord God ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. (Ezek. 18: 1-3.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And as Jesus passed by, he saw a man which was blind from his birth. And his disciples asked him, saying, Master, who did sin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind?

Jesus answered, Neither hath this man sinned, nor his parents: but that the works of God should be made manifest in him. I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work. As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world.

When he had thus spoken, he spat on the ground, and made clay of the spittle, and he anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay, and said unto him, Go, wash in the pool of Siloam, (which is by interpretation, Sent.) He went his way therefore, and washed, and came seeing. (John 9: 1-7.)

TROUT FLIES AND BAMBOO RODS, both handmade, are the interesting and meticulous hobby of perfectionist fisherman Frank Rothschild, 53 Kingan Street. His rods, valued by experts at $100 each, require 100 man-hours to make. The urge to make them was sparked in Northern Scotland during the last war when Mr. Rothschild was billeted at the home of a retired professional Highland rod-maker. Frank Rothschild is shown above, upper left photo, tying a trout fly on a special vice. In the upper right, a pattern of rod making materials is shown with the completed rod. In the lower right picture, some of his hand-tied flies are arranged on the shoulder strap of his fish creel, all ready for May 1st. —Examiner Staff Photos

Ties Flies, Fashions Rods This Fisherman An Artist

By NICK NICKELS

Canadian fishermen are numbered in the hundred of thousands but there are but few who not only know the sport and follow it expertly but make their own equipment as well. In the case of Frank Rothschild, 53 Kingan St., fellow fishermen prize his handmade bamboo trout fly rods so highly that, if he had time, he could quite possibly make a handsome living from them. As it now stands, he works at his meticulous craft when time can be spared from managerial duties at a Simcoe St., hotel.

Before the Second World War Mr. Rothschild was a mining engineer, and his profession took him into little-known places in Northern Canada. It was often necessary in exploration camps to depend on the country for food. Remote spots such as God's Lake, Manitoba, provided virgin fishing waters. It was the accepted rule, rather than the exception, that some of the engineering party should keep the cook supplied with fish for a hungry crew. For avid fisherman such work was never a chore especially when fishing was so excellent that the size of the catch could be graded as it was being pulled in.

"AND LIVE WITH ANIMALS"

I think I could turn and live with animals, they're so placid and self-contained
I stand and look at them long and long
They do not sweat and whine about their condition,
They do not lie awake in the dark and weep for their sins,
They do not make me sick discussing their duty to God,
Not one is dissatisfied, not one is demented with the mania of owning things,
Not one kneels to another, nor to his kind that lived thousands of years ago,
Not one is respectable or unhappy over the whole earth.
—Walt Whitman: from "Song of Myself".

During the War Mr. Rothschild went overseas with the Royal Montreal Regiment (machine guns) and was billeted at one time in Northern Scotland. As Company Sergeant Major he enjoyed the hospitality of a retired salmon rod maker.

He tells of offering his host a wee drap o' Canada's finest who spurned the offer and took the CSM to his basement to sample private stock of Highland dew.

It was in these pleasant moist surrounding that talk got around to the making of bamboo salmon rods. It left a lasting impression with CSM Rothschild and the urge to try his hand at making them but war interfered with his plans.

He was wounded during an air raid in England and spent several months convalescing in hospitals. During long hours in bed he turned to leathercraft work and still makes some very fine purses when he can find time for it. His disabilities put an end to the mining profession but did nothing to dampen his ardour for fishing. So that he could enjoy this pleasant hobby the year round, he turned to making bamboo trout fly rods.

Mr. Rothschild bought a dozen bamboo canes from an exporting firm in Celyon for the laid down cost of £20.

The first step is to file off the nodes or bumps and split the cane section into 16 pieces. The inside edges of these splints have to be planed down to micrometer sizes from .155 to .040 inches. Six splints are fitted to make an hexagonal rod section and glued and bound with butcher twine and allowed to set for a week.

If the section is found to be straight it is put away to age for five to seven months without the binding. If the section shows the slightest bend it has to be lightly tapped on the curves to straighten it.

After the sections have aged the natural wood enamel is scraped off with steel wool close to the springy wood fibres. The assembly and fitting of ferrules, cork handle and reel seat is the easiest part of the job. The wood is given a final polish with the back of a kitchen knife and the snake eye guides are bound in place with silk or nylon thread. Waterproof varnish is applied with a fine brush and the handmade bamboo fly rod is now ready after more than 100 hours of painstaking work. Makers set a value of $100 upwards on such a piece of equipment but factory-made equivalents are sold in a price range from $25 to $85.

Constant care of a good fly rod is a "must" for the serious fisherman who hopes to get the most from his equipment over a long period. After a day's sport it must be examined for nicks in the wood caused by the backlash of hooks or scraping from branches, the abrasions filled with varnish. When not in use rod sections are wrapped tightly to a straight fluted wooden core and the whole kept in a waterproof case. Preference for the most suitable reel says Mr. Rothschild, is left to the individual He finds a light single action reel the most satisfactory for his requirements.

This story primarily started in the search for fishermen who tie their own trout flies. It was fortunate to find in Mr. Rothschild a man who not only tied flies but made his own rods also. He feels that many fishermen are intrigued with the hobby of tying flies but lack the necessary patience that is required to continue with it for long. From his collection it was evident that a man must have the touch of an artist to reproduce the likeness of flies that appeal to hungry trout. To wear a snarl of factory-made trout flies in the hat band is nothing but bravado to the serious fisherman.

His patterns may be chosen from the 600 well or lesser-known flies from Cowdunk to Quebec to Zulu. They come under two groups: dry flies with hackles that make them float, and wet flies with heavier hooks and bodies and light hackles that can be played same in both types.

To make a dry fly the bare hook is held in a special vice by the barb and it starts with the tail feather, body, wings, hackle feathers and head. Odd and ends from milady's sewing basket can provide material and colored threads but experts like Mr. Rothschild buy materials in quantities for the tying of a larger range of flies.

On May First purist trout fishermen, equipped with handmade rods, hand-tied flies and cane creels will be whipping county streams. Whether the day is dull or bright makes no difference to these sportsmen with a fly book full of lures that may be changed according to the weather and their own whims. Some believe in the rule that bright flies are more attractive to fish on dull days and vice versa.

Such painstaking sportsmen enjoy trout fishing far more than do novices. Theirs is the good strong feel of a supple rod that took 100 devoted hours to build. The tug of a trout hooked to a lure of their own fashioning gives an added tug to their hearts. And heaven help the blundering idiot who brags to them of the fine mess of specks caught in Laughing Brook with worms.

PETERBOROUGH PERSONALITIES

The Bishop's Parlour Talk Reveals Scholarship, Charm

By A. J. THOMAS

The housekeeper answered my ring at Bishop's House, Hunter Street West, and since I was expected, showed me into what she called the parlour. Its furnishings were modest, even austere — a few not over-stuffed chairs, a few not expensive reproductions of Italian ecclesiastical paintings, a well-worn rug on the floor. My acquaintance with bishops being virtually limited to Renaissance and eighteenth century ones, and with Bishop's Palaces to some magnificent structures in Italy and large ones in England, I had expected to find even the reception parlour lavishly elegant. Its simplicity was therefore fascinating. The house is called "Bishop's House" and not "Bishop's Palace".

Of the man who over the phone had cheerfully and readily granted me this interview, I did not know what to expect. 'Who's Who" told me that he had the degree of Master of Science (in social science) earned at an American university and that he had been a professor of Social Science in the University of Montreal.

The man who in a moment came briskly into the parlour to greet me was neither donnish nor Sir Stafford Crippsian in appearance. Tall—well over six feet— and with a build proportionate to his height, this man did not look like a professor or a social scientist. He did look like a man of affairs, and a prelate. Which he is, for he is His Excellency, the Most Reverend Gerald Berry, seventh Bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Peterborough, a Bachelor of Arts, a Master of Science, a Doctor of Divinity, and head of a large diocese which extends from the Lake Ontario front to North Bay.

Bishop Berry put me at ease immediately—so much so that I realized only when I had left him after an hour's conversation that as an interviewer I had failed in my job. I had become more interested in his conversation than in him as the subject of the interview. I attribute the lapse less his skilled experience in dealing with interviewers and parrying their questions (and to my own unprofessional status as interviewer), than to the quality of Bishop Berry's mind, the breadth of his interests and the stimulation of his conversation.

So I neglected to ask him about his travels, his hobbies, his parish experience. I believe his time as an ordinary parish priest has been limited, for so much of his career has been devoted to study, to teaching and to administrative work. I even forgot to ask him the proper names for the clerical garments he was wearing — a special type of cassock. Nor did I even ask him to distinguish between the red of the small cap on his head and a cardinal's red.

The Canadian "Who's Who" gives this information about him: "Berry, Mt. Rev. Joseph Gerald (R. C.); bishop; b. Montreal, P. Q., 7 June, 1902; s. Joseph and Ann (Gilligan) B.; e. We talked first about Montreal, in which so much of his life has been spent. He recalled that when he was a student—not so many years ago, as the Who's Who record shows—that the large tract between Guy and Atwater from Sherbrooke Street right up to Westmount Boulevard was in orchard. He talked with the relish of an antiquary of the history of the city — of Marguerite Bourgeoys, the first woman teacher in Canada, of the foundation of Bunsecours Chapel (now known as 'the Sailors' Church,' down at the present harbour front), of its building and rebuilding in the 1670's, of the recent discovery of its ancient foundation stones with bronze engraved in Quebec, of comparing their inscriptions with documents in the archives of Notre Dame.

Did he not miss, here in Peterborough, the great graystone buildings, the feeling of the present directly linked through them with the past? Did he miss the background of old structures like the Martello towers on Sherbrooke Street inside the walls of the College de Montreal (the Martello towers were at one time town fortifications)? Did he not miss the flavour of a city such as Montreal?

He thought that hereabouts was much local history of great interest. He commended the Examiner for the articles it has been carrying from time to time on local history and lore. He spoke of visiting Douro in 1946, a year after his coming to Peterborough, when the Douro parish celebrated its centenary. He related with pleasure that on looking over the records he found that Bishop Phelan, coadjutor Bishop of Kingston, had received the first communicants in the new parish exactly a hundred years earlier than he, Bishop Berry, had been there. Bishop Phelan had been parish priest in St. Patrick's in Montreal before going to Kingston. Bishop Berry is likewise a St. Patrick's man. This small historical coincidence warmed his smile as he spoke of it.

As for missing the atmosphere of Montreal—he found much to delight him in Peterborough. He spoke of "the lovely prospect" from the Water-Trough Hill, of the view from Armour Hill. From there one appreciate how many trees have been left in the city—"an impressive amount of verdure, not eaten up by pavement and thrown into the discard".

His interest in social welfare came to the surface as he spoke of the advantages which a small city like Peterborough offers its citizens. Although it is an industrial centre, it has few of the great and grievous problems with which he had to deal as administrative head of the Catholic Welfare Bureau in Montreal. He mentioned such ordinary matters as men being able to take their midday meals with their families —which, he thought "has a considerable influence on family life in Peterborough".

Bishop Berry did not smoke, but as I lit cigarette he delved into his memory for an amusing saying of Jeremy Taylor about a young man with a cigarette dangling from his lips. I could not recall it. (Was it another Jermey Taylor than the seventeenth century author of "Holy Dying"?) The phrase did not come to his tongue so he—well, bishops don't "dash"—but he went off to another room like an eager young student in search of a line of verse to clinch a nice point, and in a jiffy was back with a scrap-book.

As he reminiscently turned over the pages and clippings, the tobacco adage became lost in a variety of other topics suggested by them. A new version of "O Canada" with the first line "O Canada, mon pays, mes amours" which he had clipped from a Montreal paper. A short discussion of "place memory", as the tobacco reference eluded him. A tart saying by W. H. Moore of Pickering (author of "The Clash") that: "The state is self-sufficient. Self-regard is its appointed duty." The Bishop chuckled over this, and another

"The good old rule sufficeth us
The simple plan
That they should take who have the power
That they should take who can".

Somehow the conversation veered to philology of which Bishop Berry professed to know little, and to the language in use along the lower St. Lawrence. Bishop Berry is, incidentally, perfectly bilingual, speaking and writing both English and French with equal ease and felicity. When he therefore pronounced the last name of the present Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec (Sir Eugene Fiset) as "Fisette", I asked if he were Anglicizing the name. He told me that very often it is pronounced with the final 't', and not as "Fisay". So also in 'Nicolet' colloquially said with the final 't'.

We returned to Peterborough, and the type of farming in this area. He remarked on how near Peterborough in to frontier life, that farming north of the city is closely related to cattle-ranching, lumbering and the tourist country. Nevertheless, it was in Peterborough County that "Red Fife" wheat was bred, and there are excellent farms and good farmers in the area. He thought that the development of farmers' co-operative movements indicated that the farmer "was trying to stand on his own feet economically".

From talk on frontier farming, came a discussion of the influence of environment on culture, and of isolated marginal cultures. Mention was made of Australia. "On that point—", Bishop Berry interjected, "Wait a second". And upstairs he went, and it sounded as if he were taking the steps three at a time. He came down with a book by the sociologist and philosopher Christopher Dawson, called "Religion and Culture". He read and pondered some passages from it, talking with scholarly concentration, and using small gestures I had not seen outside Montreal.

Then (or was it earlier?) the visit last year of the three cardinals to Peterborough was referred to—Cardinal McGuigan of Toronto, Cardinal Griffin of Westminster and Cardinal Gilroy of Australia. The Bishop said that when he was planning lunch for them it occurred to him that strangers to a district like to have not just good ordinary food,

HAVING A 14-11 RECORD with Portland last year, Duane Pillette is given a good chance to stick with the Yankees. The six-foot three-inch right-hander has a rare opportunity to follow in footsteps of his father, Herman Pillette, inset, Detroit hurler of the Ty Cobb era who won 19 one year.

King Scores 8-Round Win With LaRusso

NEW YORK, April 2 (CP) — Toronto's Arthur King, lightweight champion of the British Empire and Canada, Friday night won a unanimous eight-round decision here over Johnny LaRusso of New York. King weighed 135½, LaRusso scaled 138½.

L'il Arthur southpawed his way through the whole fight, rarely unleashing his right. LaRusso depended almost entirely on a wild right hand.

The fight was the semi-final on the card featuring the world lightweight champion, Ike Williams, and welterweight contender Kid Gavilan, who outpointed Williams.

There were no knockdowns in the King fight and the crowd of 18,201 frequently clapped derisively for action.

King scored repeatedly with his snaking left, staying inside LaRusso's wide swings. But the New Yorker was not aggressive enough to rouse King's fighting fury.

Only occasionally, when LaRusso managed to land a right, did the fast Toronto lightweight unleash a vicious two-fisted flurry to drive his foe to the ropes.

The fight was the 24th victory in 25 professional fights for the 22-year-old Canadian negro.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

Stan Cutts of Toronto Friday night successfully defended his title as world professional badminton champion by overwhelming challenger Doug Grant of Montreal in two straight matches, 15-3, 15-2.

In top form, the former English badminton star, who first wrested the championship from Grant in 1947, put on a brilliant display to retain the title, before a large crowd at the Ottawa Badminton Club.

At Dunfermline, Scotland, Sudbury Wolves, Canada's touring hockey team, Friday defeated Dunfermline Vikings 4-1 in a dull game.

Jim Russell, Joe Tergeson, Bill Dimock and Joe Dibastiani notched the Canadian tallies while W. Thrasher scored the only Dunfermline goal.

The trout season opened in Quebec Friday and will extend to Sept. 30, it was announced at Montreal.

The limit catch remains the same. 40 fish or 15 pounds plus one fish. The length limit is seven inches.

At Proenix, Ariz., Freddy Fitzsimmons finished sitting out his suspension Friday and joined New York Giants' coaching staff. Fitzsimmons was suspended until April 1 and the Giants were fined by Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler because the coach was approached last year while still under contract to Boston Braves.

At Montreal, the Montgomery Maids, Ontario Senior Ladies' basketball champions from Toronto, Friday night scored an easy 42-25 victory over Montreal Olympics, Quebec titleholders, in the first game of Eastern Canada final. Second game of the two-game, total-point series will be played tonight.

Toronto, St. Catharines Win Playoff Matches

TORONTO, April 2 (CP)—St. Catharines and Toronto carried off even shares of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association playoff honors here Friday night.

In the first game of a twin bill, Marlboro Midgets ran their unbeaten string to 35 games with a 6-5 victory over St. Catharines Masons while in the second tilt St. Catharines Lions trimmed the Marlboros 6-1 in the juvenile event.

The Lions' victory gave them a 2-0 lead in their best-of-five series.

Bribery Remand

EDMONTON, April 2 (CP). — Lawrence Magee, Calgary insurance man, Friday was remanded to April 12 for preliminary hearing on charges of attempted bribery. He is alleged to have tried to bribe four Social Credit members of the Alberta Legislature not to oppose a Bill to incorporate the North Land Insurance Company.

Clapper's Plan To Retire Leaves Bruins In Daze

BOSTON, April 2 — (UP). — One of the longest, most famous careers in professional hockey came to an end Friday night when Aubrey V. (Dit) Clapper, manager of the Boston Bruins, announced his retirement from the game. The announcement came as a complete surprise and brought tears to the eyes of the players and vice-president Arthur H. Ross, who has been associated with Clapper since he began his National Hockey League career here 22 years ago.

Clapper is a member of the Hockey Hall of Fame as result of his 20 years playing time—the longest in the National Hockey League. He started as a forward with the Bruins in 1927 and was a member of the famous dynamite line that had Cooney Weiland and Dutch Gainor as its other members.

As the years slowed him down, Clapper moved back to defence for the Bruins, and two years ago relieved Ross as manager-coach of the club.

"I intended to quit last year," Clapper said, "but I wanted to help Art.

"My family, business . . . it all adds up. I just can't get back, that's all. If I were young I could be of some help to the club."

"Managing is a hell of a job," he continued. "You're supposed to abuse the players. Well, they are my friends. How can I beat them?"

Going Home

Clapper said he was going home to take care of his family and store at Peterborough.

Ross, in attempting to pay tribute to Clapper at the club's year-end dinner, rose with tears in his eyes.

"I don't know how much I'll be able to say," he began. Then he stopped and sat down abruptly.

President Weston Adams said Clapper's decision was a shock to him and that he had no idea who would replace the 42-year-old veteran.

Walter A. Brown, president of the Boston Garden, added his praise to Clapper and said the decision to retire "hit me like a wet towel."

He said he, too, did not have the "foggiest notion" of who would replace the popular manager.

"I don't know of anyone who ever represented a city in sports who ever brought it more credit than Clapper," Brown said.

Coach Hap Day, commenting on Clapper's retirement, said from his Islington home:

"If Dit intends to retire from hockey, the game has lost one of its finest personalities, as a player, coach, and a perfect gentleman.

"I played against him for a great number of years. He always was a top-notch competitor as a player and I found him the same as a coach. I regret very much he has terminated his NHL activities."

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

There was plenty of cage action here the past season and a number of squads are still banging in there. Senior PCVS boys went to a Toronto tourney for the week-end, and they're in COSSA playoffs there next week-end. Ditto with the junior and senior girl PCI-ers. And the Collegiate juves are in OABA all-Ontario finals here Monday at eight p.m. and Tuesday aft at 4.30 in the PCVS gym against Sudbury boys, Northern Ontario champs. Points to count in the two-game series, winner meeting the Quebec-Maritime victor in Eastern Canada playoffs. Girls' Basketball League playoffs roll right along, too, but the end is in sight for some teams.

Stroyan Leith advises that the Peterborough and District Soccer League will hold its annual open meeting Monday eve at 7.30 in the YMCA. Entries called for at this time, officers elected—if the meeting doesn't decide on a commission, instead, to operate the association—and general plans for the coming season discussed. Reports presented, too. Everyone interested is invited as the soccer football fellows feel a big summer is coming up in their sport. They had five senior clubs last year, including Lindsay, with Legionnaires taking loop honors.

* * * * * *

Some Changes Made

Four clubs entered the City Softball League at the meeting Thursday. Legion decided to sit it out this season but will be back another year. Johnny Russelle will be back at the helm for Knights of Columbus during '49, with the B-A team not operating. Stew Richardson's Outlaws is the second entry. Third one is the Cosmopolitan Club (or Cosmos) with Howie Dalton playing manager, we hear. And the fourth is more or less the mystery team. It is sponsored jointly by Babe's Place and the East City Motors, the team being called Uniteds. Ken (Wimp) O'Toole made the entry. Umps are asked to apply as soon as possible to Bert Bailey.

* * * * * *

Pete King is back from a Florida sojourn and he and Mick Magee are on the prowl for senior "A" lacrosse players. They are checking on senior "A" and outstanding senior "B" gutted-stick performers to help bolster the Petes in their faster company this season. Competition for the better "A" players is pretty keen and several of the better ones first slated to come here aren't so sure now. But the Petes will field a strong squad, don't worry, when the campaign opens. Meantime, they'll be drilling as soon as the weather is favorable, and work will be done at the box to put new seating in the south end and enlarge the players' benches. Lot of kids seen out now tossing the ball around in the webbed sticks.

* * * * * *

Champing On Bits

Hotter than a double demeraro straight, the Legion puckists await the outcome of the Orillia-Sarnia deciding joust in Guelph tonight. Survivor meets Legion in OHA senior "B" finals. Can't tell a thing about where or when the games will be till that series is settled tonight—then the OHA secretary will decide. The way Legion rolled hrough Grimsby, the Orillia crew wouldn't be too tough, though not a setup, but Sarnia Sailors (1948 champions of Ontario) are said to be tougher. Still, the Peach Kings were said to be plenty tough, too. Hadn't lost on home ice in two years. Legion beat 'em right in Grimsby to sweep it in two straight. They may do likewise in finals.

* * * * * *

Team spirit is highly important, and Legion have it. We've said that before of other clubs—and it's always true of a winning club. But as soon as crabbing or criticism creeps in, then dissention develops and that's the beginning of the end as a championship club. Legionnaires are a fine bunch of fellows with no squawking among players before, during or after a game. If a guy makes a mistake—every player makes his share in a game—it's not mentioned by anyone but the coach. He is the only one who criticizes and that's as it should be. Yes, with their spirit they'll be hard to stop the rest of the way.

From The Grab-Bag

A note to hand saying there'll be a cricket film from England at the Empress on Monday evening. . . . Wings play Canadiens in Montreal tonight as Leafs sit back awaiting the winner of that series. . . . Jack Stewart of Wings is suing Scribe Andy O'Brien of a Montreal sheet plenty for claiming he deliberately injured Lach; he might settle for an apology in print. . . . Don McRae, who was here last summer, was a real star for Sydney in Allan Cup playdowns according to Ottawa and Toronto papers. . . . The ex-Winnipeg redhead is on the Leafs' list. . . . The referees' work in Grimsby the other eve wasn't too good but a deep chant: "Hom-er, hom-er!" by the Peterborough section on certain penalties seemed to help some as they weren't so bad later. . . . It's funny but you can pan refs in print plenty after you've won and it's okay but you mustn't do it if your team lost, or you're alibi-ing, eh? . . . Ross Nicholls is one goalie who doesn't alibi—he'll say: "I missed that one, just moved too soon on the shot", and he's a first-class netter. . . . And now for April.

Believe Biassati Pennant Winner

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., April 2 (AP)—Hank Biasatti is one of those newly - acquired shock troopers Connie Mack believes will bring Philadelphia Athletics their first American League pennant in 18 years.

The 25-year-old Italian-born first baseman from Windsor, Ont., made an excellent impression on his 86-year-old boss during the spring training season. Biasatti appears to have made the big league grade in his second try even though he's slated now only for duty as an understudy to first-sacker Ferris Fain.

And it is in this important second string capacity that Biasatti could play an important part in lifting the A's from their 1948 fourth-place finish to the long-sought pennant.

The surprising Athletics made a game fight in the pennant chase last year. Only the lack of reserve strength in August rubbed them out at the finish. It should be a different story in 1949.

Biasatti has been fielding in great style and his hitting has opened the eyes of the always-alert Mack. The toughest thing for Biasatti is that the A's already have a first baseman many experts deem the best in the junior circuit. Fain does everything well and hits when it counts.

Bad Knees

But Mack realizes only too well that Fain has a pair of bad knees. He needs a big, strong, capable fellow like Biasatti around as insurance.

The A's wanted to send him to Savannah again last season but the likeable first-baseman lost no time telling Mack he could do lots better than Class-A ball. He actually refused to report to Savannah and Mack finally placed him at Toronto in the International League—Triple A ball.

Biasatti proved he was better than his word as he played in 148 games, smashing 21 home runs and batting in 89 runs.

St. Paul Saints Take U.S. North Ice Title

By The Associated Press

St. Paul Saints are the United States Hockey League's Northern-division playoff champions. The Saints edged Omaha 6-5 in overtime Friday night to win the northern series in two straight games. Omaha took a 2-0 lead in the first period and kept the margin with a 4-2 lead in the second.

The Saints will represent the Northern Division against Tulsa, the Southern Division winner, in the final playoffs for the league title.

Sault Wing Man Gets Bouquet From Smythe

TORONTO, March 2 — (CP)—Joe Klukay, the wingman from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., who has been working quietly and effectively all season for the Toronto Maple Leafs, got a big bouquet of praise yesterday from Leaf president Conn Smythe, who called him "the most under-rated player in the National Hockey League.

"In my books he's the third best right-winger in the league, next to Gord Howe of Detroit and Rocket Richard of Montreal," Smythe said. "He can kill off those penalties, too."

With Leafs marking time until they meet either Montreal Canadiens or Detroit Red Wings in defence of the Stanley Cup, Smythe thinks a lot of his line of Klukay, Max Bentley and Rookie Ray Timgren.

"Bentley will never play in any NHL uniform but that of the Leafs," he said. "I've had offers for him but I've laughed at them."

2 Suspended Players Lose 1st Legal Tilt

NEW YORK, April 2 — (AP)—It is unlikely that Max Lanier and Fred Martin will return to organized baseball this year.

The two former St. Louis Cardinal pitchers, suspended for jumping to the Mexican league in 1946, failed in the first bid for a legal short-cut back into baseball's good graces.

Judge Edward A. Conger Friday denied their request for a temporary injunction to stop baseball from keeping them on the ineligible list. Their suspensions normally would expire in 1951.

The judge gave a number of reasons for his decision. Among them, he said, was a serious question whether his court had jurisdiction in the matter. Furthermore, granting the players' application would give them immediately the relief they might win after trial.

Peterborough Collegiate Takes Cage Tilt 34-30, To Meet East York Next

TORONTO, April 2—(CP).—Four teams—Windsor Patterson Collegiate, Sudbury Tech, East York Collegiate of Toronto and Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School—remain in the hunt for the Ontario intercollegiate basketball title after four elimination playoff games here Friday night. In the first game, Sault Ste. Marie Collegiate dropped a 34-30 decision to the Peterborough cagers, and in the second game Hamilton Westdale Collegiate lost 48-44 to Sudbury after a fourth-quarter rally failed to put them ahead.

In the final two games Ottawa Tech was squeezed out by the East York squad 35-33, and Toronto Western Tech was smothered by Windsor Patterson Collegiate 47-26.

The Peterborough-Soo game was close all the way. The first quarter ended 7-6 in Soos' favor and they managed to keep their lead until the fourth quarter with the score 18-11 at half time and 29-19 at the end of the third quarter. In the final quarter Peterborough counted 15 points, holding the Soo to a single point, to win.

Scores 14 Points

Little Marvin Zinn potted 14 points for Sudbury Tech in the first quarter of their game with Hamilton Westdale to give the Tech a lead they never lost. At half time Sudbury was ahead 32-20 and a desperate attempt by Westdale in the last quarter gave them 17 points, five points short of a victory.

The game between Ottawa Tech and East York Collegiate was the closest of the evening. Ottawa was behind 7-11 at the end of the first quarter, edged ahead, 21-17 at half time and battled through a sizzling second half to dron a close 35-33 decision to the Toronto cagers.

A well-conditioned Windsor Patterson Collegiate squad had little trouble eliminating Toronto Western Tech in the final game. The Windsorites took a 9-5 lead in the first quarter, extended it to 24-11 by half time and in the last half potted 23 points against Western Tech's 15.

In the semi-finals today Peterborough tangles with East York and Sudbury meets Windsor. The winners hook up tonight for the championship.

Lineups:

Peterborough (34)—Grafstein 1, Griffin 21, Blair 2, Northcott, Taylor, Hempstead, Thompson 6, Richardson, H. Dibben 2, Dinsdale 2, D. Dibben, Sargeant.

Sault Ste. Marie (30)—Kable 11, Godfrey 10, Hollingsworth 1, Kozah 6, McMakin 2, Heaney, Kelleher, Prokop, Harris, Eknianski.

Montreal Royals Trim Ottawa 7-4

OTTAWA, April 2 (CP)—Montreal Royals will be shooting for their third straight victory in their best-of-five eastern Canada semi-final series against Inkerman Rockets when they meet again in Montreal next Tuesday night.

The Quebec junior champions opened strong in the first half of Friday night's second meeting to turn back the Ottawa district color-bearers 7-4. They won the first game 10-2 in Montreal earlier this week.

Tag Millar's Royals are strong favorites to oust the Rockets in three straight games and advance into the final brackets against the Ontario Hockey Association junior champions.

The Montrealers took a commanding six-goal lead in the first half of the game.

The Hirschfield-Langill-Frampton line was the standout combination for the Royals. Hirschfield and Frampton led the Montreal scoring with two goals each, while the others were evenly divided among Dick Moore, Neil Langill and Goordie Armstrong.

Allen Kelly, Bill Lynn, Cliff Baldwin and Carman Marshall counted for the Rockets.

Religion Of Jesus Said Matter For Real Joy

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

Some time ago, discussion arose among a group of ministers concerning the exact nature of the ministry and work of Jesus, and impliedly the demands of Christ upon ourselves.

A paper had been read in which the writer took exception to the common portrayal of Jesus as the gentle Christ, the Christ of the birds and flowers, the Christ of pleasant and leisurely journeying with His disciples, and the discussions and teachings by the way. He emphasized the sterner aspects of the gospel in the portrayal of the perils and dangers, the sufferings and sacrifice, and the climax of that sacrificial experience in the Crucifixion.

The strong impression was of the necessity of seeing Jesus in both these aspects. The shadow of the Cross was undoubtedly upon Him from the beginning, even as Simeon had predicted the sword that should pierce Mary's heart (Luke 2:35), but He was the gentle Christ, the lover of the out-of-doors, the fields and flowers, the blesser of little children, the visitor in homes, and the amiable companion.

But the ministry of Jesus moved toward the Cross. He came not only to minister, but to give His life a ransom for many. It is remarkable how disproportionate a part of the four Gospels, so far as actual pages and space are concerned, is taken up with the happenings of the last week or so before Calvary, and especially the very last days.

It was here that the mission and ministry of Jesus began to be realized. How far the full realization of His destiny in the Cross came to be realized by Jesus Himself we cannot know. We do know that up to the last in the agony of the Garden He prayed that the cup might pass; and it was almost impossible for the disciples to believe that the glorious adventure on which they had entered was to have such an issue. Peter expressed their feeling, when he said, "Be it far from Thee, Lord."

But many words of Jesus in those last days reveal how conscious He was of that destiny in death and sacrific, despite His earnest prayer and agony in Gethsemane. In that prayer, however, was the deep trust and confidence in the Father's will. "Nevertheless, not as I will, but as Thou will."

Those who would truly be disciples of Jesus must be as their Master. "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me."

But the religion of Jesus, even in its sacrificial demands, is not a matter of gloom. Paul, who was a supreme disciple, sounds constantly the note of joy. That is the paradox of the Christian experience and the Christian way—that the religion of the Cross should be the religion of joy, of gentleness and peace, of inward satisfaction, of rejoicing in all that God has given in nature and grace for enjoyment and blessing.

Denying Of Divine Origin Of Christ Popular Claim

By REV. E. R. JAMES

I Am Come Down From Heaven To Do The Will Of The Father That Sent Me. St. John 6; 38.

"Great multitudes followed Him", it is written. And among them you would find the keenest minds of His people, listening attentively. Some were attracted, others murmured and walked no more with Him, for His teaching clashed with their idea, which they were not prepared to give up. So you can understand how shocked they were when He made this tremendous claim:—"I am come down from heaven to do the will of the Father that sent Me".

To-day many Christians are quite willing to preach "Jesus only" and refuse to ponder upon the deep claim He made about Himself, emphasizing "The simple Gospel", which is a half truth, and refuse to teach His Divine origin. Some of you are familiar with these famous words, which multitudes for seventeen hundred years have confessed as their belief:—"I believe in Jesus Christ, who for us men and for our salvation came down from Heaven and was incarnate by the Holy Ghost of the Virgin Mary, and was made Man".

To-day many Jewish Rabbis are speaking quite kindly of Jesus as their great Hebrew Teacher, but that He is mistaken in His claims about His Divine origin. He is a Teacher. True, But He is more.

Our Lord makes similar startling claims in St. Matthew 11; 28:—"At that time Jesus answered and said:—I thank Thee, Father, Lord of heaven and earth because Thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent and hast revealed them unto babes. Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in Thy sight. All things are delivered unto Me of the Father. No man knoweth the Son save the Father, neither knoweth any man the Father save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal Him". You will find this claim word for word in St. Luke 10; 21. They speak of the mysterious relationship between the Father and the Son. Modern scholars are of the opinion that they were copied from a diary kept by one of the Apostles. It has been lost; some day it may be found.

At Our Lord's trial before the Sanhedrin the High priest read Him the crime sheet:—"I adjure Thee before the Living God that Thou tell us whether Thou be the Christ, the Son of God"? Jesus said unto him; Thou hast said". The Master makes His claim before the highest church representative of His nation. As you know they condemned Him to death for blasphemy.

Dr. Liddon, the famous defender of the faith, writes:—"Eternal Jesus, it is Thyself who has bidden us to either despise or worship Thee. Thou wouldest have us despise Thee as our fellow man, if we will not worship Thee as our God. Of a truth Thou art the King of glory, O Christ, Thou art the everlasting Son of the Father".

WE BELIEVE AND ARE THAT THOU ART THAT CHRIST, THE SON OF THE LIVING GOD.

THIS IS THE LORD'S DOING AND IT IS MARVELLOUS IN OUR EYES.

SPECIAL SPEAKERS—The Rev. Walter Pister of French West Africa and Mrs. I. R. Stebbins of French Indo China will lecture at the 55th Annual Missionary Convention of the Alliance Tabernacle. It will be held the week of April 4 to 10 at George Street United Church. (See Story on Page 2)

Inspector Reid To Retire At End Of May

After serving with the city police force for 37 years, Inspector James F. Reid, is to retire at the end of May. He came to the city on June 15, 1912 as a constable, with only a few months experience of Canadian police work with the Brantford force, which he had joined the previous year. Today, however, he has the longest record of police service at the station and there is little he does not know about a policeman's work in carrying out the law.

Before he became responsible for much of the work involved in drawing up charges and collecting fines, the Inspector served as a constable and in 1914 was promoted to acting sergeant, later to become senior sergeant. From there he was promoted to inspector in 1922 and since that time, has been engaged in city police court work.

The inspector is a native of Fifeshire Scotland, born in the village of Alva in 1864. When people ask him what decided him to come to Canada he usually replies "O, I just took a notion." A notion which he has never regretted.

Exactly a week after he was married in Scotland, he left for this country and although his wife and daughter have since made a return visit, he has not gone back. Like a true Scot, however, he has clung to the accent of his native land and many are his reminiscences of Scotland at the beginning of the century.

Policeman in Scotland

He started his police career in Scotland with the Fifeshire Department where, between 1906-11 he obtained his grounding in police work.

The first uniform which the Inspector donned was the military dress of the Scots Greys which he joined shortly after the end of the South African war. He served in South Africa with the regiment for 15 months and perhaps it was this experience which gave him the urge to travel.

He came first to Hamilton and worked there for only a short time before enlisting with the Brantford police.

One of the most recent tasks undertaken by the Inspector of which he is justly proud, was his work as treasurer of the Spitfire Fund set up by all sections of the police throughout Canada. Fifty thousand policemen, R.C.M.P.s provincial police, city and railway police—organized hundreds of projects to raise money for the purchase of a Spitfire for Britain and the $70,000 which was raised enabled the Fund to send enough money to England for two Spitfires with a surplus of $2,500 which was given to the Red Cross.

Issued Official Receipts

The Inspector received every donation to the Fund from policemen in all parts of the Dominion and sent out receipts for sums varying from $6,000 to 11 cents. It is his proud claim that all donations, even though they were for small sums of less than a dollar, were acknowledge with official receipts and today there are three large loose leaf files of duplicate receipts stored at the police station.

No doubt Inspector Reid's Scottish personality has a good deal to do with his ability to handle large sums of money with such ability. At the city police court he collects some four or five thousand dollars in fines, dog and bicycle licenses every year and he has never lost trace of a cent.

During his period of service the Inspector has worked with three magistrates, E. W. Dumble, O. A. Langley K. C. and the present magistrate, W. R. Philp K. C. and four Crown Attorneys: R. E. Wood, George Hatton, K.C., V. J. McElderry, K.C., and John Bradshaw.

Although the time has come for the Inspector to retire from the police force, he still feels young and energetic enough to engage in some useful occupation. He has not yet made plans for the future but of one thing he is definite about that he is going to continue living actively. He says the last time he was sick was in 1929 when he was injured in a street accident.

Fond of gardening, he hopes to be able to devote more time to his small flower garden at home.

HOUSE BY THE HUNDREDS, for birds, will soon be ready for occupancy as manual training classes put finishing touches to a winter project that took Central School students 2,100-boys hours to complete. They will be displayed in the City Market Hall on April 22 in a mammoth judging contest sponsored by the Peterborough Fish and Game Association. King George School grade 8 carpenters shown in Left photo are Paul Rose, Left, assisting Ronald Wilson to put a roof together. Part of the large collection is shown in the Right photo, as Gordon Williams, Left, dabs on the paint and Winston Young hangs a model to dry.

Houses Galore, Rent-Free Feathered Folk

All this talk about a housing shortage in Peterborough will come to an abrupt end, as far as small houses are concerned, when five or six hundred dwellings are released shortly for occupancy. They are cosy looking affairs with gable, hip and all manner of fancy roofs, even some with chimneys. There are false windows, showy shutters and each house has a front door, of course, about an inch in diameter. If color appeal has anything to do with it, the occupants will be dazzled by the decorative schemes.

They will be ready none too soon for tenants are flocking in from the Southern States to look them over.

Hardy early travellers in warm red waistcoats have already arrived and can be seen carrying furnishings into older houses. Some of them who have wintered in the South, where housing conditions are also acute, have had to camp out in the woods. These types are fighting mad and are determined to do better for themselves in Canada.

They have been seen looking in the window of the Central School where these houses are hanging on the drying racks. They watch classes of young carpenters as hammering, sawing and fitting goes on at a mad pace.

All this fancy introduction has simply to do with bird housing and the result of a winter's manual training project that will end shortly with a mammoth bird house contest at the City Market Hall.

Sponsored by the Peterborough Fish and Game Association, the complete collection of dwellings will be displayed on the night of April 22nd. Everyone is working hard to make it the best show to date. Teachers are driving laggard carpenters, students are driving themselves in an all-out effort to compete for handsome prizes and trophies, and Association executives are busy laying the groundwork that goes on behind the scenes of all worthy shows.

To Be Leader Mission School

Harris Glen, 589 Lansdowne St. is leaving Peterborough Tuesday for Moose Factory on James Bay. There he will be a Boy's Supervisor at the Anglican Indian Mission School.

Five weeks ago Mr. Glen applied for a position in the school which has 100 pupils and a staff of 11. He will teach Physical Education and promote sports such as baseball, skiing and soccer.

Hearing that young men are badly needed to help with the children in the northern part of Canada. Mr. Glen asked the Rev. W. J. Gilling if he would get some information on the work he would have to do and how long he must sign up for. Mr. Gilling did so, and Mr. Glen also wrote to Canon H. G. Cook, Superintendent of Indian School Administration of the Mission Society of the Church of England of Canada, four times.

Is War Veteran

Mr. Glen is a veteran of World War II where he served with the RCNVR for three years. He was ship's cook on the HMCS LaSalle and the HMSC Eastore. In 1939 he was cook for the 4th Field Battery stationed at Petawawa. For the last six months Mr. Glen has been a member of the 50th Heavy AA Regiment, RCA Peterborough's Reserve Force.

Although never participating in sports himself to any great extent, Mr. Glen has always been interested in boys' work since he left the navy. In the fall of 1946 he formed a boys' club at St. George's Anglican Church. At the start there were six boys in the club. Now there are more than 60. They take part in the activities of the Peterborough Protestant Church Athletic Association, playing hockey and softball. At present Mr. Glen is secretary of the Association. Two years ago he was also secretary.

A boy who has been in the boys' club from the start, James Edwards, is taking over the leadership from Mr. Glen.

Play to Viceroy

Peterborough's Little Theatre has been invited to play "The Taming of The Shrew" in the Dominion Drama Festival in Toronto at the end of April. Announcement of this distinction was noted last week. Now comes word that not only is our amateur dramatic group to be one of only twelve companies from across the Dominion which will play in these Finals, but that the Peterborough group will have a preferred position.

It is to play in the time of honour—Saturday evening, April 30th, the last day of the Festival, when the Governor-General will be present. It is a signal honour for the Peterborough players and thus for the City.

Board Plans New Building

Present plans of the Peterborough Exhibition Board call for a new exhibits building, approximately 150 feet by 50 feet, to house a dining hall as well as exhibits at the Fair Grounds.

George A. Gillespie, president of the Board, told the Examiner that full details on the new building have not yet been drawn. The Board has not yet officially given its approval but it is felt that this is little more than a formality.

There is more diversity of opinion on where it should be constructed. One member is strongly in favor of it being situated at the west end of the drill hall; another prefers the east end. Only this seems certain: that it will be built in the vicinity of the drill hall and will thus replace the old exhibits building.

It will be of wooden construction and provide better eating facilities than those previously existing at the grounds. The remainder of the space will be used for exhibits.

The present exhibits building will be completely given over to floral display, thus doubling the present space set aside for that purpose.

Construction work is expected to begin as soon as the board gives permission to go ahead and sufficient workmen can be obtained.

1100th Pelt Ends Bounty Hastings Woman On Kill

Mrs. Sarah Lee of Hastings is a kindly little woman with a ready grin and a good word for everyone. But don't let that fool you: she draws a mean bead with her .32 calibre rifle as foxes and bears in her part of the country can testify. And if ammunition fails she can turn a stout stick into a trusty weapon as well.

Although a resident of Hastings Mrs. Lee spends a good deal of her time on the 9th Line of Dummer township, where her husband owns a woodlot; and there is plenty of hunting.

This week, the last on which fox bounties were payable in Peterborough county, she came into the office of the County Clerk and Treasurer to put in a claim for three foxes.

When asked if the three foxes were killed by her husband she assured the Clerk they were not. She shot two of them, she said, and the other one she clubbed to death with a stick when she found it in her hen-house.

The element of surprise was substantially heightened when she casually mentioned that she had also shot two bears this winter, and had a lifetime total of four.

Bounty Paid On 1100

Since the County began paying a $3 bounty on January 1 more than 1100 pelts have been brought into the office of the County Clerk and Treasurer. As adjacent counties had discontinued paying the bounty on foxes in February, the Peterborough County Council decided to follow suit at the end of March.

On the last day 122 pelts were brought in. Cecil F. Hayes of Peterborough headed the list with 12 which he had shot in Otonabee and Asphodel; H. Hamilton of Havelock and Everett Sedgwick of Asphodel both shot 10.

There was also a wolf pelt brought in by D. J. Fowler of Mount Julian. He shot it in South Burleigh.

A complete list of those claiming the bounty this week is as follows: Richard McMahon, Otonabee, two shot in Douro; Albert Wagner, Anstruther, one trapped in Chandos; Ralph Sweeting, Smith, two trapped in Smith; Edward Dunford, Peterborough, one shot in Dummer; H. G. Fairman, Hastings, two shot in Dummer and Asphodel; Kenneth Warner, Ennismore, one trapped in Ennismore; R. Scrace, Peterborough, two shot in North Monaghan; Walter Walker, Lakefield, one shot in Douro; Herbert Warr, Peterborough, one shot in Asphodel.

P. J. Owen, Lindsay, one killed on the highway by accident; Bruce Wright, Peterborough, three shot in North Monaghan; George Spencley, Douro, one shot in Douro; Clare Kidd, Dummer, two trapped in Dummer; Murray Slogett, Percy, one caught by dog in Asphodel; Harry Gwen, Harvey, two shot in Harvey; W. Lanoutte, Peterborough, two shot in Peterborough; C. Ashby, Peterborough, four shot in Douro and Otonabee; Paul Holmes, Otonabee, one shot in Douro.

Ralph Hall, Asphodel, one trapped in Asphodel; Percy McNaughton, Smith, two shot in Douro; Mrs. Sarah Lee, Hastings, two shot and one killed with a stick in Dummer; Alfred Crowe, Hiawatha Reserve, one trapped in Otonabee; A. Baptie, Peterborough, one shot in Asphodel; Elwood Stone, Burleigh, two shot in Burleigh; H. N. Grant, Smith, one shot in Smith; Cecil Johnson, Peterborough, one shot in North Monaghan; W. Parcels, Otonabee, one shot in Otonabee; Everett Sedgwick, Asphodel, 10 shot in Asphodel.

Howard Baker, Dummer, one shot in Dummer; Garnett Emery, Havelock, four shot in Belmont; Cecil F. Hayes, Peterborough, 12 shot in Otonabee and Asphodel; D. Henderson, Peterborough, one shot in Otonabee; H. Hamilton, Havelock, 10 shot in Belmont; M. Leahy, one shot in Douro; C. Williamson, Peterborough, one shot in Smith; Harry Barrons, Belmont, seven shot in Belmont; Glenn Varty, Belmont, one shot in Belmont; James Eason, Otonabee, one shot in Otonabee; Ronald Sweeting, Smith, four shot in Smith; Raymond Armstrong, Dummer, one shot in Douro.

Dale Meyers, Norwood, two shot in Asphodel; Clarence Tedford, Dummer, five shot in Douro and Dummer; George Razement, Anstruther, one shot in Chandos; Harry Gill, Smith, two shot in Smith; H. D. Baker, Norwood, one shot in Asphodel; Donald Turner, Burleigh, two shot in Burleigh; James Irwin, Harvey, three shot in Harvey; W. V. PRACTICAL PLANS FOR THE HOME YOU WANT AND HOW TO PLAN IT

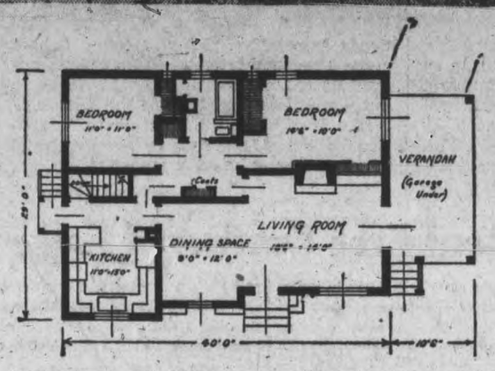
Build Room For Children When Planning New House

What about the children? Should you consider their requirements in the planning of your home? From the time a child first creeps until he reaches the age of four or five, his play needs constant overseeing. Generally, this falls on the kitchen worker.

Ideally, the child should have a separate room for his play, for he is bound to be noisy and strenuous at times. If you can make this possible in your new home you will never regret it. After its use as a child's play room has been served, it can keep step with the growing child and eventually grow into a rumpus room (which is really just a grown-up's play room).

Of course, it goes without saying that the room should have the maximum sunlight and air. Decorators in the nursery field, who know their children as well as their art, are now advocating a room that is uncluttered and airy, with plenty of sunlight, a hard-surfaced floor, simple sturdy furniture, and fabrics and wallpaper in keeping with the same practical, attractive spirit.

For play, the natural place is the floor. Hardwood painted or stained, linoleum, composition and cork are good choices. Such attractive patterns are available that they are often a decorative asset as well as a play surface and play source.



Rugs are usually used over these surfaces as they prevent the cold feeling of a hard floor. Materials that are easily washed are available and the patterns match the general nursery spirit. As mother or dad spend considerable time in the nursery an adult chair is a practical necessity. This chair should have a low back and should be carefully designed so as not to dwarf the other pieces and throw the whole room out of proportion.

In the section of wall coverings there is an imaginative and interesting variety from which to choose. There are abstract plaids and cheerful stripes, droll zoo animals, fresh farmyard scenes and comic characters on textured or plain backgrounds that will delight any child's imagination.

Many house budgets, however, will not stand the extra room devoted simply to play and the child's play room must share space. One practical solution is to make the dining room larger and make it serve as both dining room and child's play space. Because the dining room is the least used room in the house and because it affords the kitchen worker a chance for easy supervision it seems a fine solution to the problem in many smaller homes.

Plans should, of course, be made for the bedrooms of the children, for as they grow older they are going to require separate sleeping rooms. In many smaller houses, attics are so planned that they can be made into attractive sleeping quarters at a minimum of trouble or expense when the need arises.

HOUSE No. 83—High on the mountain slopes overlooking Vancouver, and the Lion's Gate suspension bridge, in the Brackenhurst district of West Vancouver. The owners decided to "perch" their home there, so that night or day they could drink in the grand panorama before them. It's one of those extraordinary sites that must be seen to be appreciated. The floor plan lends itself to easy circulation, and the dining room-living room arrangement reflects the modern trend toward blending these rooms. Kitchen-conscious housewives will appreciate the "U" shaped layout shown here. Many consider this arrangement produces maximum efficiency for meal preparation. Central location of the bathroom, making it easily accessible for all rooms, is a feature. And notice that the bath is flanked by the two bedrooms, but greater privacy is maintained by closets along the bedroom walls. That big porch would be the pride and joy of almost any family, but with the vantage point that this house enjoys it's quite "out of this world!" Remanded To April 8

TORONTO, April (CP)—Samuel Care, 58-year-old cleaner at the Tuberculosis Hospital in suburban Mount Dennis, today was remanded to April 8 on a charge of murder. Clubs Celebrate Confederation

By The Canadian Press

The Canadian family is bigger today and its members, in a great variety of ways, are taking happy note of the fact.

From cities, service clubs, governments and individuals throughout the provinces the messages of welcome have been rolling in on Newfoundland, now the Nation's tenth province.

From the war west a planeload of daffodils winged its way to St. John's, the province's capital, with best wishes from Victoria and from Mayor Percy E. George.

A Toronto meeting of the Newfoundland Association of Canada Thursday night marked the final hours of the Old Colony and cabinet ministers from Ottawa and Toronto came along for the momentous occasion.

School children across the land took part in special ceremonies—and got their first taste of the island's history and geography that will be added to their teaching.

Time was up. The courteous scholar and friendly prelate took me to the door, still talking interestingly. An impressive dignified personage as he stood there, but the kind of person who warms the heart and stirs the mind. He gave me a final encomium of Peterborough to serve as the official footing to these public notes. Pheasants Plentiful

TORONTO, April 2 (CP)—If favorable weather conditions continue, the pheasant population on Pelee Island in Lake Erie this fall will be the largest in years. Butter Shipment From Australia Causes Furore

OTTAWA, April 2 — (CP)—If it weren't such a solemn matter, Friday's date might explain the whole thing.

But the posibility of an April Fool's joke having been quickly discarded, the question remains: Who started all this confusing business about shipments of Australian butter to Canada?

After three days of checking trade and government officials both in Canada and Australia, the only tangible result is:

Canada can have 2,000,000 pounds of butter if she wants it.

That much was made definite Friday by the Australian commerce minister, Reginald Pollard, who seems to have started a butter controversy churning by announcing in Canberra Wednesday that Australia was sending Canada 1,000 tons.

In Hobart, Tasmania, there was some criticism about shipping butter to Canada instead of Britain. But nobody seemed to know what shipments were in mind.

Mr. Pollard answered that criticism by saying "Canada's great assistance to Britain's need in other directions justifies any help we can give her." That's the reason 1,000 tons of butter was being sent to Canada.

Not Needed Now

But, replied puzzled Canadian trade and government officials, Canada doesn't need such assistance. At least, not now.

Nevertheless, Mr. Pollard said Friday in a somewhat clarifying statement, 1,000 tons has been allocated for Canada. And furthermore, if Canada didn't want to buy it on an inter-government basis then it would be available for purchase by private Canadian merchants.

In fact, he added, "some has already been bought and shipped," presumably to Canada.

That puzzled everyone even more.

In Ottawa Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the House of Commons Thursday night that Canada had bought no butter from Australia this year. He thought the confusion must have referred to butter sent last year when Canada was short.

Mr. Pollard declined to elaborate on his second statement.

The only man who possibly could clear up the matter is Canada's trade commissioner to Australia, reported from Sydney to be en route somewhere between there and Canberra.

Consider New Route Causeway Suggested

LINDSAY, April 2 — A new effort is being made to have a direct Peterborough-Haliburton route established. A meeting was called this week in Bobcaygeon to discuss the plans for the latest effort and it was attended by Reeve James Kingsborough and Deputy reeve Lloyd Burrows of Lindsay.

According to Mr. Burrows one plan calls for the construction of a causeway across a section of Pigeon Lake to facilitate the highway. It is the intention of a committee, he says, to interview Provincial Treasurer Leslie Frost to see what can be done in this connection.

While the plan would undoubtedly be a boon to Peterborough and points along the new route, it is considered likely by students of the tourist trade situation here that Lindsay would suffer.

Nickel Workers Vote Keep Present Union

PORT COLBORNE, April 2 — (CP)—The International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (CIO) said Friday that hourly-rated workers at the International Nickel Company Refinery here had voted 639-51 in favor of retaining the union's local 637 as bargaining agent. There are about 1,175 hourly-rated employees in the refinery.

However, James Murray, Canadian Congress of Labor representative, said later that another union, the Port Colborne Refinery Workers Union (CCL) made formal application for certification as bargaining agency at the plant.

Murray termed the Mine-Mill vote as "nothing more than an April Fool ballot."

Duke of Windsor Writes Speech In Barber Chair

EDMONTON, April 2—(CP)—Want to know about people? Then ask W. R. Coughlin who has been in the barber business for 42 years.

Mr. Coughlin, who recently sold his business on Jasper Avenue, describes the Duke of Windsor as a "regular gentleman" who writes his own speeches. Years ago, as the Prince of Wales, he wrote one while having his hair cut in the Coughlin establishment.

In the old days many show people came to the barber shop and Mr. Coughlin recalls the late Will Rogers, known then for his rope-twirling rather than his wit.

Back in the days when Jack Dempsey had just been crowned heavyweight champion of the world, he visited the city and some enterprising Edmontonians tried to sell him what they described as "a very fine" husky dog for a large price.

Dempsey was cautious and bought neither the dog nor some real estate which was also offered in the barber shop.

Mr. Coughlin emphasizes that he is not retiring as "I'm still under age." He and his wife will continue to reside in Edmonton but will have more time to devote to their farm in the nearby Leduc district.

Back in Smith Falls, Ont., when he was 15, Mr. Coughlin shaved his first customer. His own whiskers weren't in evidence at the time.

He started his Edmonton shop in 1907 with four chairs. It was up to 18 by 1912 and, at the time, was one of the largest barber shops in Canada.

In 1907, there were only five barber shops in Edmonton and haircuts and shaves came at the rate of 25 cents and 15 cents, respectively.

In 1924, Mrs. Coughlin took over the beauty salon in conjunction with the barber shop. "I made a barber out of her," said Mr. Coughlin. "She was a school teacher."

CGIT Doing

GEORGE STREET

Miss Beryl Hart conducted games at the first af the meeting. The timely subject of "Gardens" was chosen as the worship theme by the Junior group. Japanese, British and Indian gardens were described, leading up to the Garden of Gethsemane. Arlene Payne, Mary Wasson, Joyce Youngs, Marion Outram, Barbara Tiffen and Eileen Armstrong each took a part in this service.

During the business, Eileen Armstrong and Marion Outram were chosen to give piano selections at the Girls' Work Board Tea, being held April 9.

After dividing into groups, the Seniors synopsised parts of the Easter story. Juniors also studied this story.

TRINITY

Devotional period was conducted by Catherine Hodgens who briefly outlined the message which was heard by those attending the church service at the recent CGIT Conference. The Conference theme, "Look In, Look Out, Look Up" reminded the minister of the words of St. Augustine, "To myself a heart of steel, to others a heart of love and to my God, a heart aflame," and he pointed out how CGIT girls would do well to follow this example.

Dr. Agnes K. Moffat was guest speaker to the members of the Senior group and was introduced by the president, Joan White. Dr. Moffat gave an informal talk on the problems faced by a growing girl, which was followed by a question period. Joan Krogh voiced the thanks of the group to Dr. Moffat, who then, as a former Canadian Girl in Training, joined the group in singing.

Intermediates decided to make fudge and candy suckers at their next meeting. They spent the rest of the time working on their Chinese newspaper.

Write Song For Newfoundland

HASTINGS, April 2—(ENS)—With each of the children wearing ribbons of green, pink and white, the classes of Hastings separate school united on Thursday, when the entire day was devoted to the study of Newfoundland.

Patricia Quinlivan was the winner of a Newfoundland spelling match and Patsy Penny, Bernard Lynch and Marie English won a Newfoundland quiz contest conducted by the pupils.

Several choruses were sung including a special song composed by the children to honor Newfoundland. It was sung to the tune of "What Shall We Do?"

The words are as follows:

What do they do in Newfoundland,
By the Atlantic Sea?
Oh! how they fish in Newfoundland
On the great Grand Banks.
In Newfoundland they hunt for seals,
Along the Labrador Coast;
In Newfoundland they work in mines
Of lead and zinc and copper;
In Newfoundland they work in the forests
And in pulp and paper mills.

DOROTHY DIX

Lonesome Mother Bemoans Losing Friendship of Son

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a widow with a son 33 years old, to whom I am very much devoted. Three years ago I became alarmed when he began getting serious over a girl I considered unworthy of him. Thinking that it would break up the romance, I forbade the girl ever to enter my house, but this only resulted in my boy leaving home and marrying her.

Dorothy Dix

He gives me money if I need it, but he never comes to visit me and he has never brought his six-months-old baby to see me. The Bible says, "Honor thy father and thy mother," but it doesn't say "even if my Mother doesn't accept my wife." Yet don't you think that it is my son's duty to give his mother the pleasure of visiting with him and his child? Surely he could leave his wife for a few hours to come to see his mother, since she has devoted her life to him.

A LONESOME MOTHER.

ANSWER: A vast number of mothers believe that they have an infallible gift for selecting their children's mates, and that we would have no more unhappy marriages if only John would espouse the girl Mom picked out for him and Susie would take Mama's taste in husbands.

Possibly Mother might make a more judicious selection of mates for their children than they make themselves; but inasmuch as no one is clairvoyant enough to know how any marriage is going to turn out, it does seem that those who take the risk are entitled to make their own mistakes. For marriage is a matter of taste, and whether it is a success or a failure depends upon whether one gets what he wants or not.

Woman Overlooks Truism

All of us have seen so many mother-made marriages that ended in the divorce court that we are stupid, indeed, if we do not realize that marriage is a pie in which Mother should never stick her thumb. And that is a truism, dear lady, that you seem to have overlooked. Your children are your children until they get husbands and wives and then they belong to strangers. They are on their own, and it should be hands off with you.

You have made the great mistake of trying to keep your thirty-odd-year-old son from marrying the woman he loves and you have said unforgivable things to her, and it has resulted in alienating him from you. It is a great pity, for it leaves you alone and desolate. And I earnestly advise you to try to patch up some sort of a reconciliation that will enable you, at least, to go to see the baby.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband is a perfect dear, but he has one weakness. It is his love of horses. He likes to ride and train them. He is 50 years old and says that is the only pleasure that he has other than trying to please me But I am nervous and get jittery when he is out riding, and because I get upset he has sold his prize horse. But now he has a chance to buy it back again.

Do you think I am justified in depriving him of this pleasure on account of my nerves?

A NERVOUS WIFE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are one of the lucky women whose husband's price is above rubies, and you should be ashamed of being so self-centered that you are willing to deprive him of the one diversion he has in life. Your husband loves horses; he enjoys riding. It adds immensely to his health and happiness, yet you are so selfish that you are not willing to grant him this relaxation.

You kill whatever pleasure he has in his rides by putting on an act about your nerves, which are the alibi for thousands of selfish and tyrannical women.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a girl of 18, trained to earn a good living and about to become engaged. But here is my problem: My father is dead and I have no family except my mother, and if I marry there will be nobody to take care of her to whom I am very devoted.

I love my boy friend very much, but I have come to the decision that it is my duty to stay with my mother and take care of her, because she scraped the bottom of her pocketbook all of her life to give me what I wanted and needed for a happy, normal childhood. I hate to hurt this boy, yet I feel it is the only thing to do.

J. L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Before you take such a drastic step as breaking with your fiance, why don't you have a perfectly frank talk with him and see how he feels about the in-law problem? He seems a nice lad and he may appreciate your dilemma and be willing to take your mother in as a member of his household.

Social Situations

SITUATION: You are telling a story and can't remember the name of a person, though his name is unimportant to the point of the story.

WRONG WAY: Keep trying to think of the person's name, before going on with the story.

RIGHT WAY: Give the person a name, or say, "His name is unimportant" and go on with the story.

6—In Memoriams

BUCHANAN—In loving memory of Mrs John J. Buchanan, who passed away April 4, 1947.
You're not forgotten, mother dear,
Nor ever shall you be,
As long as life and memory lasts,
We shall remember thee.
—Ever remembered by her daughter Lena, and son-in-law, Stanley.

GREATRIX—In loving memory of Gary Robert Greatrix, who died April 2, 1948.
"He was a flower too sweet for earth,
Sent here but for a while,
God marked him when He gave him birth,
And took him with a smile."
—Always remembered by Mom and Dad.

LA FAVE—In loving memory of my dear wife, June LaFave, who passed away on April 2nd, 1948.
You left me beautiful memories,
Often silent tears,
But you will always be with me
As I journey through the years.
You are always in my mind, June,
No matter what I do,
All the time within my heart
There is a thought of you.
Never for a moment,
You are very far away,
Absent yet near, you seem,
But dearer every day.
—Sadly missed by her husband, Maurice LaFave.

LA FAVE—In loving memory of June Oakley La Fave who passed away one year ago today.
More and more each day we miss her,
Friends may think the wound is healed.
But they little know the sorrow,
Lies within our hearts concealed.
—Always remembered by Allan, Bruce, Myrtle and Margery.

LA FAVE—In loving memory of June LaFave, who passed away April 2, 1948.
One year has passed dear June,
Since you were called away.
How well do we remember
That sad and weary day.
You suffered much, you murmured not,
We watched you day by day,
We cried and prayed that your dear life
Would not be taken away.
—Always remembered by Mom, Dad, and Lorraine LaFave.

SWAN—In loving memory of Mr. N. J. Swan, who passed away one year ago today, April 2nd, 1948.
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
His weary trials and troubles are past,
In silence he suffered, in patience he bore,
Till God called him home to suffer no more.
—Ever remembered by Pearl, Max and Edy.

LA FAVE—June Lillian (Oakley) who died April 2nd 1948.
The blow was great the shock severe
We little thought the end was near
It is only those who have lost can tell
The sorrow of parting with out farewell.
—Deeply and sadly missed by her father.

LA FAVE—In loving memory of a dear daughter June Mrs. Maurice La Fave who passed away April 2nd 1948, age 19 years
God knows how much we miss you
He counts the tears we shed
And whispers she only sleeps
Your loved one is not dead.
So we'll be brave dear June
And pray to God each day
And when He calls us home to you
Your smile will guide the way.
—Very sadly missed by mother and family.

SWAN—In fond and loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Nicholas J. Swan who passed away April 2, 1948.
They say that time heals all sorrow,
And helps us to forget
But time so far has only proved
How much we miss you yet.
God gave us strength to fight it
And courage to bear the blow
But what it meant to lose you
No one will ever know.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter son-in-law and grandchildren Emmaline, Cliff and Margaret Heal.

LA FAVE—In loving memory of our sister, Mrs. Maurice La Fave who died April 2, 1948.
"You are not forgotten sister
Nor ever will you be
As long as life and memory lasts
We will remember thee."
—Sadly missed by her sisters Ruth, Loretta and Shirley.

Railway Slashes Pay 10 Cents Per Hour

RUTLAND, Vt., April 2 (AP)—The Rutland Railroad today slashed 10 cents an hour from the pay of all employees.

Officials said the cut was made under an agreement specifying that wages could be reduced when the bankrupt road's operating fund dropped below $300,000. The reduction must be restored when funds increase.

The employees were given a five-per-cent boost only two weeks ago after negotiations between management and union representatives.

The trustees said the line's revenue has dropped 20 per cent compared with a year ago. Eighty shop workers were laid off this week to conserve funds.

Injured By Grenade

SAIGON, Indo-China, April 2 (Reuters)--Eight Frenchmen were injured when a grenade was thrown Friday night in a non-commissioned officers' club here. A communique issued by the French Security Services states that 55 Indo-Chinese Nationalists had been arrested "after a long and patient investigation" in connection with terrorist activities in Indo-China.

100 Held As Spies

Describes New Model Of Outboard Engine

CAMPBELLFORD, April 2. — (ENS).—Don Wood, service manager of Johnson Motors, Peterborough, spoke about the 2D outboard motor at a meeting of Campbellford and District Fish and Game Association this week.

He said that Johnson Motors was a subsidiary of the American company and in 1928, when a plant was opened in Peterborough, 30 men were on the payroll. Today there were approximately 750 employees.

Johnson Motors were the only manufacturers of outboard motors in Canada, he said and the company had agents and service men in every province. In developing the 10 horse power unit the company had spent more than half a million dollars.

The treasurer reported a favorable bank balance. Cliff Gilson moved a vote of thanks to the speaker and Walter Wiggins presided.

Minors Sue Hotel

BILOXI, Miss., April 2 (AP)—Two minor children, through a guardian, have sued the fashionable Broadwater Beach Hotel to recover $83,959 which they claim their father lost in a swank gambling room. The suit was filed under an old Mississippi statute which allows children or a wife to sue when a father or husband loses at gambling banned by State law.

Kawartha Co-operative Medical Association Inaugural Meeting Tuesday, April 5 . . . Auction Sale at Old Orchard Farms Thursday, April 7 . . . . Grassland Farming in the Eastern States.

The inaugural meeting of Kawartha Co-Operative Medical Association will be Tues. April 5 in the office of the Department of Agriculture at 8 p.m.

This association is a creation of Peterborough Federation of Agriculture, and is coming into being after many months of careful and persevering planning. Its purpose is to provide hospital and medical services similar to the Blue Cross.

Mr. G. D. Hughes, Toronto, head of the Co-Operative Medical Federation of Ontario, will be present to assist in setting the new association on its feet. This activating step will be part of the business of Peterborough Federation who have called the meeting for the election of directors of the Co-Operative, and generally to complete the preliminaries of organization.

Kawartha Co-Operative Medical Association is ready to assume its affairs with a membership of 150 men and women from the rural Peterborough district. Its personal scope is not restricted to this county. In fact the Federation is expecting applications from the northern part of Durham county, and probably from neighboring Victoria.

To assist in spreading the local appeal and opportunity of co-operative medicine, the Federation recently appointed Mr. John Edmison of Smith township as a representative at large, with extension of Kawartha Co-Operative as a special assignment.

Only the members of the Federation executive know the effort and time they have put into this enterprise. They accepted it as one of their responsibilitites to the community, specifically to obtain for the people of the district the advantages of a collective plan of sharing hospital and medical costs. The Blue Cross idea encourages people to take immediate steps in matters relating to their health and well being, and especially not to defer action for reason of involved expenditure which they considered excessive.

In that aspect this is a co-operative health association. Members of the Federation should attend this meeting Tuesday night.

Farm groups in Brant declared themselves a week ago in favor of this health project, and decided to call an organization meeting for April 16. A. C. Savage, secretary of the Ontario Co-Operative Union, said this plan was now in effect in 34 Ontario counties. He affirmed that the co-operative scheme was cheaper than competing plans because the costs of operations were low.

Peterborough Federation membership should support their executive by a large attendance Tuesday night. No one knows the day when he or she may need this service including its assisted hospital care, X-ray examinations and so on.

YERDI THE FARMER

A little story linked with the name of Giuseppe Verdi (1913-1901) may be of interest to junior farmers.

When success came to the great Italian composer of grand opera, he acquired a farm near Parma in northern Italy. He called his rural estate Sant 'Agata, and gradually made it into a model farm. He sent to America for a threshing machine, he dug irrigation ditches through his land, and adopted many agricultural innovations of his time.

Presumably Verdi was a gentleman farmer a century ago when La Traviata, Rigoletto, Trovatore and Aida, one of his later works, made him celebrated throughout Europe.

But, in his rural neghborhood his new ideas and methods were looked upon with a skepticism that has been typical of many farmers in every age. Verdi was departing from the established ways of work and production in the country around him, just as he was not content to be an adapter of the forms and technic of those who preceded him in the art of the opera.

Verdi virtualy converted his acres into a demonstration farm, and the only merit of the story rests in the attitude of neighbors who were dubious of what might be called his program of improvements. Instead of the open mind and the spirit of enquiry, there was the reluctance to accept change, and an unresponsiveness to the practical processes that were in progress.

Perhaps gentlemen farmers have always been held in suspicion, and probably with something of envy, as privileged invaders of a field in which they were regarded as bringing chiefly wealth to question and upset precedent and custom.

However, it is related that eventually Sant' Agata was producing better cops, and at prices that challenged competition in a wide area of the province. And, the inference is and also the statement of fact that the folks of Verdi's vicinity began to take notice of what he was doing on his land, gradually applying his methods to their own farms.

So, Guiseppe Verdi of nature's dynasty of great musicians did make some contributions to agriculture, even if it was only local and provincial and of his own day. Of his place in enduring fame and in the tribute of posterity, it is worth noting that in the Metropolian opera season in New York, which closed last Saturday, the works of Verdi were chosen by Edward Johnston for 36 performances, substantially more than Wagner's second in number and popularity. Those who are interested in Verdi's "Aida" and are at home Sunday evening, might remember that Toscanini is presenting the entire score over NBC beginning at 6:15. All of which is an interlude in matters pertaining to soil fertility, grass and live stock.

BASIS OF AGREEMENT

"Announcement of the completion of an international wheat agreement is welcome news to the Canadian Federation of Agriculture," is the modest comment of H. H. Hannam, president, in view of the tenacious efforts of Federation to bring about this achievement.

"We have been working toward this goal for years. The Canadian government has been in the forefront of this movement for a world wheat agreement, and the Federation has been able to play a leading part in the negotiations.

The security and stability inherent in such an agreement, if ratified by the respective governments, will provide greater security for our wheat producers in future years when general conditions may not be so favorable as they have been in the recent past."

JUNIORS' CLUB COMMITTEE

Junior farmers have appointed a committee to supervise club work this year. The members are: John Edmison, John Lewis, Don Milburn, Allan Drummond, and Kevin Hurley.

The juniors are planning to direct beef and dairy calf clubs, a forestry club and a calf club that will be an interest of Norwood fair board. In this undertaking junior farmers are doing for the rural boys and girls a constructive service which invites the support and active help of all the junior members.

CROP INSURANCE

Purchase of good seed is the cheapest form of grain crop insurance at one dollar an acre, says A. H. Martin, director of crops, seeds and weed branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

"Experimental evidence shows that large plump seed will produce from eight to 16 bushels an acre more than small seed. Poorly graded or uncleaned seed invariably carries large numbers of weed seeds, which take their toll of soil moisture and fertility, and add further to crop losses. An investment of one dollar an acre over the cost of ordinary grain, makes it possible to obtain top quality."

Even with the bumper crop of 1948, boatloads of western feed grain were brought into Ontario to meet demands for feed, Mr. Martin recalled. Ontario live stock feeders need at least 200 million bushels of feed grain annually.

"Our province never grows enough for its own needs. It is cheaper, safer and better to strive for high yields per acre than an increased acreage."

"GREEN FIELDS ARE GOLD"

F. C. Paterson, agricultural representative, has supplies of two booklets for farmers who apply at his office for them. One is "Soil Management and Fertilizer Use" published this year by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The other is "Green Fields Are Gold," issued by the joint committee of Grassland Farming, Norwich, N.Y., an outline of the production and use of grass for pasture, hay, silage and fodder crops presented in simple and plain terms.

This quotation is from the introduction to "Green Fields"; "Instead of putting reliance in cash crops alone, modern crop farmers are becoming Grasslanders. They want to hold and improve their soils, at the same time cut their costs, and, through processing their forages by live stock, make extra profits. The goal of the Grasslander is to get more meat, milk, wool and other animal products per acre at less cash cost.

The Grasslander changes his farm plan to put all easily eroded surfaces into long-lived grass stands. He doesn't use any grass. He carefully designs a mix of seed varieties which promise the greatest possible yield of cash in terms of animal products. He invests in fertilizer up to the point where more fertilizer will not produce more net profit. Then he manages the lands by controlled grazing, by hay and ensilage-making at the most profitable times, by manuring, clipping and otherwise caring for the grass. All of this is much easier than row cropping."

This "Green Fields Are Gold" booklet, distributed by the New Holland Machine Co., was prepared for U.S. farmers by committees of specialists from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, State agricultural experimental stations, and associations such as the Soil Science Society of America, the American Dairy Science Association, and similar institutions. Its ideas and advice generally coincide with the programs and recommendations which have been put forth by the Ontario Department and its representatives.

"On tillable land, not subject to erosion, the Grasslander works out his program in terms of costs In many part of the Northeast, for instance, it is cheaper for the farmer to grow forage only, and to buy concentrates from the Middle East where costs are lower.

In such a case, the Grasslander's program is to get the longest possible pasture season, the greatest yield from hay crops, the highest return in carrying power, plus the most profits from top nutrition. All grass may be green, but some grasses return many more dollars than others. The quest of the Grasslander here is to displace as much cash grain as possible by better forage that will increase his income by more pounds of milk per acre, more meat and more animal products."

Peterborough district farmers will recognize that practice in the general project so persistently advocated by Mr. Paterson. Although "Green Fields" is a U. S. publication, its theme and message are not new to this area.

This is the concluding paragraph of the introduction. "In the following pages, we present the values, the whys and wherefores of Grassland Farming. It is not new-fangled, untried or unsafe. Rather, as shown by actual examples quoted at the end of the book, alert, practical farmers are finding more security, more profits, from this program than they found under the old ways. The best part of it is that it is Nature's own way. The next best thing is that it doesn't take heavy new investment in buildings or machinery. Finally, it means less—not more—work for the Grasslander."

This is the testimony of one of the Grasslanders mentioned in the booklet. "H. E. Babcock, of Sunny Gables, Ithaca, N.Y., reports that he seeds his grass with winter grains, and broadcasts the legumes in the Spring. Most of the winter grain are grazed off to reduce competition with the young grass seedings. Sudan grass furnishes hot-weather grazing.

'With pasture taken care of,' says Mr. Babcock, 'the ungrazed grass — the winter grain and sudan — provide hay, ensilage and bedding, and give me a long harvest season and a pretty good chance of beating the weather. I wouldn't trade the thrill I've gotten from laying down a perfect stand of brome grass and ladino clover and watching a herd of dairy cows fill up on it in less than an hour for any other experience in my life. Up here in the Northeast, God meant the land to be in grass'."

THE BACON SLUMP

Reeve M. H. Johnston, Bruce Graham and Ernest Batten attended the annual meeting of the Ontario Hog Producers' Association in Toronto this week. Chas. W. McInnis of Iroquois was re-elected for his fourth term as president.

Mr. Johnston reports that the address of Dr. E. C. Hope, economist with the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, made a most favorable impression. Sir Andrew Jones, chairman of the purchasing commission of the British Ministry of Food in Canada, said deliveries of bacon for the first quarter this year were only 10 million pounds. At that rate the total for the year would be around 70 million pounds, only 56% of the total called for in the contract.

"You have lost all the gain made during the war years, and are now back in the same position in which you were in 1938."

Said W. E. Tummon: "Our problem for 1949 is not one of finding markets, but of supplying the markets we have. The seriousness of the situation is that after efforts to obtain a toe-hold in the United Kingdom market we are following the identical trend we took after the war of 1914-18."

Take Big Sum In Drug Firm Break

Safe Blown Open, Locks Smashed; Believed Gang Work

LONDON, Ont., April 4 (CP)—Drug thieves early today ransacked the three storey National Drug and Chemical Company plant on downtown York Street, escaping with an estimated "several thousand dollars" in cash and merchandise.

Manager C. S. Merkell said "the safe was blown and almost every lock in the place smashed."

The break-in was discovered by a patrolling policeman and detectives were immediately called to the scene. "It must have been a gang," said Mr. Markell. "They combed the place and did considerable damage on every floor. We haven't been able to ascertain the loss, but so far our cashiers show more than $500 in cash missing. The amount of merchandise would be worth at least several thousand dollars on the black market.

Last July the same plant, mainly a drug warehouse, was entered and several hundred dollars in cash and merchandise was stolen. Detectives declined to comment on the break-in, stating they were only starting their investigation. It was believed the thieves entered by the roof.

Dockers Begin Boycott Of Ship

LONDON, April 4 (CP)—Stevedores and dockers today began a boycott of the picketed and strike-bound Canadian freighter Beaverbrae.

A union spokesman said the boycott probably would extend to other arriving Canadian ships involved in the dispute with the Canadian Seamen's Union.

The 9,000-ton Beaverbrook, owned by the Canadian Pacific Railway, is the fourth Canadian ship to be tied up in the United Kingdom. The ship's crew of 85 joined the CSU strike during the week-end.

The other Canadian ships being held up are the 7,000-ton Royston Grange and the 7,000-ton Seaboard Ranger at Liverpool and the 7,000-ton Gulfside at Avanmouth. The dock labor board said unloading has been halted on the Seaboard Ranger but that it had no information regarding the other two

Riff Chief Protests Atlantic Pact Signing

CAIRO, April 4 (AP)—Abd El Krim, Riff chieftain, who gave the French and Spaniards a hard time of it in the 1920's, has come out against the Atlantic pact.

The old warrior has sent notes to Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain, State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States and Trygve Lie, United Nations Secretary-General, protesting "on behalf of the North African peoples" against Algiers' participation in the Atlantic alliance.

Speaking as President of the North African Liberation Committee, Abd El Krim declared the people of Algiers and North Africa "will not co-operate under any circumstances as long as their national interests are ignored and aspiration for complete freedom denied."

Algiers, as a French department, is included in the Atlantic alliance.

Did Not Study Keays' Charges

BELLEVILLE, April 4 (CP)—Inspector W. A. Page, head of the Ontario Provincial Police Belleville District, testified today he had never made a personal investigation of complaints Constable J. E. Keays made against two Provincial officers in the district in 1948.

He said he forwarded the complaints against Corporal Sam Ervine and Constable G. R. Purdy to Provincial Police Headquarters. The complaints were later investigated by two senior police inspectors.

Constable Keays has accused Corporal Ervine and Constable Purdy of falsifying police records and perjury in connection with the trial of Leroy Woods for traffic infractions in 1947.

Inspector Page was being questioned by Constable Keays as the Commission opened its fifth week of public hearings today.

He said the Crown Attorney and the police magistrate—who convicted Woods of dangerous driving and acquitted him of drunk driving—appeared satisfied with the handling of the Woods case.

Won't Let Opposition Run Ontario Gov't Kennedy Says

TORONTO, April 4—(CP).—Premier Kennedy of Ontario said today the Ontario Government "has no intention of being run by Opposition members." He was discussing the resumption of debate this afternoon in the Legislature on the controversial Charitable Gifts Bill. "We have no desire to cut off debate as long as Opposition members are reasonable," said Mr. Kennedy. "If they are not they may be in for a surprise."

This raised the possibility the Government may force a vote on the bill. This could be done by passing a non-debatable motion "that the question be now put."

E. B. Jolliffe, CCF Leader, is to speak today. He opposed the measure in a four-hour address Thursday night. He is expected to continue for at least another hour.

All Taking Hand

The Bill would prevent charitable foundations from holding more than 10 per cent of the stock of private companies. It would affect the Atkinson Foundation which owns most of the stock in the Toronto Star and Toronto Star Weekly.

It is expected that all 21 CCF members, the 14 Liberals and two Labor-Progressives will speak in opposition to the Bill unless the government forces closure. This it could do with its 51 members in the 90-seat legislature. (Two seats are vacant).

Truman Hails Pact As Shield

WASHINGTON, Apil 4—(AP)—President Truman, rejecting Russia's charge that the Atlantic treaty is "aggressive," today hailed the historic pact as "a shield against aggression and the fear of aggression."

In a speech prepared for the alliance signing ceremony, Truman asserted the people of the west are determined that "the sickening blow of unprovoked aggression" shall not fall upon the world again."

In taking steps to prevent aggression against "our own peoples," the president said, "we have no pupose of aggression against others. To suggest the contrary is to slander our institutions and defame our ideals and our aspirations."

Man-Smuggling Big Trade In Partitioned Germany

FRANKFURT, Germany, April 4 (AP)—Man-smuggling has become a regular business in partitioned Germany.

It flourishes all along the 500-mile demarcation line between East and West Germany. Villagers of border communities on both sides are on a constant lookout for holes in the iron curtain the Soviets let down with a bang last summer.

That severed completely the last few existing rail connections with the west and made interzonal travel more complicated than a trip around the world.

The business is mostly night work and consists of leading groups of illegal "travellers" across the zonal boundary. Expert trail hunters use hidden paths in the mountainous forest regions to smuggle travellers over the line. They prefer dark and moonless night for their trade.

Illegal border crossers said they paid their trail leader up to 10 marks ($3). Some of these trail leaders make 100 marks or more on each of these "conducted tours."

Man-smuggling across the east-west line has been flourishing ever since the end of the war. Allied four-power regulations required an interzonal travel permit for any German wishing to go from one zone to another.

Man-smuggling entered its boom period last summer. West German border police officials estimate that more than 1,000,000 Germans crossed the line illegally in both directions during 1948.

German police records for this period show 118,227 Germans were caught on the west side of the fence as they attempted to enter the American zone without proper papers. A similar number was arrested in the British zone, police said.

Resident of Fenelon Falls since childhood, Mr. Townley was formerly head of the firm of Townley Brothers, merchant tailors. He was active in the Masonic Order and the Rotary Club, and was a member of St. James' Anglican Church.

Surviving are his widow, Hilda M. Nevison Townley; two sons, John and Herbert, and one daughter, Mrs. D. L. Taylor.

Canada-U.S. Exchange Army Experts

Selected Officers Of US Forces Now In Dominion

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—The armed forces of Canada and the United States are exchanging officers to work on the mutual defence problems of the two countries, the national military establishment said to-day.

The signatures of the two countries on the North Atlantic Treaty, joining them with 10 other countries in a defensive alliance against aggression, actually will be a reaffirmation of a nine-year-old defensive agreement between Canada and the United States. The two countries set up a joint defence board in 1940, and have carried on the co-operative agreement since.

In answer to a question, the national military establishment said to-day that "selected individual officers of the Army, Navy and Air Force (are) presently in Canada for the purpose of increasing familiarity with defence establishments, and arrangements in that country pursuant to the joint United States-Canada mutual defence agreement."

Most of the officers are Army or Air Force colonels and lieutenant-colonels or Navy captains and commanders.

This group of officers, most of whom work at military headquarters in Ottawa or Washington, apparently are in addition to other more technical groups. These groups, of both officers and men, are working in the field on such projects as testing of the equipment, weather stations and radar installations high up along the rim of the North American Continent.

Tots' Singing Rallies Mother

CONSETT, Durham, April 4—(CP)—Four tiny tots sang Three Blind Mice into a telephone and the quavering strains gave a critically ill widow the will to live.

Mrs. Grace Brownlee had lain for weeks, apathetic and disinterested, after a serious lung operation. Doctors in the Durham County Hospital were baffled. She was too sick to see visitors who might have cheered her.

Then the hospital superintendent had an idea. A telephone call was arranged and the gravely ill woman heard four familiar voices say "Hello, Mom" and sing the nursery rhyme.

They were her three-year-old twins, Stephen and Winston, Nellie, eight, and Edward, five. The frail off-key voices kindled a rallying flame.

"The twins," she whispered. "They're out of tune. I've tried to teach them again and again."

The children sang it again.

She smiled this time. "Better ...still flat..."

That night the hospital report on Mrs. Brownlee was "rallying." Six days after the children's singing it was satisfactory improvement. Quite comfortable."

On Sunday the 33-year-old patient had her first visitors—her mother and her four young choristers.

Duke Of Windsor Visits Queen Mary

LONDON, April 4 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor, haggard after crossing the English Channel during a gale, arrived in London today to visit his 81-year-old mother, Queen Mary, and presumably, his ailing brother, the King.

The Duchess of Windsor was not with him. He told reporters at Victoria station that he expected her to follow him here from their Paris home this weekend.

The Duke said he expects to stay at Queen Mary's home, Marlborough House, until Thursday, then go to Ednam Lodge, at Sunningdale, Surrey, for about a week.

Ednam Lodge, southwest of London, is the swank country residence of the Earl of Dudley, banker and industrial magnate.

Policemen Beaten Up

TORONTO, April 4—(CP).—Police say two constables were beaten up at a dance hall early Sunday. Constable Stanley Woods was knocked down and kicked when he attempted to eject one young man blamed for a disturbance. His legs were badly bruised. Sergeant James Russell was kicked in the shins and stomach before three other officers arrived and arrested three youths. Leonard Oakley and Reno Faggini were charged with assaulting and obstructing a police officer. Allan Kelcey was charged with creating a disturbance.

2 Fliers Crash While Stunting For Relatives

WOODSTOCK, April 4—(CP)—Two U.S. Air Force officers crashed to their deaths when their plane plunged into the ground as they were putting on an exhibition of stunt flying for relatives and friends near Norwich Sunday afternoon.

Instantly killed in the mangled wreckage of their single-engined, old-type plane were Lionel Tasker, about 26, Flint, Mich., and Eugene Gerke, Tasker is believed to have been piloting the prewar type plane from Selfridge Airfield near Detroit.

The crash occurred in a field about 500 yards away from the barn on the farm of Edward Roswell, an uncle of Tasker's who lives on RR 2, Norwich.

The pilot was putting on an exhibition of stunt flying, looping-the-loop and rolling at a low altitude when suddenly the plane ripped into the soft earth and scattered wreckage over a wide area.

Gerke remained in the tangled mass of wreckage that was the front cockpit, but Tasker's body was thrown clear.

The plane crashed as Mr. and Mrs. Edward Roswell and party were watching from the barnyard. Besides the Roswells there were Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm and their two daughters, Gwen and Shirley, of RR 2, Vanessa; and two nephews of Mr. Roswell's, Ben and Bob Cramer.

Tasker's wife had phoned through to the Roswell's Saturday to tell them to watch for her husband, who was flying to Buffalo. They were expected some time Sunday morning, but it was late in the afternoon before they arrived over the Roswell farm. Tasker is survived by his widow and a young daughter.

Believe Cure Near For Arteries Disease

LOS ANGELES, April 4 ((P)—Medical researchers are on the verge of discovering a cure for hardening of the arteries—called North America's No. 1 cause of death.

Dr. Lester Morrison, who heads a research staff at General Hospital here, said at a two-day conference Sunday a new treatment arteriosclerosis had been used successfully on 100 patients. Experiments were conducted for two years on rabbits.

Arteriosclerosis sufferers were treated with choline, a substance found in the B-complex vitamins.

Estimate Armed Strength Of 12 Anti-Red Nations Stands At 5,000,000

Majority Of Military Manpower Centred In Forces Of 3 Countries; Treaty Proceedings Will Be Broadcast

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP).—The North Atlantic Treaty unites 12 western countries whose total population amounts to 332,439,000 persons. Russia and its six eastern European satellites, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria and Albania, have a population that totals 274,739,109. Measured in manpower, the armed strength of the Atlantic treaty countries and the "iron curtain" bloc is estimated to be roughly the same with about 5,000,000 men each.

Most of the military manpower in the Atlantic pact group is centred in the armed forces of the United States, Britain and France. Those three countries account for about 3,113,000 of the total.

Russia, of course, is the big power in the Soviet group with an estimated 4,050,000 men in its armed services. The satellite countries add about 1,121,000 to that figure.

The big navies of the United States and Britain, plus naval forces of the other Allies, would give the Atlantic Alliance a wide edge in seapower.

As for air power, military experts can only guess. They figure the total number of planes is about the same for the Western and Eastern blocs, but believe the Atlantic Powers probably could muster more long-range bombers.

Twelve non-Communist western countries join to-day in signing a historic document — the North Atlantic Security Treaty—to protect themselves against aggression. This is the next to last step in pledging a one-for-all and all-for-one 20-year defence against any attacker — a warning clearly intended for Communist Russia which has denounced the treaty as "aggressive."

The signing ceremony was set for 3 p.m. EST in the United States government's departmental auditorium a few blocks from the White House.

All 12 of the foreign ministers and secretaries who gathered here last week to put their names on the pact were listed to speak.

Cow Has Wooden Leg One Of Best Milkers

UNION, Ia., April 4 (AP)—A cow with a wooden leg is one of the highest producers in the blooded Brown Swiss herd of Howard Martin near here.

The wooden leg was the outgrowth of a fall in which the cow, Crip, suffered a broken leg almost two years ago.

Because Crip represented one of the best blood lines in the herd, Martin wanted to save her unborn calf. When veterinarians had to amputate her right rear leg at the hock, Martin fashioned an artificial leg for Crip.

She gave birth to a bull calf two months later and became a high producer. She goes to pasture with the other cows and grazes in cornfields in the fall.

Senator Fears US Troops May Be Garrisoning Europe

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—Senator Walter George (Dem. Ga.) said today he fears United States troops may be asked to garrison Western Europe's frontiers as an outgrowth of the North Atlantic Security Treaty being signed today.

While George says he favors the principle of the mutual assistance pact, he does not think the United States should be asked to furnish any except surplus military supplies to European signatories in the first year of the treaty's operation.

"What I am really afraid of is that if we start out to develop a full-scale program of military aid for Western Europe these countries will want us to garrison their frontiers with American troops."

George, who heads the Senate Finance Committee and is a member of the foreign relations group, said he feels that it might be better for all concerned to let the treaty operate 15 months without much stress on efforts to re-arm Europe.

He said such a course would help dispel the Russian charge that there is any aggressive intent to the security pact.

There are signs that when the treaty reaches the Senate a reservation will be offered which would bar any advance commitment to re-arm Europe.

The proposed reservation would say that in ratifying the treaty the Senate is not promising automatically to back it up with military supplies.

This would be offered as a compromise between those who are dead against sending any arms to Europe and those who believe that the treaty must be implemented by military help at once.

War Now Ended As Trans-Jordan Signs Armistice

RHODES, April 4 (AP)—Trans-Jordan has signed an armistice with Israel, virtually ending the Palestine war.

The agreement—valid for one year and renewable—was the third concluded by Israel with an Arab state. Egypt signed an armistice Feb. 24, Lebanon March 23.

Concessions on both sides resulted in completion of the agreement at an earlier date than was anticipated when the talks began more than a month ago.

It was disclosed after Sunday night's signing that Trans-Jordan was empowered March 20 to negotiate in behalf of Iraq and will take over Iraq-held armistice lines in Northern Palestine.

This leaves only Syria as an active combatant with whom the Jewish States has yet to negotiate.

New Talks Wednesday

In Damascus Lt.-Col. Fawzi Helo, chief of the Syrian delegation in the projected negotiations with Israel, said armistice talks with the Jewish State will begin Wednesday.

The new armistice with Trans-Jordan permits Israel to maintain strong forces in the disputed Aqaba area at the northern tip of the Red Sea.

In Aqaba, a high authority said, Israel will be allowed considerably more forces than will the Arab Legion, because of the presence of British forces at the Red Sea port.

An informant said if British troops withdraw from Aqaba, the Trans-Jordan port, the Israelis then would lower their strength to equal the Arab Legions in that area.

The agreement sets an armistice line based on the truce line of Nov. 30, 1948.

Say Reds Ready For Cease-Fire

NANKING, April 4 (AP) — Semi-official sources today said Chinese Communists had agreed in principle to ordering a cease-fire in China's civil war.

Details of the order were reported under negotiation in Communist-held Peiping.

The sources, reliable in the past, said an agreement was reached upon the government request during the preliminary discussions to peace talks.

The formal peace talks are expected to open shortly—perhaps tomorrow.

Early results of the Peiping peace negotiations were brought to Nanking Sunday night by Huang Chi-han, Government liaison officer in Peiping. Huang said peace delegates had been treated cordially by the Reds since their arrival in the Communist capital.

Two 14-Year-Olds Held For Drunkenness

TORONTO, April 4 (CP)—Two 14-year-old boys—the youngest any police officer could remember—were among 79 persons arrested for drunkenness during the week-end, police said. The two could not stand and both were ill, police added.

Police said the boys stole a bottle of wine from a border and drank it.

Londoners Greet Return of Lights With Great Glee

LONDON, April 4 (CP)—After nearly 10 years of black-out and gloom the lights of London have gone on again.

Thousands of Londoners poured into Piccadilly Circus and other gathering places Saturday night as the switches were thrown and Neon signs and theatre marquees flashed on throughout the capital.

And the big town had its noisiest, happiest celebration since VJ-Day.

One hospital handled 20 fainting cases and countless children were temporarily lost, but the crowds kept in the best of temper all night. Buses and taxis barely crawled through the cheering, waving Londoners.

To many Londoners the lights seemed a big step towards the end of post-war austerity—despite a recent cut in the meat ration and other shortages that still exist in Britain.

Although it began to rain after 8 p.m., everyone and his girl friend had the time of their lives as the display of lights—advertising beer, beef extract and burlesque shows—recalled the pre-war glories of London night life.

The famous flashing signs hadn't shone since Sept. 1, 1949.

For children up to 12 or thereabouts, it was a brand-new sight. A little girl, watching the stars cascade down one great electric sign, sighed: "This must be what fairyland is like."

Typical of the comment of the grown-ups was that of George Watkins, a London engineer, who watched the big show at Piccadilly Circus with his 12-year-old daughter, Margaret.

"It's been so long," he said. "We've had so much gloom and darkness. It's certainly good to see some brightness come into our lives."

See Controversy At UN Opening

NEW YORK, April 4 —(CP)— The carry-over session of the United Nations General Assembly which opens tomorrow is shaping up as a full-fledged meeting of the 58-country forum.

Originally scheduled to deal only with items left unfinished at the recent Paris assembly, it now promises to have on its agenda several new and controversial items.

In recent weeks the following developments took place:

1. Bolivia requested the assembly to take up the case of the imprisoned Hungarian Roman Catholic Primate, Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty.

2. Australia said it would seek a full airing of the case of 15 Bulgarian Protestant clergymen imprisoned by that Communist government.

3. India and Australia demanded that the Indonesian case, now before the 11-country Security Council, also be put on the assembly agenda.

It also was believed possible that during the session which opens at Flushing Meadow at 3 p.m. EST tomorrow certain delegates might comment on two other vital international developments—the North Atlantic Treaty and the Berlin crisis. There has been speculation that the Russians will attack the new treaty.

Another item up for consideration is the final vote on Israel's application for membership in the world organization. The new Jewish state already has Security Council approval and Israel spokesmen believe they have enough supporters to give them the necessary two-third vote in the assembly. If so Israel will become the 59th member of the U.N.

Western Oils Up As Golds Decline

TORONTO, April 4 —Profit-taking sent the golds into lower grounds here today while western oils advanced steadily. Industrials opened strongly but tended to settle and base metals held steady in dull action.

Volume for the first three hours was 615,000 shares, about 352,000 shares more than Friday's similar period.

After advances steadily for two successive sessions, golds backed down under mild profit-taking. Opening prices were ahead in brisk action but as profit-taking entered the market, trading shrank to a trickle. Senior issues were down fractions and juniors showed a wide list of penny losses.

Changes were held to fractions in a handful of industrials.

The complaints already had been investigated once and he made no further investigation, the inspector said.

Inspector Page said Constable Keays failed to assist Constable Purdy, then an inexperienced officer, in the investigation of the Woods accident.

Not Approached

"There is evidence that Constable Keays was in the office for three hours every day, yet Constable Purdy did not see fit to approach him," Constable Keays replied.

The commissioner asked if it was the duty of a senior officer to oversee the junior officer or if the junior officer should request assistance from the senior.

"It is the duty of both," the inspector said.

"Isn't that putting a heavy burden on the senior constables?" asked the commissioner.

"I carry a heavier load than either of them," Inspector Page said.

"But you are a senior official," Mr. Justice MacKay said. He said his impression was that it would be the duty of the junior officer to approach a senior if he was in difficulty.

He asked Constable Keays if Constable Purdy's actions might not be the result of "gross inexperience without the slightest intention of doing wrong.

Constable Keays replied that none of the previous investigations into the case had querried Constable Purdy about an allegedly false report on the accident.

Costa Rica Crushes Its Second Revolt

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, April 4 (AP)—Military Chieftain Jose Figueres Sunday crushed Costa Rica's second rebellion in four months.

Edgar Cardona, Figuere's rebel war minister, surrendered the artillery barracks when his revolt was only a few hours old. Shortly after dawn, seven direct mortar hits on Bellavista Barracks caused the rebels to run up the white flag over their last stronghold.

Many killed and wounded were carried from Bellavista.

Fernando Figuls, who commanded the last group of rebels there, was reported either killed or wounded.

Soviet Hands Note To Denmark, Norway

COPENHAGEN, April 4 (Reuters)—The Soviet Union early today handed notes on the Atlantic Pact to Denmark and Norway, as the Foreign Ministers of two countries planned to sign the pact in Washington.

The Soviet Minister in Copenhagen at 2:30 a.m. handed the Danish Foreign Ministry a protest against the pact similar to that sent to the seven original supports of the pact last week.

The note to Norway was also delivered in the early hours.

A Danish official spokesman said the note was "mere routine" but the time of delivery was "most unusual."

The protest delivered to the original seven Atlantic Pact powers last week charged that the pact was "aggressive" and "directed against the Soviet Union."

The ceremony will be broadcast globally by the largest concentration of shortwave radio facilities ever assembled for a single program. It will be carried to all parts of the world including the Iron Curtain countries. In all 43 languages will be used.

To Sign Pact

This is the order in which the representatives of the 12 countries will sign the pact:

Paul-Henri Spaak, Belgium; L. B. Pearson, Canada; Gustav Rasmussen, Denmark; Robert Schuman, France; Bjarni Benediktsson, Iceland; Count Carlo Sforza, Italy; Joseph Bech, Luxembourg; Dirk U. Stikker, The Netherlands; Haviard M. Lange, Norway; Jose Caeiro Da Matta, Portugal; Ernest Bevin, Britain; Dean Acheson, the United States.

Acheson, American Secretary of State, had the task of formally welcoming the dignitaries, and President Truman was scheduled to wind up the speech-making with the day's chief address, lasting about 15 minutes.

The treaty covers the home territory of the 12 other countries, their islands, aircraft and ships in the North Atlantic areas, and their occupation forces in Europe. An armed attack on any one of these would set the defence machinery of all the members in motion, but each council would decide for itself whether it would use armed force.

If an attack occurred on some friendly country outside the North Atlantic area, or on the territory of one of the treaty powers outside the area, the members would only be committed to "consult together."

118 Calves Unfed 2 Days Will Prosecute Shipper

TORONTO, April 4. — Without milk or mothers, 118 calves were mooing and moaning their distress in Toronto stockyards Sunday. The calves, many of them only a few days old, had not been fed for 46 hours.

En route from Stratford to a slaughterhouse in Belleville, the animals had been unloaded in Toronto on Saturday night, according to a railway regulation. The regulation states that no animals, shipped by freight, can travel without feeding for more than 36 hours. When they reached Toronto, they had been without food for more than 25 hours, Belleville was still a long way away, and they were hungry.

Dr. J. E. Campbell, Toronto Humane Society official, said the calves had been loaded at 6 p.m. Friday. "Over 50 per cent of them are under age for eating purposes; the meat is too immature," he said. There is a regulation against sending calves under three weeks of age.

Dr. Campbell said that calves of their age should be fed every few hours.

A mixture of skimmed milk and eggs arrived in four cans on Sunday afternoon.

As the milk was being poured into the troughs, a few of the older calves hobbled over to the milk cans and licked the lids and sides of the cans. But most had to be dragged or led to the troughs.

Used to under-feeding, they had to be forced to drink milk from troughs. Once they understood, there was no stopping them. Many of the calves, too weak to stand, but realizing something important was happening at the troughs, struggled to get to their feet.

Dr. Campbell said the Humane Society would prosecute the shipper under the criminal code. "He will also be charged for all the feeding that has to be done at this end," he said. The calves will be slaughtered here, subject to federal inspection.

Railway officials loading the calves in Stratford can't be held to blame, Dr. Campbell pointed out. "They aren't authorities on the age of calves. They just did their job," he said.

Signed And Sealed

The North Atlantic Treaty, tabled for signing in Washington today, is not a reason for joy. The events which occasioned it, for which it is an essential counter-measure, are too distressing and ominous. It is, however, a reason for confidence and satisfaction that, united, we shall be able to stand firmly against forces which would not merely upset the status quo but which could even destroy western civilization.

* * *

The Russians have formally protested the treaty. The statesmen now in Washington have a right to view the Russian objections sardonically. The Soviet Union is blaming the West for doing what the Communists have already done, for a treaty of united defence which Russia herself forced on the West. What must pain Russia most is the speed, vigour and unanimity with which the North Atlantic countries have reacted. The signing of the Treaty puts a seal on international affairs in the western hemisphere for ten, perhaps twenty years. It is to be hoped that war is fastened down, that peace will prevail in these times until such regional treaties are no longer necessary.

The Churchill Voice

We are now confronted with something quite as wicked but in some ways more formidable than Hitler, because Hitler had only the Herrenvolk pride and anti-Semetic hatred to exploit. He had no fundamental theme.

So spoke this twentieth century's statesman, seer, and defender of the humanities, Winston Churchill, in a great speech delivered Thursday before the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He was referring to communism and Soviet Russia. The two sentences quoted above indicate the currents of his speech: a stern sense of the grim realities in international matters; a warning against Russia, and a humane, almost spiritual, rather than mechanistic or logical interpretation of this century's and mankind's history.

* * *

Since no words can give Mr. Churchill's meaning better than his own, here are some excerpts from this speech. Of the realities of this century he said:

"Little did we guess that what has been called the century of the common man would witness as its outstanding feature more common men killing each other with greater facilities than any other five centuries together in the history of the world. But we entered this terrible 20th century with confidence".

* * *

Then came the Great War, the Great Depression and the Second World War from which "once again the English-speaking world gloriously but narrowly emerged, bleeding and breathless, but united as we never were before". The Russians soon showed how little they intended to co-operate with their former allies. They took this course, says Winston Churchill, because "they fear the friendship of the West more than its hostility". Reviewing the years since 1914, Mr. Churchill made this assessment: "This is a hard experience in the life of the world. After our great victory, which we believed would decide the struggle for freedom for our time at least, we thought we had deserved better of fortune".

* * *

Now the utmost vigilance must be practised. "The failure to strangle bolshevism at its birth and to bring Russia, then prostrate, by one means or another, into the general democratic system lies heavy upon us today". Today "fourteen men in the Kremlin, holding down hundreds of millions of people and aiming at the rule of the world, feel that at all costs they must keep up the barriers". War is not inevitable, and fortunately the English-speaking peoples of western Europe are united as never before.

"This unity is our present salvation, because, after all our victories, we are now faced by perils, both grave and near, and by problems more dire than have ever confronted Christian civilization, even in this 20th century of storm and change.... But we must not despair. We must persevere, and if the gulf continues to widen, we must make sure that the cause of freedom is defended by all the resources of combined forethought and superior science".

* * *

If this be optimism, it is stringently conditioned. It seems like an echo from the poet Housman:

The troubles of our proud and angry dust
Are from eternity and shall not fail
Bear them we can, and if we can, we must...

How The U.S. Senate Can Flout A Majority Vote

Reports from Washington that President Truman returned from his holiday in a conciliatory mood, prepared to try to regain ground lost by defeat of several measures of his Fair Deal program, draw attention to the manner in which the United States Senate can flout a majority vote of the nation as a whole. Defeat of the measures referred to also shows how Senate representatives of less than one-fifth of the total population of the United States can, if united, enforce their will on four-fifths of the total population, in cases in which the Senate may decide the issue.

President Truman, with a popular mandate given in nation-wide voting, was defeated in an attempt to get an anti-filibuster law approved by the Senate. Fifty-two members of that House signed a petition which resulted in the defeat, and a check of these members shows that they came largely from the South and from west of the Mississippi River. They were representatives of what are known as the group of "smaller" states. And they were, of course, rebel Democrats and Republicans, united against the Democratic Government.

An analysis of how the small states may work against the big states was made recently by Senator Paul H. Douglas of Illinois, who explained that twenty-five states with a population of 25,000,000—approximately nineteen per cent. of the total (1940 figures)—have fifty seats in the Senate, a majority. The other twenty-three states, with eighty-six per cent. of the population, or 106,500,000, have only forty-six seats in the Senate. "One-fifth of the population," he declares, "already controls the Senate, while the other four-fifths are represented by a minority". He also noted that the eight Mountain States, with a population of only 4,000,000, have sixteen Senate seats, while his home state of Illinois, with twice that number of people, has only two votes in the Senate.

This is a far cry from representation by population, and it seems unfair to the twenty-three states of the North, the Midwest and the Pacific Coast. These states pay eighty per cent. of the income taxes collected by the U.S. Government; New York and Illinois alone pay five per cent. more of the national total than twenty-five other states combined. In return for paying this portion of the total, these states have the power to decide elections—but that seems a poor return indeed when their decision can be made meaningless by the union of two minorities representing a one-fifth minority of the total population.

Firecracker Nuisance And Danger

Firecracker Day is the 24th of May. Already, two months ahead of the day, shops are stocked with the explosives and children—even some big youths—are playing with them. The play is not all innocent, harmless fun. We have seen louts of boys tossing live firecrackers at passing cars. If this sport is allowed to continue, some of the better-aimed ones will land inside the cars. Our news columns have reported that one boy unscrewed the top of a car's gasoline tank and dropped a lighted firecracker into the tank. Rather explosive fun. It is also funny when loud and large firecrackers are thrown at the feet of pedestrians. They make people jump, even if they do not ignite the clothing or burn the limbs. It is pleasant to have the quiet of Sunday broken by loud bangs all over a neighbourhood.

Some of these waggish lads should have their bottoms warmed and their heads examined. Bigger idiots deserve to be beaten by the adults whom they delight in molesting. Unfortunately self-defence is the only legal excuse for knocking the living daylights out of a young fellow with a man's body and a monkey's mind. Even then it is safer to call the police. Since the police can do little unless these pranksters are identified and the incidents reported, people will be doing a citizenlike job if they notify the police of dangerous carelessness with firecrackers or deliberately malicious use of them.

As the Ottawa Citizen remarks, popular government is a wonderful thing, but it is a mistake to expect it at popular prices.

Of Cabbages And Kings

By PETER ELIOT

BULLYING witnesses is an old practice of the Bar, but for instances of emanating from the Bench one has to go very far back, writes D. Macleod Mallock in Law and Laughter, a valuable contribution to legal humour. A witness with a long beard was giving evidence that was displeasing to Jeffreys, when judge, who said:

"If your conscience is as large as your beard, you'll swear anything."

"My Lord, if your lordship measures consciences by beards, your lordship has none at all," the old man retorted.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN squabbles between the Bench and the Bar there are few stories that match the retort of a counsel to Lord Fortescue. His lordship was disfigured by a purple nose of abnormal growth. Interrupting counsel one day with the observation:

"Brother, brother, you are handling the case in a very lame manner:

The angry counsel calmly retorted, "Pardon me, my Lord; have patience with me and I will do my best to make the case as plain as—as—the nose on your face."

Nor did the retort of an Attorney-General to a judge, after a warm discussion on a point which the latter claimed to decide, show much respect for the Bench. The judge closed the argument with "I ruled so and so."—

"You ruled," muttered the Attorney-General. "You ruled! You were never fit to rule anything but a copy-book."

SEVERAL anecdotes dealing with the quick wit of Mrs. George Keppel, a favourite bridge partner of the late King Edward, are related by Percy Colson in Close Of An Era—1887-1914.

On one occasion, soon after Auction Bridge had come in, they were partners. Mrs. Keppel bid a dealer's—one no trump. His Majesty, who was an enthusiastic, but not a brilliant player, put her up to four no trumps on a very poor hand. When he laid down his cards she said:

"The King can do no wrong, but God help Alice Keppel."

On another occasion she played the king when she should have played the knave, and apologized to her Royal partner, saying: "I am sorry Sir. I always mistake the king for a knave."

During a rubber one of the players, a Jewish friend of the King's, took a long time to decide what to lead. "Lead, kindly light," said His Majesty. You mean, "Lead, kindly Israelite," said Mrs. Keppel.

✧ ✧ ✧

WHEN King Edward in gentle chaff once asked Lady Olivia Fitzpatrick (Colson reminisces) if it were true his mother had sent her away from Court for trying to flirt with his father, she answered in the proper vein:

"I cannot remember, Sir. Most likely I wanted to flirt with your father—he was a very good-looking man. Besides, all the Coburgs inherited a roving eye. How humiliating it would be for a man to think that no woman ever wanted to flirt with him!"

"I doubt, Lady Olivia," the King said, "Whether that is a form of humiliation on which you or I could pose as an authority."

✧ ✧ ✧

IT must not be thought that Royal favour (Colson continues) led John Burns to be disloyal to the class from which he sprang. He remained a social reformer to the end of his life, but as he grew older he mellowed. Few men of his type could have resisted the friendly geniality of Edward; certainly not Mr. Burns.. "Commanded one day to dine and sleep at Windsor, he forgot to pack his waistcoat. Without any false modesty he said to a footman!

"Have you the ditto to that white waistcoat?" All was well, so well indeed that His Majesty, when greeting him, said:

"As usual, the best-dressed man here."

JULIAN Amery, in the Sons Of The Eagle, tells a story about the celebrations which attended the marriage of King Zog of Albania, when two visiting dignitaries—tribal chiefs from the North — were robbed in a Tirana cafe.

"Abas Kupi—the Al Capone of Albania—was informed and at once summoned the chief pickpockets of the city to his office Within a half hour he had extracted from them the identity of the criminals and the fruits of the crime. By a gentleman's agreement there were no prosecutions, but the victims were fully reimbursed, with ten per cent interest for their trouble."

IN Music For The Movies, Louis Levy, now senior musical director of the Arthur Rank organization, describes his connection with leading musical lights, both in its serious and humorous sides.

The first time he met Arthur Schnabel, the famous pianist was not exactly satisfied with an orchestra which had been rehearsing a Mozart concerto. Some of the musicians grumbled that they weren't being adequately paid for overtime, to which Schnabel by offering to pay the overtime himself so that "Mozart won't be upset."

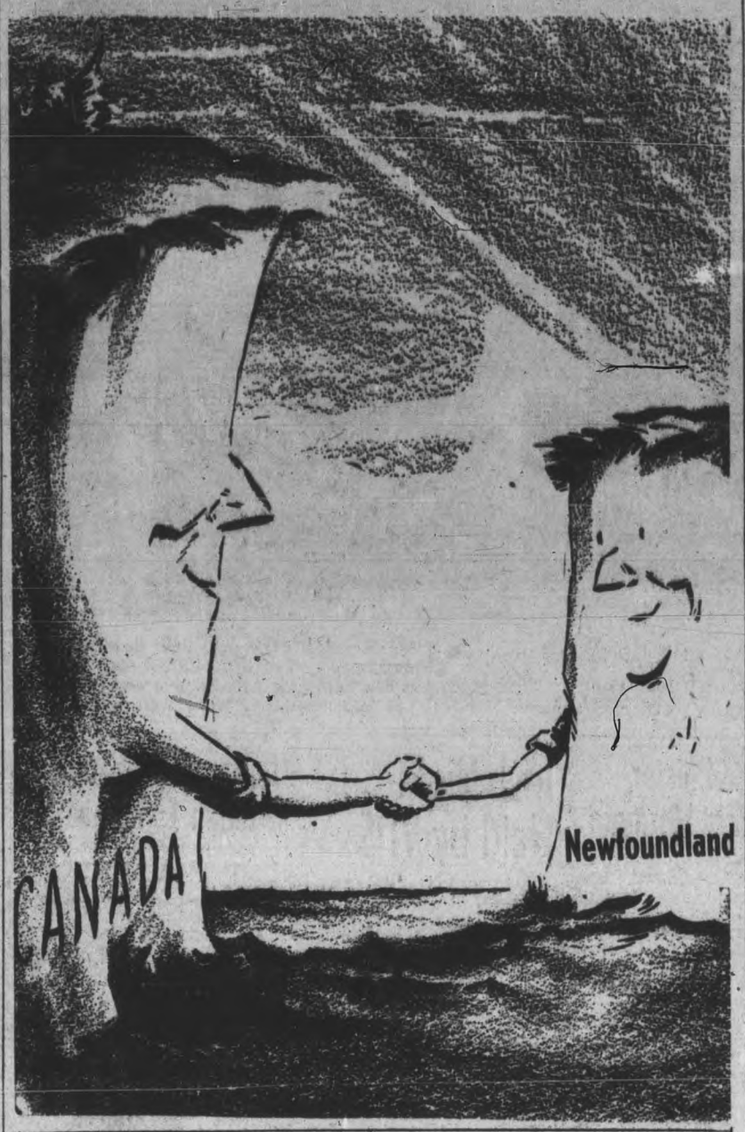
✧ ✧ ✧

HE has a good story about Einstein and Schnabel, who used to spend free evenings together in a hotel bedroom practising Mozart together. Schnabel patiently taught Einstein the violin and accompanied him on the piano. Einstein would not adhere to the correct tempo. Angrily Schnabel would pound the piano and shout at the great mathematician:

"No, no, no, Albert! It is one, two, THREE! Can't you count?"

✧ ✧ ✧

FRITZ Kreisler was once asked by a Chicago woman to play at one of her parties. When he told her the fee, $3,000, she said:



"That is quite satisfactory. Only you are not to mingle with the guests."

"In that case," he retorted, "my fee will be only $2,000."

✧ ✧ ✧

DO you ever reflect how you pass your life?" Sydney Smith once asked a girl. "If you live to 72, which I hope you may, your life is spent in the following manner: an hour a day is three years; this makes 27 years sleeping, 9 years dressing, 9 years at table, 6 years playing with children, 9 years walking, drawing and visiting, 6 years shopping and 3 years quarrelling."

PARTNERS!

The Carrot And The Stick

(NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE)

"THE carrot and the stick," a phrase popularized in England mainly by the editors of "The Economist," has been entering more and more frequently into current economic and political disputation.

Man has always been led forward by the carrot—whether of wealth, power, approbation, leisure or security—and always driven from behind by a stick—whether of poverty, the police, contumely, unemployment, insecurity. No society has ever flourished without both; and no society, it seems reasonable to conclude, will ever achieve more by its writhing efforts to escape these two masters than somewhat to change their impact and modify their character.

Neither of the two great systems of human social organization now struggling for the command of history has been able to dispense with either the stick or the carrot. The Soviet people's paradise of job security, welfare services, economic equality is driven forward by the grim stick of Siberia, the secret police and a low standard of living.

The Western free system of liberty, economic opportunity, equality of right and high living standards is driven forward by the stick of possible unemployment, insecurity and economic mischance. Naturally, each tends to stress the horrors of the other's goads; the West emphasizes Russia's secret police and concentration camps, while Russia exaggerates the perils of Western unemployment. Neither argument has much effect upon its intended target, and each tends to conceal the impossibility of ever escaping from some kind of stick, or of ever operating a society without some kind of carrot.

In a totalitarian welfare state the secret police are grimly inevitable, just as in a Western free state the threats of unemployment or personal misfortune are also to some extent the inevitable consequences of the freedom.

The Utopian goal, expressed in Russia by the dream of the "withering away" of a state which at the same time continues to provide for all human needs, and expressed in the West by the dream of a perfect welfare state which maintains every human freedom, is an impossible goal. There will always be both a carrot and a stick. The real object of social advance is to make the former juicier, the latter less thorny; and the real comparison between systems lies in the extent to which one or the other is making better progress in that direction.

Nothing To Worry About

A most remarkable pronouncement has been made by one of the prominent paleontologists in the United States.

The conclusions reached by this eminent savant need cause no worry, however, to the present race of humans. At some period between forty to seventy-five thousand years hence, man is to lose all his teeth, also his hair, and will grow a bigger head, in order to hold the larger amount of knowledge he is acquiring. He is also leading toward a thicker skull, that will afford better protection for what is in it.

But, strange to say, the professor must be joking, for men, and women, too, are losing their teeth now, and what is more, they get new ones that put nature's set completely in the background; while as for hair, why, here are millions of bald pates all over the world, and have been ever since men began to wear headgear for style rather than utility.

The future man, seventy-five thousand years hence, may not be so bad looking after all, if he doesn't look any worse than the picture painted in words by the Harvard professor.—Guelph Mercury.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Behold, God exalteth by his power: who teacheth like him? Who hath enjoined him his way? or who can say, Thou hast wrought iniquity? (Job 36: 22, 23.)

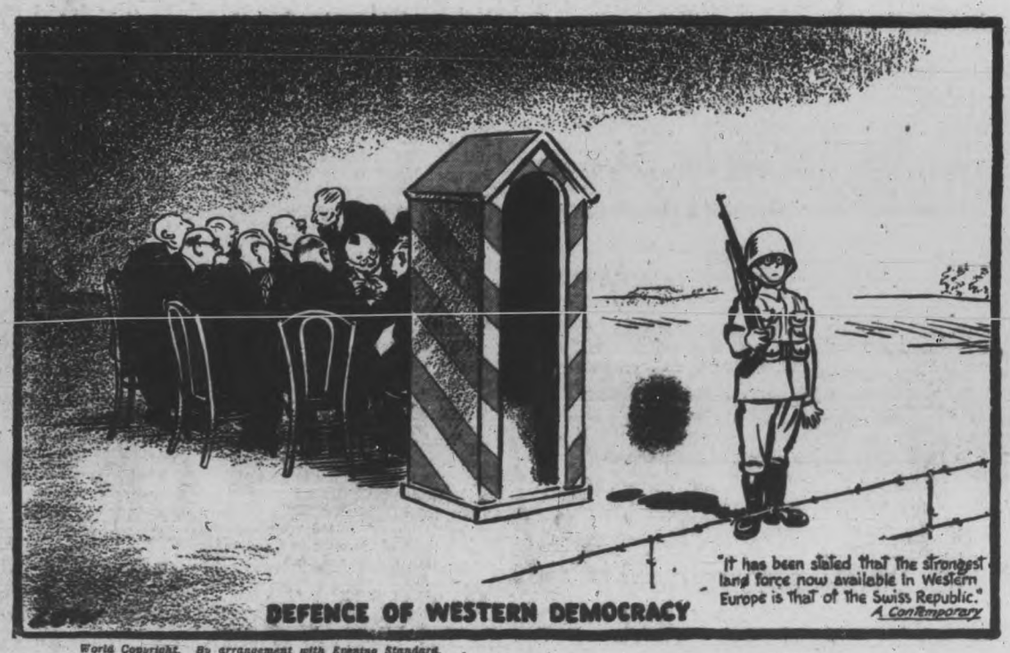
✧ ✧ ✧

Hearken unto the voice of my cry, my King, and my God: for unto thee will I pray. My voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O Lord; in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look up. For thou art not a God that hath pleasure in wickedness: neither shall evil dwell with thee. (Ps. 5: 2-4.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Bless the Lord, O my soul: and all that is within me, bless his holy name....The Lord executeth righteousness and judgement for all that are oppressed....

He hath not dealt with us after our sins; not rewarded us according to our iniquities. For as the heaven is high above the earth, so great is his mercy toward them that fear him. As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us. (Ps. 103: 1, 8, 10-12.)



They Never Closed

Now when more than forty-four London theatres are open and giving a variety of shows from opera and ballet to riotous farce, it is interesting to look back to 1940 when there was only one theatre open in London, and that one the little Windmill, home of non-stop Variety.

The Windmill is a tiny playhouse just off Piccadilly. On September 8th, 1940, there were thirty-two theatres open in London's West End: one week later there was only one—the Windmill. Vivian Van Damm told the Windmill's story in the BBC's "Radio Newsreel," reminding listeners of the theatre's proud slogan—"We Never Closed." They never did, although many times they thought that they would have to do so. "I shall never forget" said Mr. Van Damm, "how during the months of air-raids our youngsters—for the girls averaged only seventeen years of age, went right on giving their shows no matter how many the bombs or how near they were." Some bombs fell very near indeed and the girls were unable to get home after the shows and slept in their dressing rooms on mattresses on the floor. The canteen stayed open to sustain them with tea and buns and those who were not fully enough occupied with non-stop Variety of six shows a day and a complete change of programme every six weeks—added roof spotting, fire-watching and first-aid to their theatrical duties.

During those terrifying years the Windmill became something of an international institution, because Allied troops of all nations paid periodic visits to the theatre and its gallant little company. They will come now when they are in London and talk not only about the show, but about the two hundred and twenty-seven Sunday troop concerts, and the receptions and dances that always followed. "Our accent is still, as it always has been, on youth" said Vivian Van Damm in Conclusion. "We try to make the theatre a nursery for undiscovered talent and to train potential stars." How successful they have been is proved by the fact that the famous Eric Barker, Jimmy Edwards, Michael Howard and Peter Waring, four successful radio comedians, all did a spell at the Windmill. If you can make six audiences a day laugh your stuff must be pretty funny.—B.B.C. News Letter.

Polar Flight May Solve Grain Disease

MONTREAL, April 4 (CP) — After a flight over the North Pole, three McGill University professors returned here during the week-end with data that may throw light on the origin of some of the plant diseases plaguing Western Canada's wheat fields.

The scientists, headed by Dr. Nicholas Polunin, 39-year-old British-born botanist, set out 17 days ago to capture spores and pollen grains in the frigid polar air.

Their object was to see what forms of life are floating in the air at the top of the world and to find out where they come from. During the next few months they will study the samples collected.

If any organisms have been captured they may include wheat-stem-rust spores such as Dr. Polunin collected on a similar flight two years ago. These were later identified at the Dominion Rust Research Laboratory in Winnipeg as spores of the disease which has done an estimated $200,000,000 damage in Canadian wheat fields in a single year.

In Realm of Science

Dr. Polunin, who has been making Arctic expeditions since he was 19, emphasized, however, that the study belonged in the realm of pure science. It was intended not so much to combat enemies of Canada's bread basket but to add to the total of human knowledge of plant life and its movements.

His colleagues on the flight were two Canadians, Dr. S. M. Pady, associate professor of botany at McGill, and Dr. C. D. Kelly, assistant professor of bacteriology and immunology. Dr. Pady, in his early 40s, is a specialist in the study of fungi while Dr. Kelly, in his 50s, specializes in bacteria.

During the flight, in which Canadian and United States governments collaborated, the scientists wore electrically-heated suits to protect thmselves from the 30-below cold over the polar wastes.

Strange Drug Only Hope For Girl Athlete

ATLANTA, Ga., April 4 (AP)—An attractive, 19-year-old girl had relaxed almost to death here today.

And there was for Gloria Wilbanks, onetime high school athlete, but one hope — a new and scantily-tested drug in the chemical hormone group.

It was 16 months ago that Gloria was stricken with the rare and mysterious disease, myasthenia gravis.

The chemicals in her body which cause muscular function began to disappear, said her doctor who asked for anonymity.

"It strikes the eyes first," he continued, "the lids begin to droop, then swallowing becomes impossible and finally it attacks the respiratory system."

All the known drugs which have been successful in mild cases, said the doctor, have been tried without much success.

"Her reaction to these," he reported, "has been just enough to keep her alive."

Last Feb. 14 Gloria was put in an iron lung. She is being fed intravenously.

The new drug has not yet arrived, said the doctor, but advised against holding out much hope for its success. The drug is known only as "atch."

But Gloria insists "I am going to get well."

Her voice is something less than a whisper and there is only the faintest suggestion of a smile. The smile muscles are relaxing, too.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Dit Clapper's announcement in Boston the other night that he was retiring as the Bruins' coach didn't surprise us any. He hinted to us last spring when he returned to Peterborough and again last mid-September (when he rather reluctantly left for the long NHL grind) that this would be his last year. Various reasons. One is his family life here, and the kids are growing up—and then there's his business, he and Dave Wilson operating it together. Also, we think big Dit wasn't too keen on coaching. He was a player at heart, not a coach. In fact, he told the Boston gathering the other night: "Managing is a hell of a job! You're supposed to abuse the players. Well, they are my friends. How can I beat them?"

* * * * * *

We'll be glad to see Dit back as a year-around citizen. He only came here a few years ago as a businessman and a resident. But the popular fellow was well-known around here for many years. Coming from Newmarket as a kid with his family, he made Hastings his home till a few years ago. Played a bit of TVL hockey there at a tender age ere moving out to Oshawa and Newmarket for junior play. Then a year with Boston Olympics and his step up to the Bruins. Played 20 years for Bruins to create an NHL record, starring for years as a forward and later a defenceman. Made the Hall of Fame as an active player, another record.

* * * * * *

Credit To Hockey

Yes, hockey has done a lot for Dit Clapper, but Dit has done a lot for hockey. A real credit to the game, and rival coaches and players to a man agree that you can't beat him. He played hard, effectively, fairly, and he offered no alibis. Not too many tried to rough the big fellow but still he got his share of bumps in 20 years of campaigning in the gruelling NHL. Probably he feels he is entitled to year-around home life now. Maybe he'll get on that deer hunt that he's craved for years—but couldn't make owing to its being in late autumn. Dit will miss the busy NHL nights another season but he'll be sampling another type of winter for the first time—a quiet winter at home taking his hockey via the radio! And he'll enjoy it.

Sarnia beat Orillia 5-3 Saturday night in Guelph to settle that series. Now, the Sailors from the tunnel town take on the local Legionnaires in OHA senior "B" finals. We may know more ere column's end, but at this writing the clubs were trying to work out a best-of-seven series, first two games in Lindsay this Friday and Saturday, return pair in Sarnia the following week-end, others to be arranged later. The OHA secretary has to approve it and he may refuse to permit a lengthy series this late. But that's the score at the moment.

All-Ontario Play

Sudbury boys and the PCVS juves go in all-Ontario cage finals tonight at eight and tomorrow aft at 4.30 in the Collegiate gym here. Two games, points counting, winner to go into Easern Canada finals. It should be streamlined basketball. Senior PCI-ers lost out 34-28 in semi-finals o'er the week-end to East York in that Toronto playoff tourney, with East Yorks going on to take it all against Sudbury in the final. Griffin counted 16 points for PCVS and H. Dibben 9. They get another chance there this week-end in COSSA playoffs, and the same goes for the junior and senior PCVS lasses. In Girls' Loop play, Collis intermediates edged CGE 21-18 and Normals won a junior playoff 23-18 over Lockeys.

Men's City Softball League executive is going to be tough this summer on clubs starting games late. The officials are putting teeth into the law, the kind that'll take a $10 bite out of the budget of offending clubs. Double-headers are to start a seven p.m. and, if one club is more than 10 minutes late for the game the umpire-in-chief has orders to report it to the league president, with an automatic fine of $10 following. This will come out of the club's cut—if any—at the end of the season. Folks generally will agree with this ruling. Applications for umpires in the loop are being taken now by Secretary Bert Bailey.

Flyers Trounce Combines 13-2 Enter Finals

SCHUMACHER, April 4 (CP)—Fresh from 12 straight playoff victories, Barrie Flyers today awaited the start of the Eastern Canada Junior Hockey finals.

Flyers Saturday night won their second successive All-Ontario crown by defeating Porcupine Combines 13-2 in the fourth game of their best-of-seven series. They won the first game 4-0, the second 11-2 and the third 4-1.

They now will meet either Inkerman Rockets or Montreal Royals for the Eastern Canada title. Royals lead the best-of-five series 2-0).

The Flyers have chalked up an impressive record since they started the playoffs. They disposed of the potent Windsor Spitfires in four straight games and then ousted Toronto Marlboros in four straight to win the Ontario Hockey Association championship.

Just As Good

Saturday night, they looked just as good. Although the Combines, Northern Ontario Hockey Association champions, held them to a 2-2 tie in the first period, Flyers drove in three counters in the second and then went on a scoring spree in the third to tally seven unanswered goals.

And it was a Schumacher-born Barrie forward who caused the most trouble. Real Chevrefils sniped four goals and was a tower of strength throughout.

Two goals came from another Timmins product, Rick Hogg. Paul Meger also counted two. One each went to Sid McNabney, George Burcham, Gary Gordon, Don Ashbee and Hal Hopper. Porcupine scorers were Gord Warner and Pete Marson.

Fists flew late in the second period, involving all the players but the two netminders. When officials finally got the players separated, they gave Hogg and Hopper of Barrie and Mestan and Didone of Porcupine major penalties.

Canadiens Leading In Bowling League

Canadiens rolled a high team total of 2685 in the Thursday Night Bowling League to defeat Leafs 3-1. Bruins also won 3-1 from Hawks as Wings blanked Americans and Rangers whitewashed the Maroons. H. Howarth had top single of 262 and M. Dyer best triple of 623. The results:

If spring training is any indication, Montreal fans are due for some good baseball this year.

Marlies Edge Sydney 5-3 In Second Tilt

TORONTO, April 4 (CP) —The close-checking Toronto Marlboros today appeared to have the Indian sign on Sydney Millionaires. But can they keep it.

The Marlboros Saturday night battled out a 5-3 decision over the Millionaires to reinstate themselves as favorites when they clash in the third game of the Eastern Canada semi-final hockey series here tonight.

It was William (Red) Johnson who lifted Joe Primeau's Marlboros to an improved performance over the best-of-five series opened when they were fortunate to split a 1-1 stalemate.

The 22-year-old redhead figured in all Toronto goals with an impressive display of skating and checking before the sell-out crowd of 13,264 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens. He scored two goals and set up Al Buchanan for a pair and Chuck Blair for another.

Cliff Roach, Johnny Arundel and Don (Red) McRae got one apiece for Millionaires.

Hesitant Defence

Hesitant manoeuvres back of the Sydney blueline made the difference. The Marlboros showed their close-in prowess on the eastern lapses and counted on three of them.

But the wide-open game was decided only when John on broke a 3-3 tie with a goal for the Marlboros at 4:10 of the final period. He then helped set up Buchanan for the clincher minutes later after Sydney missed several good chances.

Picture goal of the night came when McRae tied the count at 3-3 at 2:15 of the third period. The lanky right-winger, who played with the Memorial Cup Winnipeg Monarchs in 1946, barged through the defence and deked netminder Howie Harvey in spectacular fashion.

Sydney's coach Jack Fritz said his defence had cost Millionaires the game. "We handed them three goals right on a platter."

Collis-Normals Take Wins In Girls' Loop

Two tight playoff games in the Girls' Basketball League were staged at the YWCA gym over the weekend, with Collis edging CGE 21-18 and Normals nosing out Lockeys 23-18 Both were second games of three-game series, total points counting in each series, so the championships have not yet been decided. Playoffs resume this coming weekend.

In the opener, Collis colleens could barely eke out a 10-8 margin the first half, and it was even closer the last stanza as they outscored Electrics 11-10. Play was fast and close throughout, with the issue in doubt till the final whistle. Ruther Henderson, Dot McNeely and Pauline Stewart led the winners' attack, while Marj Perrin and Betty Stewart led the CGE snipers. The latter got six of 16 free tosses as Collis counted seven of 11 and this gave them the close win. The teams:

Collis: B. Larmer, P. Stewart 5, A. Metheral, D. McNeely 7, R. Beard, M. McKee, R. Henderson 7, L. MacIntosh 1, E. McIlhagga 1, M. Beggs.

CGE: Marg Perrin 5, M. Perrin 2, M. Kennedy 3, I. Stewart 2, B. Stewart 4, M. Batley 2, C. O'Brien, B. Barry, I. Scotcher, B. Luther, M. Landry.

Also Close

The nightcap was also close with Normals just 13-12 better at the half but having a bit more drive the second half to outshoot Lockeys 10-6. It was speedy every minute with some good work shown by both sides in the tight duel. Marion Bayne led Normals offensively with 11 points, and J. Smith had six. J. Wilson was most effective for the losers to tally 10 points, all in the first half. Lockeys scored four of 12 penalty throws while Normals clicked on five of 11. The teams:

Normals: M. Bayne 11, R. Dougherty 3, V. Jameson 1, M. Brown, J. Smith 6, M. Pearse 2, F. Bate, J. Abernethy, R. Lytle.

Lockeys: J. Wilson 10, J. Patterson 1, M. Knox 2, S. Weese, R. Crowley, B. McIlwain 3, D. Jackson 2.

Referees: J. Cooper and H. Smith; timer, S. Ecobichon.

Will Destroy Hockey If Gets Too Rough

TORONTO, April 4 (CP) — Canada is in danger of destroying hockey if it allows it to get "too far out of hand," Vincent Massey said Saturday night in the centennial address to the Royal Canadian Institute.

Dealing with sport as one part of "the Canadian pattern," Mr. Massey said Canadians destroyed lacrosse "because it was played in the wrong spirit." The same spirit could destroy hockey.

Canadiene Whip Wings 3-1 Tie Series Three Apiece

MONTREAL, April 4 (CP) — Bolstered by an up-hill triumph Saturday night, Montreal Canadiens today were on their way to Detroit for the climax of one of the tighest Stanley Cup semi-final series in years.

The Canadiens evened the game-count at three apiece Saturday when they whipped the Wings 3-1. That left them with a slight psychological edge for the seventh and final game Tuesday night.

The victor will meet Toronto Leafs, who disposed of Boston Bruins four games to one in the other semi-final bracket.

In Saturday night's encounter, opportunism paid off to the tune of three second period goals in three minutes and 15 seconds. Left-winger Gerry Plamondon fired in first at 6.41. Then right-winger Maurice Richard came through on his old-time style while Nels Podolsky was serving out a cross-checking penalty. Plamondon banged in the third while Podolsky still was off.

Gordie Howe, top scorer in the series to date, counted for Detroit at 12:56 while Montreal defenceman Doug Harvey and Butch Bouchard were squirming in the penalty box.

Anybody can win tomorrow night. In the six games played so far, the teams have been as even as a pane of glass. Detroit has scored 14 goals to Montreal's 13 and tight, defensive hockey, highlighted by great goal-tending performances, have marked each encounter.

The Detroit management announced Sunday night that Jim MacFadden will replace Pat Lundy Tuesday. No changes were announced by Canadiens.

The Habitants were saddened Saturday night by the announcement that Elmer Lach, their great play-making centre and assistant captain, had decided to retire for good. He announced his retirement from hospital after it was learned that he had suffered a recurrence of the jaw fracture he received last December.

17 Fatalities Reported Over Weekend

By the Canadian Press.

Southern Ontario's second fatal airplane crash in three days and three deaths by asphyxiation in New Brunswick swelled to 17 the number of fatalities in Eastern Canada during the week-end.

Although fair weather for April's first week-end brought heavy traffic, a Canadian Press survey found only three deaths due to traffic mishaps.

Two United States Air Force flyers, Eugene Gerke and Lionel Tasker, 26, both of Flint, Mich., died when their stunting plane crashed into the Norwich, Ont., farm of Tasker's uncle. On Thursday four persons died near London, Ont., in a plane that crashed during a snowstorm.

The bodies of three St. John, N. B., men, Joseph Gallant, John Gallant and Joseph Ralph Desroches, all between 20 and 30 years of age, were found near Chipman, N. B., in an automobile filled with carbon monoxide gas. At Campbellton, N. B., Ernest Hicks, 34, was crushed between a house and his dairy truck by a skidding auto.

In Nova Scotia's only fatal accident, Russell Pait, 17, and Asa Pettigrew, 33, were drowned at Kolbeck in River Philip. There were no accidental deaths in Newfoundland or Prince Edward Island.

Find 2 Bodies

The beaten body of William Stewart, 70, missing from his Montreal home for three months, was found in a ditch near the Hampstead golf course in northwestern Montreal. And at Ste. Genevieve, Que., the body of Frieda Kroeger, 40, missing since last January, was found on the verandah of a deserted summer cottage, lying beneath an upturned rowboat.

Henry Milonas, six, was drowned in the Rideau River at Ottawa after falling from a snow heap by the river. The drowned body of a recently born boy was found on the shore of Lake St. Clair near Windsor.

William Lee, 49, was killed when struck by a truck in the northwestern Ontario town of Atikokan and in Hamilton Rosie Hockbaum, 24, was trapped in a narrow tunnel by a speeding freight train. Collision between his car and a street-car brought death at Hamilton to Howard Mallard, 29. And at Kingston Jack Allison, rescued from drowning in Lake Ontario Friday, died of exposure in hospital Saturday.

Unconscious in a Toronto veterans' hospital since he fell from a stepladder five months ago, Henry Bruff, 64, died on Saturday.

Twenty-six streets in Berlin are named Wilhelmstrasse, while 30 other carry the name of Bismarck.

EARLIEST PLANTINGS OF POTATOES in the memory of district oldtimers have been started on higher, well-drained fields of South Essex. On the farm of Walter Pook, Harrow, no time is lost in planting. They have 24 acres of early spuds to plant, so they work up enough land in the forenoon to plant through the afternoon. It's just insurance against spring rainstorms.

War Of Nerves In Canada Carried On During Recess

OTTAWA, April 4 —(CP)— Canada's political war of nerves will be carried both east and west during the Easter holiday period. Prime Minister St. Laurent is scheduled to head into the west for a nine-city two-weeks junket which some people thinly suspect might be the real election campaign.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, is booked to go to Newfoundland to launch a major wooing of the new province that will elect seven members to the new Parliament. He also may visit the maritimes and west, travelling by air.

Mr. St. Laurent is slated to leave Ottawa April 8 and more than a dozen newspaper men will accompany him on a trip that will take him first to Edmonton and Vancouver and then to Victoria, Calgary, Regina, Saskatoon, Brandon, Winnipeg and Fort William.

Hopes to Swing Votes

Mr. Drew is expected to make several speeches in Newfoundland in an effort to swing that province into his party's camp. He also will probably have reporters along to cover his efforts.

There are those who still persist that the government may pull a snap election shortly and that parliament will be dissolved before it is due to return from the Easter recess.

If so, it is conceivable that Mr. St. Laurent might use his western tour as the medium for both the announcement and campaigning.

Finance Minister Abbott told the Commons last week that he felt the government could finance the Civil Service at least on governor-general warrants if the House was dissolved before the estimates were approved.

Clift Replaces Peck As Top Heart Throb

By BOB THOMAS

NEW YORK, April 4 (AP)— Montgomery Clift is doing all right for a boy who never had a burning desire to be an actor. Even at $250,000 a picture, he's the most sought-after star in the movie business.

How did he happen to become an actor? "Purely by chance. I never had any burning ambition to become a great actor. I got started when I was a kid of 13. I happened to get a stage part through a personal connection."

He seemed to be fairly happy about his new-found fame. The fans don't give him much trouble, except around his Manhattan apartment.

At present, he doesn't plan to return to pictures until August, when he'll probably do "An Amrican Tragedy" under George Stevens' direction. The stage play "Naked and the Dead," is still being written by Lillian Hellman and has been postponed until the next Broadway season. Like all other things, he'll do it i fhe likes the script.

Why does he prefer to live in New York? "I like California, but the climate isn't conducive to work. I'd much rather play tennis or go to the beach than be working when I'm out there."

Clift has succeeded Van Johnson, Frank Sinatra and Gregory Peck as the country's No. 1 sensation. It's likely he'll be palpitating female hearts for a long time to come. I asked him when he would settle down and get married.

"Not until I'm very, old," he replied.

Unreality Is Subject Of Lesson Sermon

"UNREALITY" was the subject of the lesson sermon which was read in all churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, including First Church of Christ Scientist, Peterborough on Sunday.

The Golden Text was: "Thou has dealt well with thy servant, O Lord, according unto thy word ...Through the precepts I get understanding: therefore I hate every false way. (Psalms 119:65, 104).

Selections from the Bible included the following from I Corinthians 3:18,19: "Let no man deceive himself. If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise. For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God."

Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following: "What is termed material sense can report only a mortal, temporary sense of things, whereas spiritual sense can bear witness only to Truth. To material sense, the unreal is the real until this sense is corrected by Christian Science."

Report Latest Styles For Men Have Gone Back To Edwardian

By MICHAEL O'MARA

LONDON, April 4 —(CP)— Gather round, men, and lets talk about spring fashions.

If you have any money left to spend on clothes after the little woman has reorganized her wardrobe and your budget this Easter, and you want the hot whisper from Savile Row, here it is:

Everything's Edwardian this year.

Jackets fit the figure more closely; waistcoats are running riot; trousers are ever-so-discreetly peg-topped.

The result is a greater showiness in men's wear and a trend toward sportiness in lounge suits.

Innovations originally used only in sports and hacking jackets are finding their way into business wear.

Shoulders follow a wide, natural, sloping line and two-button fastenings are the rule for single-breasted jackets. A single button fastens double-breasted models.

Socks and ties are brighter— althought ties probably never will hit the multi-colored extremes they have reached along New York's Fifth Avenue and points west —and waistcoats are rapidly getting out of this world.

Gaudy Waistcoats

For some seasons bright red and gaudy yellow waistcoats (pronounced "weskits" in these sartorial circles) have been acceptable but this spring's models are even more imaginative.

Rolled lapels feature som waistcoats, others have six pockets instead of four, and materials ranging from weedy tweed to glossy watered silk have been seen around the west end.

Clothes are off the ration in Britain now and, although there has been no initial buying rush, haberdashers are hopeful that a favorable budget day April 6 will help.

Meantime efforts continue to export British style-consciousness along with British textiles and Savile Row thinks they are succeeding.

"We prophesy that the U. S. will soon be returning to their prewar position in the clothing world, where they followed mainly the styles that emanated from London," says a spokesman.

Held In Arson Case

TORONTO, April 4 (CP)—Police early Sunday took a North Toronto man in custody for observation following an arson squad investigation of a fire in the man's home. Firemen who put out the blaze said the man hacked holes in parts of the house undamaged by the flames and some of his axswings almost hit the firefighters.

In 260-Ft. Plunge

LYTTON, B. C., April 4 (CP)— Lawrence Walken nurses only a bruised hip today following a 260-foot plunge by an automobile into the Fraser River canyon early Saturday. His wife, 18-year-old Eileen, was killed and two other men suffered serious injuries. The four, all Indians, were returning from a dance here when the vehicle rolled off a straight stretch of highway.

HONORS FELLOW PADRE—Archbishop Maurice Roy of Quebec places a wreath on the grave of Capt. K. E. Eaton, Protestant padre with the Princess Patricia Light Infantry Regiment, in the Montecchio Cemetery in Italy. Capt. Eaton, Toronto-born chaplain, enlisted at Annapolis Royal and served with the Princess Pats until his death in August, 1944. Archbishop Roy was Roman Catholic chaplain with the Royal 22nd Regiment and senior chaplain with the first Canadian Army. He visited Canadian military cemeteries during his recent trip to Rome.

Packers Play Tom Jones To Large House

By ROBERTSON DAVIES.

Two performances of Sir Edward German's operetta "Tom Jones" were given at PCVS auditorium on Saturday, under the auspices of the Young Married Couples' Club of St. Paul's Church; the players were the members of the Canada Packers' Operatic Society of Toronto. The house was filled for the evening performance and the approval of the audience was enthusiastic.

It is unusual to see performances of German's operettas nowadays, for they belong to bygone fashion in musical entertainment. The libretto of "Tom Jones" shows its age not so much in the passages of comedy as in the love scenes, and the parts of the dialogue which are meant to be taken seriously. But the music remains remarkably fresh and tuneful, and presents considerable difficulties in performance. The Canada Packers chorus met these challenges ably, and in this performance, as in "Merrie England" last year, the chorus and concerted numbers were markedly better than the solo passages. German did not spare his singers. Without having Sullivan's great gift for melody, he presents his chorus and his soloists with long and complex problems which would have made Sullivan raise his eyebrows; the effect, if not musical on the same high plane as Sullivan's operetta scores, is rich and pleasing. The Canada Packers Operatic Society deserves congratulation for its able treatment of a difficult score.

Handsomely Set

The operetta was handsomely mounted in a style suited to it, and the gentlemen's costumes were, for once, markedly superior in taste and design to those worn by the ladies. The acting was robust, but it must be said that many members of the cast did not speak as well as they sang. In a cast which was otherwise of remarkably even ability Mr. Arthur Sclater showed unusual comic gifts in the role of Benjamin Partridge.

It was a pity that the evening performance was set off to a bad start by the uncertain behaviour of the lights. As the PCVS auditorium is the nearest thing to a theatre which Peterborough affords, and is likely to fill that position for many years to come, surely it is time that it was equipped to stand the strain of ordinary stage lighting, so that these embarrassing incidents, so destructive of the proper atmosphere for an operetta or a play, may be avoided.

YES, CRIPPLED CHILDREN can enjoy outdoor camping too. Creating confidence in crippled children by camping will quicken their cure and eventual rehabilitation, is the theory behind the specially built camps operated by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children on behalf of Ontario Service Clubs who support this work. Under way now, is the annual Crippled Children's Easter Seal Drive by which 125 Ontario Service Clubs, including Peterborough Rotary, are attempting to raise money to broaden these camping services. Shown above, is the camp counsellor helping a little crippled child to a barbecue dinner at Blue Mountain Camp on Georgian Bay. Right, is a little boy in leg braces about to start on a hike, at Woodeden Camp near London. With a camp in Eastern, Western and Central Ontario, one objective of this year's Easter Seal Drive is to raise enough funds to build a camp for Northern Ontario.

Deer Shortage Worries Hunters

Amendment to the Stream Improvement Act so any individual may lodge a complaint against a party allegedly polluting a stream was recommended at the first quarterly meeting of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters (Zone Five) Lake Simcoe District whcih was held here on Sunday.

If the party allegedly polluting the water is found guilty as a result of this complaint he should be fined, the amendment read.

Altogether about 40 affiliates of the Federation attended from an area bounded by Toronto, Trenton, Orillia and Niagara Falls.

Several delegates mentioned the serious shortage of the deer in the main hunting districts of the province.

Alex Milne of Bracebridge was elected chairman of the Big Game Committee, Pete McGillen, chairman of publicity, and Karl Warne of the Danforth Rod and Gun Club chairman of the Pollution committee.

Westclox Plans Building New Addition

Western Clock Co. has plans for a two-storey addition to their plant on Armour Hill. It will be 60 ft. by 60 ft. on the southwest side of the group of factory buildings.

This projected unit will provide space for the manufacture of Seth Thomas clocks and parking meters which are being made on the upper floors of the old CDS store on the west side of George St., in the Simcoe-Hunter block. These premises on the third and fourth floors are owned by Moses Zacks and Ben Chesler.

It is understood that the lease expires in June, and new quarters have to be found. No other available space being to hand, Western Clock are going to provide for their needs on their own property. Additional room will permit several departmental enlargements.

The cafeteria on the ground floor of the new building will have double its present space, and Seth Thomas clocks will be made on the second floor. The present cafeteria and adjoining locker room will be given over to an extension of the lacquer department, and there will be more accommodation for the present cafeteria and wash room between the present cafeteria and power press department.

Work on the new building will be begun as soon as possible. Mr. John H. Vernor, head of the company, was out of the city today, but the Westclox plans were otherwise confirmed.

Certificates of Citizenship Presented Nine Residents

In an official ceremony presided over by His Honor Judge S. L. Smoke, nine Peterborough residents were today presented with certificates signifying Canadian citizenship. The ceremony was in the County Court House at the opening of the statutory non-jury sittings.

Included in the list were five former Chinese citizens — Hum Eng, Ling Lee Hung, Lee Gar Sun, Lee Kam and Tom Men Kee.

None of the five could speak English well and the preamble to the oath was read over phrase by phrase by Judge Smoke and translated by Jim Hum, proprietor of the De Luxe Cafe. When he was satisfied that each was aware of the significance of citizenship as cited in the Canadian Citizenship Act, Judge Smoke then made each one repeat the Oath of Allegiance, again phrase by phrase.

The others who repeated the oath were Niels Alfred Birkof, Douro Street, a foreman at Quaker Oats Co., Julian Daszynica Kulchycki, Stewart St., a CGE employee, and two women—Mrs. Bridget Fialkowski, George St. and Mrs. Anna Sally Maria Hawkins.

Highest Honor of Nation.

"Citizenship is the highest honor a nation can confer upon an individual who has not been born into its heritage," said the Judge.

"There is no country in the world of which its citizens have greater reason to be proud than Canada," he told the nine new Canadian citizens.

"There are larger countries, but no country holds today a higher place in the esteem of other nations."

"In 1867 the Dominion of Canada came into being as a result of the deliberations of our forefathers whom we are pleased to call th Fathers of Confederation. The hope of these Fathers of Confederation rested not on a single generation, a single race, nor upon dull political uniformity; so that it has come to be that this nation has been enriched by the loyalty and sacrifice of persons who have come from many lands."

"Success depends upon the unity with which we work together for the common good," stated the Judge.

Law Abiding Citizens.

His Honor had a special word for the five Chinese. Turning to them he said "It has always been my experience that people of the Chinese race are law-abiding citizens. It is very rarely that we find them before the courts."

He concluded by expressing the hope they would try to completely master the language "of the country of your adoption," "And I wish you many years to enjoy your life as Canadian citizens."

The Rev. Ivan C. Morgan, Murray Street Baptist Church, expressed pleasure at the nine people coming into citizenship.

Referring to the Chinese, he said: 'I have come to know these people as my friends and it makes me very glad to see them become citizens of the country of which I am a citizen."

Mr. Morgan said he thought he was speaking for the Christian churches of all denominations when he offered to help them in any possible way to become good Canadian citizens.

VACATION TIME

The Western Clock Company has announced that its plant will close this year for the annual vacation on Thursday, June 30, and re-open on July 18.

100,000 Chicks To Be Handled

Bray chick hatchery expects to turn out 100,000 chicks at their Lansdowne St. plan this season. Volume of business so far has been approximately at the level of last year when the output was 100,000. Indications are pointing to around that number this spring.

The area of distribution extends far beyond central Ontario flocks. For example, one order that went out Saturday was for Manitoba, and one today was for New Brunswick, although there are Bray hatcheries here and there in the east including one at Moncton. Two-thirds of the Peterborough chicks are for delivery beyond this district.

G. A. Brethen, Norwood, prominent in district hatchery affairs, said the volume of early orders has been better than last year. Enquiries for May appeared to be down somewhat, but there were many already on hand for June.

Small Boy Bitten By Dog In Smith

Provincial Police authorities investigated a complaint filed over the week-end by Mrs. Harry Freeman, McLennan avenue, Smith township, that her little boy had been bitten by a dog which had not been tied up on a leash as required by a municipal by-law. Fortunately, Mrs. Freeman reported, the bite was not a severe one, the child not suffering more than a bruise and a bad scare.

The police later located the owner of the dog, who immediately had the animal tied up and promised to see that the by-law was observed in the future. No charge will be laid, police said.

Contractor Resumes Work On Causeway

Work has been resumed on the Chemong Lake causeway after a week's lay off caused by spring road conditions on the north side. Heaving of frost in the road on the Ennismore shore advised suspension of trucking for a few days. Sam Bell of Bridgenorth reported ice still in the lake, and confirmed a report that at one end there was a little water at about the present level of the causeway. In the completion of the span after the rock fill is done, there will be three or four feet of surface material added in the surface layer.

Boy Locked In Church

It appeared that six-year-old Benny Cromie, 492 Elm St., was in no hurry to go home when Sunday School ended at the Church of the Nazarene. It was not until his friends had gone and the church doors had been locked that he realized he had been left alone in the church, with no way of getting out.

Neighbors heard the little boy calling, and after half an hour's "imprisonment" he was released by Constable Leo Murphy.

Ten Cottages Broken Into At Pigeon Lake

Members of the Peterborough headquarters staff of the Provincial Police were investigating today a wave of summer cottage burglaries in the Pigeon and Buckhorn Lake areas some time during the past week. While full details are lacking, pending the return tonight of two provincial constables detailed to the investigation, it was learned that in at least one case goods to the value of over $500 were taken and in another case a cottage was badly wrecked by the thieves. It is believed that about ten camps in all are involved.

Owners Of Cottages

So far it has been established that the cottages of the following have been broken into: E. W. Watson, 720 Stewart Street, Peterborough; Syd Black, 598 Donegal Street, Peterborough; W. E. Ferver, Pittsburg, Pa., USA; Frank Buckland, 454 Weller St., Peterborough, and the cottage of a Florida resident. It was from the cottage of Mr. Black that the $500 worth of loot was taken and Mr. Ferver's cottage was the one which was badly damaged.

Mr. Black told the Examiner that the thieves who broke into his cottage apparently were mainly interested in fishing gear, electric motors, etc., as they did not disturb any clothing or personal effects. Among the large quantity of loot taken were: three gasoline motors (for use in electric lighting, pumping water, and mowing the lawn), a radio, about 1,000 rifle bullets, hip rubber boots, a Rolls razor Stilson wrenches, and a wheelbarrow, which Mr. Black believes was used to transport the loot either to a waiting car or rowboat. The burglars also made off with about $2.00 worth of pennies which were in a glass jar.

Discovered Sunday

Mr. Black discovered the break when he drove out to the lake Saturday afternoon. He found that entry had been made by breaking down the front door, which the thieves had ingeniously put back in place so as to fool anyone who might walk by from a distance. He did not think the break was the work of juveniles in view of the heavy nature of the supplies stolen and the size of footprints which he noted in the snow around the building.

It is not believed much was taken from Mr. Ferver's camp, as he had left very little in it apart from some wearing apparel.

Mr. Black said the breakers-in "went through everything" in their search for things of value and the cottage was left in a shambles. He declared that everything was in proper order when he visited the lake a week ago. He expressed the view that if the loot were not taken over the mile-long woods path to the highway it might have been cached in the woods until the lake ice breaks up sufficiently to permit operation of a boat. He did not think the ice would hold at present if an attempt were made to take the goods over it.

Other cottages broken into are located at points in the vicinity of Gannon's Narrows. Provincial Constables Grayling and Hanson were assigned to the investigation. Belief was expressed that the breaks may be only a few days old, as regular checks of the cottages have been made all winter by Provincial Police constables.

Dogs Continue To Menace Deer

HALIBURTON, Apr. 4—Game Overseers are having to use severe measures to restrain dog owners from allowing dogs their freedom. Many of these animals are deer hounds, and when running at large have become a menace to the native deer which have little opportunity for protecting themselves in the deep, crusted snow.

One such incident was reported by Chris. Hodgson of Burnt River.

A deer being attacked by a dog sought sanctuary in an area where a logging operation was in progress. The dog was clubbed off the deer, it then leaped at one of its attackers but fortunately no injury was inflicted.

Bruce Copping Invents Hot Air Register Control

The difficulty of heating the home comfortably with even temperatures in every room is one of the biggest headaches of the winter. Bruce Copping, a former Peterborough Collegiate boy and son of G. W. Copping, of Marines Sales, Brock St., has thought so too for a long time, but now he has found the answer.

A new type of register invented by Mr. Copping some months ago is now being manufactured in the United States and is expected to become the most universal type of register to be used in both the States and Canada as production increases.

The new design has already been installed in houses in the States and builders are advertising the fact that the new automatic heat control is being installed in buildings now under construction.

Controls Temperature

The meter controls the temperature of rooms heated by the forced warm air system and provides every room with its own thermostatic control. Once the dial on the meter has been set, the register opens and closes automatically.

Mr. Copping, who lives in Atlanta, is chief engineer in the research division of the Coco Cola Company. When he invented the register he sold the rights to the Dole Valve Company of Chicago.

When Bruce Copping left the Collegiate he entered McGill University, graduating in 1928 as a mechanical engineer.

Engineering seems to be thoroughly ingrained in the entire family. Bruce's three brothers, Kenneth, Keith and Brian, are all engaged in industry; Kenneth as a mechanic in Detroit, Keith as a soft drinks dispenser in Toronto and Brian a chief engineer in Ohio.

Student's Car Stolen At Point Of Gun

TORONTO, April 4 (CP)—Kenneth Elliott, 28, of Peterborough studying at the University of Toronto, told police a young gunmar stole the automobile in which he and a girl were sitting in west-end High Park early Sunday. Police later recovered the car undamaged and Elliott estimated by the amount of gasoline gone from the tank that it had been driven 60 miles.

Elliott said the youth, about 18, yanked open the door of the car in which he and Mabel Scott of Toronto were sitting. He ordered them out of the car. Elliott tried to engage the youth in conversation but he flourished his gun and repeated: "Get out of the car and start walking."

When Elliott made a move to leave on the gunman's side he flourished the gun again and said: "The other side."

The gunman drove away without making any attempt to search the pair. When the car was recovered by police two blocks from where it had been stolen a purse containing $28 which Miss Scott had left on the seat was still there.

Police Probing Six Accidents Involving Cars

There were six street accidents during the week-end resulting in a total of several hundred dollars of damage to bumpers, fenders and headlamps.

A motor cycle driven by George Sadler, 258 Roger St. and a car which Mrs. Doris O'Brien, 112 McDonnel St. was driving collided at George and Murray Sts. Saturday afternoon damaging a fender of the car to the extent of approximately $50. The accident was investigated by Constable Grant Gillespie.

At George St. and Parkhill Rd. two trucks collided on Saturday evening. When Constable S. Keliele investigated he found the left rear fender of one of the trucks had been broken, the back bumper was insecure and the body had been dented He estimated the damage at approximately $75.

Another collision Saturday evening was between a truck driven by George Chapman, RR 1, Bethany and a car which Gerald Jones, 139 River Rd. was driving. The accident occurred at the Rubidge and Charlotte St. intersection, and was investigated by J. Morrow and H. Andrews. The left front fender of the car was damaged and a headlamp on the truck was smashed.

Dr. L. W. Thompson's car, which he had parked outside his house, 468 Monaghan Rd., was struck by a passing car and pushed 17 feet into a maple tree Constable C. McGillen found when he was called to the scene. The doctor was in his house when he heard a crash and running out to the road, he saw his car, which he had left in low gear, had been knocked into the tree.

Drivers of two cars which the doctor saw proceeding along Monaghan Rd. were arrested and charged with leaving the scene of an accident. They were James and Jack Bestard.

Jack Bestard told the police that the battery in his car had failed and James Bestard had offered to push him home. His car had no lights as a result of the dead battery and he said his car hit the doctor's stationary car.

Damages to Dr. Thompson's car included a broken grill, both bumpers damaged, right front fender dented, dented hood, rear left fender pushed in and bumper guards broken.

The right front fender of Jack Bestard's car was crumpled and a headlamp and spot light were broken.

At the driveway to a restaurant on Otonabee St. a car which Miss Rose McManus, 479 Roger St. was turning into the drive and another car driven along the highway by Robert Krass of St. Catharines collided, causing what Constable M. D. Traynor estimated at $250 of damage to Mr. Kross' car and $150 damage to Miss McManus' car.

Thomas C. Ephgrave, 310 London, who parked his car in front of a store on Water St. Friday, reported ot Constable H. Mesley that it had been hit by a passing car, damaging the rear fender, tearing off the gas tank cover and damaging the corner of the bumper. James Loucks, 301 Townsend St., later reported that he had been involved in an accident with Mr. Ephgrave's car and the front right fender of his car had been badly dented. Police say Mr. Loucks will be charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

Tell US Boxing To Clean Up Own Yard First

LONDON, Ont., April 4 (CP) — Members of the Ontario Amateur Boxing Association, meeting here Saturday, suggested that the American Amateur Athletic Union would be better advised to clean its own house before starting in Ontario. The Association announced it would fight any move by the AAU to control amateur boxing in Ontario

The ban by the American group which prevents Ontario fighters from appearing on cards there and also prevents American punchers from performing in Ontario, came under direct fire.

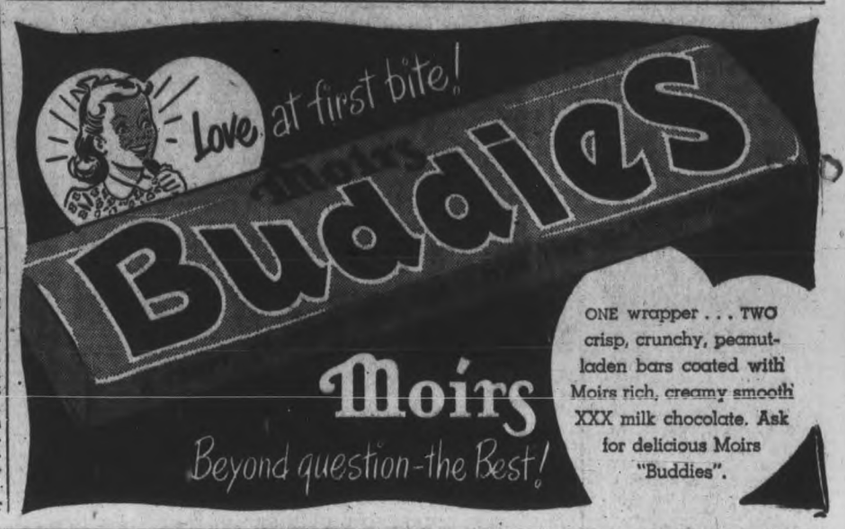
Daniel Ferris of the American AAU ordered the ban because boxers in Ontario generally and Toronto particularly, were being paid off in cash.

During the rebate on the subject, Jimmy Rocco and "Cap" Teal of Niagara Falls, Ont., and Boll Swinhow of Windsor said that when their fighters displayed their wares in such American cities as Niagara Falls, NY., Buffalo, Detroit, Flint, and Port Huron, they were paid "the same way as boxers are paid here."

It was decided to send a letter to Ferris suggesting that he clean up his own back yard.

Jack "Deacon" Allen, president of the Ontario Amateur Boxing Association said that the American AAU officials imposed and lifted the suspension any time it suited their own purpose.

"Their suspension is still in force," the veteran boxing man from Toronto said, "but a few days ago an Ontario amateur from Sault Ste. Marie fought in a New York Golden Gloves tournament. And within the next two weeks, there will be American amateurs participating in a Soo card.



The meeting voted in favor of using a 10 ounce glove to replace the eight ounces currently in use and supported the Ontario Athletic Commission ruling concerning the compulsory eight count for knockdowns in amateur boxing bouts.

Resume Vigil For Lost Airman

LONDON, April 4—(CP).—The vigil of London's King's Cross Station for sight of a missing airman, Wilfrid Sutherland, of Vancouver, has been resumed.

Flt.-Sgt. Sutherland was reported missing by the RAF and believed killed when his plane was shot down off Borkum Island in December, 1943.

Last year his father, John Sutherland, spent 10 hours daily for four months scanning the faces of travellers at King's Cross Station. He started his vigil after seeing a young man boarding a Cambridge-bound train at the station. The father said he was certain it was his son, but he was so startled that he lost sight of the youth. The chance encounter came while John Sutherland was on holiday in Britain.

Now middle-aged Mary Barrett of Vancouver has taken over the father's watch.

Miss Barrett, a family friend, flew here from Vancouver last week. She said Sunday she started the vigil April 1 and will watch daily for the next month.

"Miss Winnipeg" Ready for War

WINNIPEG, April 4—(CP). — Mrs. E. A. Cowdy, manager of 20-year-old Gloria Gray, Miss Winnipeg of 1949, was emphatic Sunday in saying that her charge was ready to do battle with Vancouver's most beautiful girl.

There was no hesitancy in Winnipeg picking up the challenge, Mrs. Cowdy said in answer to a Vancouver charge that Winnipeg was "scared silly" to meet Vancouver's queen of a beauty contest.

Harry Duker, president of the Vancouver Communities Council, who proposed the "Battle of the Powder Puffs," had been quoted as saying the "lovely war" appeared to be petering out because Winnipeg was afraid to compete.

"It isn't so," said Mrs. Cowdy. "We've been waiting for Vancouver to reply to our last suggestion of holding the contest in May."

Directions

Mock Filets Migons are ground beef cakes, surrounded with side bacon, and broiled under very hot broiler until just pink in centre; turn over once, seasoning when well turned, with salt and pepper.

Winter succotash is canned cut green beans and canned kernel corn, drained and heated in top of double boiler with butter and pepper and salt and a little cream.

Mock Chicken Legs

If you cook these slowly—in other words follow directions — you will find these so good you will add them to your permanent meat file.)

Buy 1½ lbs. veal steak from shoulder or round, and ½ lb. shoulder pork. Cut the pork into 1½-inch cubes. Impale each piece of pork on the end of wooden skewers. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Then wrap these in long thin strips of veal, shaping and winding to make it look like a drumstick. Hold in place with toothpicks. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, roll in breadcrumbs, then in beaten egg diluted with a little water, then in crumbs again. Brown in hot bacon drippings, turning only when under side is golden brown. Remove to trivet in baking dish, add water to drippings in pan (about ½ cup boiling), cover tightly and bake or simmer until very tender — about 1½ to 2 hours depending on quality of meat. If baked have temperature of oven about 350 deg. Fahr.

Gravy is good made from the drippings, by adding water to make it up to 1½ cups, and thickening with 1½ tablespoons cornstarch made into a paste with 1½ tablespoons cold water. Strain if desired.

Turkish Pilaf

(You may add 1 cup or so of meat to this if you wish, but I have included almonds in the salad and suggested you use cheese with the pie to give this meal its proper protein quota.)

Melt ¼ cup butter in heavy frying pan (or use salad oil), then add 1 cup washed and drained rice, ½ cup each chopped green pepper and onions, 1 finely cut clove garlic and 1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms; saute until rice is golden and vegetables are transparent, but not at all browned; add 2 cups thick tomatoes, about 1½ to 2 teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon black pepper, cover and simmer until rice is tender and most of the liquid has evaporated. Taste. You may want to add a little curry powder. A delicious vegetarian dish, that is as satisfying as meat.

Easter Bonnet Draw Made At IODE Members' Tea

The young ladies of Lieut. Col. Agnes Neill Chapter, IODE, most of whom spend the daytime hours in business offices, took time off Saturday afternoon to entertain a large crowd of friends at their annual spring tea. It was a thoroughly delightful event, quite in the spirit of Easter, with a color scheme of mauve, green and yellow decorating the YWCA Green Room.

A beautiful Easter bonnet, selected with taste by draw conveners Miss Jean Duignan and Miss Betty Meagher, and valued at $15, was the subject of much comment and admiration. Though many present were giving becoming spring hats a pre-Easter wearing they had no objection to adding the deft creation of straw and irridescent taffeta to their collection. In the final hour of the tea, Mrs. A. W. Turner, honorary regent of the Chapter, made the draw with Mrs. Fred Todd, 427 Sheridan St., winning the hat.

A charming arrangement of spring flowers that combined pink snapdragon with mauve iris and sunny daffodils was in a handsome silver basket on the tea table. A draw on the flowers was arranged by Miss Marjory Benson and Miss Mary Curry, regent, selected the winning ticket, that of Mrs. Donald Metheral, 167 Antrim St.

The Easter bunny was making an early appearance, too, in a basket with tiny yellow chicks, on the home-made candy table where Mrs. D. Tanney and Miss Eleanor Jobbitt were salesladies. A wide table at the end of the room was laden with home cooking for the opening, but very shortly it showed wide bare spaces. Mrs. Jack Cranfield and Mrs. Harold Shaw were in charge.

A talent table, convened by Mrs. Wm. Messervey, assisted by Mrs. A. Marshall, presented a most interesting array of hand-made articles for children and for use in the house. Featured on this table was a pair of gloves made of fine suede leather by Miss Jean Cranfield and orders to suit the individual were being taken. The card showed colors to match any costume and Miss Cranfield guarantees gloves that fit for she takes a pattern of the wearer's hand.

Miss Jean Hamley arranged the tea tables with a medallion lace cloth and green candles in low silver holders around a beautiful reflector which held the bouquet.

On the piano she put very realistic branches of apple blossoms and daffodils centred the mantel, flanked with green candles. Refreshments for the tea were convened by Miss Pat Hart, assisted by Miss Isobel Shearer, Miss Doreen Graham and Mrs. F. Todd.

Inviting guests into the tea room were Miss Mary Curry, regent, Mrs Gordon Vallery, vice regent, and Mrs. A. W. Turner, honorary regent. The atmosphere was set with delightful piano music played by Miss Mildred McIntyre and Miss Eleanor Taylor.

Tea was poured by Mrs. D. Eldred, Mrs. H. Cranfield, Mrs. J. Coones and Mrs. J. Allan. Chapter members serving were Misses Marjory Lane, Mel Traviss, June Ballard, Helen Mathias, Corinne Coones, Eleanor Chapman, Shirley Mortimer, Marguerite Dummitt, Margaret Quinlan, Beth Wellwood and Mesdames Wilma Clark, Bernice Kidd, Olive Greenlaw and Margaret Adamson.

The tea and bazaar was arranged under direction of conveners Miss Jean Cranfield and Mrs. G. Ardern. Tickets were taken at the door by Miss Dorothy Franks, assisted by Miss Corinne Coones.

Of Interest to Women

BEING APRIL FOOLS' DAY, young Hannes Lindal is making sure the cake is real as it was shown to him by Stewardess Doris McCrea, who served passengers en route from Winnipeg to Toronto on Trans-Canada Air Lines' 10th birthday.

DOROTHY DIX

Wife Told Strive To Reach Husband's Social Standing

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a married woman in my early forties. My husband has just been promoted to a high position and it means that I will have to attend dinners and parties and come in contact with many new people. I have had very little schooling so my English is very bad. Also, I have a slight lisp in my speech, and it embarrasses me to meet people. And when I am with strangers my tongue seems completely tied, my brain won't work and I am a total loss.

Dorothy Dix

I have to overcome these drawbacks as I love my husband and do not wish to embarrass him among his associates and new friends. Please tell me what to do about this.

ANXIOUS WIFE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your problem is one that confronts a great many women who in their early youth married men who were clever and ambitious and who have made successes of themselves, while their wives have stayed put. It is one of the tragedies in this land of opportunities that so often a marriage is a failure because the wife did not keep up with her husband.

Nobody is to blame for it. The boy and girl who have had the same background and who have grown up together get married. The girl is happy and contented in home-making and baby-tending, but the boy has the fire of ambition in his soul and he begins climbing up until he leaves his wife behind him.

Heartbreaking Experience

It is a heart-breaking experience for a wife to realize that she is no longer in her husband's class, but if instead of sitting down and wailing and weeping over her misfortune she gets up and does something about it, she can turn her defeat into victory. Take you case, for instance. If, as you say, you have little education, no social training, no taste in dress, don't throw up your hands and quit. Make yourself over into something that your husband will be proud of, instead of ashamed of.

Get a tutor who will polish up your English and your pronunciation. Put yourself in the hands of a dressmaker who knows her business. Learn how to dance, how to enter a room as if you owned the whole building, and how to say polite nothings. No woman need be as unattractive as Nature made her if she is only willing to work at being glamorous, for which mercy thank Heaven.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have two children and a fine husband who is good to us in every way and makes us a good home, but I have been married before and I find that I still love my first husband and he loves me. What should I do? Should I stay with my present husband for the sake of my children, or should I do what my heart tells me to do?

BEWILDERED.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I should say that a divorced husband with two children who has landed a second husband who is a good provider, is wise to let well enough alone. Don't put too much stress on what your "heart tells you," for that organ is oftener than not a liar whose advice cannot be trusted. Consider how many people you know who thought they were in love and who found out, when it was too late to do them any good, that what they were suffering from was indigestion and not the grand passion.

But the curious thing about divorce is that so many husbands and wives who could not abide each other when they were married seem to fall in love with their ex-mates as soon as they are tied up with somebody else. Maybe the explanation is that they get the habit of swapping mates.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MIS DIX: My trouble is that I don't seem able to be thrilled by anything or anyone. I have no ambition for any kind of work, as I feel that I would probably be a failure, so why bother? I am not interested in any man because I figure he is just another man. I have no boy friends, so no trouble on that score. I have never been interested in office work. Also, I have been rejected by a few men I have been in love with.

My parents are anxious for me to marry, but personally I don't care if I never get married. Oh, my goodness, Miss Dix, I am really afraid I am enjoying this state of mind. Could it be that I am scared?

JEANNE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Sounds to me as if your trouble is a very common disease, laziness. I know many people who are afflicted that way, and it is an ailment that is practically incurable. For it takes a lot of spunk and determination and ambition to make any of us thrill over our jobs. You have to put plenty of pep in anything you do if you want to make a success of it.

QUESTION: You mentioned making Poppy seed rolls from refrigerator dough. I have wanted to make hot rolls for years, and now I have a new refrigerator, with room in it to keep a bowl of bread dough. Would you print this recipe for refrigerator yeast dough and also tell me how to make poppy seed rolls.

Westerner.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER:

Basic Refrigerator Roll Dough

In a cup place contents of 1 package of granular yeast, (or 1 crumbled yeast cake) and add lukewarm water to half fill cup. Add 1 teaspoon sugar and let stand 10 minutes.

Into a bowl put 1½ teaspoons salt, 2 to 4 tablespoons sugar ¼ to 1-3 cup soft shortening, and pour over this ¾ cup scalded milk and let stand until shortening melts. When this is lukewarm add the soaked yeast and 2 beaten eggs to it and stir. Sift in 3 cups sifted bread flour, a little at a time, stirring. When dough is too stiff to stir, turn out on floured board and gently knead until very smooth, adding only enough flour to prevent dough from sticking to hands. Replace in bowl, brush top with melted shortening, cover with plate or wax paper and towel and let stand in coldest part of refrigerator. If yeast raises too high too fast it is because refrigerator is not cold enough. When ready to use turn out on floured board and shape as desired and place in pans to rise a second time.

For Poppy Seed Rolls when dough is removed from refrigerator, punch down and roll it out to ¼-inch thickness on floured board and cut into triangles about 3½ inches long each way or larger if you like. Brush with butter, roll up having tip come out on top. Brush with egg white, dip in saucerful of poppy seeds. Place on oiled pan to rise until doubled. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for about 15 minutes.

If refrigerator roll dough rises too high in refrigerator remove it from bowl and punch it down on floured board, and return it to bowl and cover it up well as it was before, and return to refrigeraator.

QUESTION: Would you print the way to make Glazed Carrots. I would like it as soon as possible for it is so hard to change the vegetables I serve to my family when the fresh ones are so expensive.

Mardet

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER:

Glazed Carrots

Cut washed carrots in fine strips 2 inches long by ¼-inch square. Cook for 7 or 8 minutes in as little water as possible. Drain and let them dry on a clean towel. To each cupful of cooked carrots add 1 tablespoon sugar and shake over fire until carrots absorb sugar. Add 1 or 2 tablespoons butter, shake until melted and mixed in and serve at once. These are pretty if finely chopped fresh mint or parsley are added.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: There are some fancy cookies—diamond-shaped—called toffee squares I think. Anyway they are sprinkled with pecans on top. I have tried to get this recipe from the lady who made them for a party but I do not think she wants to live it away. If you have it and would print it I would be thankful.

Suz.

✧ ✧ ✧

Toffee Squares

These certainly are tops in cookies.

Cream 1 cup soft butter or half butter and half margarine, and add 1 cup sugar and 1 egg yolk, creaming. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift together twice 2 cups sifted bread flour, ½ teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, and add them to butter mixture. Flatten with wet palms onto greased pan 11x16 inches. Sprinkle with 1 cup chopped pecans or almonds (or cocoanut), and press down into the batter. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for about 35 to 40 minutes. Remove from oven and immediately cut into squares or diamonds or little rectangles. Let cool. Then remove from tin when cold.

TIRED OF YOUR JOB? Sick of the climate? Mad at the boss? Here's your chance to buy that tropical dream island. The Puerto Rican government is offering Isla Verde for sale—with a preference to "cartoonists only." It's a one-palm-tree island Shangri-la, a quarter of a mile off the coast with an area of one-fourth acre at low tide, one-eighth acre at high tide. The government showed a sense of humor in offering the island to illustrators whose lonely island cartoons have brought chuckles the world over. Price? Make an offer, says San Juan. Incidentally, the bathing beauties don't go with the bargain.

Try This Beautiful Glaze When Preparing Easter Ham

By MARY MOORE

I won myself a lifelong friend merely by sharing the recipe for a ham glaze with him. That one recipe convinced him that I must be a good cook. But it still takes more than one swallow to make a summer.

Easter Sunday dinner seems to be associated with Bake Ham and if you want yours to be pretty as a picture and just as good to eat, give it this glaze treatment.

Incidentally, people, you do not have to pay anywhere from four to seven dollars for a ham to utilize this glaze trick. It works very well on a parboiled piece of sweet pickled back bacon.

Baked Ham With Easter Glaze

A ham should not be taken directly from the refrigerator and placed in the oven. Allow it be be room temperature throughout before starting baking. Place a whole or half tenderized ham, fat side up, on a trivet in an uncovered roasting pan. Have oven temperature at 325 deg. Fahr. and bake a ham weighing 12 lbs. or over nearly 20 minutes for every pound; for hams under this weight give 25 minutes per pound. Do not over cook ham or it will not slice properly. Remove ham from pan, pour out fat in pan, replace it with boiling water. Very carefully remove rind from him and spread all upper surfaces with Glaze (for large ham): Mix together 1 well packed cup of brown sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, ¼ cup corn syrup or honey, and 3 to 6 tablespoons of pineapple or apricot juice (or puree) or gingerale, or sherry, or white or purple grape juice. (I like the apricot puree the best and use ½ cup of it.) This should be a very thick paste, and should be mixed until smooth. Spread this over the upper surfaces of the ham as smoothly as possible. Raise temperature of oven to 425 deg. Fahr. and bake about 20 minutes or until glaze bubbles and is dotted with golden brown flecks.

When slicing ham try to have a nice rim of the glaze at the top of each slice. This is at its very best when sliced cold. (You should clip this recipe if you are interested in it for there are not very many cook books that contain it.)

A border of alternating glazed sweet potatoes and boiled and buttered fresh or frozen green beans is very effective around the ham.

Married Couples Entertain Opera Cast

St. Paul's Young Married Couples' Club, which sponsored presentation of the comic opera, "Tom Jones" on Saturday, entertained the cast and assistants for evening dinner. Mrs. George Coleman Jr., social convener of the club, was hostess, and was assisted with arrangements by Mrs. B. Whitton and Mrs. Gordon Minty.

Head table was centred with spring flowers, arranged in a colorful bowl. Guests' places were marked with plaster of paris models of characters in the opera which were made by Mrs. C. G. Boyd. These delighted the guests exceedingly and all were taken home as souvenirs. Roosters and chickens, which had bodies of colored egg shells, were made by Mrs. Kay Clark, and Mrs. Doris McIlmoyle assisted in making other favors, using candy suckers.

Serving more than 100 at dinner was done by Mesdames Ella Anderson, Ethel Loucks, Betty Browne, Grace McMeekin, Alma Perry, Margaret Wilson and the Misses Sheila Smith, Mildred and Violet Steinkraus, Marion Ballantyne, Irene Elliott and May Norrey of the Young People's Club. They also served coffee at the noon hour.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Matthews and Mr. and Mrs. George Barns of the local Canada Packers staff.

Short speeches were made by President Howard Macdonald, Mr. W. Richard Curry, director of the opera, Mr. Harold Dack, chairman of the Operatic Society, Mr. Matthews and Mrs. George Coleman Jr.

Chairman of the opera committee was George Coleman Jr., Stuart Lockington was in charge of tickets, Donald Hill was treasurer, programs and publicity were handled by Bob McIlmoyle. Ushers were Jim Anderson, Earl Powers, Jim McBride and Harry Lockington. Tom McMillan was in charge of stage direction.

Prisoner Cuts Wrist 4 Times

HAMILTON, April 4 —(CP)— Sudenly slumping to the floor as he sat in the prisoner's dock this morning, a 34-year-old man, Joseph Long, who is facing a manslaughter charge was found to have gashed his arm and wrist in four places and to be bleeding profusely. A small piece of pointed glass was found later on the floor.

Long and Mervin Breaton, 29, of Guelph, were arrested a week ago Sunday night at the scene of an accident at Waterdown in which 18-year-old Murray Buchan of Waterdown sustained fatal injuries.

Long was rushed to hospital, where 15 stitches were required to close four gashes on his wrist. It was stated that he had lost little blood and would be returned to the city jail to await trial on April 11, on three charges, one of manslaughter, car theft and possessing a loaded revolver.

While at the hospital the accused man was guarded by two police officers.

Atlantic Pact True Alliance

WASHINGTON, April 4—(AP) —Countries signing the North Atlantic pact today are joining what is, by international law, an alliance. It is one of the most formidable in history.

However, there's no mention of "alliance" in the 1,040 words of the treaty text and the United States State Department shies away from the term. American officials note that this one differs from such line-ups of the past because it is under the United Nations.

By accepted international law and usage, however, an alliance is any league between independent states, defined by treaty for the purpose of combined action, defensive or offensive or both.

Other famous in history include:

1689—Grand Alliance of Austria, the Netherlands, Britain, Spain and Saxony, directed against the power of France's Louis XIV.

1814—Quadruple or Grand Alliance, between Britain, Austria, Russia, and Prussia. It was aimed at the overthrow of Napoleon and curbing the expansion of France.

1882—Triple Alliance of Germany, Austria and Italy, ostensibly formed to preserve European peace.

The so-called "Holy Alliance" of 1815 was largely a declaration of moral principle. It was signed by the rulers of Russia, Prussia and Austria and later by all the European powers but Britain.

These were peacetime leagues. War brought others, the most powerful being the United Nations of the Second World War which destroyed the Axis.

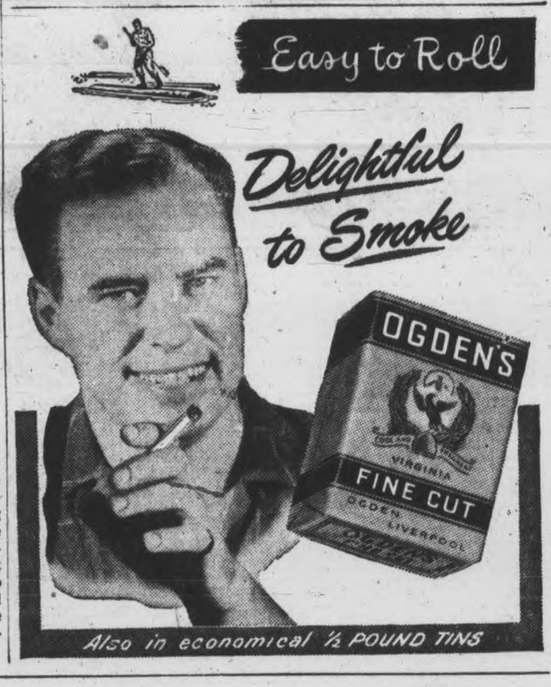
40-Hour Week Sought By UE In New Contract

Contract proposals to be forwarded to the Canadian General Electric Co. by the UE-CIO in the coming negotiations were formulated in Toronto over the week-end at a UE-GE Conference Board.

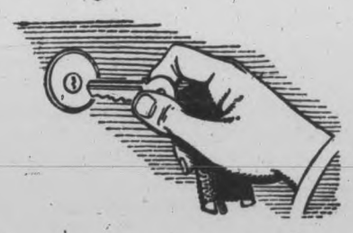
The company will be presented with the union brief on April 22 and negotiations on the new contract may begin 10 days later. The present contract expires June 30.

Among the proposals unanimously endorsed were: a 40-hour week with the same take-home pay; substantial wage boost; additional safeguards against price cutting on piece workers; that special attention be given to the rates of day-rate workers; an overall tightening up on seniority and job security provisions; and full recognition for a master agreement covering all organized GE workers under a union shop.



At present there is not a union shop at the GE plant. New day-rate employees are now subject to the checkoff and must pay initiation fees and union dues within 30 days of joining the plant.

Last year a master agreement for all GE workers became effective for the first time. At the week-end conference there were delegates from Peterborough, Cobourg, and the Royce, Ward, Davenport and Carboloy works in Toronto working together on the master agreement.



Also present were delegates from the Edison Mazda plant in Toronto and the Montreal GE Works. At both of these centres the UE is proceeding with organization work.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP is a lot of little things

KEEP IT UNDER LOCK AND KEY

It's surprising how careless we sometimes are about our belongings. We wouldn't knowingly put temptation in the way of others. Still, too often we make home a storage place for valuables. How much wiser and safer to put money, jewellery, bonds and negotiable securities safely out of reach of the wrong hands. Your mind will be put at ease. At the same time you will be discouraging crime. That's "Good Citizenship".

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

SIU Takes Over Any Strike Ship

MONTREAL, April 4 —(CP)— Members of the Seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.) pledged themselves here Saturday to go wherever the union may direct to take over ships affected by the strike of the Canadian Seamen's Union (C.C.L.).

The strike was called last Thursday after a number of Canadian shipping companies announced the signing of an agreement with the S.I.U. Most of the companies previously had agreements with the C.S.U.

Hal Binks, international representative of the S.I.U., claimed at the meeting here Saturday that the union had the full support of all leading international union representatives in Canada.

The S.I.U. reported Saturday that it intends to replace the east coast strikers with S.I.U. members from Vancouver and other ports.

(C.S.U. leaders charge that such replacements would be strike-breakers, drawn from unemployed west coast seamen. In Saint John Sunday, the C.S.U. said there was no indication of any S.I.U. members arriving to take over three struck freighters.)

Has 5 Months To File Appeal

TORONTO, April 4—(CP). — Mrs. Evelyn McKee has until Sept. 1 to file an appeal with the Supreme Court of Canada in her fight to regain the custody of her eight-year-old son, Terry. Custody of the boy was awarded to his father, Mark T. McKee, Detroit Air Lines executive, last June.

Chief Justice R. S. Robertson of the Supreme Court of Ontario on Saturday delivered judgment setting the appeal deadline. He said there were "special circumstances which reasonably explain and excuse the quite substantial delay" in filing the appeal.

Last June the Ontario Court of Appeal denied an appeal by Mrs. McKee from a judgment of Mr. Justice Dalton Wells which gave Mr. McKee custody of his son. The boy's mother argued that after she was awarded custody of her son in 1945 by the California court, Mr. McKee "kidnapped" Terry and took him to Michigan and subsequently to the Kitchener district of Ontario, where the boy and his father lived for a time on a farm at Linwood.

The case has been fought in United States and Canadian courts since the parents were divorced in California in 1942.

Moss in Lawns Caused by Acid

If moss appears in lawns, it is a sign of acid condition requiring lime, John Jessen said today. It should be applied early.

"These first days of spring are the best time for lawn work. It would be well to roll them after the heaving effect of the winter. It consolidates the soil and helps to retain moisture. A little grass seed could be applied, especially in spots where there is a thin appearance, and it is also a good time now to apply fertilizer. The nitrogen content of milorganite is usually a big help.

These are also days for the pruning of fall flowering shrubs. In the care of hedges, the first step should be to bring about growth close to the ground. The hedg is built up from the ground. If it is cut back fairly well you force out the low branches, and get that stage of formation attended to. You gradually build up the hedge from that stage. With care, the home gradener can develop a tight and compact hedge, and you have to start at the bottom to get that part right. The commoner hedges are of barberry, Chinese elm, spirea, privet, syringa and so on. When they are well trained and cared for, they can add a great deal of beauty to the appearance of home surroundings."

McManus, National Secretary of the Canadian Seamen's Union, said in a statement Sunday he had appealed to railway workers not to transport strike-breakers to east coast ports. Killed For Lie

ANTIOCH, Calif., April 4 (AP) —Her pipefitter lover had lied to her; he had a wife, after all. And that, pretty red-haired Lillian Rose McClay told police Sunday, was the real reason she killed him with hammer and knife—attacking him as he slept by her side. FEAR 47 DEAD IN ILLINOIS HOSPITAL FIRE

Trapped Patients Scream In Agony As Flames Balk Aid

By TOM MADDOX and BILL TOBIN.

EFFINGHAM, Ill., April 5 (AP) —At least 47 persons, including 12 new-born infants, the American Red Cross reported, were dead or missing today in a fire that destroyed St. Anthony's Hospital.

Earlier hospital officials said the death toll might reach 58 or 60. The Red Cross said 61 survivors of the tragic night-time blaze had been identified and 47 persons either had not been identified or were presumed dead.

At last 20 bodies were removed from the debris. Most of them were charred almost completely beyond recognition. The Red Cross said the hospital had 108 patients.

Flames quickly enveloped the building at midnight and destroyed it within an hour, trapped patients screamed in agony. Some, including expectant mothers, leaped from flame-framed windows.

"It was horrible," said one eyewitness, "all those poor people in there shrieking for help."

The fire was discovered shortly before midnight in a laundry chute. Eyewitnesses said the 60-year-old, 3½ storey brick structure quickly became a great mass of flames.

"It burned so fast, it couldn't be fought," said one rescuer.

Jump From Windows

Many patients leaped from windows. Some died in their flaming rooms as Nuns and townspeople tried to save them.

The bodies of 12 infant, still in their flame-blackened metal cribs on the second floor, were the first to be removed.

Uncounted bodies were strewn on upper floors. There were about 30 patients on the third floor, a nurse said, "and I don't believe any of them got out."

Effingham is a community of 8,000 in South Central Illinois, 100 miles northeast of St. Louis and 200 miles southeast of Chicago.

Hundreds of the city's residents rushed to the aid of the 100 or more patients in the 125-bed hospital. But they were hampered by falling bricks and rubble, and the danger of falling walls.

Inside, the Roman Catholic nuns who were on duty braved the flames to lead some patients to safety. Some nuns died in the attempt, and others perished in their rooms, where they were asleep.

The hospital is operated by the Sisters of the Order of St. Francis

The hospital chaplain, Father Sandoh, died in the fire. His charred body was found in a room next to the hospital chapel.

Only Walls Standing

Only some walls still stood today. The intense heat of the smouldering ruins and the tangled debris slowed removal of the bodies.

New York Banker Accused of $884,660 Theft Caught In Florida, Recover $54,798 Of Loot

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP) Richard H. Crowe was seized in Daytona Beach, Fla., Monday night on charges of fleeing with $884,660 from New York's National City Bank. Crowe, assistant manager of one of the bank's branches, was arrested by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

He had been missing since March 27. FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover, who announced the arrest, said Crowe was tracked down after a wide search in Florida.

Crowe was taken into custody in a bar after the agents and Daytona Beach police had trailed him from the street.

Agents recovered $54,798.63 from a suitcase in Crowe's possession.

Previously, Hoover said, $36,505 of the funds had been recovered and an additional $39,850 had been located.

The bank previously reported that Crowe had taken at least $883,660, including $193,000 in cash and $690,000 in bonds.

About $15,000 in cash was found in a vacant beach bungalow owned by Crowe's parents at Staten Island. In addition, Crowe had mailed approximately $61,000 to banks and friends to whom he owed money. The money was sent from Florida a few days after he disappeared.

Crowe told the FBI Hoover related, that he threw the stolen bonds and securities in the Atlantic Ocean and "took these only to make the bank officials angry."

Will Isolate Red Groups In Labor Ranks Conroy Tells Congress

OTTAWA, April 5 (CP).—A determination to isolate all Communist groups within its ranks was announced today by the Canadian Congress of Labor. The announcement came in a joint statement from President A. R. Mosher and Secretary-Treasurer Pat Conroy. "The Congress has, and will continue to take definite action to combat the Communist menace which is attempting to spread its poison throughout the national life of our country," the statement declared.

"The time has come in the labor movement, and in other organizations, for Communist groups to be forced into an isolated position.

"There, under the spotlight of public opinion and deprived of the shadows of decent organizations in which they now attempt to hide, their ulterior purposes will be clearly revealed.

"This isolation will put an end to the insidious penetration of the Communist germ into the bloodstream of our political, economic, religious and social life.

The statement said there were unions in the organization under Communist leadership and action had been taken against some of them

To Defend Minorities

The CCL would continue to defend the rights of minorities but these rights did not give minorities privilege of attempting to destroy the rights of majorities.

The statement recognized that "the vast majority" of those in unions considered Communists are not themselves Communists but are loyal Canadians.

These members would "subscribe to the interests of Canada rather than the interests of Soviet Russia, should the need for such a decision arise," the statement continued.

"The few who consistently place the interests of Soviet Russia above the interests of our own country have in some instances manoeuvered themselves into a position of authority within their union. These people have repeatedly, and more frequently in recent months, refused to accept decisions democratically made by representatives of a very large majority of the CCL membership.

"We are too well aware that in Fascist and Communist countries Labor has become a mere puppet of the State and free trade unions have ceased to exist. We do not intend that Canadian workers shall suffer that fate."

Turncliffe Given Suspended Term Wants Children

MADOC, April 5 — (CP). — Allen Turncliffe is job hunting today so that he can regain the custody of five of his six children.

The children—ranging in age from two to seven years—were made wards of the Children's Aid Society Monday and, for not supporting them, Turncliffe was put on suspended sentence for five years.

They were found March 18, unclothed and infected with vermin, in a claptrap shack east of Bancroft, a backwoods town about 75 miles north of Belleville. Turncliffe had left them with his brother-in-law while he took his wife to hospital where she gave birth to a sixth child.

After Turncliffe was sentenced W. C. Lockyer, regional Superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, applied for custody of the children Turncliffe did not oppose the request. He will regain the children when he establishes a home that is approved by the society.

Mr. Lockyer said he and Cpl. S. W. Palmeteer of the Ontario Provincial Police visited the two-storey shack March 18 and found "a pitiful picture of dejection and destitution."

No Clothes

Two children had neither shoes, stockings nor underwear, Mr. Lockyer said. A pail was the only sanitary arrangement. All five children were "quite obviously infected" with vermin. The only bedding on two cots upstairs was a "dirty, filthy overcoat" and some old bags, the floor was littered with "rags and filth," and there were chinks in the wall "you could put your hand through."

"I guess I am pretty lucky," Turncliffe said after the trial. He might have received a five-year prison sentence and a $500 fine.

Organized Labor Opposes Charities Bill, Millard Tells Legislature

House Being Intimidated Into Passing Bill Against Its Better Judgment; Measure Savors Of Fascism, Contention

TORONTO, April 5 — (CP). — C. H. Millard (CCF—York West) today continued the Opposition attack on the Ontario Government's Charities Bill. The bill would require charitable foundations such as the Atkinson foundation, owners of the Toronto Star and the Star Weekly, to dispose of 90 per cent. of their interest in any business.

Mr. Millard, national director of the United Steel Workers (CIO), said he spoke for organized labor. He had consulted "a very large number of recognized and responsible trade union leaders."

"Labor is particularly sensitive, even to the point of apprehension about the introduction of a bill such as this bill."

Organized labor knew from its own experience and history where there is cutting of the freedom of the press—where the press is only the mouthpiece of the Government in power—democratic rights begin to disappear.

"Wherever the press has come under control of a ruling party then Fascism made its appearance and its effects were felt first by organized labor."

"I believe members of this House are being intimidated into supporting this bill against their will and better judgment. If they don't support it they won't have the backing of the Toronto Globe and Mail, the Toronto Telegram and the party machine in the next election."

Refutes Statement

Mr. Millard said he questioned the statement of Provincial Treasurer Frost that in exempting the foundation the people of Ontario had, in effect made the foundation a gift of several million dollars.

There would be a greater margin of return on the money if it were left in trust with the foundation to be used by charities than if the money were collected in duties or invested in bonds.

In this sense the exemption from succession duties was "an investment, not a gift."

The bill would require the operation of the foundation by "10 persons at least, all with equal voice, and none with authority to make decisions."

Attorney - General Blackwell had said last night the bill might be amended to increase the three-year period in which foundations must dispose of all but 10 per cent of their interest.

Bulgaria Ousts No. 2 Red, Charges Intrigue

SOFIA, April 5 (AP)—The Bulgarian Communist party Central Committee Monday night announced the ousting of Traicho Kostov as Deputy Premier and member of the Politburo, the No. 1 Communist party group in the land.

Kostov, a top-flight Bulgarian Communist, was accused of intrigue and double-dealing to cause trouble with Soviet Russia and foment trouble, also, at home. He was also accused of improper methods of leadership and errors against the party.

He also was stripped of a third post, presidency of the Economic and Financial Committee.

(The official Yugoslav News Agency, Tanjug, in a broadcast heard in London said 300 State and Communist party leaders have been arrested in Bulgaria on spy charges, and that Kostov is involved in the case. Tanjug said he is under house arrest).

Kostov had served as a Deputy Premier since March, 1946, when he was promoted from Minister of Electrification. He kept the Deputy Premiership through cabinet reorganizations in November, 1946 and December, 1947.

Since Kostov was active in trade negotiations with Russia, it is possible that he incurred the Kremlin's wrath by demanding more favorable trade terms for his country than the Russians were willing to grant.

Eight Rescued In Hotel Fire

HEARST, April 5 (CP)—Eight guests were rescued Monday night after they were trapped by smoke as fire swept the beverage rooms in the Queen's Hotel in this bushland community some 140 miles northwest of Timmins.

The guests were in their rooms on the second floor of the hotel and it was 15 minutes before firemen heard their cries for help. The heavy smoke swirled up to their floor and many thought it had caught fire.

Volunteer firemen Bert Buck and Lad Medve were first to sight the trapped guests and they put up ladders to carry the three women to safety.

Woman Foils Road Workmen

ST. CATHARINES, April 5 (CP)—Taking her stand in the driveway of their Queen Elizabeth Way home two miles west of St. Catharines at nine o'clock this morning, Mrs. William Moffatt dared Ontario Department of Highways workmen to back their truck over her if they wanted to unload sand in the driveway.

And the workmen, foiled in their efforts to again block the driveway so Mr. Moffatt cannot use it for access to his property, drove away bewildered.

Six times in the past year the drive has been fenced. Six times Mr. Moffatt has cut it down. A month ago Highways Department employees, acting under orders, dumped seven loads of sand in the drive and put the fence up again. Laboriously, a shovelful at a time, Mr. Moffatt cleared it away, finishing the job on Saturday.

"I just stood there and wouldn't budge an inch," Mrs. Moffatt said. "If it's their driveway they should take it to court. If we have a right to use it they certainly aren't going to block it for us. It should be settled one way or another."

Duke Visits Brother First Since Illness

LONDON, April 5 (Reuters)—The Duke of Windsor, who arrived Monday from Paris, saw the King at Buckingham Palace Monday night for the first time since the King's illness began.

His present visit to Britain has roused some speculation as to his future. Since the Duke resigned his post as Governor of the Bahamas in March, 1945, he has been without a job.

He and the Duchess, who will join him at the end of the week to spend a few days as guests of the Earl of Dudley, have been living on the Riviera and in Paris. They have bought a new Paris home, in the fashionable district near the Bois de Boulogne, which is much smaller than their former Paris residence in the Boulevard Suchet. Their new house has only two reception rooms, two bedrooms and comparatively small servants' quarters. There are no guest rooms.

Punches Bandit

TORONTO, April 5 (CP)—A youthful unarmed bandit got a punch in the nose Monday night when he demanded money from Earl Holt, 34-year-old taxi driver of suburban Weston. The youth, a passenger in the cab, ordered Holt to stop and "hand over your money." The cab-driver struck the would-be bandit who turned and fled.

Strength Of Armed Forces To Be Secret Claxton Says

OTTAWA, April 5—(CP).—The Commons was told Monday night that the Government plans to keep secret the exact strength of the armed forces because of the value such information might have to the Russians. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, in a spirited attack against the secrecy surrounding the present defence establishment, said parliament should be given all possible information so that it could recommend changes or improvements.

Defence Minister Claxton said that as long as he is Minister the strength of the forces will not be made public.

He made this statement after saying that Russia was the only possible aggressor against this country:

"The only possibility that is envisaged by the government and by its advisers at this time concerning an attack on Canada is what is called a diversionary raid—not a knock-out blow, but something designed to attract attention and to create local tension, and to force us by pressure of public opinion to put much more into static defence than we should do otherwise.

"If this is the only possibility then what could the only possible aggressor want to know more than the kind of force he might have to divert from his major military activities in order to make this diversionary raid? . . .

Tax Schedules Mailed To Firms

OTTAWA, April 5 — (CP)—As promised in the budget, a new set of tax deduction schedules is being mailed to employers throughout Canada, who will put into effect the budget's tax reductions in forthcoming pay-cheques.

The new schedules are a ready rule-of-thumb by which an employer can alter his "deductions at source" to fit the new rates of income taxation and the increased exemptions.

The revenue department started mailing the tables last Saturday, and, as stated in Finance Minister Abbott's budget address, hopes to have them in the hands of all employers before the end of the month. The decreased deductions will come as soon as employers' accounting departments can get the new schedules into operation.

As before, the tables are designed so a small balance of tax will remain to be paid at the end of the year.

Donnan Occasionally Drunk While In Court—Witness

BELLEVILLE, April 5 (CP)—Arthur Harman, retired Deputy Police Chief of Belleville, testified to-day that Crown Attorney Bryson C. Donnan was "occasionally" drunk while prosecuting cases in court.

But he had never known the Crown Attorney to withdraw criminal charges once they had been laid, he told the Mackay Commission.

The Commission is investigating the allegations of fraud, perjury and maladministraton of justice that Provincial Constable J. E. Keays levelled at seven Provincial Police officers and at Mr Donnan.

Constable Keays asked Mr. Harman if it was "common knowledge" that Mr. Donnan had been drunk in court.

"Oh, yes," said Mr. Harman, who had more than 36 years on the City Police Force.

Mr. Harman was not cross-examined by Mr. Donnan who was sitting in the courtroom when the former Deputy Chief testified.

The officers named by Constable Keays were Commissioner W. H. Stringer, Inspector W. A. Page, Inspector T. W. Cousans, Sergeant J. A. Stringer, Corporal Sam Ervine, Constable J. B. Driscoll, and Constable G. R. Purdy.

Constable C. E. Siple testified at the opening of the session as the Commission strove to clean up Constable Keays' allegations against Constable Driscoll in connection with a traffic accident involving Gerald Holdenbeck in August, 1947

No Evidence

Constable Siple testified that he was told by Corporal Sam Ervine and Inspector W. A. Page that there was evidence to indicate Constable Keays was intoxicated while investigating the accident.

Constable Keays alleges that Constable J. B. Driscoll falsely accused him of being drunk when he arrived at the accident.

Hodenbeck was the driver of a bus which struck and killed a pedestrian, James Twiddey.

Manitoba Fights TCA Transfer

OTTAWA, April 5 (CP)—The Province of Manitoba turned out in force today to protest to the Commons Railway Committee the proposal of Trans-Canada Air Lines to move its head offices from Winnipeg to Montreal.

Headed by Premier Campbell of Manitoba, Mayor Garnet Coulter of Winnipeg and Mayor George McLean of St. Boniface, the group represented more than 20 government, labor, business and other groups of the Winnipeg district.

In a 13-page brief, the group said the TCA move would be a blow to the economy of the province.

The TCA plan, announced some months ago, would move the president along with the directors of research and economic control, personnel, etc. to Montreal. At present TCA employs a total of 1,600 persons at Winnipeg's Stevenson Field with an annual payroll of more than $3,000,000.

Hospital In Flames As Alarm Sounds

Neighbors Bring Ladders, Blankets In Futile Rescue Effort

By W. R. CRANNELL

EFFINGHAM, Ill., April 5 (AP) —It was about midnight. My wife, Melba, and I were asleep in our bedroom directly across the street from the hospital. The fire sirens sounding the general alarm woke my wife up.

The first I recall coming out of my sleep was my wife shouting: "Oh my God, look."

When I looked out the window flames were shooting from the upper portion of the building and from the front entrance. The flames mostly were on the west side. But smoke was pouring from everywhere.

I grabbed my clothes and rushed across the street in about 30 seconds. When I got there a city fire truck and a few firemen had arrived.

Two fellows were placing ladders up to windows on the East end. I ran around to the side of the Sisters home. Two women were seated in windows about 12 feet off the ground.

I asked them to sit with their legs hanging down and another fellow and myself were able to grab their legs and ease them to the ground.

Around in back of the hospital three or four women were seated in windows and others were jumping out.

Jump From Third Floor

By that time, flame were everywhere and persons were beginning to jump from third-floor windows. I hollered to some of them "don't jump." Then I ran to the sister's home to try to find some blankets to improvise lifenets. But when I got back it was too late to help and the blankets were left on the ground.

I actually saw three or four jump around me. If you ever heard a sickening fall you should hear someone hit the ground after a three-floor falk

I ran home and told the telephone operator to call all ambulance and fire fighting equipment in the area.

It is impossible to describe how fast those flames spread. I don't know, it just seemed a great mass of flames.

Our firefighters tried but the fire was so fast that I think it just burned itself out. It couldn't be fought.

No one in the town hasn't lost a friend.

Pleads Not Guilty In Espionage Trial

OTTAWA, April 5 (CP)—Sam Carr today pleaded not guilty as County Court Judge A. G. McDougall began his trial on a charge of conspiring with Russian embassy officials to utter a forged passport.

The judge refused objections by defence counsel Joseph Sedgwick who asked him to quash Carr's indictment on the grounds that it was improperly drawn.

Mr. Sedgwick also protested, without pressing the point, that Carr had not been given an opportunity to elect non-jury trial.

5 Canadian Ships Held In British Ports

LONDON, April 5 (CP)—The crew of the 7,000-ton Canadian ship Ivor Rita today joined the Canadian Seamen's Union strike, bringing to five the number of Canadian ships now tied up in British ports.

Jack Pope, United Kingdom representative for the C.C.S., said the non-union crew of the Montreal-registered Ivor Rita decided to join the C.S.U. strike concerning a wage dispute.

Pope said the Ivor Rita and Beaverbrae at London, the Seaboard Ranger and Royston Grange at Liverpool and the Gulfside at Avonmouth are all being picketed.

Pope added that all Canadian ships would be tied up as they arrived in British ports. The Canadian steamer Lake Chilliwack, due at Manchester during the week-end, is the next scheduled arrival.

Two Amendments Proposed By Government To Charitable Gifts Bill

Frost Denies Opposition Charges Bill Directed At Atkinson Foundation; Not Conducting Filibuster, Says Jolliffe

TORONTO, April 5—(CP).—With the views of all parties in the Ontario Legislature now on record, debate continues today on the Provincial Government's Charitable Gifts Bill. Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell, facing Opposition groups united in criticism of the measure, announced Monday night that the Government is prepared to consider two amendments. One amendment would extend beyond three years the time limit for disposal of the shares of a business which operates as a charitable foundation. The other would permit trustees of a foundation to buy up 90 per cent. of the shares which they must dispose of under the bill.

The bill, as it stands, provides that if a charitable trust or foundation has more than 10 per cent. of the interest in any business, it must dispose of the remaining 90 per cent. within three years. If the foundation converts the business into cash, it may invest the proceeds in investments authorized by law, but again is limited to investing in not more than 10 per cent. of the capital stock of any company.

Mr. Blackwell, Education Minister Dana Porter, Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver and A. A. MacLeod (Lab.-Prog.—Toronto Bellwoods) spoke during the night sitting debate on second reading of the charities bill. At the afternoon sitting, E. B. Jolliffe, leader of the CCF opposition, spoke 2½ hours, continuing an argument he started in a 4½-hour speech last Wednesday.

At one point, Mr. Jolliffe charged that the three-year time limit in the charities bill was set because it would elapse before the government, re-elected last June, had to contest another election.

Mr. Blackwell, announcing that the government would consider extending the time limit, said:

Can Have Issue

"We would like the period of settlement to be far enough in the future that if the opposition is prepared to make an election issue of this measure they can have it. Then the people will learn what party stands for the principle of perpetuity in property."

He said the government wanted to be reasonable and fair. However, since the Joseph E. Atkinson will, turning over assets of the Toronto Star and the Star Weekly to a charitable foundation, had been made public, similar arrangements had been considered for other estates.

"If the government failed to act now, it would be avoiding its responsibilities."

Mr. Blackwell later told reporters that under ordinary law governning trusteeships, trustees are not permitted to purchase the assets from a trust estate. Now the government is prepared to amend the law to permit such purchases as long as they are approved by the courts as to price, terms and conditions of sale.

Mr Oliver, who followed Mr Blackwell in the debate, said he hoped the government would bring in other amendments. The Bill would have to be changed drastically before it would meet with the approval of the Opposition and the public.

Mr. Porter accused the CCF of "pleading a special case for a special client." He said that although in times past the legislature has seen fit to pass retroactive legislation affecting wills, there was nothing retroactive in the bill before the House.

When Mr. Jolliffe resumed his argument in the afternoon sitting, he denied he was conducting a filibuster.

"Off The Mark"

"There has been a great deal of silly talk about a filibuster on my part," he said. "These suggestions are very much off the mark. I challenge anyone to point out a single sentence in my speech last week that was not revelant."

Mr. Jolliffe last Wednesday read lengthy extracts from the will of the late Joseph E. Atkinson, former owner of the Star and the Star Weekly, and the late John Ross Robertson, former owner of the Toronto Telegram He also read a number of written jurgments of the Supreme Court of Canada concerning freedom of the press.

Provincial Treasurer Frost said Monday these quotations were "entirely unnecessary"

"Nothing I read or said was irrelevant," Mr. Jolliffe said "A lengthy discussion must be regarded as inevitable.

"From the first to last this bill bears the mark of the dead hand of the former leader of this government who could not be elected to this house. It is well known in Toronto that certain members of the government were prepared to have the bill withdrawn one day last week and only changed their minds when their former leader came to town and the dead hand was laid on them once again."

Mr. Frost said "If Mr. Drew (former Premier George Drew) was in Toronto this week-end I did not see him." Mr. Frost added he had never discussed the legislation with George McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail and the Toronto Telegram.

"I take primary responsibility for this bill myself," Mr. Frost said. "I stand or fall on the fairness of this legislation."

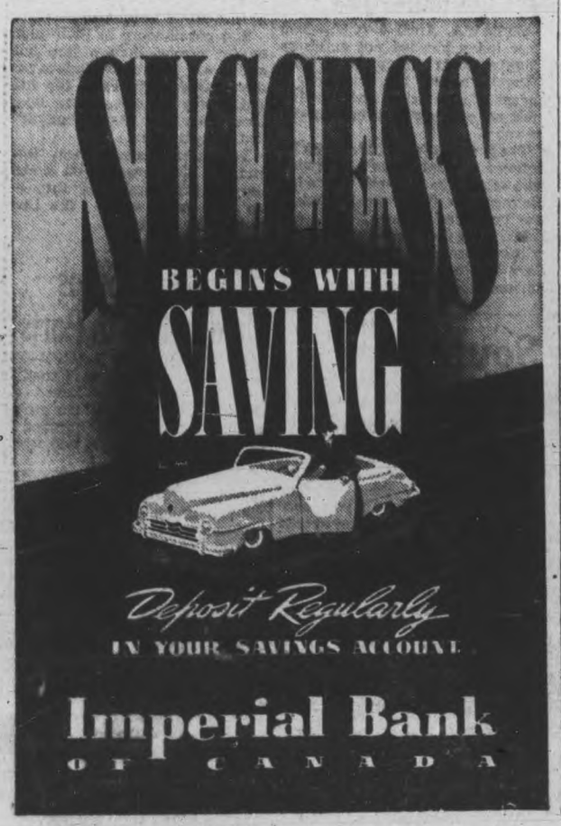
Mr. Frost and Mr. Jolliffe conducted a running debate during most of the afternoon session. Mr. Frost denied that the bill was directed at the Atkinson Foundation. The Sudbury Star was "just the same as the Atkinson Foundation" and had agreed with the principle of the bill.

(The Sudbury Star is owned by the Mason Charitable Foundation under terms of the will of former owner W. E. Mason).

Not Same Thing

"The Mason Foundation is not the same thing at all," Mr. Jolliffe said. Mr. Mason's estate had not been concentrated in the newspaper. He had "large real estate holdings."

Mr. Mason's will had provided that the newspaper be sold by the trustees "in due course." Mr. Atkinson's had not.



Mr. Frost said the government had adopted a "bi-partisan" attitude to the bill. Its provisions applied equally to the Atkinson and Mason Foundations.

"Both were multi-millionaires; both owned newspapers; but one was a Liberal and the other a Conservative," Mr. Frost said.

Mr. Jolliffe said the Atkinson will "made it perfectly clear that he did not want the newspapers to fall into private hands." The government was trying to "make sure that they do."

Mr. Frost: "The bill makes absolutely no difference to the Sudbury Star and the treasurer knows it."

Mr. Blackwell said there was nothing in the bill to prevent the continued existence and operation of the Atkinson Foundation on one hand, or the Mason Foundation which has to do with the Sudbury Star on the other hand.

Lower Prices For Food Cut Cost Of Living

OTTAWA, April 5 (CP)—Declining food prices once again have sent the cost-of-living index into lower ground.

The Bureau of Statistics reported Monday that the index fell three-tenths of a point, from 159.5 to 159.2, between Feb. 1 and March 1. It now is four-tenths of a point below the all-time high of 159.6 touched in October.

At 159.2 the index, calculated on the basis that living costs in pre-war 1935-39 equalled 100, compares with 150.8 a year ago and is 57.9 per cent above the August, 1939, reading.

Reports over the last few months indicate a trend to lower ground. The index reached a peak of 158.9 in November, climbed seven-tenths back to 159.6 in December and then slipped one-tenth to 159.5 in January.

Behind Slump

Food prices, which produced the January decline, also were behind the slump in February.

The Bureau reported that price reductions for shortening products, meats, butter and eggs dropped the food sub-index from 200.4 to 199.1. It had reached a high of 205.4 in October.

The clothing index moved higher, rising nine-tenths of a point to 182.7, while home-furnishings and services advanced fractionally from 167.8 to 167.9. Fuel and light also inched higher, going from 130.8 to 131.0. Rents and miscellaneous items held even at 121.7 and 128.1, respectively.

The Bureau said its index of industrial material prices slipped on further declines in commodity markets dropping from 159.2 for the week ended Feb. 25 to 156.0 for the week ended March 25.

The index for Canadian farm products advanced from 145.1 to 145.4 in the same period on increases in livestock and eggs.

Occasionally Drunk

the police officers, Constable Siple said he knew Constable Driscoll had denied making the accusation of drunkenness and had reported to his superiors that Constable Keays was not drunk.

James David Wilson was the next witness called. He said he was working for a garage in Belleville in 1944 when a car with Quebec licence plates, carrying whiskey, drove into the garage. He said he reported it to a police officer he believed was an RCMP officer.

Later, Constable Driscoll and the other officer came out to the garage and seized the liquor.

Arthur Harman, former deputy chief of the Belleville police, was the next witness.

Mr. Donnan went back to the stand for the second time during the 22 days of public hearings. He was to be questioned about the allegations that he constantly interfered in Constable Keays' investigations.

He said the coroner's jury returned a verdict recommending prosecution for negligence against Holdenbeck who had been driving with emergency headlights.

Mr. Donnan said he wrote the Attorney General's Department, saying that no jury would convict Holdenbeck and suggesting summary proceedings. The department agreed, but the case did not come before a magistrate for a year.

The magistrate ruled that the time limit for summary proceedings had expired and the charge was withdrawn.

Mr. Donnan then turned to dangerous driving charges against Frank Bertrand of Stirling who struck an elderly cyclist in 1947. Bertrand, 70, at the time of the accident, was admitted to hospital shortly afterwards and the hearing was postponed.

The charge was withdrawn "and I take full responsibility" Mr. Donnan said. "The man was 70 years of age and he'd been in hospital six months, and I was not willing to bring that man into court."

Constable Keays said he was making no allegations about the Bertrand case. He had asked for the informations to substantiate other allegations.

Flying Accident

He said he had one allegation about a flying accident and Mr. Donnan began testimony about it.

Mr. Donnan said Constable Keays made an investigation June 29, 1947, into the death of John David Stewart, of Toronto, killed while spraying weeds from an aircraft over a nearby farm.

He did not order an inquest because the Federal Transport Department was investigating. Later, he was ordered by the Attorney General's Department to hold an inquest because complaints had been received.

The inquest was held Dec. 3, 1947, and the jury returned a verdict of accidental death and a recommendation for stricter regulations governing crop-dusting by aircraft.

Never Produced

Mr. Donnan said Constable Keays had alleged a blood sample taken from Allen Mitchell after his arrest for drunk and dangerous driving, was never produced at the trial.

"I can state emphatically the blood test was produced," Mr. Donnan said. He said the transcript of evidence at the Mitchell trial showed the sample was produced.

Mr. Donnan denied that he ordered Constable Keays out of the court during the trial of Fred Martin for attempted murder and arson.

The constable also alleged that Mr. Donnan had Martin committed to a mental hospital despite psychiatric evidence that the accused was fit to stand trial.

He produced a copy of the psychiatrist's report suggesting Martin be committed for observation. Martin later was committed to the Ontario Hospital for the Criminally Insane at Penetanguishene.

Turns to Shooting

Mr. Donnan turned to the shooting of Jean Badgley at nearby Frankford, in November, 1947, where Constable Keays alleges interference by the Crown Attorney.

Mr. Donnan said he was not satisfied with the investigation of Constable Keays and asked an officer of the Provincial Police Criminal Investigation Branch.

Mr. Donnan said he prepared and conducted a series of gross indecency prosecutions. Constable Keays charges the Crown Attorney was drunk during the trials.

"It is true I frequently left the court room," he said. "The judges understood my reason which was a physical one. I was ill and at one time did not think I could continue with the trials. I was not drinking nor was I intoxicated."

And I can assure you that so long as I am Minister of National Defence, I am not going to give him that information."

The argument developed during the study of supplementary estimates of the Defence Departmnt for th 1948-49 fiscal year, which ended March 31.

Mr. Drew said that information about the strength of Canada's armed forces should not be kept from parliament.

There was no reason to keep the information secret. The information, if given to the Canadian people, would be "much more surprising" to them than it would be to the Russians.

"And the Minister knows," said Mr. Drew, "that his reply would not be very gratifying to the Canadian public."

He urged that members not pass the defence estimates until Mr. Claxton had given assurances that a standing defence committee, similar to a United States committee, would be established The United States committee and Congress decided on the strength of the American forces.

Air Lift Query

Besides information about the troops, he called for a statement on why Canada was not participating in the Berlin air lift.

He argued that Russia has not the surface ships or the land communications to carry armed forces to this country. The only way troops now could be brought here was by air. Yet Canada had only 60 jet fighters and they were not even manufactured on this continent.

"Our air force is pitifully inadequate by any test," he said.

Mr. Claxton termed Mr. Drew's charges as being "vague and general" in character. He did not know whether a defence committee would be a good idea or not. The United States had a defence committee but there the members of the cabinet were not members of Congress or responsible to Congress.

He said he might be wrong, but he did not believe the United Kingdom or any Commonwealth country had a defence committee similar to that of the United States.

The practice of not giving figures on the strength of the armed forces was not new. It had been followed in the United Kingdom and Canada before the last war. If the strength of one unit was given it could not be refused for another and a series of questions would disclose the whole battle order of the Canadian forces.

He quoted from the British Hansard to show that the United Kingdom government also had adopted a policy of declining to comply with requests for military information.

Truman Seeks Quick Approval Of Peace Pact

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—President Truman is expected to send the North Atlantic Treaty to the United States Senate before the end of this week with an appeal for speedy approval.

This is one of three major steps which officials forecast today for carrying out the pact that the President acclaimed on Monday night as "a milestone in history." The treaty was signed by the United States, Britain, Canada and nine western powers in a solemn, fast-moving ceremony Monday afternoon.

How soon the Senate might act is uncertain; the issue is controversial in the United States.

The other two steps in prospect to implement the treaty are these:

1. Completion of an American Arms Aid program, costing close to $2,000,000,000.

2. Discussions among the 12 Treaty powers on organization of a council and a defence committee. Their assignment would be to unify the defences of the non-Communist western world under the new alliance.

The arms program probably will provide between $1,250,000,000 and $1,500,000,000 for American help in rearming the European members of the Alliance. The balance of the funds would go to aid other non- Communist countries such as Greece, Turkey and Iran.

The other powers signing Monday were the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, Norway, Denmark, Iceland, Portugal and Italy.

Brief Ceremony

Including the speeches the ceremony took less than two hours. The actual signing of the historic document, which give a new turn to the course of post-war world history, required approximately 12 minutes

The first signature was affixed by Belgium's premier and foreign minister, Paul-Henri Spaak.

L. B. Pearson, Canada's Minister of External Affairs, signed for the Dominion.

Pearson said the pact gives "the promise of greater security and stability than we possess today." He urged that the treaty's promise be converted into performance less it "remain no more than yet another expression of high but unattainable ideals."

President Truman, like all 12 of the foreign ministers, sounded the theme of peace as embracing the maior purpose of the new alliance.

Truman called the pact a simple document, but added:

"If it has existed in 1914 and in 1939, supported by the nations which are represented here today, I believe it would have prevented the acts of aggression which led to two world wars."

Acheson declared that for those who seek the peace the treaty "is a guide to refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."

Bevin said that the countries signing the treaty "are composed of peace-loving peoples with spiritual affinities . . .

"Our people do not want and do not glorify war," Bevin said, "but they will not shrink from it if aggression is threatened."

Find Fisherman Dead Five Weeks

ORILLIA, April 5 (CP)—The burned body of Thomas Dunlop, 46, of nearby Athlerley was found Monday sprawled across a stove in a fishing hut near this town 85 miles north of Toronto. He had been dead for about five weeks.

Examination revealed Dunlop died of a heart attack. He had fallen across the stove and the body was burned in places before it was frozen solid.

The dead man had been in the habit of making frequent trips to the lake to fish, and had not been missed by friends or relatives. He lived with his father here, but since he was frequently away from home for long periods on business or fishing trips, the father had not become alarmed at first when he failed to return.

Rescues 3 In Fire

TORONTO, April 5 (CP) — Alfred Hall broke through the locked door of a blazing frame cottage in north Toronto Monday to rescue Mrs. Marie Selland and her two daughters, Marie, five and Eleanor, four. Hall found the girls hiding behind a door and the mother asleep in a front room.

used a rope and tackle to haul small white-blanketed bundles down ladders, passing them from hand to hand. The blankets covered the bodies of 12 newborn babies. Parents hoped to identify them from lettering on beads around their necks.

Karl Alt, 66, who lives across the street from the hospital, in a residential section of this south-central Illinois community, and a neighbor, aided i the rescue of between 12 and 15 persons.

"I heard a commotion, heard screams and got dressed," Alt said. "Flames were shooting out from the hospital front entrance My neighbor, Bill Cranell, came running and we rushed to the back of the hospital. There were dead and injured there—they had jumped from their rooms. Altogether we helped carry 12 or 15 persons into the Sisters' home next to the hospital."

108 Patients

There were 108 persons in the 125-bed hospital, police said. The injured were removed to their homes or to a clinic. Some were reported to have been removed to hospitals in nearby communities.

Ben Beiderhorn, 38, a male nurse at the hospital, said he was awakened by a sister who told him she smelled smoke coming out of the clothes chute.

Everything In Flames

"I went out there and it seemed like the place was a whole bath of flame," he said. "Then I headed for the elevator, but it wouldn't work. I ran to the roof and called to the patients.

"There were about 30 patients on the third floor. I don't believe any of them got out."

Two women in the delivery room when the fire broke out both gave birth after escaping. Mrs. Arnold Aderman, 24, jumped from a second-floor window. She was taken to a nearby home where she gave birth. Her physician said she was "coming along fine." The other women, Mrs. Wenston Sidner of St. Elmo, was taken to a clinic where her child was born. Mother and child were described as in "good condition."

One Sister, who refused to give her name to reporters, was nearly hysterical. She said one of the nurses assigned to the nursery remained with the infants there and perished with them.

Relatives of patients rushed to the hospital, frantically searching for kinfolk. The crying relatives groped from person to person in a tragic search for a familiar face.

Temporary headquarters were set up in what is known as the hospital barn. Patients rescued were brought there. Patients were being moved to nearby homes and the barn was being prepared as a temporary morgue.

Swims Icy River Aids Injured Lad

NEW LISKEARD, April 5—A 16-year-old Boy Scout today twice swam across an ice-choked stream to bring a first-aid kit for another scout, injured during the first spring hike of First New Liskeard Troop.

Tommy Waugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Waugh, gouged his leg with the hatchet he was using during building of a temporary bridge at Farah's Dam. Scout Chuck Wells started across the stream to get the first-aid kit, plunged through the ice and swam to the other shore. He swam back again with the kit and Scoutmaster Everett Smith applied a field dressing.

Other members of the troop rushed completion of the bridge, and the injured boy was carried across. Then Scoutmaster Smith and three of the scouts carried him through three feet of snow to the highway, where Mr. Smith commandeered a bicycle and went for aid.

Tommy was brought to Lady Minto Hospital here, where his condition was reported as satisfactory. He was trimming trees to be used in construction of the bridge when the hatchet struck his leg.

Labor Opposes

This amendment "would not remove the fundamental faults of the bill."

It has been suggested the charitable foundations might be perpetuated by members of a family, acting as trustees.

In the case of the Atkinson Foundation, only two of the five directors were related to Joseph E. Atkinson. All five had "worked their way up," in the organization from junior positions.

"Entirely Different"

Mr. Millard said Government members had suggested that the Atkinson foundation and the foundation set up by the late W. E. Mason, former owner of the Sudbury Star, were "distinctly similar" and that both would be affected by the bill. Mr. Millard quoted a statement of George M. Miller, president of the Sudbury Star, Ltd., published last March 26, in which he said that despite "apparent similarities" in the two foundations, "in application and interpretation they are entirely different." The Mason foundation would not be affected by the bill.

George McCullagh had bought the Toronto Globe and Mail, "backed by mining interests." Then he had bought the Telegram. He had said "he was out to get the Star," Mr. Millard said.

"I believe this Government is sought to be used to enact legislation to accomplish the ends he (Mr. McCullagh) can't accomplish in any other way."

"This bill was conceived in cunning and born in cowardice. The Government is being led down the slippery path to Fascism. The day you force this bill through this House will be the darkest day in the history of the Legislature.

"You are setting a most dangerous precedent."

Town Auditors Resign In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, April 5 — (ENS)—The resignation of C. W. Cochrane as town auditors caused a prolonged and heated discussion at the monthly meeting of the council Monday night. The communication intimated that the treasurer was unfamiliar with the modern system of book-keeping.

Councillor Maier said that there should be some one in the town office familiar with modern bookkeeping procedure He remarked that the treasurer would not follow the system introduced by the auditors and that he had never prepared a proper balance sheet.

Mr Lynch, representing the Cochrane Co., said that he realized the auditors' fees were too much but the extra charges were for work that the treasurer should have performed.

The treasurer, Mr. Allan, thought that the system followed by the auditors was too complicated and that the council couldn't expect a treasurer to set up a monthly trial balance on a salary of $12.50 a week.

"With the large amount of money handled in the town office," Councillor Wilson said, "an audit should be made at least quarterly and the treasurer should be capable of keeping a correct set of books,"

On motion of Councillor MacMillan the matter will be dealt with after the joint meeting with the Public Utilities Commission.

F. W. Burgess and A. D. Bennett discussed the work being done in Mount Pleasant cemetery. They said that the Cemetery Board had spent considerable money in beautifying the grounds and that the erection of a vault would cost at least $1,500. They requested a grant of $200 which council unanimously voted.

A communication was read from George O'Sullivan, secretary of St. Mary's cemetery board, asking for a grant of $50. The letter said that a mortuary chapel had been built at considerable expense and that other improvements had been made. The grant was unanimously voted by council.

Request Refused

A letter received from Frank De Carrol requested that the council move the bus stop as he needed the space to park his trucks while unloading heavy equipment for his new store. Kenneth Ames, bus owner, appeared before council and pointed out the benefits of having the bus stop on the principal street. After some discussion the council agreed to take no action on Mr. De Carrol's petition.

F. M. Rutherford at the head of a delegation of citizens spoke on the proposed community centre. He advocated that Davidson's Arena should be taken over by the councils of Campbellford and Seymour, the service clubs and other organizations. He said that the rink could be purchased at $1,000 a year without interest until the full value was met.

He said that the provincial government would give a grant of 25 per cent of the cost and that a committee of seven directors would be responsible for the administration of the centre. Mr. Rutherford stated that the council would not be held responsible if the directors failed to meet the annual payments.

Councillor Wilson moved that this council indicates its willingness to pass a by-law in order that a community centre may be organized and that a joint meeting be held, prior to the next regular meeting of council, with representatives from Seymour township council, the service clubs and other organizations, to discuss matters pertaining to a community centre. The motion carried.

Transfer Lot

J. E. Ayrhart asked permission from council that his interests in the lot on Front St. be turned over to M. H. Emery, who was prepared to construct a one storey building, large enough to house eight bowling alleys.

Mr Emery said that he was prepared to start the building at once and that the alleys would be in operation by next fall. He stated that the building would cost approximately $15,000 and would be erected in such a manner that another storey could be added.

It was moved and seconded that the agreement between the town and the Canada Lumber and Supply Co., since taken over by Mr. Ayrhart, be cancelled, providing Mr. Emery presents plans and specifications that will meet the approval of the council and building inspector.

Juvenile Delinquency Address At Rotary

COBOURG, April 5 (ENS). — Problems arising out of juvenile delinquency were discussed by Jack Allin, governor of the counties jail, at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club. Juvenile delinquency was one of the biggest problems facing communities, he declared. It was a problem which was recognized by the Ontario Government.

He lauded the work being done at the Boys' Training School at Bowmanville and declared that the honor system was working satisfactorily. The boys were interested in preparing for a future so that when they were discharged from the institution they would have a good start in life.

Young people who fall within the classification of juvenile delinquents often had a fear and distrust of those things which they did not understand and there was a need to promote an understanding between juvenile and adult that was mutual, he said.

Charges Influence Stops Prosecutions

OSHAWA, April 5 — (CP)— Aldrman Finley M. Dafoe suggested Monday night that some persons stopped for speeding in Oshawa were not being prosecuted because of their position.

He told city council "there are are charges being made at Belleville that some speeders have been let off due to their position . . . I have had it suggested to me that similar things happen here."

It was an apparent reference to charges made to a Royal Commission investigation in Belleville, that E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF leader, was merely warned when stopped for speeding there in the midst of his provincial election campaign last year.

Ald. Dafoe suggested "perhaps political strings are being pulled here too, people should not be let off, regardless of who they are."

He recommended that the mayor, as a member of the police commission, should investigate.

Taxes In 2 Instalments

TORONTO, April 5 (CP) — Because of a delay in assessment plans, Toronto citizens will pay their 1949 taxes in two instalments, instead of the usual three. City council Monday night backed a proposal by Finance Commissioner Lascelles to have this year's levy paid in two instalments, the first to include the general city tax rate and the second to be the school rate only.

Forbid Farmer To Raise Cattle For Two Years

COBOURG, April 5—(ENS)— "It is the most callous thing I ever heard," observed Magistrate R. B. Baxter in finding Reuben Weller of Carrying Place guilty on two charges of failing to provide fodder and water for his livestock. Weller was allowed on suspended sentence upon signing a $1,000 bond to refrain from keeping livestock for a period of two years.

Inspector C. W. Morris of the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, described the conditions at the farm of the accused when he visited it on March 17. He related that after he saw the condition of the livestock he told the accused that he was going to charge him with neglect of the animals. Witness produced a photograph of a cow which he said was obviously underfed. He said he found a dead calf under some hay and bones of a horse were scattered over the floor of the barn. In another section was half of a horse and when he poked at some hay with a fork, Weller told him to leave it there as it was for the purpose of keeping the horses warm.

"The hay was for insulation rather than fodder," Mr. Morris testified.

Finds Dead Hog

He drew from Weller the information that a dead hog in one of the pens had been sick with a cold for about two days before. This pen had the door nailed tight and the hog was dead when he broke it open. Cause of death was lack of food and from freezing. In another building a hog was lying up against the wall with no food or water and as if it was dying, he shot it to put it out of its misery.

"The accused objected to me shooting the hog. His attitude made me lose my temper for the first time since I have been on this job. I told him that I would not permit animals to suffer like that. Later I noticed him carrying two pails of water back to his barn. He has to get the water about one-fifth of a mile from there. His stock consisted of 10 cows, a steer, mare, gelding, a live and dead hog," Mr. Morris testified.

"I would like to see this man prevented from raising livestock again, at least for a considerable period of time," suggested the inspector.

Assault Constable Jail Pair 2 Months

COBOURG, April 5 (ENS). — Two months in jail was the sentence imposed on Maurice Sauve and John Ryan of Ottawa when they appeared for sentence on a charge of assaulting Corporal Douglas Wilson of the Provincial Police, Cobourg. Wilson was assaulted by the pair when he questioned them on the highway two weeks ago after he found their car parked obstructing traffic. The two had been drinking.

"More than ever, police need protection while doing their duty and anybody who interferes with them should be punished. You should get lashes, they might do you more good. This police officer is a man of high calibre whose integrity I regard highly. If you ever come before me again, I warn you that it will be bad for you," said Magistrate R. B. Baxter.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 5— (ENS)— Plans for a drive to obtain $50,000 to complete the Memorial Hospital were placed before the Rotary Club by A. J. Meyers on Monday.

He stated that the clubs, church organizations and lodges of Campbellford and the Seymour Women's Institutes would be asked to raise a minimum of $1,000 each. Any organization reaching the minimum of $1,000, he said, would have the privilege of placing its name over the door of a room.

Canadian Passports To The Postwar World

Mr. G. K. Fraser's question in the House of Commons earlier in the year about old Canadian passports and their renewal, calls to mind the fact that Canada has a new type of passport for its citizens. The Peterborough member's question and reply by Mr. Pearson have, by the way, been considered sufficiently important and of general interest to reprint in the March issue of the monthly bulletin issued by the Department of External Affairs. The meat of the matter is that, partly owing to Mr. Fraser's query, old-style passports may be replaced (if they have not expired) by the new type, at the renewal rate of two dollars, rather than at the new rate of five. No old passports are being renewed, because of the change in national status occasioned by the Canadian Citizenship Act which came into force on January 1st, 1947.

* * *

We have compared the pre-war and the new passports. They look much the same: black leather covers, the Canadian coat-of-arms on them. The life of the present passport is the same as the old, five years, and a renewal may be had for another five. The cost is the same. Inside the cover is the legend of the passport. Here is the first notable difference. Pre-war passports were issued under the signature of the Governor-General. Today's are signed by the Secretary of State for External Affairs who

> "requests, in the name of His Majesty the King, all those whom it may concern to allow the bearer to pass freely without let or hindrance and to afford him or her every assistance and protection of which he or she may stand in need".

The wording is almost the same as that in the earlier passport, except that in it the Governor-General made the request in the name of "His Britannic Majesty".

* * *

The essential difference between new and old is made plain on the first page. The old passport proclaimed the bearer's national status to be "British Subject by Birth", or some such—no mention of his Canadian citizenship, since before 1947 he had none which was recognized diplomatically. The new passport has this designation of the bearer's national status: "Canadian Citizen by Birth" or some such. Below it is the printed explanation in French and English: "A Canadian citizen is a British subject, Section 26 of Canadian Citizenship Act". Thus we Canadians go abroad with two statements of nationality—Canadian citizen and British subject.

* * *

Canadian passports have increased in value (though not in cost to us). Their value in, say, Czechoslovakia or western Germany is incalculable. Before the turn of the century people travelled hither and yon without passports. You could go almost where you liked without showing diplomatic documents at frontiers. Now a Canadian citizen returning from Britain via New York must have not only a passport but a transit visa. Travel times have changed, but we are glad to see on the new passport as on the old, the legend that it is valid for "All Countries". We shall not, however, test its validity this year in Russia.

Churchill's Philosophy

An emphasis in Churchill's notable Boston speech has been overlooked by many commentators on it. The emphasis is more significant since the speech was given at one of the great centres of engineering and scientific study, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He spoke at length, and constantly reverted to the theme, of the necessity of keeping science in a subservient role. Science has bestowed immense new powers on man and at the same time "created conditions which were largely beyond his comprehension and still more beyond his control". The advance in technology was "unhappily not accompanied by any noticeable advance in the stature of man, either in his mental faculties, or his moral character". Here followed a flashing Churchillian phrase: "His brain got no better, but it buzzed more".

Again and again Churchill set himself against the assumption that science must dominate man, and against a mechanistic interpretation of human beings and society:

> "Those whose minds are attracted or compelled to rigid and symmetrical systems of government should remember that logic, like science, must be the servant and not the master of man. Human beings and human societies are not structures that are built or machines that are forged. They are plants that grow and must be tended as such".

In one profound paragraph of his Boston speech, Churchill gave what amounts to a philosophy of living. It comes from the experience and heart of an unaging great modern man: "Life is a test and this world a place of trial. Always the problems, or it may be the same problem, will be presented to every generation in different forms. The problems of victory may be even more baffling than those of defeat. However much the conditions change, the supreme question is how we live and grow and bloom and die, and how far each life conforms to standards which are not wholly related to place or time".

An Enemy Of Public Speaking

A radio commentator recently expressed surprise that Winston Churchill was such an effective public speaker because "he breaks most of the rules of public speaking and certainly all the rules of miscrophone technique". This does not surprise us at all. A man who breaks the rules of "microphone technique" is far more likely to be interesting to listen to than a man who sticks to them slavishly.

What is "microphone technique"? It is the trick of accommodating the human voice to the whims of a delicate but rather inflexible piece of mechanism. The speaker must not alter the pitch of his voice too rapidly, nor is he allowed to shout if he feels like it. The best style of delivery for a microphone is easy, informal, unimpassioned—in a word, ordinary.

Good public speaking cannot be ordinary. The speaker must capture and hold the attention of his hearers by every vocal trick he can master. He must coo like a dove, and roar like a lion; he must make noises which would make a microphone quiver like a seismograph. He must be vivid, and the microphone discourages vividness. For the microphone is the enemy of good public speaking. It is admirable for chats or lectures, but it is not adapted to oratory on the Churchillian level.

The effect of the microphone on public speaking is easily studied. The brazen-lunged orators of an earlier political era are nearly all gone, and have been replaced by crooners into public-address systems. However important a man's message may be he cannot deliver it with much vigour if his chief concern is with a little steel box eighteen inches from his mouth. If oratory is to survive as an art—and it is a very great art, as Churchill has shown—the microphone must be improved to accommodate it. At present microphones at public meetings are a hindrance, and not a help to good speaking.

Gently With The Pigs

Among our vivid memories is the way an Irish farmer ushered a huge fat sow out of a cart to a cobblestone barnyard. It was a high, two-wheeled cart. The sow seemed to weigh a ton. The farmer unhitched the horse, opened up the back end of the cart, gave the front end a tilt, and the sow plopped out to the hard paving below like the tire of a Flying Fortress bouncing along a runway. We were astonished by this drastic method of unloading a dumb animal. It squawkled or whinnied, or squealed, of course, but the sound did not touch the Irish farmer's heart. Apparently it was the normal method of moving a pig from a higher to a lower level.

Now we see that the Ontario Hog Producers' Association frowns upon such practices. Not that the Ontario Hog Producers have suddenly become softhearted about the bacon-producing machines known as pigs. It seems that a live pig bruised on the way to market becomes bruised bacon at the abattoir. It is kindness to the pocketbook, and incidentally to the dumb animals, if hogs are treated gently when they are being shipped.

At their Tuesday meeting in Toronto the Ontario hog producers considered a motion that something be done to lessen the "tremendous" losses because of bruising. It was stated that truckers and others would not, left to their own devices, always exercise the necessary amount of kindness to pigs on the way to market. A motion was passed that provincial legislation make it an offence "for any person who, in the handling of livestock to market, wilfully or carelessly caused injury and bruises". It was also decided to ask that inspectors be on hand to see that such legislation, if provided, be enforced.

If our Irish farmer comes to Ontario it seems that he will have to mend his hog-handling ways.

Questions For Mr. Frost

(THE KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

THE Charitable Gifts Act, introduced in the Ontario Legislature by Provincial Treasurer Leslie Frost, has aroused more interest and discussion than any other piece of legislation before that body in recent years. The reason for this is easy to find. It is simply that a very large number thoughtful people in Ontario are asking tions about the legislation. These questions seek to uncover the genuine basic motives which prompted the legislation, for there is growing and province-wide suspicion that these, if they were known, would reveal at least contributory factors other than those mentioned by Government spokesmen.

✧ ✧ ✧

WE should like to restate emphatically our position on legislation designed to prevent perpetuity of great personal fortunes, to protect the interests of charities in cases of charitable bequests, and to protect the interests of the general public by making it impossible to avoid succession duties. We strongly favour such legislation—when those are its sole aims, when such aims are its sole inspiration, and when the traditional process of the law is not abused by an attempt to legislate for yesterday and thus make an erstwhile perfectly legal action illegal. It is on these very points, however, that the public mind is not at rest, and the questions people are asking are related to these points. The dead set of this legislation against the will of the late Joseph Atkinson, dead publisher of The Toronto Star, is reason enough for such questions. Some we have heard asked are as follows:

✧ ✧ ✧

DOES this legislation owe its being, in part or in whole, to the request or suggestion of a publisher of any competitor of The Toronto Star?

Was any such person consulted or referred to—or deferred to—in any way whatsoever about the proposed legislation prior to its introduction?

Can the Ontario Legislature point to similar legislation anywhere that is used for a model? Can it point to legislation embodying the retroactive principle on a similar scale? If so, where? In another province? In the United States, or in some states of the Union? In some other foreign country? Or is this a pioneer flight by the Ontario Government of a law based on the retroactive principle so successfully used in totalitarian states, where men have been often punished because of their ancestry or past political beliefs?

✧ ✧ ✧

DID any purely political motives inspire this legislation? Was The Toronto Star's vigorous opposition to the Conservative Party in any way responsible for its introduction?

If this legislation had been in force when the will of John Ross Robertson was probated, would that will have been ruled illegal? Will the present legislation prevent the creation of such charitable foundations as that established by the great newspaperman who dedicated The Toronto Telegram to charity for an indefinite period?

Would the specific charity named in the Robertson will have benefited one-tenth as much as it eventually did if the law had insisted on liquidation and limitation at the time the will was probated?

And would the present legislation have been introduced if The Toronto Telegram were still in the hands of the executors of John Ross Robertson's will? Was the sale of that direct competitor of The Toronto Star in any way connected with the introduction of the Charitable Gifts Act?

✧ ✧ ✧

THESE are admittedly embarrassing questions, yet they must be answered by Hon. Leslie Frost and the Government of which he is a member in order to clear suspicion from the public mind. We hope this clarification may be quickly and effectively provided, for we believe Mr. Frost and his colleagues to be honourable and conscientious public servants. But they must demonstrate that they are above suspicion to retain the public confidence they have enjoyed in the past. And suspicion is invariably aroused when legislation, no matter how high a principle it may embody, strikes its first unjust blow against an effective, a feared and heartily disliked opponent of the government enacting such legislation.

Letter To The Editor

ACCEPT MARGARINE WITH GOOD GRACE

Sir: May I use your columns to urge all farmers who may read this, to protect vigorously the action of the Federation of Agriculture in appealing the Supreme Court decision on the margarine question? Write to the Federation, or to Mr. H. H. Hannam personally, and inform them that farmers in general do not approve of the action.

Why not let the whole thing drop? Yes, I know, cream price is down fourteen cents. So what? We aren't going bankrupt. Food prices are down all along the line, but if that has the effect of halting the constant demand of labour for higher wage rates, it will be cheap in the long run.

If the Supreme Court decision should be reversed it would cause endless confusion and loss. There would be millions of pounds of margarine on hand and what would become of it? Owing to the drop in cream price, much more milk is going to cheese factories which is all to the good for our cheese is exportable. By the time the Federation's appeal goes through, butter will be more scarce than ever and there would not be enough to go around, at any price.

Why can't this be accepted with good grace? A continuation of the ban on margarine would create ill will and there is enough of that now. Margarine can never take the place of butter but let anyone use it who wants to.

Montgomery Challenged By Alexander

(HAMILTON SPECTATOR)

WAR books and the controversies to which they give rise are nothing new. It is unusual, though, and of more than passing interest to observe that Lord Alexander, Canada's Governor-General, has stepped from the background to take issue with his former associate, Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, over the final Allied plan for the invasion of Italy.

Lord Montgomery, in his book on the Italian campaign, has made the claim that earlier plans for the invasion were faulty and that his plan was finally approved by General Dwight Eisenhower.

En route to Los Angeles to receive an honorary degree from the University of California, Lord Alexander was interviewed briefly at Albuquerque, New Mexico, and is credited with differing from the published version of the Italian campaign as given by his former field general. Lord Alexander, it is pertinent to recall, was Supreme Allied Commander in the Mediterranean at that period of the war.

"It was my 18th Army plan that was approved by Ike," he said, thereby challenging the accuracy of Lord Montgomery's statement. Thus has begun what may be another "battle of the books," those minor tempests which have marked the post-war periods of both world conflicts. More is likely to be heard about this question. Civilian observers can only sit meekly by and view the contest.

To Canadians, however, and probably to many more persons in Great Britain and other Allied countries, this incident has additional interest because it marks the first time that Lord Alexander has entered one of these post-bellum controversies. He has never appeared to be one who sought the limelight. Quiet and gracious, he has carried himself as a man who took self-satisfaction from the fact that he did his job in the war completely and without fanfare and is content to let his reputation rest on those achievements.

He was often a shadowy figure, as a result, and was eclipsed by the more dashing "Monty." But the worth and ability of Lord Alexander as a great soldier was well known to his superiors and they have so recognized him, even if those qualities were not so generally appreciated by civilians.

His terse statement at Albuquerque offers evidence that Lord Alexander naturally desires to keep the record straight and felt moreover, that the time had come to speak out before what he believes is a misapprehension has a chance to harden in the permanent mould of history.

Modest men have to do that once in a while.

No Time For His Own Work

(FERGUS NEWS-RECORD)

THERE was no editorial page last week. We're sorry for the omission, but we just couldn't make it. There were too many things to be done and it wasn't possible to squeeze in any more. The extras were mostly jobs of a public nature. And this has caused us to do a bit of thinking. It might have been better if we had written "That Inside Page" and let other people do the various things. In fact, we are seriously thinking about resigning a whole group of honorary jobs and letting someone else do them, but that is taken for granted. But there's little thanks, either. We are led to wonder why anyone can be found to try to do things for the community.

During the past week, we have spent one evening with the officers of the Chamber of Commerce. It is near the end of the year for that organization and there is plenty to be done. There was also a little item about Fergus to be made out for a folder about the river valley. There was a brief address to be given to another organization. There was an afternoon spent with the members of the Planning Board. Then there was a four-hour session with that Board and the Fergus Council.

That is a lot of time to take out of one week. We could have written a whole editorial page in less time than that.

Some of these meetings were interesting. That is always true of the Chamber of Commerce. Others were plain hard work. But, interesting or not, they all take time and sometimes they interfere with the work we should be doing. So this week, we are doing our work first; the others later if there is time. And we didn't even take a day on Saturday to follow the hockey team to Eastern Ontario.

Hearken unto this, O Job: stand still, and consider the wondrous works of God....

Dost thou know the balancings of the clouds, the wondrous works of him which is perfect in knowledge?....

Touching the Almighty, we cannot find him out: he is excellent in power, and in judgement, and in plenty of justice: he will not afflict. (Job 37: 14, 16, 23.)

Simple In Milwaukee

Once in a while we have reason to suspect the traffic problem is not quite so deep and insoluble as we usually suppose.

There is the City of Milwaukee, for instance, which for six consecutive years, has had the lowest traffic toll of any major town in the United States.

A reporter from a city with a very bad traffic death record went to Milwaukee to find out how Milwaukee does it. The answer, he discovered, was simple, enforcement of traffic laws.

Traffic tickets are not fixed, in Milwaukee. Every officer on the force makes enforcement of the code his own responsibility. Motorists have been taught that a "stop" sign means "stop" and not "slow down a little". Traffic lights are put up only where a traffic expert says they are needed; once up, they are operated and drivers don't crash them. Nothing very mysterious or involved in all this, surely? If Milwaukee can do it why cannot other cities?—Chatham News.

Looking For The Ark

It comes as a welcome change from spaceships and inter-planetary programs to read of an expedition which is to leave London this Summer to look for "traces of Noah's Ark" on Mount Ararat.

According to Archbishop Usher's calculations, the Ark will have been on Ararat since 2349 BC so possibly the traces will be rather slight by this time. But it would bring great joy to many nurseries to learn that something of the most famous vessel in history had been isolated (if that is the right term of research to use in this connection) and that the makers of toy arks were justified in the conception of the general outlines of Noah's structure.

It is too much to hope that there will be any confirmation of the straight up-and-down attire and the funny little hats worn by Noah and his wife in the traditional toy-shop treatment of the patriarch and his family, but it will be something to get the link between Ark and Ararat strengthened by modern methods of research.—Manchester Guardian.

Wool Industry Shown In Film

"Men and Mobs," an Australian film, was shown to the Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon on Monday. In introducing the film Gordon Monkman told the club that the film was made by the Australian government to illustrate the sheep and wool industry. The film gave a brief outline of the history of wool industry, the ranch life and the processing of the wool. It was in color. K. S. Wightman thanked William Graff for presenting the film.

R. L. Dobbin told the club that on April 18 the guest speaker would be Wills Maclachlan. He added that two awards would also be given for the first time in Canada by the American Safety Council.

On Wednesday three curling rinks from the Rotary Club will enter a bonspiel in Orillia. There they will compete against rinks from Gravenhurst, Huntsville and Orillia.

Guests at the luncheon were L. R. Guertin, Neil Moodie, and E. C. Bain of Ottawa; Harry Willis, Kenneth Hanbidge, Claude V. Elliott, of Peterborough, and Douglas Miles, Kingston. They were introduced by Charles Pilon.

OATH OF OFFICE—Newfoundland's first lieutenant-governor, Sir Albert Walsh, pens his signature to the oath which makes him officially the King's representative in Canada's 10th province. To the right is Sir Edward Emerson, chief justice of the Supreme Court of Newfoundland, who administered the oath in Government House, St. John's. Hon. Colin Gibson, minister of resources, who presented the Canadian citizenship certificate to Sir Albert on behalf of the Canadian government, stands at the left.

Jailed For Begging

COBOURG, April 5 (ENS). — Frank Stewart of Toronto was sentenced to 15 days for begging when he appeared in police court here. Chief W. J. Carey said that he had received complaints from residents where the accused had been begging that he was abusive.

Says Death Note False

Police Monday investigated allegations that a death-note, found Saturday near the body of James Johnston, 31, was not written by the dead man. A brother, Earl Johnston of Guelph, Ont., told police he doubted that the death note was written in James' handwriting.

Britain Leaves Spy Worry To Cloak and Dagger Boys

By STUART UNDERHILL

LONDON, April 5—(CP).—Because it is hard to remain in a state of alarm over an invisible threat, Britain leaves its worrying about spy dangers to the "cloak and dagger boys" of the government security departments. During the last few years there has been no dearth of warnings that a spy peril exists more deadly than any Britain has ever known. Communists who quite possibly could wear an old school tie or talk with an authentic cockney accent are the suspects.

But since there is no way of distinguishing spies (in the war days you could look for something like a betraying teutonic manner), the average citizen puts his trust in such mysterious organizations as M15.

In actual fact, M15 is only one of many intelligence branches engaged in counter-espionage and other security measures. It is the fifth branch of the army's military intelligence section, there being 13 branches in all.

Inter-Departmental Co-operation

The various government departments, notably the Foreign Office and Home Office, also have security forces. They work in close co-operation with a special section of Scotland Yard.

Secrecy shrouds their activity. But for some reason it is M15 which has captivated the public fancy. The very lack of information about its doings encourages the legend of its quick and ruthless operations.

No one can measure how much vital information flows into unauthorized hands. The Government already has acted to "purge" Communist civic servants who were in key positions where they might have access to such facts.

Spy's Crop Small

Prime Minister Attlee has indicated in the House of Commons that a spy may find his picking leaner than many think.

He declined a Conservative demand to give more information of defence plans on the ground that foreign governments often were not in the possession of what seemed fairly obvious information.

He said there was documentary proof that the Germans "benefitted very much from excessive information which was given before the war."

Suspect Diplomats

Subsequently in the House of Lords, Lord Vansittart, a veteran of the British diplomatic service, charged that Eastern European countries were using their consular employees for espionage. His views were endorsed by Viscount Swinton, former Conservative minister, who said:

"Nobody doubts that the swollen staffs of the Russian and satellite missions would engage if they are not already engaging — and I know or at least I think I know that some of them are engaging — in espionage and subversive activity."

The Foreign Office said if Lord Swinton's charge were true "there is certain machinery which would enable us to know something about it."

Brazilian Government Offers Scholarship

OTTAWA, April 5 (CP)—The Brazilian government has offered a scholarship to be awarded to a Canadian citizei for study at a recognized Brazilian university, the External Affairs Department announced Tuesday.

Professional men and women with an appropriate university degree are eligible for the scholarship, which is intended to run for six months, from July to December, 1949. Its total value is approximately $1,200, and the successful condidate will be expected to pay his own travel expenses to and from Brazil.

Applications, which should be sent to the External Affairs Department, Ottawa, before May 1, should contain a biography of the candidate, including a full description of acamedic and professional career and an outline of the proposed course of study in Brazil. They should be accompanied by letters of recommendation. The department will forward the applications to the Brazilian Government.

Expecting Surplus

ST. JOHN'S, April 5 (CP) — Provisional estimates announced Monday indicate a $12,063,600 surplus for Newfoundland in the next fiscal year. The estimates are tentative in the sense that they can be changed following a provincial general election in the new province expected late in May.

Izzy Kaplan Dies

NEW YORK, April 5 (AP) — Izzy Kaplan, 63, long-time press photographer, died Monday. He once told Queen Marie of Romania to sit on a ship's rail and "cross the legs, Queenie." She obeyed. A cameraman for the New York Daily Mirror since 1925, Kaplan and his cigar were well known to sports fans, who sometimes cheered his appearance at sports events as much as they did the athletes.

Reserves Judgment

PARIS, April 5 (AP) — Gen. Charles de Gaulle Monday advised the French people to reserve judgment on the North Atlantic defence treaty until its effect on France is clear. In a press statement, De Gaulle, wartime leader of the Free French and now head of the Reassemblement Du Peuple Francais, a party that opposes the middle-of-the-road government, said the French should wait until it is clear the treaty will be backed by American arms.

Daylight Saving Aid In Winter

TORONTO, April 5 (CP)—If Southern Ontario municipalities observed daylight saving in the winter months, it would mean a Hydro-Electric power saving of 60,000,000-100,000 horsepower at peak-load periods, G. H. Challies, Minister for Hydro, told the Ontario Legislature Monday.

Mr. Challies answered a question by W. L. Houck (L-Niagara Falls).

Mr. Houck asked whether the Hydro-Electric Power Commission had "any definite policy on daylight saving and which level of government had jurisdiction over daylight saving."

Toronto City Council had recently extended the daylight saving period from the last Sunday in September to the last Sunday in November, he said.

"It seems silly and certainly unnecessary that Toronto should be an hour ahead of everyone else," Mr. Houck said.

Mr. Challies said daylight saving was within the jurisdiction of municipal governments. The demand for electrical energy remained consistent, he said. Universal daylight saving in Ontario, however, could reduce peak loads by 2 to 5½ per cent.

Accident Prevention Trophies Presented

TORONTO, April 5 (CP)—Eugene E. Sparrow, chairman of the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board, Monday presented trophies for the Ontario Pulp and Paper Makers' Association to winners of accident-prevention contests. The presentations were made at the annual meeting of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association.

The Cornwall division of the Howard Smith Paper Mills Ltd., won top prize for the fifth consecutive year with a record of .08 days lost per 1,000 man-hours worked.

Superior Box Co. Ltd., at Waterloo won among the medium-sized mills with a contest rating of .15 days.

The Kapuskasing firm of Kimberly-Clark Corporation of Canada Ltd., won top prize among smaller units with a perfect score of no disabling injuries for the second consecutive year.

With a frequency of 43.0 disabling injuries per 100,000 man days, the Heron Bay division of the Ontario Paper Co., Ltd., won among pulpwood logging operations.

Have Wildlife Week

OTTAWA, April 5 (CP) — Timed to begin on the birthday of the late Jack Miner, beloved Canadian naturalist, National Wildlife Week will be observed in Canada April 10-16 this year, it was announced Monday. Annual observance of the week was established in 1947 by Act of Parliament.

Charge Amended

COBOURG, April 5 (ENS. — A charge against Arthur Foote, Port Hope, of theft of a gold watch from J. Coughlin, was amended to one of theft with no name indicated as the owner, when Foote appeared in police court. He was remanded out of custody to appear in Port Hope police court on April 8.

Warn Transients Leave

SAULT STE. MARIE, April 6 (CP)—Jobless transients flooding this city Monday were warned to get out within 24 hours or face court action. Police Chief Irvin L. Robertson said the situation had reached such proportions that reformatory terms might be imposed if the jobless persons didn't heed the warning. The early end of bush work has resulted in the great influx of transients.

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

A letter arrives from Bill Moher, an old Peterborough boy who writes a column for a paper up Minico way—a sheet of which Leona O'Leary, formerly of Lindsay, is editor. Bill's problem is simple—it's ours that's well-nigh impossible. Seems he wrote an item of the old days when a Peterborough team, possibly some of the old OHA aces of that time performing in the TVL, walloped a Belleville bunch 20-0. A fugitive from the shores of Quinte's Bay replied hotly that Peterborough never saw the day they could beat Belleville by such a score, and now Bill blandly asks us to check it up. He says: "I think it took place about 1901-02-03 or 04. Before Whitcroft turned pro. Maybe you can find some records. Rolly Glover might know. He played then."

* * * * * *

Maybe we could, William, but we won't. Not for less than a buck an hour and it might run quite a bill leafing through four years of old files looking for one particular game. We just don't have the time, old top, but when you visit us this summer we'll lead you to the dusty old files and you may enjoy several days out of the sun finding the account of that long-ago puck slaughter. Personally, Bill, we'd glibly inform your Belleville doubter that it happened on Feb. 25, 1902, and by the time he checked and found it wrong — summer sports would have arrived, so what the heck?

Kept 'Em Guessin

Alex Kay will never admit it but several oldtime ball players have told us that he had quite a little trick in settling arguments when he was a COBL umpire. When angry players would rush out arguing about a certain rule, Alex was reported to blandly reply: "You fellows had better read your rules—look this one up, it's on page 46", or some such. Players are noted for not carrying rule books around with them. By the time the manager or someone finally dug up a rule book and looked at page 46, it was found that no reference was made to that particular play—Alex had just picked it out of the air. By then, the game was well advanced and the argument was well-nigh forgotten.

Official word comes through from the OHA that the Ontario senior "B" final series will be a best-of-five, first two games between Sarnia and the Legion being in Lindsay this Friday and Saturday nights. Then they return to Sarnia for the next three if necessary on the following week-end, April 15-16-18. The OHA wouldn't quite go for a best-of-seven at this late date, but at least local fans are getting a real break in seeing the first two of the best-of-five, with the remainder switched to the border city as the big leagues open the baseball season. Likely a great rush on now here for ducats.

According To Andy

Andy Lytle writes in the Star: "There will be regret that a hockey warrior like Dit Clapper has decided to retire. But regret will be tinged with satisfaction that the Clapper escutcheon, after more than 20 years, leaves the game untarnished. He was a grand competitor always, with the best right hand shot to the chin in the game, though he threw it but rarely. He was a first-class coach because he, like Irvin of Montreal, always thought of his players before he yessed the front office. Clapper will retire to his place in Peterborough rich in memories, well supplied with what it takes, widely respected and still vigorous enough to take up refereeing if he is so minded. It is men of the type of Clapper, King Clancy and Clarence Campbell, in whom the love of hockey is ingrained, that make excellent officials and high-grade executives."

The potent PCVS basketballers showed all and sundry that they're not a bit over-rated when they defeated Sudbury by a 58-45 count last night in the Collegiate gym. First of their two-game series for the all-Ontario juvenile championship, with the return game being staged there at 4.30 this late afternoon. Points count and it looks like Bev Goulding's cagers should pick up the marbles and shoot for the Eastern Canada crown next. Thompson shone going both ways and led the snipers with 18 points, followed by Griffin with 14 and Northcott with 13, as Dinsdale stood out on guard. Whole crew clicked well against well-coached and determined northern opposition. A fine fray.

NO GOAL TROUBLES

Chicago Black Hawks should have few goaltending troubles in the future, F J. (Bill) Tobin, the president of the National Hockey League club, said Monday at Edmonton. Tobin said Hawks were "very pleased" with the showing of Al Rollins, goalie for Kansas City Pla-Mors in the United States Hockey League this season and with Edmonton's Allan Cup champion Flyers in the 1947-1948 season. "We consider him pretty near ready to make the jump to the big league next season, but it may take another year," he said.

The Black Hawk president also said his organization was keeping a sharp eye on Bev Bentley, brilliant young netminder with Regina Capitals.

CAPTURES FIRST — PCVS defeated Sudbury CHNO Airwaves 58 to 45 in the first game of the all-Ontario juvenile finals Monday in the school gym. Here Young, a PCVS second-stringer, has snared the ball from the Sudbury guard. Thompson, who is standing ready on the left for the passout, got the pass from Young to sink the ball for his 13th and 14th points. The second game of the points-to-count series will be played in the Collegiate gym Tuesday at 4.30. Winners will play the Quebec juvenile champions.

PCVS Cagers Beat Sudbury To Open All-Ontario Finals

Outscoring PCVS 30 to 24 in the last half, Sudbury CHNO Airwaves just failed to defeat the classy Juveniles, the final score being PCVS 58, Sudbury 45. The game was played in the PCVS gym Monday night as the first of a two-game series, points to count for the all-Ontario juvenile basketball championship. PCVS carry a 13-point lead into the second game to be played Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. in the school gym.

A smaller team, the Sudbury Airwaves were outclassed by the PCI'ers who have been playing nearly every weekend since Christmas. This was their third game in four days.

In the first half, it was the PCVS crew all the way except for a brief period in the first quarter when the Airwaves nearly tied the score. Griffin with his hook shot scored 10 points in the first quarter and seemed to be off to a fine start. Shoveller was on the bit for the Sudbury team spotting six points on loose PCVS play around the basket. Score, first quarter, 16-13.

Breaking hard with good passing plays, the PCI cagers pulled away from the Sudbury crew in the second quarter with Thompson starring. The strong zone defence of PCVS limited the Sudbury team to only two points in the second quarter, both coming on foul shots. Score at half time, 34 to 15.

Fast Action

In the second half, action shifted from the Sudbury basket to the PCVS basket, the Sudbury crew making things hot for the PCVS squad. Play became rougher as the Sudbury team came closer to the PCVS score. Campbell and Iwaniky for the Sudbury boys were most effective with Iwaniky sinking four out of six foul shots. Campbell netted four points on long shots. Northcott spoiled the chances of Sudbury with his one-hand shots by getting six points. The third quarter ended with PCVS out in front 47 to 27.

Burton, one of the smaller players of the Sudbury squad, whittled the PCI lead down in the last quarter by scoring 10 points. He got four field baskets and two foul shots. Pylko netter six points

Thompson for the PCVS team lead the scorers with 18 points. Griffin and Northcott followed close behind with 14 and 13. For Sudbury Burton lead with 12 points, being followed by Pylko with 11. Iwaniky was top foul shooter with six points out of a possible 10.

Thompson was the star of the game with his defensive play as well as his offensive. He was Johnny-on-the-spot more than once. Dinsdale guarded the PCVS basket effectively and caused more than one rush to be started by the PCI'ers. Shoveller, Pylko and Iwaniky battled down the line defensively, with Iwaniky the standout of the three.

Sudbury Airwaves sank 11 out of a possible 26 foul shots. Iwaniky had 10 foul shots, making six good. PCVS had 14 foul shots, making eight. Northcott had six shots, getting 50 per cent of them.

Peterborough attempted field baskets 79 times and scored in 25 of them. In the first half they attempted 40, making 15 good. Sudbury in the first half attempted 28, only making five. In the whole game they tried 72 shots, having 17 of them good.

Line-ups:

PCVS—Dinsdale 4, Northcott 13, Young 3, Hall, Griffin 14, Bailey, Thompson 18, Grant, Evans 4, Ackford, Sergeant, Grafstein 2.

Sudbury—Burton 12, Iwanky 6, Chmara 2, Shoveller 6, Pylko 11, Sinclar, Campbell 7, Black 1, Fordy.

Referees—Ron McComb, Toronto, and Bob Dyer, Peterborough.

Yarosz Downs Dave Sands

LONDON, April 5 (AP)—Back in 1934 when trainer Ray Arcel handled middleweight champion Teddy Yarosz he taught a little shaver how to box. The 12-year-old eager beaver was Teddy's brother Tommy.

Today Arcel challenged world light heavyweight champion Freddie Mills of England to meet Tommy Yarosz for the title.

Arcel, manager and trainer of the 27-year-old army veteran from Monaca, Pa., asked for the title shot after Yarosz defeated Dave Sands, Australian triple champion, in a 10-round bout in Harringay Arena Monday night.

A sellout crowd of 10,600 gave the skilful American a thunderous ovation for his upset triumph of the Australian middleweight, light heavyweight and heavyweight champion.

It was the sixth straight triumph this year for the busy battler and his most important victory. Yarosz came out of the fight with a $5,000 purse and a swollen left forearm.

The lanky Pennsylvanian thrilled fans with a fast left jab and with his counter-punching—two things that figure high in the British boxing book.

Soccer Association Elects No Officers

At the annual meeting of the Peterborough and District Soccer Association last night in the YMCA, with 30 present and the president, Bill Gracie, in the chair, members of the 1948 executive intimated their intentions of taking no active part this season. Another meeting will be held next Monday at 7.30 p.m. in an attempt to get an active executive appointed so that soccer can be carried on again.

It was first decided to have the association run by a commission but this was laid over for a week to give those interested more time to think it over. Secretary Stroyan Leith presented his annual report, showing a most successful soccer season with few injuries and all financial obligations met

BAIN TO COACH WESTON

Frank (Piper) Bain, 39, a noted figure in Ontario lacrosse, has been named coach of the Weston entry in the Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior League. Bain coached Owen Sound Crescents for past three seasons, and was a former professional star with Toronto Maple Leafs in the old Canadian Pro League. He played with Orillia Terriers when they won four Ontario and three Canadian senior titles.

President Stan Lowe conducted the well-attended meeting, reporting on the 1948-1949 activities, and paying tribute to all who had helped make the season a success.

Committee chairmen made their reports and a number of suggestions were left to the consideration of the new committees. W. M. Cruthers reported on the annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association. A vote of thanks was tendered to the directors, the committees, the press, and all who had aided in the past. Mr. Cruthers and J. W. Richmond were appointed representatives to the Ontario Curling Association, and the Rev. William McDonald was re-appointed honorary chaplain. Following were the winnerhs:

Sydney Millionaires Edge Marlies 5-4 In Overtime

TORONTO, April 5 (CP)—The Oshawa air—cleaner than that of smoky Toronto, they say—must agree with Sydney Millionaires.

The Maritime hockey champions moved headquarters to the motor city 40 miles east of Toronto during the week-end. Monday night they came back by bus and stayed just long enough to pull out with their first victory over Toronto Marlboros, a rousing 5-4 overtime triumph, to tie their Eastern Canada Semi-final Allan Cup series at a victory apiece.

From their spirited performance, the Cape Breton islanders must have found the Oshawa atmosphere as invigorating as the salty Atlantic breezes blowing in on their port city.

Four times they spotted Coach Joe Primeau's all-Ontario champions a one goal lead and four times came back to tie it up. Then Cliff Roach, a native Sydneyite, slapped home the winning goal on a pass from veteran Lou Medynski at 4:16 of the 10-minute overtime session.

A crowd of 8,700 was on hand in Maple Leaf Gardens to see the Millionaires achieve the first victory. Marlboros won 5-3 Saturday night after the opener ended in a 1-1 draw. The teams play again here Wednesday night.

No Changes

Coach Jack Fritz, who took his Millionaires right back to Oshawa after the game, said he planned no changes in the winning combination for the next match.

"I think we've solved them now," the lanky, lantern-jawed catch opined. "We should be able to take them from here in."

Fritz shifted his forward lines around for Monday night's game in an effort to find a winning combination—and the move paid off. He started Don (Red) McRae, the shifty Winnipeg product, at centre between Ronnie Nelson, a former Oshawa junior, and Alex Birukow, chunky winger from Fort William, Ont.

McRae scored the goal that sent the game into overtime at 14.50 of the third period, with both his line-mates drawing assists. Birukow and McRae also joined in helping Nelson score Sydney's third tally, tying the count at 3-3 early in the third frame.

First Goal

Sydney's first goal was fired by Bruce Gallagher, spunky little Toronto native who was the player in particular who said he found Oshawa's air "much cleaner than Toronto's—and you can breathe there." It came after Ray Hannigan had given Marlboros an early 1-0 lead.

Johnny McLellan again put the Toronto Maple Leafs farmhands ahead 2-1 at 14.39 of the second period but Doug Fritz, veteran brother of Sydney's coach, evened this one four minutes later. In the third frame, first George Armstrong and then Scotty Mair fired Toronto ahead but Nelson and McRae got these both back.

Flash Hollett, the 36-year-old veteran, fell to the ice in the closing seconds and had to be taken off, but coach Joe Primeau of Marlboros said his standout defenceman had suffered only a slashed hand that would not keep him out Wednesday night.

Demand Inquiry On Player's Ages

WINDSOR, April 5 (CP)—Investigation by the Ontario Hockey Association into charges that four players on the Windsor Spitfires, OHA junior team, were over-age, was demanded by Spitfire Manager Lloyd Pollock.

Pollock's demand, in a telegram to OHA assistant secretary George Panter, followed a statement by Bob Crosby, secretary of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association.

Crosby said Sunday that seven over-age players were in the OHA junior loop but amended that Monday by saying that he did not have the facts to back up his charges. His original statement was not intended for publication, he said.

OHA officials said Monday they would call on Crosby to provide proof to back up his statement or retract his charges.

British Empire Champion To Tangle With Mask

Fred Atkins, the British Empire heavyweight wrestling champion, will meet the Masked Marvel at the Brock Arena this Friday (not Wednesday) evening in the main pro mat bout.

Masked Marvel

Manager Jim Laidlaw of the Brock has promised to bring in an outstanding grappler to unmask the huge hooded horror, and he thinks the rugged Australian can do the trick. It should be a terrific battle as these two huskies tangle, and the Mask will likely find Atkins tougher than any of the others he fought here in previous furious matches.

Along with this outstanding main match, the Friday night wrestling program has Frank Valois, colorful and clever, pitted against the mammoth Cardiff Giant in a semi-final that should have the fans out of their seats throughout a hot bout. And popular Pat Flanagan is in the opener with big Ben Morgan, the bearded mountain that walks like a man. Morgan uses his strength and experience, plus a lot of illegal stuff, but may find the agile Irishman more than a match for him, beard and all. It should be one of the best pro mat cards seen here all season before a big weekend crowd of city and district wrestling fans.

REVIEW CONVICTIONS

At Washington, the United States Supreme Court Monday agreed to review conviction of two men charged with attempting to bribe two football players to throw a professional game. Harvey Stemmer and David Krakower were sentenced to five to 10 years each for attempting to bribe the players—both now with Canadian teams. The players, Frank Filchock and Merle Hapes were with New York Giants when the alleged action took place. Filchock now is with Montreal Alouettes and Hapes with Hamilton Tigers.
